Grasses and clovers are making rapid growth in Glengarry. Rains have freshened pastures. The corn crop is spotty. Some red clover and alfalfa fields are being threshed for seed with exceptionally good yields.

Expensive Wind

Renfrew county's cyclonic winds cost the farmers around $200,000 in damage to their buildings. Little pigs sold at $8 each in Grey at the week-end.

North Simcoe reflects a cross-section of present agricultural work—"red clover, potato and corn harvesting are the main activities on the farms." Lambton says: "There will be more corn husked in this county this fall and winter than there has been in many years. Hybrid seed is really establishing corn growing in all parts of the county."

Seeding of fall wheat in Middlesex is about completed; cattle demand in Oxford for export and domestic needs continues active.

Nurses To Meet

Plans for the annual district meeting, to be held in Peterborough, October 14, were discussed at the regular meeting of Chapter C, District 6, of the Registered Nurses' Association of Ontario Tuesday evening. Mrs. C. M. Scott was guest speaker, and chose as her topic, "Palestine," illustrating her talk with colored cards and pictures. Miss Edith Young was chairman. Following the meeting, refreshments were served, with Miss M. Armstrong in charge.

Four "Mothers" Mend For Uplands Fliers

Airmen stationed at No. 2 Service Flying Training School, Uplands, don't worry when the inevitable hole appears in their sox, when they need wings sewn on their tunics, or when their trousers need mending, for they have "four mothers away from home" to keep their kit in tip-top shape.

During 1943, Mrs. George W. Payton, Mrs. Howard Tucker, Mrs. C. P. Tilley and Mrs. W. A. Fraser, all of Ottawa, repaired 1,633 articles including shortening trousers and mending button holes for the boys at Uplands. For the past three years these women have devoted their Wednesday evenings to mending and sewing for the airmen. They bring their work baskets, scissors and needles to the "Mother's Corner" in the Y.M.C.A. ofifce off the Recreation Hall. Here they often sit till midnight as the airmen stream in with articles of clothing that need repairing. Wings parade time is usually a busy one, with coveted wings to be sewn on and Canada badges for those posted overseas. The women feel it is an honor to do this for the boys whose wives or mothers aren't there to do it for them.

If an airman has a shirt collar that looks as though it would not last another week he takes it in to Mrs. Fraser, who has four sons in the three services herself. Then he settles down to see a movie, and when it is time to go home he picks up his shirt with the collar almost as good as new.

Teresa Coveney Married In Hastings

Our Lady of Mount Carmel Church, Hastings, was the scene of a pretty wedding Tuesday when Teresa Anne Coveney, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. P. Coveney, Hastings, became the bride of Clement Corneilius Garvey, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Garvey of Douro. Rev. J. J. Garvey, cousin of the groom, performed the ceremony and said the nuptial mass.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride looked lovely in a floor-length gown of white corded taffeta with sweetheart neckline and fitted bodice, tiny self-covered buttons trimming the back from neck to waistline and long sleeves coming to points over the hands. She wore a finger-tip veil of silk embroidered net, and a pearl necklace, and carried a bouquet of American Beauty roses and bouvardia.

The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Irene Coveney, who wore baby blue sheer and lace with shirred bodice and square neckline. She wore a shoulder-length veil of blue net and a gold locket and carried a bouquet of Bettertime roses. The flower girl, Miss Winnifred Gooley, tiny niece of the groom, wore a floor-length gown of pink taffeta with square neckline and matching headdress and carried an old-fashioned nosegay.

The groom was attended by his brother, Mr. Leo Garvey. The ushers wer Mr. Robert Garvey and Mr. Basil Hurley. During the signing of the register Mrs. F. Daly sang "Ave Maria" with Mrs. E. J. Petticrew at the organ.

A reception followed at the home of the bride's parents, where bride's mother received in navy crepe and navy accessories, with a corsage of pink roses. The groom's mother also received, in navy crepe and navy accessories with a corsage of red roses.

For travelling the bride wore a two-piece rose wool dress with navy accessories and carried a navy coat.

On their return Mr. and Mrs. Garvey will reside on the groom's farm in Douro.

Post-War Work Projects Are Discussed

Mrs. W. A. Ackison and Mrs. J. Hatherley were hostesses for the September meeting of the Lily Lake Women's Association, at the former's home, and a large number of members were present. Suggestions and ideas were given and discussed for post-war work in the community, and the greater part of the meeting was spent in this timely discussion. Eight letters of thanks were read from members of the community who had received flowers and fruit during the month. Mrs. J. A. Middleton and Mrs. D. W. Wilson took the devotional period, and Mrs. G. Hancock read another chapter from the book "The Man Nobody Knows."

Following the adojurnment of the meeting, refreshments were served by the hostesses, assisted by Miss Margaret Ackison and Miss Audrey Hatherley. Members were reminded that the roll call at the next meeting, to be held at the home of Mrs. J. A. Middleton, Park Street, with Mrs. G. K. Middleton as co-hostess, would be answered with a suitable article for overseas boxes for the boys and girls.

So-Ed Program Planned To Open Oct. 25

A meeting of the Central Committee, to plan this year's So-Ed program, was held Tuesday evening, and it was decided that the course would run from October 25 to December 6 inclusive, with Wednesday set as the evenings for classes. This year, the meetings will be held at the Y.W.C.A., but will be under the joint auspices of the Y.M. and Y.W. C.A.'s. The October 25 meeting will be a social evening, and will include registration and an outline of courses. So-Ed was popular last year, and it hoped that more young people will avail themselves of this opportunity for advancement.

The following officers were appointed: Chariman, Quirt McKinney; secretary, Mrs. H. Wilson; treasurer, Mrs. H. Barker. Committees are as follows: Curriculum, Robertson Davies, chairman, and Miss Isobel Weddell, Miss O. Johnston Maurice Holt, Miss F. McVannell R. Scrutton, Miss Loretta McDougall. Miss Mary Gall, Miss C. Littlefield, Miss L. Dewart, Miss D. Boyle, Gordon Roper, H. Barker, Capt. W J. D. Smith, and Walker Jones; publicity Norman Allen, chairman, and Miss L. Brownscombe, Miss D. Duncan, H. Wilson, G. Blais, Miss Esther Thornton; arrangements, Miss L. Brownscombe, chairman, and Gordon Johnston, Miss Edmison, G. H. Roper and Mrs. M. Holt.

Bowling Club Plans Program

The arrangements for the program for the coming season were discussed at a business meeting of the St. Andrew's Bowling Club, Tuesday evening. On a motion by Mrs. D. R. Morrow and Mrs. T. H. Skinner, members decided to carry on for the coming winter, and Tuesday night was selected for play. The opening date is Tuesday, October 17, and the play that night will be followed by a social half hour.

Fees were set at 50 cents entrance fee, and 10 cents each night of play.

Do What Your Doctor Does If Child Is Listless

Because the tongue is the upper end of the stomach and bowels, it is usually the first thing a doctor looks at when he examines a sick child. He knows that a coated tongue and bad breath is a danger signal —a warning of an upset condition below, which may lead to real illness.

Don't you take chances—look at your child's tongue and check the breath every day! And at the first sign of bad odor on the breath or a coated tongue, give Children's Own Tablets. Small, pleasant-tasting tablets made especially for youngsters from runabout age to 15 years, they are wonderfully effective in helping to clean out harmful wastes and sweeten sour, upset stomachs. No drastic weakening flush-out action like many old-fashioned laxatives have.

Get a package of Children's Own Tablets —only 25¢—today from your druggist. Made by the makers of Baby's Own Tablets—your guarantee of a reliable product.

Prizes will be as follows: Attendance, for individual members with best attendance for the year; Play, two prizes for teams with the best games recorded throughout the year, and also a consolation prize. Dr. E. W. Young presided.

Officers for the coming year are as follows: President, Mrs. D. R. Morrow; vice-president, Mrs. A. McWilliams; secretary-treasurer, Miss Hazel Batten; social convener, Mrs T. H. Skinner; games convener, Mr D. R. Morrow; press secretary, Mrs H. Watson; telephone committee Mrs. H. Watson and Mrs. H. G Cheel.

THE TEA HOUR GOSSIP . . . .

As this is the season for all kinds of pickling, we will continue our recipes today. Some will concern pickled fruits. There are many recipes for these but we have to consider the sugar situation, and give our readers those recipes that they will be able to use.

Pickled Citron

2 pounds citron, 2 pounds sugar, 1 pint vinegar, 1 pint water, 1 lemon, 1 tablespoon cinnamon, 1 teaspoon cloves, 1 teaspoon allspice.

Luncheon Ends Season At Peterborough Golf Club

The closing luncheon and tea of the ladies' section of the Peterborough Golf and Country Club was, in spite of the weather Tuesday afternoon, a successful finale to the golfing season. After a buffet luncheon, the players took part in various competitions, while others played bridge. Tea was served from an attractively arranged table, with the honorary president, Mrs. W. H. Hill, and the president, Mrs. C. G. Graham, pouring tea. The junior members assisted. For the occasion the clubhouse was gaily decorated with multi-colored fall flowers.

Trophies and prizes for the eighteen-hole players were presented by Mrs. C. G. Graham, assisted by Mrs. G. A. Wood. They are as follows: Club championship winner, Mrs. Fred Foy; runner-up, Mrs. Viola Hutchings. Strickland Trophy winner, Mrs. O. A. DeGraw; runner-up, Mrs. W. E. Lloyd. H. A. Morrow Trophy winner, Mrs. O. A. DeGraw; runner-up, Mrs. Fred Roy. W. G. Morrow Trophy, winner, Mrs. R. G. Maniece; runner-up, Mrs. W. E. Lloyd. Aylmer-Hill Trophy winner, Mrs. Viola Hutchings; runner-up, Mrs. Stanley Northrop. Warne Cup (for reduction of handicap), Mrs. Viola Hutchings.

The Ringer Board prizes are: 1 to 23 handicap, winner, Mrs. C. G. Graham; 24 to 36 handicap, winner, Mrs. W. E. Lloyd; most improved player, Mrs. O. M. Steer. The Tuesday field day winners were: Points, Mrs. C. G. Graham; Mrs. Miller's prize for putting, Miss Maude Rush.

Nine-Hole Players

Presentations to the nine-hole players were made by Mrs. C. B. Westbrook as follows: Canadian Department Stores Trophy, Mrs. J. Watson, winner; Miss E. Armstrong, runner-up. Canada Packer's Trophy, Miss Margaret Johnston, winner; Mrs. C. V. Elliott, runner-up. Captain's prize, Miss Isobel Bullock; vice-captain's prize, Miss Beverly Martin. In the Ringer Board, Miss Eunice Armstrong won the award for the greatest reduction, and Mrs. C. B. Westbrook had the best score. Mrs. C. B. Westbrook was winner of the Tuesday field day points.

Mrs. Fred Roy and Mrs. J. D. Hall gave out the prizes for the many amusing competitions that they had arranged, and among the winners were: Mrs. R. G. Maniece, Mrs. O. A. DeGraw, Mrs. S. Northrop, Mrs. G. A. Wood, Mrs J. H. Vernor, Mrs J. H. Eastwood, Miss Nina Davidson, Mrs M. Richardson, Miss Beverly Martin, Mrs. H. Wilford, Mrs J. O. Huddart, Mrs. C. McBride, Miss N. Ross, Mrs. C. B. Westbrook, Miss M. Johnston and Mrs. C. S. Browne. Bridge prizes were won by Mrs. R. Blaiklock, Mrs. J. A. Jebson and Mrs. A. H. Turner.

An enjoyable day was brought to a close by summing up the year's activities, in reports given by various officers and conveners. It was announced that the 18-hole players would have their round on Friday at 1:30.

Other members and guests present, in addition to the winners, were: Mrs. W. Comstock, Mrs. E. S. Martin, Mrs. Harry Wightman, Mrs. R. Turner, Mrs. A. Leach, Mrs. S. D. Hall, Mrs. T. A. Mackay, Mrs. G. S. Cameron, Mrs J. F. MacKenzie, Mrs. M. Comstock, Mrs. J. A. Gibbs, Mrs. C. S. Cummer, Mrs. Clare Collins, Mrs. Herb Bradburn, Mrs. T. A. Hall, Mrs. A. A. McIntyre, Mrs. D. T. DOROTHY DIX . . . . .

MONEY CAUSES HOME WRECKS

DEAR MISS DIX: For fifteen years I earned my own living, keeping my job after I was married until my baby was born. Having been financially independent so long, I am finding it hard to adjust myself to asking my husband for money every time I need it. He gives me an allowance which covers only the household expenses, and I am supposed to be provided for by our having a joint bank account but he questions the necessity of what I spend, so that I don't feel free to use it.

I would gladly go back to my old job, except that I feel that my first duty is as a mother. Do you suggest that a wife go ahead and spend what she needs on clothes and so forth without her husband's approval in a case like this? I am not a spender, but my husband is a bit "near."

MRS. R. A. M.

Money Causes Most Domestic Battles

ANSWER: Not sirens, nor drink, nor gambling, nor difference in religion, nor mothers-in-law, nor any other one thing provoke as many domestic brawls and wrecks as many home as the money question.

The trouble with it is that it isn't a matter you can ignore, or step around, or settle once and for all and be done with it, because it is something that bobs up every day and intrudes itself into every act of life. There is always food to be bought and bills to be paid and new expenses, so there will probably never be a household in which there is no friction over finances until Heaven sends us down manna to eat and we grow our own feathers and babies quit lisping "gimmie" before they are out of the cradle.

It is a shock to practically all husbands to find out how much it costs to support a family, but the more liberal-minded of them do get hardened to it after a while and cease asking their wives what they did with the dollar they gave them week before last. But the man who was born with a death grip on his pocketbook is hopeless. No wife ever competes in his affections with the lady on the dollar, and no wife can ever get a new hat or a new dress out of him without chloroforming him first.

So, lady, as long as you are going to have to have a fight with your husband anyway over every cent you spend, at least have the consolation you can get out of a new hat.

DEAR MISS DIX: I have had the misfortune to fall in love with two lovely girls and am unable to decide which one I should ask to be my wife. One of them is home-loving, industrious, quiet and, although not beautiful, fairly attractive. The other girl is the care-free, happy-go-lucky type who makes the most of life and enjoys youth.

I, myself, am the sober, domestic sort of man who likes to sit at home of an evening, save money and enjoy the more peaceful aspects of existence. Which shall it be?

GEORGE J. S.

ANSWER: Like to like is the best bet in marriage. The home-loving, industrious, saving girl will make you far more happier than the one who is a gadder and a spender.

DEAR MISS DIX: I am a girl of 23. Have a fine job in a large concern. The problem is that my employer and I have fallen in love with each other, but his wife will not give him a divorce. Would you suggest that we go on seeing each other secretly in odd and out of the way places, or should I commit suicide and end it all?

ANSWER: No man is worth committing suicide over, so my suggestion is that you get another job. You will find that the best cure for an unhappy love affair is a new boy friend.

Normal Students Given Warm Welcome

A sincere and gracious welcome to Peterborough was extended to the pupils of the Normal School by several prominent Peterborough citizens at the annual staff reception of the Normal School Tuesday afternoon. Greetings and welcome were extended by the clergy of Peterborough through Canon W. P. Robertson and Dr. E. W. Young.

Canon Robertson in a brief address complimented the students on their choice of vocation, and said that they showed they were motivated by a real sense of duty to the teaching profession, since they chose it in preference to other better-paid positions. He briefly outlined the religious instruction given last year in the Normal School, and expressed a hope that it would be carried on again this year. He said that the church endeavored to relieve the home-sickness often felt by young people away from home and assured everyone of a welcome at St. John's.

Dr. Young, who brought greetings and a welcome from the Peterborough Presbytery of the United Church and from the Ministerial Association, urged the students to contact a church of their faith as soon as possible, since the help and guidance afforded by the church would be invaluable. He assured his audience that they would be welcomed in any church in the city, and wished them success in their year's work. He related three amusing stories of the unusual situations ministers often meet, and drew appreciative smiles and laughter from the audience.

Senator Speaks

A highlight of the afternoon was a short talk by Senator Iva C. Fallis. She urged the young teachers to "teach their pupils to have faith in themselves; give them the opportunity to prove themselves; and place responsibility of making good squarely on their shoulders." She said that they would be training children who would become Canadian citizens of tomorrow, and impressed upon them the responsibility they were accepting. Since good citizenship applies not only to Canada but to the world, which is continually growing smaller through rapid communication and travel facilities. Again stressing her main theme, Senator Fallis concluded: "Teach them, next to their faith in God and faith in their country, to have faith in themselves, and you will be doing a real service to them and to your country."

Harold Scott, M.P.P., spoke very briefly and told of a recent trip he had made to Northern Ontario and how he had been impressed with the excellence of the schools in that section. Mr. Scott impressed upon the students the fact that teaching in the country schools was just as important as teaching in urban schools, and that the experience to be gained in country schools would be invaluable.

New Plans

Mr. E. H. McKone, principal of the Normal School, was chairman. In his remarks he explained the set-up for religious instruction which had been in practise in the school, and outlined the new plans laid down by the Department of Education. He said that the staff would teach a course which was ethical and universal in nature, and more along the lines of Bible study. The job of the staff would be to give a course in religious instruction and the students could receive their religious guidance from the ministers.

George Gatfield, guest soloist, played two violin selections, "Verceus" and "Ave Maria," accompanied on the piano by Miss Lenore Skitch. Mr. McKone called on Mr. Quirt McKinney to introduce the guests, and expressed the appreciation of the staff and students to Mr. McKinney for obtaining such splendid musical entertainment.

Following the official speeches of welcome, refreshments were served. Mrs. E. H. McKone and Mrs. Q. McKinney poured tea at a table set with a lace cloth and centred with a bowl of marigolds in a silver bowl on a reflector, flanked by silver candelbra set with white tapers. Members of the staff assisted in serving. Miss O. Johnson supervised the serving of the lunch, and was in charge of the decorations.

Receiving the guests were Mr. and Mrs. E. H. McKone, Miss O. Johnston, Mr. and Mrs. Q. McKinney, Miss M. Munro, Mr. Leo Copp, Miss C. Wagar and Mr. W. Stricker.

Among guests present were:

Dr. and Mrs. A. J. Madill, Mr. B. Smitheram, Canon W. P. Robertson, Dr. E. W. Young, Mr. R. Downey, Mr. and Mrs. J. E. R. Munro, Mr. and Mrs. E. D. Munro, Miss H. Bonnycastle, Miss O. CWAC'S Serving At Conference

Canada's women in uniform, representative of all three services, are playing an important role in the U.N.R.R.A. Council Second Session taking place in Montreal this week. Gathered from every corner of the Dominion, the girls were hand-picked to form the mainstay of the temporary staff which the conference requires to supply stenographic and clerical assistance.

Members of the Canadian Women's Army Corps (the predominant service to participate), the Women's Division of the Royal Canadian Air Force and the Women's Royal Canadian Naval Services are all working in close unison on the machinery without which the 44 member nations could never meet to discuss the relief and rehabilitation of the millions whose very survival depends on their momentous decisions.

Row upon row of typewriters are uproarious as they turn out memoranda, letters, and stencils cut to be run off in the "mimeograph" room. With amazing speed, the melee of khaki, navy blue and airforce blue are producing the official documents which are typed, proofed, mimeographed and assembled by service personnel.

When copy is assembled and stapled, it goes to the messenger service which is supplied by the Canadian Technical Training Corps of the Canadian Army assisted by a group of boy scouts who take it direct to the various departments and Council delegates.

A number of girls are on special assignments which include the following: Lieut. D. Tillson, CWAC, to M. Sokolowski, financial adviser; Sgt. S. Reid to the Journal office; Staff Sgt. Wiser and Sgt. Gibson to Wilma Shannon, personnel officer; Cpl. Horton and Pte. Bradt to the press relations office and Sgt. M. Aronoff to Helen Sommerling, Journal editor.

Armed services personnel assigned to stenographic services and to the mimeograph room are operating on a four-shift basis under the direction of Lieut. Ina V. Watt, CWAC who is assistant liaison officer—with Capt. Gaston Gauthier of M.D. 4—between the services and UNRRA.

Trinity Group Holds Banquet

Trinity Young People's Club opened their fall and winter season Tuesday evening, with a banquet and social evening, in the basement of the church. Following a delicious supper served by the Ladies' Bible Class, an entertaining program was presented, opening with a community singsong of old and new favorites, led by Miss Lily Brown. Dick Clayton, president, was chairman, and introduced the guests.

Miss Betty Craig recited, "An Old-Fashioned Thanksgiving," which recalled the joys of a Thanksgiving day long ago, when everyone came home to attend. Little Joan Krough played a piano solo "Scherzzo." She shows real talent, and has definite promise for future years. Mrs. Don Holmes gave two humorous readings, "How Not to Repair a Door-knob," and "Bones," an account of the agony of a small boy called upon to give an oral composition. Miss Iris Whalon sang "Pal O'Mine" accompanied at the piano by Miss L. Brown.

Rev. William McDonald gave a short talk on the changes made in young people's clubs since they were first begun, and outlined a number of ways in which young people could improve themselves through the contacts made in their clubs. Mrs. G. S. Easton expressed Dr. Easton's regret at being unable to be present, and spoke of his improving condition. Dick Clayton reviewed the financial position of the Club, and the progress it had made.

DIVINE GENIUS

The name genius was given by the ancients to divinities to whose charge was committed the destinies of individual human beings.

When Sugar's Low...

Baking day, and your sugar running low! Your family will be looking for cake—light, delicate, velvety, down to the last delicious crumb. Impossible? Certainly not! With Swans Down and a good recipe, low-sugar cakes—or cakes sweetened with syrup, honey or jam—are successful as any of pre-ration days. But don't forget . . . you can't get Swans Down results with any ordinary flour!

1. To Sweeten with Honey

Honey cakes need dependable recipes like the one below—and flour with the superb fineness of Swans Down. Given these, they are fine-textured, tender, thin-crusted . . . and keep beautifully!

Honey Spice Cake

2 cups sifted Swans Down Cake Flour
2 teaspoons Calumet Baking Powder
¾ teaspoon salt
1½ teaspoons mixed spices
½ cup shortening
1 teaspoon grated lemon rind
¾ cup honey
2 eggs, separated
½ cup milk
⅔ cup chopped raisins (may be omitted)
1 teaspoon vanilla

Sift flour once, measure, add baking powder, salt and spices, and sift together three times. Cream shortening with lemon rind; add honey gradually, beating well after each addition. Add ¼ of flour and beat until smooth and well blended. Add unbeaten egg yolks, one at a time, beating well after each. Add remaining flour in thirds, alternately with milk in halves, beating very well after each addition, and including raisins with last addition of flour. Add vanilla. Beat egg whites until stiff enough to hold up in moist peaks. Stir quickly but thoroughly into batter. Turn into greased 8 x 8 x 2-inch pan, and if available, sprinkle with ⅓ cup chopped nuts. Bake in moderate oven (350°F.) 55 minutes, or until done.

2. Little Sugar, No Substitute Needed

For cakes that are fine and even, thin-crusted and velvety-crumbed, you've learned to expect a fairly generous amount of sugar. But here's good news! With Swans Down you can use less sugar, yet have typical cake-fineness and deliciousness.

Apple Dessert Cake

2 cups sifted Swans Down Cake Flour
2 teaspoons Calumet Baking Powder
¼ teaspoon salt
⅓ cup butter or other shortening
¾ cup brown sugar, firmly packed
2 egg yolks, unbeaten (or 1 egg)
¾ cup milk
1 teaspoon vanilla
Peeled apple

Sift flour once, measure, add baking powder and salt, and sift together three times. Cream butter, add sugar gradually, and cream together until light and fluffy. Add egg yolks and beat well. Add flour, alternately with milk, a small amount at a time, beating after each addition until smooth. Add vanilla. Turn into greased pan, 8 x 8 x 2 inches. Arrange eighths of peeled apple over batter, sprinkle lightly with sugar and cinnamon, and bake in moderate oven (350°F.) about 45 minutes. This cake is best served hot.

3. When Syrup Replaces Sugar

To use syrup as sweetener and get good cake-texture and flavor, you need dependable ingredients and a properly adjusted recipe. Swans Down gives marvellous support to a carefully balanced mixture like the Sugarless Orange Cake in the next column.

Sugarless Orange Cake

2¼ cups sifted Swans Down Cake Flour
2¼ teaspoons Calumet Baking Powder
¼ teaspoon salt
½ cup butter or other shortening
2 teaspoons grated orange rind
1 cup light corn syrup
2 eggs, unbeaten
½ cup milk
1½ teaspoons vanilla

Sift flour once, measure, add baking powder and salt, and sift together three times. Cream shortening with orange rind; add syrup gradually, beating well after each addition. Add ¼ of flour and beat until smooth and well blended. Add eggs, one at a time, beating well after each. Add remaining flour in thirds, alternately with milk in halves, beating very well after each addition. For best results, beat cake very well at each stage of mixing. Add vanilla. Bake in two greased 8-inch layer pans in moderate oven (375° F.) 30 minutes, or until done. Good with orange or chocolate filling and frosting.

For Better Cakes

Beginner or expert, you'll find that Swans Down helps you make better cakes. Milled from selected wheat, Swans Down is sifted again and again through silk, until 27 times as fine as ordinary flour. Makes cakes outstandingly light, tender, velvety-crumbed . . . and does it thriftily, too!

Nine tested recipes on each package.

Guard Your Baking Success!

Whenever a recipe calls for baking powder, give it Calumet's protection! Calumet's double action is double assurance of good results. In the mixing bowl, thousands of tiny, even-sized bubbles start the leavening. In the oven, myriads more tiny bubbles continue to lift and hold biscuits, cakes and muffins high . . . even . . . feathery.

Pare the citrons and cut in medium thin slices. Soak over night in salt water (two tablespoons salt to one quarter of water). Drain off the brine and cook the citron in clear water until it is tender. Add the citron to the hot pickling solution, made from the vinegar, sugar and spices and boil it rapidly until it becomes clear. Seal in hot jars.

Cucumber Pickles

100 cucumbers, vinegar, 1 ounce mustard seed, 1 ounce cloves, 2 teaspoons salt, 1 cup sugar, 2 red peppers.

Use the smallest cucumbers you can procure, making two and one-half inches the limit of length. Put the spices in thin muslin bags, using at least two bags. Place the cucumbers in a kettle with enough good vinegar of medium strength to cover them. Place the bags of spices in the vinegar together with the salt and sugar and the peppers cut in rings. Heat the vinegar as slowly as possible. When it is scalding hot, but not boiling, the pickles are ready to set away. If this recipe is carefully followed, satisfactory results will be obtained.

Tomato Chutney

4 pounds ripe tomatoes, 1 pound pared chopped apples, 3 onions chopped fine, 1 pint of strong vinegar, 2 tablespoons salt, 2 cups brown sugar, 1 cup seeded raisins, 1 teaspoon cinnamon, 1 teaspoon mustard, ½ teaspoon cayenne.

Chop the vegetables, and then the apples. Combine the ingredients and cook until the chutney is thick and clear. Seal in hot, clean jars.

Old Virginia Catchup

1 peck green tomatoes, ½ peck white onions, 3 ounces mustard seed, 1 ounce allspice, 1 lb. brown sugar, 1 ounce cloves, ½ cup dry mustard, ¼ cup water, 1 ounce black pepper, 1 ounce celery seed, salt, vinegar. Chop the tomatoes and onions, sprinkle with salt and let stand three hours. Drain well and put the pulp in a preserving kettle with other ingredients. Cover with vinegar and boil slowly for one hour.

Eire Planning Electricity For All Farms

By J. H. MURDOCH
Canadian Press Correspondent.

DUBLIN, Sept. 27 — (CP). — Conservatism and old-fashioned methods of farming will be swept away in Eire when the government's $85,000,000 rural electrification plan, patterned after that of Ontario, is completed.

A Government White Paper on the plan has just been issued and the cost is estimated on 1939 prices. It will take about 10years to complete and a total of about 400,000 farmsteads will be supplied with electricity for the first time. In all these cottages farmers at present rely on oil lamps for light and there is, of course, a complete lack of electrical equipment on the farm.

For this plan electrical experts and engineers studied rural electrification in about a dozen countries and decided to adopt, in the main, the electric scheme in operation in Ontario. It appears that the farming requirements of Ontario are closely akin to those of rural Eire for electrification purposes

Steam generating plants will be erected but most of the electrical current will be generated from the rivers, especially during the wet seasons.

Communications between Eire and Britain are gradually returning to normal. One of the big steps in this direction was the restoration of the telephone services between the two countries. Telephonic services were stopped April 6 for security reasons while the Allies were preparing for the invasion of Europe. Exactly five months later the ban has been lifted.

In the last couple of months the travel restrictions between Britain and Eire have been greatly relaxed. There is a possibility that all travel restrictions may be completely removed soon.

Liquor Boost Likely Soon

TORONTO, Sept 27. — Early increase in Ontario's liquor ration from 13 to 26 ounces per person was intimated last night by Attorney-General Leslie Blackwell.

Speaking before the Eglinton Progressive Conservative Association, Mr. Blackwell said the Government had realized last April 1 that, unless the ration was cut, Ontario's liquor stocks would be sold out and all liquor stores closed "by about Christmas" for the remaining three months of the fiscal year.

The 13-ounce ration was planned he said, for the warm months "from June until autumn" to permit accumulation of stocks, so that "we could go back to 26 ounces for the balance of the year."

He said he was "not prepared to announce the date of tht increase" but said stocks were being studied closely with this in mind, and added: "We will sell the total amount of liquor permitted."

Mr. Blackwell also announced that the Government will be able to bring into effect before the next session of the Legislature some of the revisions of the Securities Act which are being based on the interim report of the special commission appointed to review investment practices.

Vansittart Demands Allies Crack Down

LONDON, Sept. 27—(CP)—Lord Vansittart, who favors a sharp Allied crack-down on Germany, asked the government in the House of Lords yesterday to follow the American example and forbid any soldier fraternization with German citizens.

He suggested the order make it clear that "we entered Germany not as friends but as conquerors bent on reducing the German nation to sufficient spiritual humiliation and military impotence to make it impossible for them to behave in the same way again."

Arguing that Allied forces would be in possession of some of Germany's great cities in a few weeks, he suggested immediate announcement of "who is going to occupy what" and who will be responsible.

The Bishop of Chichester and Lord Strabolgi disagreed with Lord Vansittart, former permanent undersecretary of the foreign office. Lord Strabolgi said photographs of Allied troops being friendly with German civilians in occupied villages should be dropped by the millions all over the Reich as an answer to enemy propaganda that "we are advancing to murder and rape and destroy."

Guelph Starts Handicraft Centre

GUELPH, Sept. 27 (CP)—Guelph's new handicraft centre in the old butter market in the city hall was unofficially opened Monday night with eager groups taking lessons in such handicrafts as weaving and making candlewick bedspreads.

Keith Chapman, entomologist at the Ontario Agricultural College here, first thought of the centre when he attended a provincial council meeting of the Canadian Youth Commission last winter.

Four craft groups operated last winter and the project was so successful plans were made for expansion. The city council provided the quarters with light and heat, rent-free, and $500 was raised in the city to obtain equipment and meet other expenses.

The centre is open three hours a night, three nights a week—Monday, Wednesday and Friday.

Wrestler Hurt

as the rivals set a fast pace and the action moved along at a quick tempo that had the fans on their feet.

Davis Takes First

Davis had a slight edge in the exchanges and he finally went out in front in the match when he slowed Kennedy down with a couple of vicious rabbit punches and then clapped on his punishing stepover toe hold to take the first fall after 17 minutes hard going.

Kennedy came back strong after the rest and started to carry the battle to his tough opponent. On one occasion he tossed the Texan around a couple of times so hard that Davis bounced a foot off the canvas each time he hit the mat. The Texan retaliated with a series of headlocks that had Kennedy in trouble but he finally worked out of that tough spot and then proceeded to square the match by cutting loose with a series of low flying tackles that bowled Davis over as if he had been hit by a buzz bomb. The third one took so much out of the tough Texan that Irish Jack had little difficulty in pinning his shoulders.

A Turbulent Finish

The third round was a turbulent affair, and Kennedy had to be unlucky not to have won out. As a matter of fact he did have Davis spread on the mat but unfortunately he picked a time when Referee Maxwell was suffering a temporary blackout. Maxwell had moved in to separate the rivals who were battling on the ropes and suddenly was taken out of the play when a vicious punch launched by Davis and intended for Kennedy caught the official right on the button and dropped him to the canvas.

While the referee was still out the mat star from Georgia tossed Davis with a headlock and rolled on him for the fall. However there was no count from the helpless referee and Kennedy after pinning the Texan's shoulders for at least 10 seconds got to his feet and went over to assist the official.

The good samaritan role proved a mistake, however, for Davis jumped up, rushed across the ring and dropped a hard punch on the back of Kennedy's neck and then tossed him through the ropes. He had trouble in getting back in but finally succeeded. The next moment Davis found himself hit by a flying tackle that was repeated with even more gusto. However when Kennedy tried a third his foot caught in the ropes and he was through for the night with a knee injury. The Texan nearly caused a riot by kicking his helpless opponent three or four times. Fans rushed from their seats and milled around the ring and it looked for a while as if they were going to climb inside the ropes to get at the bad man from south of the border. However order was restored without an attack being made on Davis.

McCready in New Role

The main bout was not the only stormy session. Palermo John Katan and Earl McCready staged a semi-final battle that was crammed full of action. Katan aroused the Moose's ire by his tactics in the early minutes and the crowd saw a new McCready for the usually calm Earl went berserk and hammered Katan all over the ring. Katan opened in his usual style, and he clapped a series of headlocks on the Moose with so much pressure that McCready suddenly saw red. While the crowd cheered wildly he opened an attack that had the Panther bouncing around like a corvette in a North Atlantic gale. Katan got a liberal portion of his own medicine for McCready nearly tore his head off with a barrage of headlocks that had the dour Katan in much distress. The Moose even resorted to flying tackles, a weapon that he doesn't often use, and two of them landed so hard that Katan ran for cover every time after that when McCready braced himself against the ropes.

It was a tough, tense battle between two powerful mat stars and both finished strong in spite of all the rough stuff that was handed out. Even after the bell there was action for Katan rushed at McCready with swinging fists only to be met with a round of punches that drove the Panther out of the ring. The crowd loved that.

Dunlop Is Beaten

The card got away on a rough note for those two arch villains Doc. Len Hall and Al Bunny Dunlop staged a back alley brawl in which everything went. Dunlop was making his first appearance since Ivan Rasputin nearly ruined him with a bear hug a couple of weeks ago, and he found Hall carrying too many guns, although to give the Toronto strong man credit he fought it out grimly. Hall, however, gave him the well known works before the battle ended and Bunny took a ride that made even the legion of anti-Dunlop fans feel sorry for him. He was tossed around like a bag of flour, and was busy most of the time trying to prevent Hall punches from landing on his chin and the Hall stomp act from knocking off some of his fingers.

The Doc finally ended the brawl by the simple method of tossing Dunlop through the ropes and knocking him back on to the Arena floor each time he attempted to climb in again. Eventually Dunlop could not get back inside the 10-second limit and was counted out.

Fred Scates was back to do the announcing after a holiday absence from the ring and Referee Bert Maxwell handled all three bouts and incidentally absorbed a lot of punishment.

Fist Fights

WINNIPEG, Sept. 27—(CP).—The Winnipeg Tribune said yesterday "clashes" have occurred between general service troops and members of defence units stationed at Camp Shilo, Man., in the last few weeks. Most of the clashes had been fist fights, the paper said.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

YOU MUST ADD UP TO 13

THERE IS no such thing as playing a halfway decent game of bridge if you are unable to add up to 13, or else are too lazy to do it. You probably know people who say they "Only play for fun." Where in the world is the fun if they are not really going to try to play the game. The real joy of bridge comes from trying to figure things out—and a goodly portion of that consists of adding up to 13 and subtracting from it. That is the heart and soul of most skillful card-reading

When the heart bid, after two bids of spades, indicated that South had only four of his second suit and at least six of the first, North properly shifted to the original one.

West quickly scored his club K and A, then switched to the diamond 10. The 2 was played from dummy, and East, deciding to hold his A to knock off the K later, played his J. South in great glee took this with his singleton Q, raked in the spade K and A, then ran hearts until West trumped the fourth with his spade Q, for the third trick by his side. That was all, and South made his contract

East heard the bidding the same as everybody else did. He should have known that two bids of spades followed by one of hearts showed at least six cards in one suit and four in the other. That makes ten cards, so only three at the most could be held by South in the two minors. He had already shown two clubs, so could not possibly have more than one in diamonds. If East had done that simple figuring he would have come in with his A on the diamond lead to the third trick. So doing, he would have enabled his partner later to set the contract with his sure trump trick

But no—East is one of those boys who "only play for pleasure."

GOLF BALLS NEEDED

LONDON — (CP). — The Royal Air Force Comforts Committee is being swamped with appeals for old golf balls by members of the R.A.F., especially men from overseas. Golf is encouraged as it sharpens the eyesight of the men.

BRITISH RELIEVE AIRBORNE UNIT—British armored units have entered the Reich near Nijmegen, circled in map, and are close to Essen, home of Krupps works in the heart of Germany's industrial Ruhr. British 2nd Army forces have relieved the besieged British "Red Devil" parachutists north of the Rhine at Arnhem (A, insert map). They effected the junction after capturing intact a mile and a half span bridge across the Rhine at Nijmegen (B). Meanwhile, the American First Army drove a spearhead north of Aachen (1), as other units locked in violent battle for the town of Stolberg below Aachen. Heavy fighting was reported at Biesdorf (2), one mile east of the Luxembourg border. Further south, the American Third Army closed to within a few miles of Metz (3) against heavy counter-attacks by Nazi armor.

Goebbels' Home Hit By Bombs

MADRID, Sept. 27—(AP)—Allied bombers scored direct hits on the Reich's Chancellery, Hitler's Berlin headquarters, Propaganda Minister Goebbels' home, the Adlon Hotel, and the Berlin Lokal Anzeiger printing plant during a raid September 15, according to a traveller from Germany who was in Berlin during the attack.

The traveller, who arrived here Monday, said the Chancellery was "almost a complete wreck," and that Goebbels' home nearby also was badly damaged. Goebbels, he said, emerged uninjured from an elaborate bombshelter beneath his home.

He described Germany as "a nation of weary people who now are little more than mechanical men, too tired to do anything save their appointed jobs."

Prisoner Of Japs Miss Clark Escaped, Was Hunted For Weeks

A prisoner of the Japanese for a month and later hunter for several weeks by them, Miss Greta Clark, Anglican church missionary, has returned to Canada and is visiting her brother, Howard Clarke on Chemong Road. Miss Clark went to China 25 years ago, returning to Canada periodically on furloughs.

She had lived in Free China about four years in a city 10 miles from the Japanese forces across the Yellow river. In 1941 the city was occupied and pillaged by the Japanese, but Miss Clark and other foreigners were unharmed because Canada was not at that time at war with Japan. "They were under orders, it seemed, to treat us civilly. It appears they act strictly on orders from their headquarters," she said. "During the occupation, Chinese women and girls were molested and young men were conscripted for the Japanese army. Those who could fled from the city. They came to my apartment on several occasions and asked questions. I poured tea for them and they acted quite civilly."

Leave Starving City

"After a month, they withdrew from the city, taking everything they could with them and left people starving. The following spring that section of China saw its worst famine when the spring crops failed, and when the fall crops failed it made matters considerably worse. We worked under famine conditions until last year, when the International Relief comittee did a great deal to help the people.

"I was asked to take up child rescue work for the city because babies ranging upwards from a few days old were being abandoned on the street and thousands were dying of starvation." Miss Clark told of how soup kitchens were opened and homes were found for orphan children.

"In April of this year, we had 31 babies under our care, 20 of which were less than a year old. We received word to evacuate because of a threatened Japanese invasion. With the aid of eight wheelbarrows and several people carrying them, we began the move to leave the area with the babies. After we had walked for three days, Japanese forces crossed our path and we were forced to take refuge in a cave. We had just settled in the cave when Japanese soldiers began scouting near. If we were found in the cave, we would have been burned alive, so we were forced to take refuge in a wheat field. The babies were most remarkable because they never cried. As I hid, I saw a group of Japanese about 30 yards away, and so it was the rest of the day. They never found us and we played 'hide and seek' with them all afternoon.

Robbers Take Money, Clothes

"When night came, the entire group came back to the cave. The adults of the party had their first meal of the day that night and we offered a thanksgiving service. For five days we had peace, but Chinese robbers armed with revolvers and knives took some money and clothing from us. We saved the larger amount of the money we had by hiding it in an inner cave and another member of the party and myself crawled into the inner cave. The robbers came near but they didn't see us.

"About this time, I sent a member of the party, an elderly lady, through the enemy lines and back to the city we left to learn what had taken place. I received word back that I should leave the district immediately as the Japanese were looking for me. Two boys about 19 and 21 years of age and an old lady volunteered to go with me. If I was caught I would be shot, and if the boys were captured they would have to serve in the Japanese army. There was no alternative for us. I had to leave the babies.

In Constant Danger

"We walked for several days over very hilly country, travelling by day and sleeping at night in caves. We could hear the noise of battle nearly all the time. We passed through enemy lines three times in the journey. On one occasion there was heavy fighting going on to our left and right. At another place we had to stop for an hour as a steady stream of Japanese vehicles lumbered down a road in convoy. After we walked another six miles we were again stopped with the Japanese in front of us. We started through a deep ravine when we came to a house in which an elderly Chinese lived. His property had been pillaged and there was nothing to eat. He explained to me that I was in very great danger. We stayed overnight at his house and started out again in the morning."

Miss Clark pointed out that it was necessary for her small party to travel by day because dogs barked at strangers at night and they would betray their presence.

"The next day we met some plainclothesmen from the Chinese army. They took us to the Chinese lines, but the Chinese were under orders not to let anyone pass. I was sent under guard to an officer, who in turn had me sent under guard to the next higher officer. And so it was all day. I kept meeting one rank higher until I came to the headquarters of the commanding general. His assistant interviewed me and I was given food and a room for the night.

Japs Drop Bombs on Train

"The folowing morning I procured a cart and reached Loyang the next day. The city had been evacuated and I was fortunate in getting aboard the last train to leave the city. For three days and two nights I sat in an open car on a wooden chair with other refugees. The train did not travel fast, but that was a good thing. When an air-raid alarm sounded, everyone would jump from the moving train to the ground about 10 feet below and run for cover. The day previous Japanese planes had dropped high explosive and incendiary bombs in the open cars of a train, killing 200 to 300 people.

"The train arrived at Syan, where there were many foreign missionaries. With 35 other missionaries and 19 babies, we boarded a box car and travelled all night. For the next nine days I rode in an open truck to Chungking, the capitol of China. I flew by plane to Bombay, India, in 10 hours and, after a wait of two months, was able to get reservation on board for this continent."

Collecting Paper . . . To Speed the Victory

Twenty thousand tons of waste paper are needed every month for the use of our Armed Forces. It is made into paperboard for shell cases; containers for blood plasma, food and medical supplies. It goes into building boards; is used for interior fittings of aircraft cockpits and for bodies of ambulances, the component parts of small arms ammunition and shells, gaskets and gas masks. It is turned into newsprint for pamphlets dropped from planes or shot into enemy lines from guns.

As more territory is taken, the need of Paper grows. So don't wait. Gather your waste paper today. Have it ready when the Paper Salvage Collector calls.

We are Saving . . . for War

In wartime, the people of Canada, out of their savings, are providing the means of destruction.

Destruction of a ruthless enemy aiming to enslave us all . . . this has been the purpose of the planes, the ships, the tanks, the ammunition we have furnished to our fighting men and those of our allies . . . out of savings.

Let us Continue to Save . . . for Peace

In peacetime, the people of Canada, out of their savings, can provide the means of construction.

Construction of a great and prosperous nation . . . factories and machines to make useful goods abundantly; capital to develop our natural resources; comfortable homes; health services, education, provision against the hazards of life . . . these can become the purpose for which we save.

Through taxes, Victory Bonds, War Savings Stamps and Certificates, the savings of a people have been devoted to a single purpose—Victory.

We Canadians have proved what we can do in wartime by saving. Think what we can do in peacetime . . . if we continue to save with the same purposeful determination. Out of our savings we, as individuals, can build a future for ourselves and our children worthy of the sacrifices made for victory.

Canadian Infantry Hammers Factory Area In Calais

By WILLIAM STEWART—Canadian Press War Correspondent

WITH THE 1ST CANADIAN ARMY, Sept. 28—(CP Cable).—Canadian infantry have hammered to the western edge of Calais harbor area and fought their way across the western flats of the Channel port into the factory area which the Germans were using as a strongpoint. Western troops wearing "Mae West" life-preservers today were attacking eastward across a line of canals and an old moat toward the port and town, now little more than a half mile away.

Yesterday in addition to unloading another 1,700 tons of bombs on the port to help Canadian infantry capture the Fort Lapin strongpoint on the coast and fortifications of the Redoubt district around the Boulogne-Calais highway, the R.A.F. flew 286 sorties against German defences.

As tactical fighter-bombers blasted forward positions today hundreds of guns from the 1st, Canadian Army's artillery concentrations fired over the heads of the infantrymen. Gains of several hundred yards were made and troops were able to get into Calais' southwestern factory buildings, cutting into the zone of fortifications.

Elsewhere along the long Canadian Army front there were no major changes. British troops widened their strong bridgehead over the Antwerp-Turnhout Canal and pushed north on the heels of a local German withdrawal, but it still did not greatly alter the position there.

A German force continues to hold out north of the Escaut Canal in the Antwerp area, which is largely in the hands of Canadian troops. A German division remains on the south bank of the Schelde inside the Leopold Canal, and at the sea around Zeebrugge, Belgian coastal town which Canadian forces entered three weeks ago.

Progress at Calais now is necessarily slow because of strong enemy defences. Today some German shellfire was directed against the Canadians from positions east of the town where the defences are not as elaborate as elsewhere.

Westerners who captured the Fort Lapin coastal strongpoint have fought right up to a canal line about three-quarters of a mile west of Fort Risban which overlooks the entrance to the harbor. These troops now are before the old citadel of Calais and the many basins of the town.

English Flier Gets 38th Plane

LONDON, Sept. 28 — (CP). — Wing Cmdr. J. E. (Johnny) Johnson, who scored his 38th kill yesterday in operations over the Nijmegen sector of Holland, is the top active Allied air ace of the second great war.

The English-born leader of an R.C.A.F. Spitfire wing still has a long way to go to beat the record of Lt.-Col. Alexander Pokryshkin of the Red Air Force—53 confirmed victories—but Pokryshkin is reported to be not currently on operations.

Johnson's nearest rival, Lt.-Col. Francis Gabreski, of the U.S. Army Air Force, who had downed 28 German plane, is now a prisoner of war. Flt. Lt. George (Buzz) Beurling, Verdun, Que., of the R.C.A.F., also was among the leaders with 31 kills, but has since returned to civilian life.

Wing Cmdr. Johnson shot down his 38th German aircraft yesterday as the Canadian fighter wing he commands destroyed 14 planes and damaged six in fierce battles along the Rhine east of the Holland salient.

Gandhi Wants Vote On Indian Problem

BOMBAY, Sept. 28 (CP)—Mahommed Ali Jinnah's insistence on separate Moslem and Hindu states and Mohandos K. Gandhi's opposition to such a plan caused the break-down in their recent talks aimed at furthering India's fight for independence, it was disclosed today.

Gandhi proposed the issue be decided by plebiscite after Indian independence has been won.

Jinnah, Moslem party leader, insisted a settlement should be made first in the division of India into two separate states before trying to obtain independence.

Russia Disagrees On Issue

Wants Belligerent To Have Vote

WASHINGTON, Sept. 28—(AP)—Officials of the British, United States and Russian governments wind up their world security planning at Dumbarton Oaks today without reaching the complete agreement they had hoped for when the conference opened six weeks ago.

Under-secretary of State Edward R. Stettinius, chairman of the meeting, summed up the 90 per cent of agreement he said had actually been accomplished as extremely satisfactory progress toward reaching a basis for a world organization.

The main point left over is whether one of the great powers, if accused of aggression, should have a right to vote in the proposed world council on whether the accusation is to be sustained or rejected. Russia is understood to have favored such a right while the United States, and apparently Britain also, argued against it.

The second phase of the Dumbarton Oaks talks is scheduled to begin tomorrow afternoon, after issuance of a joint news release tomorrow morning on the conclusion of the first phase. This concluding period will consist of talks by the British and American delegates with a Chinese delegation on the same points covered in the Russian conversations and any others the Chinese wish to bring up.

Latvian Port Encircled By Russians

Garrison's Position Said Hopeless; Slovakia Reached

By DANIEL DE LUCE
Associated Press War Correspondent

MOSCOW, Sept. 28.—(AP).—Soviet military analysts described as "strategically hopeless" to-day the position of German troops attempting to withdraw from the Latvian port of Riga along a hotly-strafed coastal road.

The Russian drive, enveloping an additional 200 Latvian settlements yesterday, approached close to Riga on the northeast. The German command decided apparently to move the bulk of its troops out of the Riga pocket, rather than risk entrapment by a possible break-through west of the Latvian capital.

Front dispatches told of rearguard actions outside Riga and heavy enemy movements westward of the Tukums road leading to western Lithuania and East Prussia.

Meanwhile other Red army forces, outflanking the key Uzok Pass through the Carpathian mountains, reached the soil of eastern Slovakia. The decisive moment seemed near for the 4th Ukrainian army, led by Col.-Gen. Ivan Petrov, to crack the tough German and Hungarian defence zone along the crest of the Carpathians in that sector.

Petrov's command, which includes units of the 1st Czechoslovak Army, won dominating high ground along the border six miles west of Uzok Pass with an advance beyond the village of Wolosatojoe.

25-Mile Gain.

(A Moscow broadcast heard in London Monday said Russian forces were reported to have penetrated 25 miles into Czechoslovakia through Lupkow Pass, northwest of Uzok Pass, and captured Hummene.)

The Arad line, which the Hungarians have been building since 1939, extends in depth to the southern slopes of the Carpathians, and there was no attempt by the Russians to minimize the stiff struggle faced by Petrov.

The Red Army's main thrust has been beyond the western extremity of the Hungarian fortifications, and is designed to establish a solid juncture with patriot resistance forces in central Slovakia.

The Russian command was silent on the progress of Marshal Rodion Y. Malinovsky's campaign to invade Hungary across her southeastern plains, but it was asserted his drive will be co-ordinated with the fighting in eastern Slovakia. The over-all strategy is to clamp a pincers on Hungary and cut off forces holding northern Transylvania.

Among Malinovsky's immediate objectives was the Hungarian oil field at Tot Komlos, less than 20 miles from the Romanian frontier.

(German reports said Red Army forces have already made a 10-mile penetration to Hungary from the Arad area of Romania.)

Houses damaged, but habitable, 77,030.

Houses slightly damaged, 873,177.

Canadian Forces Seize Bellaria In Brisk Battle

ROME, Sept. 28—(CP)—Canadian troops of the British 8th Army have taken Bellaria, eight miles northwest of Rimini while American forces of the Allied 5th Army have occupied Castel del Rio, about 15 miles south of Imola, Allied Headquarters said today.

Regaining the heights lost in a fierce Nazi counter-attack two days ago, the Americans also seized Mount Carnevale, southeast of Castel del Rio.

British and Dominion troops in the Adriatic sector enlarged their bridgehead over the Rubicon to a two-mile depth over a 10-mile front and closed in on the town of Savignano.

On the Adriatic sector Canadian troops captured Bellaria, a small seaside town which was found in possession of Italian Patriot forces.

Other 5th Army troops in the central sector occupied Castiglione Dei Peipoli and Bruscoli, five miles due east. Both are approximately 29 miles south of Bologna, with Castiglione on a main highway leading directly to the big Italian city.

Advancing northwest from Sant Arcangelo, British troops moved to within 1,000 yards of Savignano, which the Nazis were defending strongly. Breaking through bitter opposition the British also reached within a mile of Mont Albano, on the crest of a ridge running north of Sovignano.

Trap Shaping On 200,000 Along Coast

Allies Push Wedge Into Holland Have 25 Miles To Go

By JAMES M. LONG
Associated Press War Correspondent

LONDON, Sept. 28 — (AP). — The Allies' Nijmegen lifeline widened today into an offensive wedge which was within 25 miles of walling off in western Holland, perhaps 200,000 Germans who may be added to the nearly 1,000,000 already written out of the battle of western Europe.

But the loss of the Allies only bridgehead across the Rhine at Arnhem in Holland by British First Airborne Division troops, whose 2,000 remnants trickled back through the corridor, apparently had dispelled hopes of a quick victory over Germany.

The Germans threw U.S. 3rd Army troops out of their hard-won toehold at the entrance to the moat-ringed fort of Driant which guards the west-bank approaches to Metz on the Moselle. The Nazis declared they also had smashed a bridgehead across the Antwerp-Turnhout Canal west of the Nijmegen Corridor.

Against these reverses, U.S. 1st Army forces burst through the pill-box studded six-mile-wide Hurtgen Forest, 14 miles southeast of besieged Aachen, in a powerful effort to tear open the blocked way to Cologne.

A Difficult Job

First Canadian Army troops, wearing "Mae West" lifejackets, attacked through the canal lines around Calais on the Channel coast. They worked across the western flats into the factory area, converted into a stronghold, toward the port district.

Almost everywhere, the Germans said, the Allied attack was increasing in force, from western Holland to the Belford Gap.

200,000 GERMANS

By JOHN F. CHESTER—Associated Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Sept. 28 (AP)—Prime Minister Churchill warned the House of Commons today that, despite German losses approaching the 1,000,000-mark in northwest Europe, the war might still continue into 1945. He indicated that he considered a new three-power meeting to include Premier Marshal Stalin was essential before revelation of peace plans.

Opening a two-day war and peace debate, the Prime Minister made these points, among others:

1. That perhaps 200,000 Germans are now trapped in Holland and their capture or destruction appeared "highly probable."

2. That German losses in France, Belgium and Holland since D-Day can now be placed officially at 400,000 killed and wounded, with nearly 500,000 more as prisoners.

3. That Allied losses during the same period now stand at 90,000 British and 145,000 Americans killed, wounded or missing.

4. That "no one—certainly not I—can guarantee that several months of 1945 may not be required to finish off Germany."

5. That even after organized resistance ceases, fierce warfare may still be carried on in German hills and mountains "by numbers of desperate men conscious of their own guilt and impending doom."

6. That the Allies now have landed between 2,000,000 and 3,000,000 troops in northwestern Europe, and that nearly 250,000 men rushed ashore during the first 24 hours of the invasion.

7. That "complete agreement on every point" was reached between himself and President Roosevelt at the Quebec conferences.

8. That the British fleet had been offered for the war against Japan and the offer "cordially accepted"—with much of Britain's naval strength already gathered in the Indian Ocean.

9. That the 10 Japanese divisions which were launched against India have been largely shattered, with between 50,000 and 60,000 slain, but that a new enemy offensive can be expected with the ending of the Monsoon.

10. That Britain will support Russia in demanding territorial changes in the Polish frontier to give Russia "the security she is entitled to have."

11. That the Big Three are united on a "more close and more effective" basis than ever before, but Marshal Stalin must sit down with the heads of the British and American governments as soon as the military situation permits in order that the big decisions of the peace can be agreed upon.

"I deprecate very much people being carried away into premature expectations of an early cessation of the fighting," he declared in a full-dress report on the Quebec conference and the war in general.

"I shall certainly not hazard a guess as to when the end will come. Many persons of the highest technical attainment and knowledge and responsibility have good hopes that it will all be over by the end of 1944. On the other hand no one—certainly not I—can guarantee that several months of 1945 may not be required."

Security for Poland

Of Polish-Russian differences the prime minister said Britain would do her utmost to obtain for Russia "the security she is entitled to have on her west front" and that he expected Poland to have her national sovereignty and independence restored.

He said that there would have to be changes on the frontier and "Russia has a right to our support in this matter."

Just before he ended the hour-long initial portion of his speech and

Arnhem Setback Temporary Allies Building Up Power

By J. M. ROBERTS, JR.—Associated Press War Analyst

Just as expected, the defeat at Arnhem and Allied failure to walk through the Siegfried Line has resulted in widespread belief that the war has gone to pot. Forgetting how we glossed over defeats two and three years ago, we are now "success-conditioned" and every temporary setback becomes a major catastrophe.

Now we are talking of a winter of frustration on the Western front. Mr. Churchill, naturally taking the opportunity to overcome any possible remaining overconfidence, today reminded us that it could be, but carefully abstained from saying it will.

It would have been helpful if the airborne troops could have held the Rhine bridge at Arnhem. But the jabs back and forth up and down the front are only the warm-up rounds in the real battle for Germany. Delay now, as at Caen, means only that once again Eisenhower will start his drive when he is ready to start it, and that probably soon.

Many Trusts

The Germans keep counter-attacking the American 1st and 3rd Armies, while fighting bitterly to contain the still-attacking British, French and American 7th in other sectors. On the Russian front that would mean the 1st and 3rd are building up the strength the Germans fear most. Here it may mean only that slightly less pressure permits counter-attacks in the centre while Gens. Patton and Hodges await the zero hour and complete their reorganization after the headlong dash across France.

Major forces are poised to the south for what could be direct eastward blows. Whatever it is to be, the Allied supreme command planned it that way, taking into consideration that there would be battles and perhaps setbacks, but without the slightest intention of letting a few days' delay at any point interfere with the main campaign plan.

90 Hun Fighters Shot Down

LONDON, Sept. 28—(CP)—More than 1,000 American heavy bombers today attacked German war factories at Magdeburg, Kassel and Merseburg. The railroad yard at Magdeburg was also hit.

The American bombers swept over the Reich for the fourth straight day, close on the heels of R.A.F. heavies which carried the non-stop air offensive against German transportation through the night with a heavy attack on Kaisersalutern, important industrial city in the Saar.

The night raiders also made a side jab at Kassel, one of the four places attacked in daylight by American heavies which constituted about half the estimated 2,500 Allied planes over Germany yesterday and last night.

Probably close to 2,000 more fighters and bombers pounded enemy troops, railways and fortifications in the low countries and along the coast making it one of the busiest air days of the month.

At least 90 German fighters were destroyed, including more than 60 in the air. Allied losses were 44 heavy bombers and 16 fighters.

42 Heavies Lost.

Forty-two American heavies out of a force of more than 1,100 were lost on the four-pronged mission to the Rhineland.

German Lauds Paratroopers

LONDON, Sept. 28 — (CP). — The German Transocean News Agency paid high tribute today to the British "Lost Division" of Arnhem, saying its members "fought like lions" and as the end neared "resisted with knives and pistols."

Transocean's correspondent Guenther Weber said in a broadcast recorded by The Associated Press.

"I spoke to German officers and men who have been in the fighting lasting for 250 hours. They said: the British airborne soldiers were the highest-qualified men we have met during the entire invasion campaign. They fought like lions against the ever-tightening ring."

Defence Claims Insanity In Hamilton Fire Trial

HAMILTON, Ont., Sept. 28. — (CP).—Testimony as to the mental condition of Alfred Douglas Dunsmoor was presented by defence witnesses to-day in the third day of Dunsmoor's trial on a charge of murder in the death of Mrs. Dorothy Martin, 33, one of the 10 persons who died in the Moose Hall fire here last May 23.

Dr. R. G. Armour, Toronto psychiatrist, said he examined Dunsmoor Sept. 23 and that Dunsmoor's words and actions classed him as a mental inferior who sought means of publicity and becoming an hero to overcome his complex.

"His natural emotions are in the driver's seat," Dr. Armour testified. "He is to some degree a natural imbecile."

Dunsmoor "certainly knew he was setting fires, in a way a child might play with matches and be oblivious to the consequences," Dr. Armour told defence counsel E. D. Hickey. "His mind is such that he could not comprehend the consequences beyond his feeling he might become a hero."

Started Many Fires.

Prior to adjournment yesterday, the defence entered evidence to show that Dunsmoor had started many fires in Hamilton between the Moose Hall disaster. Sam King, his brother-in-law, said that he was at the Granada theatre with Dunsmoor and shortly after the latter excused himself to go to the washroom it had been announced there was a fire in the basement.

Other evidence dealt with fires at the Wentworth riding stables, the Canadian Canners warehouse, Trinity United church and the Semmens and Evel Casket Company.

The Crown closed its case shortly after Mr. Justice J. A. Hope admitted in evidence a statement police said was given to them by Dunsmoor admitting he had set fire to a piece of burlap in the cloakroom of the Moose Hall. The defence then opened its case.

Maj. C. J. L. Day of Military District No. 2, Toronto, produced army records tracing Dunsmoor's brief army career from the time he enlisted in May, 1942, until his discharge four months later because of "psychopathic inferiority and emotional instability."

Maj. Day said Dunsmoor complained of a fall in the district depot in Toronto and was treated for head and spine injuries.

Was Not Bright.

Before his discharge he spent some time in a mental clinic, a Quebec hospital and Christie Street Military Hospital, Toronto.

George H. Dunsmoor, the accused's father, said Douglas was born in Hamilton September 19, 1919, and had not been bright at school.

Before calling Mr. Dunsmoor to the witness box, Defence Counsel E. D. Hickey submitted that insufficient evidence had been presented to establish a charge of murder, to which Mr. Justice Hope said that if the defence was submitted an amended plea to a lesser charge, with the consent of the Crown, it might be considered without further evidence.

Crown Attorney Harvey McCulloch said, however, "this is not a case where a lesser plea could be consented to."

Russians Reach Yugoslav Soil

LONDON, Sept. 28 (CP)—Russian troops have invaded Yugoslavia after crossing the Danube just west of the Iron Gate at the Romanian frontier town of Orsova, the German communique made known today.

"In the Danube Bend, there was lively reconnoitering activity on both sides of the Iron Gate," said official war bulletin, broadcast from Berlin. "Soviet forces who have advanced south from Orsova in a southern direction were repulsed and enemy formations who had crossed the Danube were smashed."

Orsova is on the river frontier and only Yugoslav territory lies to the south. Moscow has not yet confirmed an incursion into the territory where Marshal Tito's Partisan Army operates, but weeks ago told officially of reaching the Iron Gate — the wild mountain canyons through which the Danube courses through the Transylvanian Alps.

The Germans asserted that several thousand prisoners were taken in Warsaw and that another segment of Lt.-Gen. Tadeusz (Bor) Komorowski's underground army surrendered.

Reich To Be Class Room

To Use Bombing Data Against Japan

WASHINGTON, Sept. 28 (AP) — German surrender will open Germany as a class-room for an advanced course in how to batter Japan from the air.

The lessons will be those which the Germans are getting from the Anglo-American bombers day after day, the damage being offered as exhibits in how the job could have been done better—if it could have been.

By co-ordinating their reports on damage with the amount and disposition of explosives and incendiaries by the bombers, lessons in destruction are being sent home for use in planning and training for future assaults.

More bad news for Japan is that the United States, having passed up the kind of flying bombs tossed at England by the Germans in favor of development on a broader scale, is driving at a controlled bomb which would have a maximum of effectiveness.

The German flying bombs travelled in a straight line at low and medium heights. This made them subject to ground fire in addition to attacks by fast fighter planes.

A high-flying manoeuvrable bomb would be extremely difficult for both anti-aircraft guns and fighter planes.

ArchbishopOwen Heads Church Council

TORONTO, Sept. 28 — (CP). — Most Rev. Derwyn T. Owen, Primate of the Church of England in Canada, last night was elected president of the Canadian Council of Churches at the first of a two-day session the Council is holding here.

Rev. W. E. Beese, Evangelical, of Hamilton, Ont., is vice-president and Rev. W. J. Gallagher, Toronto, general secretary; E. B. Warriner, Toronto, is treasurer.

The main theme of three addresses delivered during the evening session was the spiritual rehabilitation of Europe, particularly Germany. That country presents a difficult problem, declared Rev. J. R. P. Sclater, former Moderator of the United Church of Canada, in that it would be necessary to impose on her the consequences of violating the moral law preached by Christ and at the same time show in a practical way the love which Christ taught towards enemies.

Dealing with specific features of the spiritual reconstruction of Europe, Rev. Samuel M. Cavert, general secretary of the Federal Council of Church of Christ in America, said that $500,000 would be needed the first day of peace to provide Christian Literature in Europe.

During the afternoon session the constitution of the Canadian Council of Churches was adopted.

Norman S. Braden Dies In Hamilton

HAMILTON, Ont., Sept. 28—(CP)—Norman S. Braden, 75, vice-president of the Canadian Westinghouse Co., died suddenly Wednesday at his home. He was one of the pioneers in the electrical industry in Canada.

Mr. Braden was associated with the Westinghouse Company at Cleveland as early as 1899 and in 1901 was appointed sales manager of the Canadian Westinghouse Company. In 1919 he became vice-president and in 1926 was made a director. He became vice-chairman in 1939.

Lure, 15 miles west of Belfort, said strong Allied attacks had started from the Nancy area in a northern direction, and declared new airborne forces had been flung against 'S-Hertogenbosch, a scant 10 miles ahead of the British push west from the Nijmegen Corridor.

A big gun duel around Metz, the Germans added, was deepening in a prelude to a full American attack on that great fortress.

The Germans said the Allies had flung new airborne forces against Hertogenbosch, a scant 10 miles ahead of the British push west from the Nijmegen corridor, and reported that the big gun duel for Metz was deepening in prelude to a full force American assault.

A Glorious Try

The Germans poured in five counter attacks, one six miles west of Metz near Gravelotte and two at Coincourt and Bezange nine to 11 miles northeast of Luneville south of Nancy, the Supreme headquarters communique announced. They withered under intense American fire which cost the enemy heavily.

Northeast of Nancy, too, the Germans counter-attacked twice and were repulsed.

It was disclosed that most of 800 Polish paratroopers and British Dorsetshire infantrymen who crossed the Dutch Rhine to aid the withdrawal of the exhausted remnant of the British 1st Airborne Division also had escaped to the south-bank. The British press, still ringing with the praise of the lost division's epic fight for a cross-Rhine foothold, described it not as a defeat—but as a "glorious failure."

"It was a gamble to force a quick end to the war," said the Daily Express. "It nearly succeeded, and it was always worth trying."

At Field Marshal Montgomery's headquarters the over-all operation which opened the way into mid-Holland was described officially as "85 per cent successful."

Purposes of the operation were listed as three:

1. To sieze the vital bridges at Grave, Nijmegen and Arnhem.
2. To loosen the German garrison in Western Holland.
3. To accelerate the drive through Holland.

Lt.-Gen. Dempsey meanwhile built up his south-bank hold along the Dutch Rhine to at least five miles wide south and west of Arnhem.

Synod Deplores Curb On Speech Across Canada

CORNWALL, Sept. 28 — (CP). — The Presbyterian Synod of Montreal and Ottawa went on record last night as deploring the fact that there were infringements of the freedom of speech in Canada.

The Synod said the policy of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation in inspecting scripts of all programs, including religious ones, before they were broadcast, was regretted.

Infringement of the freedom of speech was exemplified, the Synod felt, in the criticism and events which followed a speech made in the Senate during the last session by Senator T. D. Bouchard, a Liberal from Quebec.

Refers to Bouchard

(Senator Bouchard said in the speech that the "secret" order of Jacques Cartier in Quebec, with the blessing of the clergy, was plotting to set up an independent French state in Canada.

(The speech aroused much criticism and a few days after it was delivered, Senator Bouchard was relieved by the Quebec Government of his duties as chairman of the Quebec Hydro Commission).

The Synod also expressed alarm at the law passed by the Ontario Government, forbidding any public remarks derogatory to any religious group.

Guest speaker at the evening meeting was the moderator of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in Canada, Rev. A. C. Stewart, of Midland, Ont. He came from the inaugural meeting of the Canadian Division of the World Council of Churches, which, he said, was "a move in the direction of federation and co-operation and not organic union."

Suggests 3 Zones.

The moderator suggested that Canada be diverted into thee zones. Each moderator would confine his activities for his one-year term to the congregations in one zone. This way a careful tour of the churches would be made, and at the end of three years the moderators could meet, pool their experiences, and pass them on to incoming moderators.

Recommendations under "the church and post-war" submitted by Rev. Robert Goodal of the Erskine Presbyterian church, Ottawa, were adopted. These included the establishing of port chaplains to welcome returning servicemen, and the favoring of selective immigration, preferably from the British Isles.

Other points were that some help be given to the bombed Presbyterian churches in Great Britain, and the church especially welcome war veterans taking advantage of the Veterans' Land Act.

During the day a trip was made 18 miles east of Cornwall to the proposed spot for a Synod conference and camp site. It was decided to buy the land, for sale at $6,000.

When the Presbyterian Theological Colleges came under discussion, it was approved that no permanent appointments to the staffs be made until a committee had surveyed the situation. This was actively opposed by F. A. McDiarmid, an elder delegate from Knox Church, Ottawa, as a slowing up progress. Another committee was named to suggest names for restaffing the Montreal college after the war.

Mrs. A. Cameron and Mrs. C. W. Stackhouse gave the Women's Missionary Society reports for Ontario and Quebec, and said that the year had been a successful one.

A recommendation by Rev. Henry Cousens of Brockville that the first Sunday in November be student day was adopted. The day would be used to encourage young men to go into the ministry.

War May Well

the House adjourned for luncheon until 2 p.m., the prime minister added:

There is also the possibility that after the organized resistance of the German state and army is completely broken fierce warfare may be maintained in the forests and mountains of Germany by numbers of desperate men conscious of their own guilt and impending doom.

"We don't consider that the declared date of the ending of the war against Germany must necessarily be postponed until the last desperado has been tracked down in his lair."

Cost Germans 1,000,000

The prime minister said the Allied invasion of Europe had cost Germany nearly 1,000,000 men killed, wounded and captured and said "there may well be 200,000 of them in the coastal fortresses of Holland whose destruction or capture may now be deemed highly probable."

Allied forces in northwestern Europe have swelled to between 2,000,000 and 3,000,000 men, he said.

British troops in Europe, he added, are now in proportion of two for every three Americans.

Cheered loudly as he entered the House, Mr. Churchill opened his report by remarking on the swift change in the war picture during the period parliament was in recess.

A Changed Picture

"What a transformation now meets our eye," he said. "The foul enemy who for four years inflicted cruelties and oppression has fled, losing 400,000 in killed and wounded and leaving in our hands nearly half a million prisoners."

This was the first official disclosure that German losses in France, Belgium and Holland are close to 1,000,000 men.

The prime minister praised American advances in Europe as a "model of the military art" and an example of "the propriety of running risks." British advances, he added, had not been surpassed anywhere.

Paying tribute to gallant Allied airborne troops he said "casualties have been grievous but for those who mourn there is the consolation that the sacrifice was not needlessly demanded."

Mr. Churchill said a Jewish brigade now being formed would take part in the occupation of Germany. He revealed also that the number of Italians fighting alongside the Allies on the Italian front soon would be more than doubled.

Indicating the tremendous power exerted by the Allies on D-Day, he reported that 250,000 men swarmed ashore in the first 24 hours and that 1,000,000 men had been landed by the 20th day of the invasion.

Lauds Mountbatten

Turning ot the Far East, he declared the 10 Japanese divisions which had been launched against India had been repulsed and largely shattered. The campaign directed by Admiral Lord Louis Mountbatten he described as the largest and most important ground fighting that so far has taken place against Japan. Between 50,000 and 60,000 of the enemy had been killed in this campaign, he said.

"I can assure the House," he said, "that the war against the Japanese and other diseases of the jungle will be pressed forward with the utmost

Nevertheless, he added, a renewal of the Japanese offensive could be expected as soon as the Monsoon is over.

Mr. Churchill declared, amid laughter in the House, that Hitler's escape during the recent bomb attempt against him was a stroke of luck for the Allies.

"It would be most unfortunate," he said, "if the Allies were to be deprived in the closing hours of the struggle of the form of warlike genius by which Corporal Schickelgruber has so nobly contributed to our victory."

The men he had described as the "squalid caucus boss and butcher" had squandered a large army in the Balkans, Mr. Churchill said, adding that many of the 27 German divisions now engaged in Italy would never return across the Alps.

Mr. Churchill reported that "complete agreement on every point" had been reached at the Quebec conference, adding that he and President Roosevelt had decided there would be no changes in the chiefs of staff charged with conducting the war.

Limited by Shipping

The scale of British effort against Japan, he declared, would be limited only by available shipping, which, presently, was magnificently magnified because the U-boat war had ended and "we have been able to come out of convoy in the western hemisphere."

Resuming promptly after an hour's luncheon recess, Mr. Churchill declared that never before had the alliance of the three great powers against Germany been "more close or more effective."

"One by one in rapid succession the satellite states have writhed or torn themselves free from Nazi tyranny," he said, adding that when Hungary was free he expected Hungarians would turn their weapons against those who had led them "to their present ruin and defeat."

Mr. Churchill said some of the worst war criminals were Bulgarians, adding that "they may want to be treated as co-belligerents."

So far as Britain was concerned, however, he said, they would have to "work their passage" for a long time.

The Premier praised Poland, but said there would have to be territoial changes in the Polish frontier and that "Russia has a right to our support in this matter."

He added he had "full hopes that the Polish Premier and his colleagues would shortly resume conversations in Moscow." He said he believed "a good arrangement will be achieved."

"I cannot conceive that it is not possible to make a good solution whereby Russia gets the security she is entitled to have—which I am resolved we shall do our utmost to secure for her—on her west front and at the same time the Polish nation had restored to them the national sovereignty and independence for which across centuries of oppression and struggle they have never ceased to strive."

HAS NO TROUBLE NOW WITH GAS, BLOAT AND HEADACHE

"Feel 10 Years Younger," Says This Woman. Rid of Dizzy Spells, Sleeps Better.

If you feel tired, wornout and nervous; if bowels are constipated and you suffer wih indigestion, gas, headaches and rheumatic pain; if you have backache, night rising and dizzy spells, try a short treatment of Syntona Herbal Compound and the chances are that you may find this medicine to be just what you need to put you on the road to better health again.

MRS. AGNES HOWARD, Kensal Park, Ont., says:

"Everything I ate disagreed with me The food lay there giving me cramps and pain in the pit of my stomach. Gas would form and I would be bloated and feel distressed for hours after my meals. I was constipated every day and subject to dizzy spells and throbbing headaches. All this made me very nervous. I couldn't sleep at all well at night and I felt so tired all the time.

"I heard so much praise given Syntona that I finally decided to get some and I can truthfully say nothing ever did so much for me From the first bottle I felt more like eating my meals and my food began to digest better I kept right on taking Syntona and now I have no trouble with gas, bloating or indigestion after my meals. I haven't had any dizziness or headache since and my nerves have quieted down nicely. As a result I sleep soundly. I am not tired as I used to be, and I feel 10 years younger than I did just a few short weeks ago."

Alleged Slasher Committed To Higher Court

Joseph Nezeson, 61, Gatineau Mills, Que., was committed for trial after a preliminary inquiry in police court this morning on a charge of having assaulted Corp. Earl Richer, R.C.A.S.C. on a C.P.R. train between Toronto and Peterborough on the early morning of September 3, occasioning actual bodily harm.

Nezeson who came to Canada from Romania 15 years ago speaks Hungarian and for part of the proceedings the services as an interpreter of B. J. Ronhanyi, 356 Dobbin avenue were required. The accused was defended by W. J. Arthur Fair and Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry K.C. prosecuted.

James A. McCann, Hamilton, a tank inspector for the Inspection Board of the United Kingdom and Canada was the first crown witness. He was a passenger on the C.P.R. Toronto-Ottawa train on the date in question, he testified and said that he had seen Nezeson jump from his seat as Corp. Richer was passing. The accused, he said, had grabbed Richer by the shoulder and at the same time had pressed a steel object against the back of his neck.

A moment afterward witness said that he saw that what Nezeson had in his hand was a razor, although he did not see the handle.

Seemed Nervous

To Mr. Fair McCann said that he had notice Nezeson some time before when he had passed his seat. The man seemed nervous, he said, and for the moment he had got the impression that the accused was going to throw his bag at him.

Corp. C. A. Doyle, R.C.A.F., Ottawa, corroborated McCann's story of the attack on Richer. He said that he had not noticed anything particular about the accused before the assault. Richer, he said, was coming back from the end of the car where Nezeson was sitting when he was attacked.

Corp. Doyle said that he did not notice Richer going to the end of the car but had seen him on the way back. He said that if the injured man had said anything to Nezeson in passing he thought he would have heard it.

Conductor James C. Shannon, in charge of the train tlod of getting a nursing sister to attend to Richer's injuries. Nezeson, he said, was kept in the wash-room unitl the train arrived in the Peterborough station when police took him off.

Dr. H. G. Carleton who attended Richer said that the injured man had an incised wound at the back of his neck 7½ inches long and two inches deep and he was in hospital here for nine days.

Lance Corp. F. J. Quinn, Ottawa, a passenger on the train told of seeing Zezeson brandishing a razor after the attack.

Constable Gordon Trennum testified to the arrest of Nezeson on the arrival of the train here. The accused put up considerable resistance, witness said.

Eleven-year-old Cecil LaFrance told of finding a razor on the track near the local C.P.R. station and the razor was put in as an exhibit.

Recalled Lance Corp. Quinn said that the window in the wash-room in which Nezeson had been locked, was found to have been broken.

Nezeson made no statement and the defence called no evidence whereupon Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C. committed the accused for trial at the General Sessions of the Peace.

Fire Torture Case Implicates Four

FORT FRANCES, Ont., Sept. 28 (CP)—Deputy Attorney General L. Snyder, prosecution counsel, announced early today the crown's case in the torture-slaying of Mrs. Viola Jamieson, 49-year-old Flanders, Ont., woman, may be completed later in the day.

Four men are on trial in Supreme Court here on charges of murdering Mrs. Jamieson who died in hospital July 2 of injuries suffered June 10 when attacked in her home. They are George Skrypnyk and his brother, Anthony, Eino Tillonen and William Schmidt.

Signed statements of Anthony Skrypnyk and Tillonen were submitted as evidence yesterday. Skrypnyk's statement said the four accused men came to the Jamieson home July 10 and "all of us" lit paper and burned Mrs. Jamieson. Later they took her and put her on the stove.

Mission Workers Great Need Bishop Reports

Never before has there been such a great need for men and women to work in missions, teaching not only education, but the Christian religion as well, was the theme of an address by Bishop H. Richard Ragg, of the Calgary Diocese, who was the guest speaker at the annual meeting of the Peterboroupgh Women's Auxiliary Deanery, a missionary organization, held in St. John's Anglican church, this morning. The meeting continued this afternoon.

Bishop Ragg based his sermon on the parable of "Go Ye Also Into The Vineyard," wherein God called idle men outside the vineyard, to enter, and work for the fruitfulness and goodness of the garden.

He said God is calling men and womtn now, to work for Him, and with Him, for the glory of the Kingdom of God. When man wishes to enter the Kingdom, he said, God will point the way.

"The only antidote to the chaos of the world today, is to bring in the Kingdom, and if we fail to do our part, we are definitely assisting the chaos the world now knows," he said.

Must Be In Heart

Three simple ways for everyone to do his part, important in God's plan, Bishop Ragg stated, are to remember that work for God, must begin in the heart. He said no one can work for God, or even be committed for work for God, until they have given themselves in reality, to God.

"The first step must be working for the Kingdom, and it must begin in the heart. The next place to begin is not in the churches, vestry or anywhere else, but in the home, where the individual is known more intimately than anywhere else," he said.

Bishop Ragg said Christians should make their homes realms where Christ, the invisible Master, reigns. "The hardest place to live the Gospel, and preach the Gospel, is in the home," he said.

"In all daily life, business and social, all the time live according to the rules of life He has set down, he said. "Go forth, in all the daily life, in business and in social life, determined to carry with you, the consciousness of God's presence," Bishop Ragg told the congregation.

Turning his attention to missionary work, he said when the Church was not interested in the outside, it was dead, but when a desire to go forth and teach and help the outside, it became throbbingly alive.

"Never in the history of the Anglican Church in Canada," he said, "has there been such a need for workers. Yes, there is a war on. We all know there is a war on, but regardless of that, work for Christ must still go on. The Anglican church overseas will need more than 800 workers when the war is over.

The church in Canada has a corresponding need for workers for our own Dominion. He pointed out that in the Calgary Diocese, covering an area of 67,000 square miles, there were 45 priests when war broke out. Now, it has 26. Although the population is much smaller than other Dioceses, its area is much larger; for instance the Toronto Diocese covers only 12,000 square miles, and its population is tremendous. He said 14 missionary parishes in the Calgary Diocese are working without clergy, that had clergy when war broke out. "Other Dioceses are much worse off than are we," he said.,

Indian mission work, according to Bishop Ragg, is a worthy enterprise. Although many complaints are heard to the effect they are of no value, taking an Indian from native customs, educating him, then sending him back to the same environment, Bishop Ragg firmly declared one can pick a Christian Indian from a room of pagan Indians, there is the light of truth and knowledge of God's Kingdom in the eyes of the Christian, and only the dark, empty look of the pagan in others.

"Missions for Indians are not only educating Indians, but teaching them the principles of Christian religion," Bishop Ragg hammered home.

Teaching Wanted.

He said vast territories in Canada need this work urgently. In the wilds of Northwestern Canada, Indians are waiting to hear the Gospel, and as a result of a day spent in an Indian settlement, when a crudely improvised altar and rug of buffalo skins were placed for the services, Bishop Ragg said the work must go on.

He recalled when the King and Queen visited parts of Western Canada before the war, when Indians, upon seeing their Majesties emerge from the car, ran, and placed robes of buffalo skin for them to walk upon. After the royal couple had left, he said, the Indians took the robes home in medicine bags, as precious treasures of the tribe. The only time they were brought out again, he pointed out, was to use to worship God.

He told of knowing an Indian who could speak no words of English, while he could speak no words of this particular tribe language. And yet, he said, the light of friendship and love in the Indian's eyes told him they were friends.

After Holy Communion, the meeting adjourned for luncheoen, and will continue this afternoon, when addresses by missionaries just arrived from China, will be heard.

OBITUARIES

ROCCO MARROCCO

Employed by the Quaker Oats Co for the past 35 years, Rocco Marrocco, 483 Elm street, passed away at his residence late Wednesday morning after a brief illness. He was 56.

Mr. Marrocco was born in Rocco San Juan, Italy, and came to Peterborough 40 years ago from the land of his birth. He was a member of St. Peter's Cathedral parish.

He leaves to mourn his loss his wife and four sons and four daughters: Rev. F. Marrocco of St. Peter's Cathedral staff; Philip, R.C.A., Kingston; Dan, of the R.C.O.C., overseas; Dominic, of the R.C.A.F., overseas; Mrs. R. Pace, of Campbellford, and Lucy, Anne and Adeline at home. Two children, Andrew and Attilio, predeceased him.

The remains are resting at the late residence, 483 Elm street, until Friday morning when requiem mass will be sung at St. Peter's Cathedral at 11:30 a.m. Interment will follow in St. Peter's Cemetery.

PHYLIS MARIE AYOTTE

The death occurred on Tuesday night of Phylis Marie Ayotte, infant child of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Ayotte, 288 Westcott street at St. Joseph's Hospitals. Besides her parents she is survived by two brothers, Bernard Francis and James Richard Ayotte.

Private funeral was held this morning from Bert Duffus Funeral Home at 10 a.m. and interment was made in St. Peter's Cemetery.

Allies Using More Paratroops

LONDON, Sept. 28 —(CP)—The German radio said today that new Allied airborne landings were made this morning in Holland.

The Transocean News Agency broadcast quoted Hitler's headquarters as saying the landings were along the Nijmegen-Bois de Duc highway.

"The Allied high command is straining every effort to widen the Nijmegen corridor on its western flank with the utmost speed," said Transocean.

The agency asserted "this attempt has failed so far," and said "the Germans have launched countermeasures against the newly-landed airborne troops with lightning speed."

Bois Le Duc (Hertogenbosch) is 27 miles southwest of Nijmegen and 20 miles north of Eindhoven.

Of activity in the Antwerp-Turnhout area Transocean said:

"Most significant are the German counter-attacks carried out during the last 48 hours, which have narrowed down the Canadian bridgeheads at Rejkevorsel and Turnhout. Street fighting took place in both towns last night and the Canadians were beaten back to the south."

Prophetic Conference Opens In Peterboro

Dr. Nathan Cohen Beskin, former Jewish Rabbi began a 12-day prophetic conference in the Nazarene Gospel Service last night. He used for his text 1 Thess 23. "And the very God of peace sanctify you wholly; and I pray God your whole spirit and soul and body be preserved blameless unto the coming of our Lord Jesus Christ."

He spoke on the creation. The different periods. How it led to the animal life and finally to the creation of Man. How man is composed of Body, Soul and Spirit. Then how the Devil tempted man through body, soul and spirit. Jesus met the same temptation, only He won.

Dr. Beskin very graphically told of the coming of Christ and what it would mean. When Jesus will deliver up the Kingdom of the Father. Having restored what the devil ruined in the beginning.

Dr. Beskin announced that his message for tonight would be "World Events in the Light of Bible Prophecy". This will be at the Salvation Army Hall. It is in two parts, the second will be in the Bethany Tabernacle Friday night. Sunday afternoon in the Collegiate Auditorium he will give his life story.

Auxiliary Needs More Names Before October 1

Before October 1, the Peterborough Active Army Auxiliary wishes to have on file for mailing purposes the names and addresses of all Peterborough men and women serving in Canada's active army either at home or abroad. Throughout the months, the Auxiliary has been sponsoring events designed to raise money for sending a special Christmas box to each soldier from this city. Now, all that remains to be had before the boxes can be sent out, is the names and addresses.

A mistaken idea is that of those who believe the Auxiliary is doing some "charity" work. Formed for helping members of Peterborough's active army group, the money for these gifts is what everyone gave some time or another during the past months.

Soldiers overseas and in Canada and in isolated spots will welcome a gift from the Auxiliary—a special Christmas present which is no way lets the boys know everyone at home is wishing him "Merry Christmas," even though separated by many miles.

Last year, more than a thousand names were received by Auxiliary officials, and this year, more than 1,500 are expected, because of the number of new enlistments since that time. Up until now, progress has been slow in reporting the names, and little more than a fifth of the desired total is ready for mailing.

Everyone in Peterborough who knows of a soldier overseas or in Canada serving with the active forces, is requested to get in touch with Auxiliary officials, by phoning any of the following numbers: Dial 5551, 3609, 8853, 5184.

Time is an essential factor in this task of supplying Christmas cheer for boys in the army. This work is for the benefit of every man and woman in the active army from Peterborough.

Calgary Highlander Casualty In France

Mr. and Mrs. S. Field, 276 Lansdowne street, have received word that their son, Pte. Norman George Field had been wounded September 16.

Enlisting in June 1943, Pte. Field had been driving a truck for his father. He went overseas in July of this year and had just been transferd to the Calgary Highlanders. A letter written September 14 and received on Tuesday, gave no indication of his whereabouts, and his parents thought he was still in England.

Coder Ray Parnell Home On Furlough

Coder Ray Parnell, who was on the frigate H.M.C.S. St. Catharines when it was credited with destruction of a submarine some months ago, has arrived back in Peterborough on a 36-day leave. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Parnell, 179 Rubidge street, expect their other son, L.-Coder Ralph O. Parnell, who is in the Navy, home soon. Both brothers were on leave at the same time in November of last year, when Coder Ray Parnell was married to a girl in Toronto.

Thirty years old, he has been in the Navy since June, 1942, taking his basic training in Toronto and being assigned to Canadian barracks in Niobe, Scotland for nine months before going to sea. In June, 1943 he sailed aboard the destroyer H.M.C.S. Gatineau and was with this ship until his furlough last year. Shortly after arriving back in England a second time, he was assigned to the St. Catharines.

His younger brother, L.-Coder Ralph O. Parnell, in the Navy for three years, has seen a lot of convoy duty and has recently been in the Frigate, H.M.C.S. Prince Rupert, a vessel which is also credited with a sub. His wife, the former Dorothy Wells, lives on Prince street.

Many Methods Tried To Take Austria

COBOURG, Sept. 28 — (ENS). — Hitler tried economic pressure and then resorted to force to bring about the fall of Austria, Fred L. Stockinger of Cobourg, former Minister of Trade and Commerce in Austria, told the regular dinner meeting of Cobourg Kinsmen Club. He was introduced by Dr. W. Brett.

The partitioning which followed the last war left Austria isolated from its sources of raw materials, with the exception of timber. Not self-sufficient, the country had to resort to its timber exports for the foreign currency to feed the nation, Mr. Stockinger said. The national poverty which followed began to convince many that Germany was needed in its economic structure if it were to survive.

Dr. Dollfuss and Dr. Schuschnigg were able to show the people, however, that the nation could become economically independent without the help of Germany. Dollfuss reconstructed things so well that even after his murder in 1934, the nation turned a deaf ear to German demands, until occupied forcibly in 1938, the speaker said.

"Austria was a country of left-overs," declared Mr. Stockinger in describing conditions after the last war. It had only an area of 52,000 square miles of which 400 linear miles was common border with Germany. The populated section of Austria was about one-tenth the size of Ontario. As its coal fields were in the parts which had been separated from the rest of the nation, the only resources the country had was timber—timber enough to provide the foreign exchange to buy food.

Austria sought union with Germany in the early post-war era of that time, but the terms of the peace treaty forbade the union for the reason that the Allies knew that possession of Austria would make Germany larger than before the war.

"The Allies left Germany's border almost untouched and made the mistake of neglecting to build up a confederation of Danube states as a counterweight against Germany. That is one of the reasons the World War Two came on," the speaker declared.

Mr. Stockinger told of the dizzy height to which inflation soared. There was a price ceiling on rents but as other things were not controlled, it meant that a tenant was earning as much in a month as the landlord did in a year. Loans were obtained from the League of Nations with the national debt going higher and higher and taxation increasing also. Dollfuss tried to get the various factions in the country on a common ground. Hitler's Nazi party started to grow in the country but in the general elections in 1930 the Nazi's failed to elect a single deputy, in spite of their 100,000 votes. Dollfuss continued to oppose any Nazi faction in his government. Hitler tried stifling Austria's tourist trade but when his efforts failed he turned to guns.

"An attempt was made in 1933 to assassinate Dollfuss. Meanwhile 40,000 Austrians were being trained in Germany to be sent to Austria to conduct a revolt. The long border with Germany was hard to defend with Austria's small standing army so the Germans slipped in with dynamite. Chancellor Dollfuss was murdered in July of 1934. Efforts were made to stamp out Naziism. Hitler denied any knowledge of the murder and sent Von Papen to Austria as ambassador.

Schuschnigg succeeded Dollfuss and tried to carry on his work but Hitler broke his word that he would not interefere in Austrian politics. In 1938 the police found documents issued from Berlin that ordered Nazis to don Austrian uniforms and slay Von Papen. Hitler made demands for representation in the government or an alternative of German occupation of the country. Schuchnigg laid plan for a plebiscite which would have shown the world that only a small pecentage favored the Nazis but fearing revelation of this fact, Hitler marched in on Austria. I had five minutes to decide whether I would remain in the country or get out. I felt that I might be able to do something abroad to help the country, so I left. Schuschnigg believed that Hitler would keep his word but Schuschnigg was wrong and so the end of Austria," declared Mr. Stockinger.

PLAQUE FOR PUPILS—This is the handsome R.C.A.F. plaque which, together with the honor of having their name given to a Hurricane Fighter, goes to the pupils of Peterborough county schools for having reached—and surpassed—their goal of $25,000 of War Savings purchases, the money from which paid for the aircraft. The scroll reads: "Presented by the Royal Canadian Air Force in recognition of the financing of an aircraft through the purchase of War Savings Stamps by the students." The plaque will be presented to the pupils at a ceremony on October 4 at 2.30 p.m. at Nicholls Oval.

Guild Decorating St. Paul's Rectory

MARMORA, Sept. 28 —(ENS)— Members of St. Paul's Ladies' Guild have been painting and redecorating the interior of the rectory in readiness for the arrival of the new rector and his family the first week of October. A new approach to the basement of the church has been built and repairs made to the foundation of the south wall. In addition to this, men of the congregation have been felling a few trees near the eastern fence of the rectory grounds and will later carry out a general tidying up of these grounds. The exterior of the rectory was painted a few weeks ago.

Poultry Exhibit Autumn Fair

CAMPBELLFORD, Sept. 28 (ENS) —Despite the cold and rainy weather, large crowds attended the final day's events at Campbellford Fair. The R.C.A.F. band from Trenton was in attendance and the R.C.A.F. orchestra played for the dancing in the evening.

The horse racing had not as many entries as usual and the track was heavy. The special events were under the management of Ray Archer and the merry-go-round never loses its appeal to the younger folk.

There was the largest showing of "teams of horses" for some years. Their prancing steps, their very aliveness, and the pride and satisfaction of their owners, who held the reins, was a striking contrast to the rubber-tired tin outfits of today.

This is a dairy section of the province, and the cattle shown was representative. There was a large entry of poultry, sheep and hogs and the competition was keen. Among the prize-winners were C. H. Ketcheson who won McKelvie's Store special prize in Fall wheat; Mrs. Leavitt won W. H. Brady's prize for McIntosh and Spy apples; Mr. Fairman won the special prize donated by P. H. MacMillan for white shelled eggs and G. Curle for brown shelled eggs.

In the specials for domestic needlecraft, the prize donated by Simbrow ladies' wear for a quilt was won by Mrs. Byrant. Among the specials in the (win the war) section for the best display of war work, Seymour West W.I. won first, I.O.D.E. second, Mrs. Putnam third. For the collection of cut flowers, dahlias and asters, Mrs. J. Simpson was first.

Civic Hospital For Peterborough

At last the decision has been made to build a civic hospital in Peterborough, adequate for the needs of a large district, and chargeable against all ratepayers and the county as well. The twelve Protestant churches which, under the provisions of the trust established by the late Charlotte Nicholls, appoint members to the hospital board, have agreed to relinquish their claim and have approved of a plan whereby the Nicholls Hospital Trust will act with the City Council to build a new hospital. For many years Peterborough has profited by the benevolence of the late Mrs. Nicholls, and without a doubt the new hospital will contain some adequate memorial to her. But the system of hospital government provided for under her will has become outmoded and inefficient, as the hospital now in use has become outmoded and inefficient, and it is time for a change.

• • •

Catholic ratepayers may feel that they have been hardly used in connection with hospitals in Peterborough. The late Mrs. Nicholls made no secret of her dislike of the Church of Rome, and the kindness of her gift of a hospital to the city was poisoned by that strong prejudice. In consequence, the Catholic community here has provided an excellent hospital of its own; why, it may be asked, should it also help to build a civic hospital? The answer is that we need a large and modern hospital here, and that it will be open to all denominations; realizing that the Catholics of Peterborough received a gross affront many years ago, we nevertheless hope that they will show a broader spirit themselves. It must be emphasized that the cost of the hospital will be added to the tax-rate; there will be no canvass for funds to help in building it.

• • •

The proposed hospital will be on a scale adequate to serve this city, and the large outlying district which depends on it for hospital care; very properly, that country district will be expected to pay its share in the upkeep of the hospital. The present plan calls for 265 beds, of which fifteen will be in an isolation section. Excellent provision will be made for maternity cases and also for the care of sick children. A psychiatric ward, which is a necessity in any Canadian hospital, is also included, and forty beds are provided for chronically ill patients, who present a severe problem to any crowded hospital. It is not unlikely, also, that a section of the hospital will be built for the express purpose of caring for disabled soldiers from the present war. It has been thought for some time that these men should have hospital care in several cities of each province, instead of being concentrated in special hospitals in large capital cities; in this way they can be cared for near their own homes, and the advantages of such proximity are obvious. The building of such a wing would, of course, be a Federal project.

• • •

Peterborough has needed a first-rate civic hospital for many years, and at last it is to have one. We cannot imagine that anyone will be opposed to such a development, for although it will mean a rise in taxes, it will mean a great improvement in health and the care of the sick in the district affected. One of the measuring-sticks which we apply to a community to find out its degree of civilization is the provision which it makes for the care of the sick. For some time Mrs. Nicholls' generous gift has not been adequate to the needs of this growing city. The new hospital is unquestionably a sign of true progress in our community, and it deserves the support of every citizen. In December the ratepayers will be asked to vote money for this project, and it is to be hoped that the fact that it will mean a small increase in taxes will not offset its great advantages.

Gen. de Gaulle Talks Big

Too many statesmen at present seem to think that loud and boastful talk can alter or efface the record of history. In Italy, Count Carlo Sforza and Benedetto Croce (who should know better) are talking loudly and impressively in an attempt to make the world forget that their country has been guilty of the most despicable behaviour, and is now a conquered land — conquered by the United Nations.

And in France General Charles de Gaulle appears to have forgotten that his country was beaten by the Germans in 1940; that was a great misfortune, and every admirer of France regretted it, but it happened; every friend of France admired the courage with which General de Gaulle himself led the small group of Free French, and held them together through bitter years. But when General de Gaulle announces that French forces will cross the Rhine and occupy the Rhineland, and wants to know why the Allies have not yet given France "that place as a great power to which she is entitled" we prick up our ears and wonder whom the General imagines is deceived by such empty talk.

France was defeated, and France must take the blame for defeat, just as the British must take the blame for their lack of preparedness. The United Nations never neglected France, but repeatedly assured the French people that they would set them free as soon as it was possible. General de Gaulle, with the forces at his command, could have done nothing whatever for his native land. Now the Allies have set France free, and at once de Gaulle wants to know why France does not sit it on the great councils of war — why, in fact, France is not treated as though she had fought all through the war.

France, we are sure, will be given every credit and every privilege which is her due by the United Nations. But the nations which have done the fighting may be excused if they do not give France credit for what they have themselves done, and if they make the decision as to who shall occupy what without consulting General de Gaulle. If the French want to occupy the Rhineland, let them see what they can do to capture it, and their leader can save his breath for fighting.

French On The Menu

The Windsor Star, which takes its food very seriously, applauds the action of British and American troops in Paris, who insist that restaurant menus be printed in both English and French. The Star says:

> "This influence may spread. It may even extend, finally, to Great Britain, and none too soon. It is still inexplicably impossible to go into any hotel or restaurant in London and find a word of English on a menu".

This last statement is quite untrue, but let that pass. It is evident that the Star likes its menus printed in English. We don't. Menus in English, like opera in English, are disillusionments and dust and ashes in the mouth. We recall a Chinese restaurant in London where — disproving the Star's assertion,—the menu was printed in Chinese and English. There was a special section headed 'English Dishes', and the first on the list was 'Fish, with sauce'. There you have it, bald and unadorned. 'Fish, with sauce'; no promise of any special kind of fish; no hint as to what the sauce would be; just those menacing English words—'Fish, with sauce'. We never ordered 'Fish, with sauce'; we always ordered Chinese dishes with grandiloquent names.

French is the language of cooking, just as Italian is the language of song, German the language of metaphysics, English the language of poetry, and Scots the language of theology. French is the language in which food may be most intelligently and fittingly discussed, and most adequately described. A menu in French is a poem, a gentle serenade to the epigastrium: in English it is liable to sink to the level of that horrible 'Fish, with sauce'.

NOTE AND COMMENT

You can't teach an old dog new tricks, but at least you can refrain from teaching a puppy a lot of old tricks.

If your parcels for Christmas overseas have not been posted already, you haven't much time left. And don't put matches in them!

The Detroit News says that gardeners welcome the coming of winter because "icicles are shaped like parsnips but don't have to be pulled". They melt in your mouth, too.

Shaving the heads of female collaborationists may be good fun now, but what about the time, in a month or so, when they will look like our airmen, with 'crew haircuts'?

The State Of The Parties

By GRANT DEXTER

OTTAWA: Politically, events have been moving at a rapid pace these past four months. Interest has been quickened by the four provincial general elections which have been held since June, and by the knowledge that the federal election will be held as soon as possible after the war in Europe is ended.

There is great activity at all party headquarters and the usual brave forecasts of triumphs to come.

The forecasts may be heavily discounted but behind the scenes there is a surprising degree of agreement. As the parties now stand, it is the common view that the Conservative party is losing heavily in every province except Ontario and even here is less strong than in the early summer. The inability of the C.C.F. to develop strength in the country generally has brought about a sharp decline in estimates of its strength in the next parliament. The Liberal party undoubtedly has improved its position substantially but, again, the strength of the Liberals in the country is conceded to be but a fraction of their present strength in parliament. Yet, at the moment, the Liberal party is regarded as the only party with a chance of winning an over-all majority in the next House of Commons.

THE facts upon which this judgment of the politicians rests are within common knowledge. The Conservatives are bankrupt in Quebec, have very little support in the Maritimes and the West. Sixty seats would be an optimistic forecast for the Conservatives.

The C.C.F. draws its federal strength chiefly from Ontario, Saskatchewan and British Columbia. Admittedly, the party might well do better in some of the provinces than the provincial elections indicated—in Alberta for example—but east of the Ottawa River, the socialists are practically non-existent except in a few Nova Scotia ridings. Most observers put a ceiling of 70 to 75 seats on the C.C.F.

In contrast with both opposition parties, the Liberals while they have undoubtedly lost heavily, continue to draw support from every section of the country. And the party is generally believed to have gained ground markedly in Quebec and the Maritimes. But no one would place the balance of the seats (say 110) in the Liberal column. There are bound to be independents and nationalists in Quebec who, regardless of their labels, will be tied in to the Conservatives.

With this general survey, it may be of interest to look more closely at the individual parties.

DESPITE optimistic talk, the Conservative party continues to be deeply divided within itself, discouraged and frustrated. The great experiment of December 1942, has failed disastrously. Mr. Bracken was chosen by the party bosses, without consultation with the rank and file, largely because they believed that he would attract farm support, particularly on the prairies, to the party. This, together with an expected drift away from the Liberals and towards the Conservatives, was regarded as a sure passport to office.

The Conservatives now realize that Mr. Bracken is not a winner in the west. His appeal to farmers was vastly overrated or his unexpected switch of political allegiance destroyed his influence overnight. The party is now attempting other measures. A delegation from Tory headquarters is reported to have gone to Regina to ask Mr. MacPherson, runner up at the 1942 convention, to enter the field. The result is not generally known but the gossip is that Mr. MacPherson feels little urge to rescue the party from its bosses.

There is widespread disappointment among Conservatives with Mr. Bracken. It is to be met with on every hand. But this observer cannot find the slightest evidence of disloyalty to him. Reports of plots to oust him—which have emanated from no less authoritative quarters than the Conservative caucus—cannot be confirmed even in quarters where his leadership was questioned from the outset. Conservatives are agreed that not only is there no way of getting rid of Mr. Bracken but that his voluntary retirement would probably be fatal. They affirm that Mr. Drew, Mr. McCullagh, Mr. Graydon and, indeed, all the lieutenants are faithful to Mr. Bracken and will remain so until after the next election.

OUTSIDE the "Toronto clique" — which, of course, includes the two Georges (Drew and McCullagh), the chief criticism among the lay-Conservatives is that Mr. Bracken in reality has refused to lead the party. He would not or, in any event, he did not enter the House of Commons. This meant divided leadership and inevitably resulted in public disagreement — on family allowances for example. He did not take to the public platform and in this way give the party nation-wide leadership. Admittedly, Mr. Bracken is not a first class platform man and Conservatives generally, with Borden, Meighen and Bennett fresh in their memories, expect much from their leaders in this regard. But whatever the reason, Mr. Bracken kept off stage and, in view of many of his supporters, became a forgotten man almost the day after the Winnipeg convention.

A third point is that Mr. Bracken rarely, if ever, functioned as a leader within the party councils. When important pronouncements had to be made, somebody else was always popping up to make them. The best example here is over-all conscription, which was announced by Mr. McTague on June 19 with Mr. Bracken on the platform with him. Mr. Drew's outburst against family allowances is another. Mr. Drew's position of uncompromising isolation—Ontario versus the rest of the country—could not but react harmfully on Mr. Bracken. Where was he when this important decision was being made?

Even in so small a matter as a national radio broadcast, Mr. Bracken, for reasons which his followers cannot fathom, preferred to speak at a hole-in-corner meeting in Carleton County, turning the national audience over to Mr. Elliott Little.

Perhaps, the Conservatives say to themselves, perhaps Mr. Bracken is not able to lead us in the house. Perhaps he isn't a good platform man and therefore should avoid mass meetings. Perhaps he hasn't a good radio voice and had best keep off the air. If so, why is he our leader?

THE only answer is that Mr. Bracken has other qualities. He has given his full time to organisation. Organizers, however, are merely the hired men of political parties. They occupy a position quite different from a leader, both with the party and the public. Certainly the party today is convinced that what was required in 1942 was a leader not an organizer.

Looking back over the two years, many Conservatives explain the present situation in these terms. Mr. Bracken was a great gamble for the Tory party. The party did not know him. He lacked prestige among Conservatives generally. After all, in Mr. Bennett's time he had been well up on the black list. Ordinary folk, who are the mainstay of every party, cannot reverse their attitude the moment the party bosses snap their fingers. Think of what the Conservative of Manitoba were saying about Mr. Bracken only a few years back.

Mr. Bracken apparently had definite views about policy, but the party was not aware of them. Mr. Bracken obviously believed the wise course was to cast a wide net—stress progressive and soft pedal Conservative, be a bit of a Liberal, something of a C.C.F.'er, lift the hat gallantly to Social Credit. By displaying a large welcome home sign to everybody, with a 32 point program here and a dozen points somewhere else, by avoiding controversy — in this way it might well be that the Conservatives would be swept into office as the alternative to an unpopular government, without turning a hair. And if, by any mischance, the party missed a majority, what better preparation could there be for a coalition. No enemies. No policies to be reconciled. No nothing.

It is agreed now that Mr. Bracken was wrong in this strategy. But be that as it may, he lacked the prestige to hold his party to his line. More positive, aggressive leadership came from individuals and groups—Mr. Drew, the "Toronto clique," the Commons group. Mr. Bracken plodded on. But when, at long last, he looked about him—behold the party was gone.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

PUBLIC CONTROL OF THE ARENA

Sir,—It was suggested by one of the ratepayers of the city that I should attempt to make clear the fact that the arena is a publicly owned proposition, and that the city ratepayers have control of it, through the administration of a commission to be appointed by the City Council. The amount to be contributed by the city is not large in proportion to the amount subscribed from other sources, approximately three mills in one year only.

This is the largest community effort ever attempted in Peterborough, and the question of the location of the site, I submit, is secondary to the first objective in view; ~~and that~~ is the success of the project, and the opportunity of obtaining an arena, financed by the subscriptions of labour, industry and the general public may never come again.

A great many people coming to the city to attend exhibitions of sports and games in the arena would give considerable financial benefit to the merchants of the city.

A well-known resident of Oshawa stated yesterday it was an amazing feat to observe the unanimous and united effort made by the Peterborough people to construct a great monument.

Peterborough is looked upon as one of the most active, progressive and rapidly developing cities in Canada, and this community effort shows it to be living up to its reputation.—Yours faithfully,

G. N. GORDON.

DISGUSTED BY LETTERS

Sir,—I was indeed pleased to read Truth's letter in last night's edition, referring to the letters that had been written re the Vatican's actions before and after the present war, and to say that I too was disgusted with those letters, is to put it mildly.

What do they think our men are fighting for, Catholic and Protestant boys, fighting side by side for a just and lasting peace, and goodwill towards men.

They are certainly not fighting for a few old fogies, who seem to be trying to pave the way for another war, a war of religion.

Readers, if you have letters to put before the public, let us at least be tolerant one to another, and unite our thoughts and opinions for the good of the community, instead of stirring up trouble. Goodness only knows, there's enough of it now.

Hearts are being broken with real sorrow, not by what the Vatican may have said a few years ago. Mothers are giving their sons, wives their husbands, in this ghastly business of war, yet there are still people anxious to stir up more strife. What good can be derived from digging up old grievances that are supposed to have happened in 1936, I fail to see.

We have all a perfect right to our own thoughts and opinions, but we definitely have not a right to make them public, unless they are for the good of the whole community. —Thanking you,

QUEENIE M. GRAY.

A Sister For George

(THE LONDON TIMES)

"I'M not quite certain neither," said Mr. Kenwigs, "whether, as it's a boy, I won't have it in the papers."

It is to some such sentiment, as adumbrated in the Births column, that a correspondent has lately objected. He complains that the announcement, "A sister for George (Felicity Joan)," casts an oblique slur on poor little Felicity; it implies, he says, that "George is to be the star turn, which is bad for George." George himself will presumably be for some time at least too young to grasp the innuendo, which is rather subtle, and, however that may be, George's father has since rebutted the imputation. George has received, not a compliment, but a warning.

It may be tentatively asserted, without statistical research, that the converse, "A brother for Felicity," is seen quite as frequently, so that the sexes are really all square. When he says that "A daughter" conveys all that is required our correspondent appears to be on surer ground.

These pieces of news are essentially private and their purveyors are clearly entitled to please themselves, but they are fraught with perils not always perceived in the first moment. "Another dear little girl," culled from a column of past years, has something of irony and suggests the dreary contemplation of a row of pigtailed heads. On the other side of the account "A fourth son," hints at anxious estimates of long school bills in the future, whereas Felicity might be fobbed off with a nursery governess. It has moreover been known to produce too stimulating letters, from those constitutionally incapable of minding their own business, to the effect that England needs sons and that the lady ought to be proud to be "a mother of men."

There are some irredeemably conservative persons who would prefer an older manner to that now almost universal. An instance may be taken from a higher walk of life than that of Mr. and Mrs. Kenwigs in the year 1816: "On the 26th of March — the Lady of Lieutenant-Colonel Crawley, of the Life Guards Green—of a son and heir." There is about that a fine, rotund, sonorous quality lacking in the more casual bulletins of today, and nobody would more thoroughly have appreciated it than Becky herself, who probably rated honest Rawdon for suppressing his C.R.

It would be hopeless and perhaps unwise to go back now to the ancient way, since the common form of one age becomes the pomposity of the next, but one thing may be laid down with some confidence: There is much to be said for orthodoxy even to the point of dryness. In these matters it is best to adhere to the convention of the day, whatever it may be, for once the announcer leaves the beaten track he is apt to lose his way and his judgment in meadows altogether too lush. "No flowers" is an admirable rule.

The perfectly genuine sentiment inspiring the writer undergoes some falsifying process in reaching the eye of the reader, who sets it down, quite unjustly no doubt but not unnaturally, as sentimental. In the meantime it is to be hoped that Felicity is lying in her cradle unaware of the eager championship that she has called forth, for to hear of it would be very bad for Felicity.

A Bible Message

Then said Jesus to those Jews which believed on him, If ye continue in my word, then are ye my disciples indeed; and ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free. They answered him, We be Abraham's seed, and were never in bondage to any man: how sayest thou, Ye shall be made free? Jesus answered them, Verily, verily, I say unto you, Whosoever commiteth sin is the servant of sin....

I know that ye are Abraham's seed; but ye seek to kill me, because my word hath no place in you. I speak that which I have seen with my Father: and ye do that which ye have seen with your father....

Ye are of your father the devil, and the lusts of your father ye will do. He was a murderer from the beginning, and abode not in the truth, because there is no truth in him. When he speaketh a lie, he speaketh of his own: for he is a liar, and the father of it. (John 8: 31-34, 37, 38, 44.)

The wicked, through the pride of his countenance, will not seek after God: God is not in all his thoughts....

Arise, O Lord: O God, lift up thine hand: forget not the humble.... Break thou the arm of the wicked and the evil man: seek out his wickedness till thou find none. (Ps. 10: 4, 12, 15.)

FASCISTS HAVE THICK SKINS

Secretary Hull's latest statement about Argentina is certainly the strongest he has yet made. It even carries the implication that unless Argentina cleans house she will find herself the object of a non-recognition policy by the proposed new world security organization. And that is a strong threat indeed. A world security organization is still some time away. And a policy of non-recognition would need the assent of a great many nations. So the Argentinians aren't likely to get stirred up about what may happen—if. After all, we and the British are still payin top prices for Argentine beef, wheat and cor and Argentina, with its Fascist government, growing rich. And just six weeks ago, Hull use the harsh words, "deserter" and "fascist," whic he repeaterd last week. But during the past s weeks Argentina's fascists have thumbed the noses at us.—New York Post.

BETTER A FINISH FIGHT

From a long term viewpoint there would more danger to America in a Japanese decisi to bring the war to an early end than in a fig to a finish. If the Japanese man their gu until their armies and fleets are destroyed the can be little doubt that the victorious Allies w deprive Japan of strategical positions which gi her military strength and will exterminate t military clique which formulated and began t task of carrying to fruition the Japanese pl for domination of the whole earth. If Jap seeks peace prior to complete defeat, what s tlement will there be? Everything we kn about Japan's militarists indicates that if th try for a negotiated peace they will do so in hope of saving enough from the wreckage to e able them to attempt again, with the help of lessons they have learned in this war, a progr of a world conquest.—New York Herald Tribu

Debate Features Presbyterian Synod Talks

CORNWALL, Ont., Sept. 28—(CP). — Clergy and laymen in attendance at the annual meeting of the Montreal and Ottawa Synod of the Presbyterian Church in Canada yesterday debated proposed reduction of $25,000 in the Synod's allocation for missionary work and upkeep of the various organizations of the Church.

At the morning session a motion asking a reduction in the allocation from $95,000 to $70,000 resulted in a lengthy debate which was continued at another meeting in the afternoon.

Yesterday's session opened with a Communion service conducted by the newly-elected Moderator, Rev. G. S. Lloyd, M.A., B.D., minister of St. John's Church here where the Synod meetings are being held.

The allocation discussion followed presentation of the incompleted report of the Gudget and Stewardship Committee by Dr. William Orr Mulligan, Montreal.

Rev. E. G. White of Montreal spoke in favor of a reduction in the allocation. Mr. White maintained the present allocation is not being met by the churches.

Chief opposition to the proposal came from Dr. Robert Johnston, Ottawa, who said it is "only an objective to shoot at, and the Synod is capable of reaching it, if effort is put forth."

Synod delegates in the afternoon inspected several properties in the district which have been suggested as possible camp sites for Synod activities. The two-day annual session closed formally last night.

Fined $100

NIAGARA FALLS, Sept. 28—(CP)—Jean L. Mongrain, 23, of Niagara Falls, was convicted yesterday of a charge of being absent from his work at a local war plant for 52 days between June 17 and August 27 without written permission of the Selective Service officer and fined $100 or three months in jail.

Officers Deny Smythe Charge

TORONTO, Sept. 28 (CP)—Two Canadian Army officers who served with British units in France today with British units in France have issue with a statement by Major Conn Smythe who said that reinforcements in Normandy lacked training in the use of grenades and Piat and Bren guns.

They were Lieut. C. Bennett of Toronto and Lieut. Ray Ludford of Hamilton. They said: "Maj. Smythe did not land with the Canadian troops and when he did land later he was in a small pocket where he could not have seen what the Canadian troops ahead were doing. In any case, right or wrong, he used very poor judgment and should be brought to task for it."

They described Canadian troops who took part in the invasion of Normandy as the finest trained soldiers they had ever seen. Lieut. Bennett served with the Duke of Wellington's Light Infantry and Lieut. Ludford with the 5th Wiltshire Regiment.

Included in the 106 arrivals was Capt. Richard Stauffer of Galt, who said he was wounded near Buron, France. Other Ontario men included Spr. Albert LePage, of Penetanguishene, Sgmn. Donald Barnart of Trenton, Pte. J. H. B. Coates of Claremant.

Bride-Elect Of Week Given Linen Shower

LIFFORD LINE, Sept. 28 — (ENS). — A large number of friends gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Sheckleton to honor Miss Winelda Kerr, whose marriage to Mr. Victor Malcolm of Yelverton takes place at the Kerr farm on Saturday.

Each woman came provided with a favorite recipe and a recipe book with colorful illustration was compiled for the bride.

A young bride and groom, represented by Helen Heaslip and Alfred Russel, entered the room to the strains of "Here Comes the Bride", played by Miss Dorothy Malcolm at the piano.

A basket of gifts was laid at the feet of the guest of honor, with the assistance of another bride of the year, Mrs. Howard Malcolm, the daintily wrapped gifts were displayed.

Although the shower was specifically linen other articles of glassware were on the list. After the gifts were opened, lunch was served.

Mr. Fred Johnston of Belleville spent the week-end at his home here.

He Has Rights

TORONTO, Sept. 28 (CP).—Gordon D. Conant, master of the Ontario Supreme Court, ruled Tuesday that a peanut vendor has as much right as a motorist to be on the highway. The ruling came in an application to strike out part of a statement of defence in a damage claim for $5,000 by Stanish Toleff, a peanut vendor, who was struck down February 8 by a car owned by Earl S. Hodgen and driven by Fred Pember. The defendants claimed that Toleff was on the highway without any legal right to conduct business there.

Havelock Branch Plans Campaign For More Donors

HAVELOCK, Sept. 28 (ENS) — The need for more blood donors was discussed at the meeting of the Havelock-Belmont Branch of the Red Cross Society, and a letter was read from Mrs. Hazel Ray of the Peterborough branch giving suggestions along this line.

First, she advocated the setting up of a filing system which would help bring the donors back on time and would correspond with the system at the blood clinic. Second, another personal canvass of each district in and around Havelock, because she had found that personal contacts are far more beneficial in procuring donors, than any other method. She expressed her willingness to visit the local branch in the near future and suggested that canvassers be appointed who are very enthusiastic about the need for donors, and with whom she could discuss a plan of approach by covering all points of importance, so that they could answer all questions.

In connection with the latter suggestion, the following canvassers were appointed to assist the blood donor convener, Mrs. M. Couch, namely: Mrs. E. J. Leeson Mrs. B. Post, Mrs. H. Brunton, the convener to have the authority to name another canvasser and to call a meeting to arrange a date to meet Mrs. Ray.

Gift of $25

A donation of $25 was received from the Women's Auxiliary of the 149th Squadron Air Cadets, which stipulated that it was to be used for packing Christmas boxes for members of the forces overseas. The secretary was instructed to write this organization stating that it was against the rules of the Red Cross to send individual parcels and request that it might be used in the blood donor work.

Another donation of $1 was received from a friend for the general funds.

The president reminded the society about another curb salvage collection to be made on October 17, and it was decided to ask Mrs. W. Copp to look after the advertising. The following accounts were passed: Mrs. E. W. Seeney, flannelette $2.90; R. Sayers, buttons and thread $1.05.

Glorifying Pupils

ST. PAUL, Sept. 28—(AP).—Rural school teachers in Minnesota cannot require pupils to sweep floors, carry water or coal or build fires. Attorney-General J. A. A. Burnquist has so ruled in an opinion formulated at the request of Dean Schweickhard; state commissioner of education. Furthermore, the ruling said, a teacher has no right to send a pupil on an errand of private business without the pupil's consent.

Edwin R. McBride Passes Away In Belleville

BELLEVILLE, Ont., Sept. 28 — (CP). — Well-known retired merchant of this city, Edwin R. McBride died in Belleville Hospital on Tuesday morning following a long illness.

Born in Kingston 78 years ago, Mr. McBride came to Belleville as a young man and for many years was in the shoe business here. After being in partnership in Belleville he later managed shoe stores in Napanee and also in this city, retiring a few years ago. He was interested in the Children's Aid Society and in the work of the Y.M.C.A.

Surviving are one daughter, Mrs. George White of Madoc, and three sons, Stewart McBride of this city, F., Cyril McBride, R.C.A.F., of Three Rivers, and Sergt. Clinton McBride, R.C.A.F., of Greenwood, N.S. There are four brothers.

Cards Boast The Best Outfield Crew

By JOE REICHLER
Associated Press Sport Writer

NEW YORK, Sept. 28.—(AP). — You'll find it in the Cards if you're looking for the standout outfield among the world series contenders.

The potent punch of Stan Musial, Johnny Hopp and Danny Litwhiler paced the St. Louis' National League entry to its third straight pennant.

American League partisans may argue that Detroit's Dick Wakefield can match any Cardinal outfielder in all-around ability, but in group comparison, neither the Tiger trio of Wakefield, Roger (Doc) Cramer and Jimmy Outlaw nor the St. Louis' Browns' outfield patrol of Milt Byrnes, Mike Kreevich and Chet Laabs can stack up against the Cards.

Besides being runner-up for the National League batting title with .344, Musial leads the group with 50 doubles. He has 191 hits, including 14 triples and 11 homers and has driven in 91 runs. Hopp boasts an average of .333 with 34 doubles, nine triples, 11 homers and 65 runs batted in. Although Litwhiler is batting only .262, he has 13 homers and driven in 74 runs.

Litwhiler is the National League record-holder, having gone through 187 straight games at one time without an error. Hopp has made but one error all season and Musial is among the leaders in assists with 15.

All three have the added advantage of having been in series competition before, while no member of the Tiger or Brown outfield can boast of such experience.

Left-fielder Wakefield's bat boomed for .348 average, including 13 doubles, six triples and 12 homers, and in 73 games he has driven in 51 runs. The 38-year-old Cramer, a veteran of 15 years' standing, has been hitting at a .500 pace since July 4, to lift his average to a respectable .289. Outlaw, a grand clutch hitter and team player despite his .274 batting mark, rounds out the Tiger outfield.

NEW YORK, Sept. 28 (AP) — Maybe the American League pennant race isn't exactly what Joe McCarthy was thinking about when he said that final Yankees-Browns series would settle the struggle, but it seems that Joe really called it right . . . The way heavyweight Lee Oma explains that knockout by Tami Mauriello last week is "I ran out of gas. Tex Sullivan (Lee's manager) forgot to bring those coupons."

King Edward 4 Queen Alex 1 In School Tilt

King Edward eleven now lead the Public School Soccer League with two wins and a draw. They defeated Queen Alexandra on Wednesday afternoon at Nicholls Oval by 4-1 tally on a slipper field that was heavy after the steady rain in the early part of the afternoon. The venue had to be change from Riverside, at the last minute, owing to the schedule game by teams instructed to play in Peterborough but was cancelled owing to the inclemency of the weather.

First Half.

Right from the kick-off, King Edward relied upon a close-passing game that was beneficial to the field condition otherwise the effort of long punting would have enabled the defence to hold the attack in check. Eventually King Edward opened the scoring through Anderson and a little later K. Lawson added the second counter. Queen Alexandra went right back to reduce the tally but Beggs registered the third goal just before the interval. Half time: King Edward 3, Queen Alexandra 1.

Second Half.

On resuming Queen Alexandra nullified the combination of the Southenders with clever tackling to hold the fast moving winner's forwards outside the goal area. Both goals went under severe tests repeatedly with the half-backs dominating the situation, thereby holding the forwards to a limited area. But King Edward increased their count, Beggs accepted an opening presented to him to make the count King Edward 4, Queen Alexandra 1.

King Edward—J. Grant goal; D. Breadman and D. Downer fullbacks; A. Riches, T. Byers and R. Self halves; M. Chambers, D. Anderson, K. Lawson, D. Buchan and R. Beggs forwards.

Queen Alexandra— M. Courneya goal; C. Nolan and B. Zahurk fullbacks; H. Anderson, V. Rogers and G. Woods half-backs; B. Simmonds, J. Nicholls, G. Dracup, L. Gashell and H. Johnson forwards.

Referee—R. Scrutton.

Season Is Commenced By Lady Bowlers

The Ladies' City Bowling League opened its season Monday night, with some good rolling to get the schedule away to a good start.

Top team score was rolled by the champion Westclox who put together a 2852 total in taking two out of three games from the Empressettes.

M. Goldie had high three with 747 and other good perforances were E. Copping 641, Marion Timm 637, L. Vincent 631 and A. Johnston 660.

Marg. Hawthorne of Westclox had top single 273, B. Goldie 265, M. Goldie 265-255, E. Copping 242, M. Richardson 258-234, and Phyllis Coleman 245.

SPORTS-Day by Day

By FRED D. CRAIG

The announcement that the Canadian Postal Corps team will be here this week-end for a best-of-three series with the local Military Training Centre team for the championship of Military District No. 3 has been received with satisfaction by Peterborough softball fans who will welcome this chance to see the popular local Soldiers in action again. The Military Training Centre outfit, beaten out in the City League playoffs by the Plazas always had a big following and now that they have a chance to win a military championship fans generally will be pulling for them to come through. They played fine ball to defeat the Barriefield Radar team and the Kingston R.C.O.C. in two successive series and while the Canadian Postal team will likely be stronger than either of the other clubs knocked off by the Soldiers, friends of the latter are confident that they will rise to the occasion and take the Ottawa invaders into camp in this final series. The first game will be played at Riverside Park Saturday afternoon and the second at the Military Training Centre Sunday afternoon. If a third game should be required it will also be played on the same diamond later on Sunday.

You have to hand it to the Oshawa Colts. When the Toronto Prince of Wales team blew into Oshawa last Saturday and knocked off the Motor City outfit on their own diamond to the tune of 6 to 1 with 18-year-old Normie Bagnell making the Colts look decidedly feeble at the plate it appeared that the career of George Campbell's proteges in senior B ball was going to end with that one series. The Toronto invaders won in such easy fashion that most Oshawa fans figured it was all over. The Colts, however, refused to fold. They came back Monday in the second game, played in Toronto, and with Dean McLaughlin pitching very effectively knocked off the Prince of Wales team 3 to 1 and evened up the series. The young Toronto outfit with victory in their grasp faltered badly in the field beat themselves by making five errors. Bagnell held the Colts to five hits but his pitching skill was wasted because of loose Toronto fielding. The Oshawa win left the series all up to the result of the third game which Prince of Wales agreed to play in Oshawa Tuesday. Old Preem Whiteley who had been beaten in the first fixture took care of that engagement himself. The veteran blew his fast ball past the Toronto batters with so much zip, that the Prince of Wales team failed to get a hit off his delivery. Bagnell again pitched well for the losers but ultimately had to yield the victory to Oshawa by a 2 to 0 score. Colts will now play the Hamilton-Brantford winners.

Cannot Afford To Fail

For years there has been lamenting in Peterborough about the lack of proper facilities for hockey. It has long been recognized that a modern arena, with artificial ice, was very badly needed in this city and there have been many complaints because nothing was being done to deal with the situation. Now something is being done and the many citizens who have been regretting the absence of such a building in Peterborough have a chance to do their part in providing the facilities for which they have been clamoring. An up-to-the-minute hockey arena, modern in every respect including an adequate heating plant is one of the main features of the comprehensive Memorial Health Centre scheme. There is a challenge therefore to those who have for years been demanding an arena of that kind to do their part now in making possible the accommodation for which they have been asking. Their duty plainly is to support the Memorial Health Centre drive and to support it whole-heartedly and generously. As this column has pointed out often, if we miss the bus on this occasion there is not likely to be another one along for many years. Failure of the present drive will set back the sporting clock in Peterborough so far that the next couple of generations are not likely to catch up. We simply cannot afford to fail now; the consequences of failure are too serious.

Westclox will leave for Stratford early tomorrow evening and will spend the night at Guelph, going on to Stratford Saturday morning. It was decided to leave early in order that the team might be in the best possible shape for the crucial battle Saturday afternoon. Although the Big Bens were beaten by 3 to 2 here in the opening game of the series they are still confident that they can overcome that handicap in the Classic City. They admit that they were a bit unsteady in the first game but they hope to hit their stride Saturday afternoon and even up the round by a victory, thus forcing a third battle. The same two pitchers who battled it out here last Saturday, Greta Harmer for the Kroehlers and Isobel Bullock for Westclox, will undoubtedly face each other again in that all important second game and it should be a nice tossing duel between two clever young hurlers. The lineup of the rival outfits is expected to be about the same as in the first clash between the teams. Westclox will have a few supporters with them for five cars will be in the motorcade leaving here early Friday evening.

Kingston Planning

Says Mike Rodden in the Kingston Whig-Standard: "Last Saturday afternoon sportsmen representative of the City of Kingston discussed with Queen's University heads the suggestion made by the latter that forces be joined in erecting a skating and hockey arena under joint ownership and management. Queen's officials have their plans prepared on paper, at least, and the edifice that they would erect appears imposing. They would make this new building modern in every sense of the word and they have even allotted space for a hockey hall of fame. The building would be erected near Richardson Stadium. It was pointed out that until last season the Kingston Hockey Club receiver 50 per cent of the gate receipts and that Queen's took a similar split. Last season Queen's took only 40 per cent. Secretary Charles Hicks presented the following official figures relatives to the division of the "spoils" during the last four seasons: 1940-41, Queen's, $5,514.98; KHC, $5,968.41; 1941-42, Queen's, $5,704.81; KHC, $6,667.70; 1942-43, Queen's, $4,538.43; KHC, $5,453.42; 1943-44, Queen's, $5,908.66; KHC (army), $12,630.56. Totals, Queen's, $21,666.88; KHC, $31,266.69. The total for the four years was $52,933.57."

A 4 to 1 trimming at the hands of the Boston Red Sox on a rain-sodden diamond at St. Louis last night came close to completely wrecking the Brownies' championship chances. Detroit beat the Athletics 4 to 0 yesterday afternoon and with the Brownie disaster at night the Bengals are a full game in front of St. Louis and there are only four games left to go. To make it worse the Browns have to face the third-place Yanks in those four battles while Detroit finishes up with the faltering Washington Senators. The law of averages arose up to smite the Brownies' chances. Boston Red Sox had lost ten games in a row while the St. Louis club had won seven in succession. Anyway Boston got four-hit pitching from George Woods and Red Barrett and came through with a victory that caused a lot of St. Louis grief. In the National loop the St. Louis Cards dropped a game to Brooklyn, getting only seven hits off Rookie Clyde King just up from the Piedmont League. The Cards are showing no signs of heating up for the world series. They have been limping for a month.

8 Rugby Teams In Action On Saturday

By The Canadian Press

The senior football season in Ontario hits its full stride Saturday with all eight teams in the Ontario Rugby Football Union and the Ontario Armed Services League scheduled to see action.

The 1943 Dominion champion Hamilton Wildcats, who won their first start of this season with a thumping 35-0 triumph over the Toronto Indians, will be in Ottawa to play the Ottawa Trojans who will be appearing in their first scheduled game. Trojans have exhibition victories over Kingston Army, 18-2, and Verdun Grads of the Quebec Rugby Football Union, 36-6, in pre-season games.

Toronto Balmy Beach makes its first start of the season in Toronto against the lowly Indians.

Winners Meets

In the Services League, the two leading teams—Toronto Navy Bulldogs and Hagersville R.C.A.F. Bombers—are scheduled to play at Hamilton. Each team has won its only start and the victor will take sole possession of first place. The other service game is at London where St. Thomas R.C.A.F. Hornets entertain Camp Borden R.C.A.F. Hurricanes. Hornets lost their only start to Hagersville Saturday, 8-7, while the Hurricanes were downed 26-6 by Navy.

Halfback Joe Krol, Ontario Union scoring leader with 12 points in his one start, will lead the Ottawa invasion of the Marauding Wildcats who may need their full strength to match the Trojans who have assembled a potent aggregation of veterans.

Coach Alex Ponton may have Dean Griffing, former Regina star, for the game between his Beaches and Indians but even if Griffing isn't able to start he will field such veterans as Len Staughton, Susie Turner, Bill Zock and Harry Sonshine for wingline duty and Earl Selkirk, Frank Stukus and Sammy Sward in the backfield.

St. Thomas may be strengthened by the addition of FO. Jerry Prince, former Buffalo player who has returned from overseas service. Most potent scorer on the Hornets is LAC. Moon Mullins who got all seven points in their game with Hagersville. Veterans Sgt. Fred Kijek and Sgt. Doug Pzyer are the offensive bulwarks of the Camp Borden squad which hopes to plug the gaps in its wingline by Saturday.

HERE AND THERE IN SPORTS

By The Canadian Press

A strong team, almost the same as that which defeated Mimico-Brampton in last years Dominion box lacrosse title series, will be fielded by New Westminster Salmonbellies when they open this year's series in Toronto on October 7. Heading Salmonbellies' 16-man crew is Bill Wilkes, first string centreman and team captain.

The World's Series still has its old lure for Jack McConnell, Winnipeg, who next week expects to see his 24th consecutive contest. McConnell says his record is surpassed only by 80-year-old Joe Page of Montreal, who has seen every Series.

It is considered possible that London will withdraw from further Ontario Baseball Association competition following a ruling at Hamilton by the O.B.A. executive forbidding London to use Hank Biasatti in re-play games against Windsor ordered by the executive. Windsor lodged a protest over Biasatti ith the executive.

Protest Brings 2 Resignations

HAMILTON, Ont., Sept. 28 — (CP). — Two members of the Ontario Baseball Association executive announced last night they will resign from office today after the executive voted last night to uphold a decision of its sub-committee ordering London, Ont., to replay its senior play-off series with Windsor.

The executive ordered that the games be replayed Sept. 30 and Oct. 4 with a third game if necessary Oct. 7. London will not be allowed to use Hank Biasatti, who played when the London team eliminated Windsor earlier this month. Windsor had protested because Biasatti played games in Detroit this summer.

The meeting was told that this decision would lead the London team to withdraw from the O.B.A. series, putting Windsor into the finals for the title with Welland, Niagara district champions.

By a vote of 4-3 the executive rejected a motion by W. G. Ward that the action of the sub-committee be overruled and that London be declared the winner of the London-Windsor series and be drawn to meet Welland.

A. R. McFadyen of Galt, who seconded Mr. Ward's motion, announced he would send his resignation as a member of the executive to O.B.A. Secretary William Snyder of Hamilton this morning. Mr. Ward said he would take similar action.

Senators May Upset Detroit Hopes

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sport Writer

Washington's sorry Senators, picked to win the pennant in march but destined to be a gloomy last in October, hold the key today to Detroit's first pennant bid since 1940.

Granted the Bengals may find the last four steps the steepest after beating the Nats 15 times in their first 18 meetings, but the two opposition candidates, St. Louis, one game back, and New York, three lengths off the pace, will be clashing in a dog-eat-dog series that can easily eliminate both.

With four games to go all around, Detroit's one-game lead looks good because the schedule is breaking in their favor after a long-up-hill struggle. Steve O'Neill's overworked duo of Hal Newhouser and Paul (Dizzy) Trout are not down for duty today but either or both will be on call.

As long as the Tigers get pitching and hitting like yesterday's 4-0 victory over Philadelphia, nobody can get close. When the Yanks and Browns chased one another from April to mid-September, everything seemed to hinge on their closing clash but the Browns' loss to Boston last night took some of the edge off.

Boston Wins

Rain in St. Louis almost turned things upside down yesterday but the Browns, after moving the Boston finale from afternoon to night and delaying the start for an hour waiting for the drizzle to stop, finally played and were sorry. It was the end of a seven-game St. Louis winning streak and a 10-game Boston losing string.

Pinky Woods, a surprise nominee, took the decision, 4-1, his fourth of the year, but gave way to Red Barrett after a wild spell in the eighth. Denny Galehouse was lifted for a pinch-hitter in the fifth trailing, 1-0 and his relief pitchers dailed as the Browns muffed repeated opportunities in the late innings.

It was Newhouser with win No. 28 for the Tigers in the shutout of the A's, boosting the Newhouser-Trout total to 55 victories, tying the old mark held by Cleveland's Jim Bagby, Sr. and Stan Covelskie.

New York kept its foot in the door by trimming Chicago, 7-2. Cleveland showed Earl Henry, a left-hander from Wilkes-Barre, Pa., and the recruit beat Washington, 6-4.

Cincinnati's Bucky Walter picked up his 23rd National League success by topping New York 8-1, thanks to Steve Mesner's grand-slam homer. Freshman Clyde King hurled Brooklyn to a 3-2 shade over St. Louis, Boston held on to nose out Pittsburgh, 4-3, and Chicago came up with two in the 11th for a 5-3 edge over the Phils, in other senior-circuit games.

By HYE BOSSIN

Laird Cregar, the husky star, used to be the doorman of a New York theatre. Looks the type, doesn't he? . . . What makes a motion picture attractive? Hollywood is sure that stars are the biggest factor. Yet the presence of Greer Garson and Walter Pidgeon wasn't enough to make a real hit out of "Madame Curie" and "Flesh and Fantasy," which had a cluster of them, lagged at the box-office. Shakespeare was right, I guess—"The play's the thing." The ladies spend the most money on movies, male stars attracting more customers than the opposite sex.

The gamest fellow in the film game is Bob Hope, who does so many personal shows for worthy causes that one wonders when he has any time to make movies. Recently Hope, who just returned from the Pacific, came to Toronto to perform at Camp Borden, play in a golf game to boost the Community Welfare Chest and appear before a vast audience to spur the sale of War Savings Certificates.

Hope was in Toronto four years ago to help the Red Cross and I spent some time with him. After the show, which took place at the pier auditorium, we escaped from the pursuing crowd into a taxi. A few blocks later a small boy was standing on the pavement and signalling for a lift. Hope had the taxi pick him up.

All the way downtown Hope and the youngster chatted away. I always felt sorry about that lad. Any boy would have given his best marbles to have been there in his place. When the cab reached downtown the boy said so-long and left quickly.

And didn't even know who his new-found pal was!

"Going My Way," the Bing Crosby-Barry Fitzgerald film, cost $980,000 to make—a comparatively small amount when compared with big attractions. "Lady in the Dark," for instance cost more than $3,000,000. Yet "Going My Way" will probably be the greatest earner in film history. It has created a problem for many managers because the patrons are acting like kids — staying to see it again.

• • •

A disgusted racing fan whose horse had lagged was heard to exclaim, "That horse could run under the apple tree all day and never get out of the shade!" . . . There are more than 86,000 theatres in the world . . . When President Roosevelt was at Quebec he sent for the latest Roy Rogers film, "San Fernando Valley." The president likes Western movies and detective stories . . . Deanna Durbin, whose next is the Technicolor film, "Can't Help Singing," says she won't marry again for five years . . . Errol Flynn has written a book called—of all things—"Be Good Sweet Maid." . . . The only English most Italian kids know is what the soldiers taught them — "Any gum, chum?" or "Any candy, Andy" or "Any soap, dope?" To which the soldiers answer, "No, Joe." . . . Do you remember Russ Columbo, who was accidentally killed in a gun accident ten years ago? His mother just died at the age of 78, thinking that her son was alive. The family told her that Russ was in Europe and read letters to her supposed to be from him. Reason for the secrecy was that she had a heart complaint.

Canadian Sport Snapshots

Written For The Canadian Press by ROBERT CLARKE

TORONTO, Sept. 28—(CP)—This isn't likely to create sports headlines across the country, but this corner has derived a great deal of satisfaction from the knowledge that it has helped solve, it hopes, a problem that has been bothering some of the good people of Rouyn, Quebec.

The problem arose from a morsel of information carried in the daily sports column put out by Press News, the Radio News subsidiary of The Canadian Press. The item in question, culled from Frank Menke's Encyclopedia of Sport, stated baldly that the antelope is the world's fastest animal—capable of travelling 62 miles per hour.

Since Press News serves 40 radio stations, it should be safe to say that at least two dozen sportscasters across the country imparted that breathless bit of information to their listeners. In other words, a good half-million persons probably heard from their radios about the athletic abilities of the antelope.

Only the sports fans in Rouyn, apparently, were unprepared to take the news at face value. Sportscaster Ross Guy of CKRN no sooner had finished his broadcast than the 'phone calls started. Didn't he know that the cheeta made the antelope look like a dawler? Hadn't he ever heard that the gazelle could take time out to munch grass and still whip the antelope in a match race?

As this disbelief on the part of the people of Rouyn reached alarming proportions, Sportcaster Guy decided that the only thing to do was to dump the whole matter into the Press News lap—which he did. This caused a great deal of confusion around Press News, since no one on the staff had an idea what a cheeta looked like, much less knowing how fast it could travel.

The Encyclopedia Britannica couldn't solve the problem. It did have a picture of a cheeta, though. Where to turn? Maple Leaf Gardens probably wouldn't know. Burleigh Grimes had his own worries. His Toronto baseball club was in the International League playoffs, and he undoubtedly couldn't be bothered imparting the information.

Well, the Ontario Museum finally came to the rescue. J. R. Dymond of the Museum staff admitted that he couldn't say about such matters offhand, but he'd take a look through some reference books.

Here's what he unearthed: The cheeta can travel 70 m.p.h. but only for a short stretch, around 100 yards; the gazelle swings along at 60 m.p.h. for a half-mile or so; and the antelope is capable of at least a steady 60 m.p.h.

Evidently, then, what Mr. Menke had in mind when he gave the call to the antelope as the world's fastest animal was for sustained speed. And that's the way this corner passed along the information to Sportscaster Guy. What we didn't mention was Mr. Dymond's parting shot.

"Actually you're considering mamals, not animals," he said. "Some insects are animals and they're capable of moving at a pretty fast clip."

After all, there's not much sense in stirring up another argument in Rouyn.

10,000 Watch Pacing Stake

LEAMINGTON, Sept. 28—(CP)—Before a crowd estimated at 10,000 people, the inaugural racing of the two-year-old Supertest Pacing Stake was decided here Wednesday afternoon, and eight faced the starter. It proved to be a straight heat affair for the black gelding Jack E. Herbert, owned by W. H. Herbert and Son, and driven by Floyd Milton.

Milton made every post a winning one in the first heat as, scoring from fourth horse position, he sent his pacer right to the front, and when the field turned the back lane he was leading, with Miss Billie Direct, from the Hyatt Stable and driven by W. Hughes, trailing in close behind, with the balance of the field in Indian fashion. Louie James, with Pine Ridge Abbe, made his move before coming to the half, and at that point in 1:10 the order of the leaders was Jack E. Herbert, Miss Billie Direct, Pine Ridge Abbe and White Sox, the balance well bunched.

Supertest Stake; Purse $3,800

Jack E. Herbert, Milton	1	1
Miss Billie Direct	2	2
Pine Ridge Abbey, James	3	4
Ruth Dillon, Berry	6	3
White Sox, Lantz	4	5
Carl B. Herbert, Rowntree	5	7
Playful Grattan, Awkerviller	8	6
Phil Grattan, Yearly	7	8

Mimico Wins

ST. CATHARINES, Sept. 28. —(CP).—George Masters' free throw with less than two minutes of play remaining last night gave Mimico Mountaineers a 7-6 victory over St. Catharines Athletics in the third game of the Senior Ontario Lacrosse Association final. The win gave Mimico a 2-1 lead in the best-of-five series. Fourth game will be played at Mimico Thursday.

Orioles One Up On The Bears

BALTIMORE, Sept. 29—(AP)—Baltimore Orioles, one up in the International League final play-offs, meet Newark Bears tonight in the second game of the four-of-seven series for the right to play Louisville, winner of the American Association playoffs in the Little World series.

Charley Embree was expected to start on the mound for Baltimore while the Bears placed their hopes on Phil Page.

The teams will move to Newark tomorrow for two games and will return to Baltimore Sunday unless Baltimore wins four straight.

The Orioles blasted Newark 14-3 in last night's opener before 12,773 persons. Newark had been idle eight days since defeating Toronto four straight, while Baltimore finished a hectic seven-game series against Buffalo Tuesday night.

Baltimore got to Ken Holcombe, Newark's starter, for three runs in the first inning and sewed up the game in the second with five more tallies. Third Baseman Frankie Skaff provided the pay-off with a homer with the bases loaded. Skaff drove in six runs in all.

English Meet French Team

LONDON, Sept. 28 — (CP. Cable). — International flavor will return to football matches on the continent this week-end when a team of British Internationals meets a team representing France in Paris Saturday and plays Belgium in Brussels Sunday. Last games played in France by a British team were in 1940, when a British army team met a French army side.

The British team will leave England by air Friday. It is composed of four Internationals—one English, two Welsh, one Scottish — and members picked equally from army and air force.

The "invading" side includes such outstanding footballers as Cpl. Stan Matthews, the Stoke City flash, Flt. Lt. Bernard Joy of the Arsenal, George Hardwick of Middlesbrough, Joe Mercer of Everton, and LAC. Frank Som, dashing forward of Chinese parentage who plays for Stoke City.

Prisoners' Food Getting Worse

By CHARLES LEOBOLDTI
Canadian Press Staff Writer

MONTREAL, Sept. 28 — (CP) — Canadian prisoners of war in Germany are able to follow the Allied victorious march in western Europe almost as well and as rapidly as their folks at home, repatriated soldiers and civilians said today on their way back from Nazi prison camps.

The party, including 24 disabled servicemen and four civilians, arrived here from Jersey City where they landed yesterday aboard the exchange liner Gripsholm. Men bound for Kingston, Toronto and London remained in the special car pending resumption of its journey westward.

Men taken prisoner at Dieppe in 1942 learned of the capture of the French port by Canadians last month a few hours after it happened.

Among the Dieppe prisoners was Lieut. John E. Thompson, former Winnipeg and Toronto newspaperman, who lost an eye during the 1942 reconnaissance in force. He was met by his wife and two of his three children and has not yet seen his third child who is three years old. Lieut. Thompson's young daughter, Joan, who is five, interviewed her daddy.

Lieut. Thompson said the food in camp was getting "worse and worse", but that the Red Cross parcels "helped a bit."

Leaders Claim Take 2 Years To Finish Japs

WASHINGTON, Sept. 28 — (AP) — The job of crushing Japan is expected to require an "absolute minimum of 1½ to two years after defeat of Germany, the United States Office of War Information said today in a summary of war agencies' data.

Indeed, the psychological effect of an end to the European war is apt to favor the Japanese rather than the Allies, O.W.I. said, figuring it this way:

"For the United States, defeat of Germany will mean that a halfway point has been reached in the global war, and will bring extensive changes in the war economy which might induce a let-down in effort and morale.

"To the Japanese, the end of the war with Germany will mean that Japan's war with the United Nations is just beginning. It might well heighten Japan's determination and fighting spirit."

Factors which may enable Japan to prolong the war were said to include the ability of Japan to increase her production of "almost every category of war equipment and military supplies." On the other hand, O.W.I. related, Japan has "failed to capitalize" thus far on her conquests, limiting war production to capacity of the Japs' pre-war industrial plants.

4 Million in Army

Geography is another factor fighting on the side of Tokyo, O.W.I. said, adding that before Allied might can be brought to bear it must be based within striking distance of Japan's homeland. To this end, the B-29 Superfortress raids, while possible now only at periods of 10 days or more, were called a "definite advance."

The agency pointed out that tremendous shipping problems must be solved before a major invasion can be launched against Japan, and added it may be several months before shipping to be transferred from the Atlantic can be made effective in the Pacific.

Listing Japan's manpower situation on the asset side of the Tokyo ledger, O.W.I. estimates there now are 4,000,000 men in the enemy army. In addition, there are approximately 2,000,000 available and fit for military service who have not been called up, and about 1,500,000 in the 17-20 age group, not yet subject to the draft.

Turning to advantages of the Allies, O.W.I. pointed out that the United States alone produces 8,000 combat planes a month, compared to Japan's estimated production of 1,400 or 1,500 planes a month.

Pacific commanders, it said, assert that Japan has lost the power "for a strategic offensive beyond the range of her land-based planes." The agency added, however, that the possibility of sporadic raids on the west coast of North America has not been eliminated.

Pte. W. McCracken Killed In Italy

Serving with the Irish Regiment of Canada, Pte. William Russell McCracken, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Richard McCracken, of Alnwick Township, has been officially reported killed in action in Italy, September 13, according to word received recently by his sister, Mrs. Arthur Smullin of Hastings. Pte. McCracken lived in that district all his life.

Widely known throughout the community, where he was born and raised, the 27-year-old soldier had lived on a farm here up until the time of his father's death in May, 1940, when he moved to New Toronto to work in the small arms plant there.

He spent only a brief period at Small Arms, leaving to enlist in the Army. After training in Camp Borden, he arrived overseas in December, 1943, and subsequently, later in Italy.

Two days before the news of his death, Mrs Smullin received a letter from the soldier, in which he said he hoped to "get home for Christmas." The letter also assured the family he was in excellent health, and not to worry.

He leaves to mourn his passing six brothers, Gnr. Neville McCracken with the Forces in France, Pte. Elmer McCracken, Camp Borden, Harold of Peterborough, Grenville and Gratton, both of New Toronto, and Roy of Port Hope. Also surviving are five sisters, Mrs. Arthur Smullin, Hastings, Mrs. William Martin of Peterborough, Mrs. George Macklin of Cobourg, Mrs. Clarence Pollock of Lakefield, and Gertrude of Cobourg. A brother-in-law, W. H. Martin, is serving in France.

Bethel Church Plans 116th Anniversary

KEENE, Sept. 28 — (ENS) — The one hundredth and sixteenth anniversary of Bethel United Church, Otonabee, will be held Sunday, October 1 at 7:30 p.m. Rev. E. W. Rowland will be guest speaker and the choir of Keene United Church will provide special music.

The records of this church provide some interesting accounts of the early life of the community which was centred around the church. For fifteen years services were held in the home of John Fife, then they were continued in what was then known as Spiers School. The first church was built at Bethel in 1853 with the Rev. Mr. McDowell as regular minister. In 1896 the present church was built, the corner stone was laid by Sir Joseph Flavelle, and Rev. James Liddy was minister. The community was known as the Fife settlement, it was here the famous "Fife Wheat" was produced which somewhat revolutionized the farming industry.

Personal.

Representatives of Bethel congregation met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Borland to give a send off to their son Allan who begins his studies for the ministry at Victoria College. A presentation of a beautiful Bible was made by Rev. George Murray after which refreshments were served.

Allies Facing Enormous Losses—Von Ribbentrop

LONDON, Sept. 28—(CP)—Joachim von Ribbentrop declared in a tripartite pact anniversary speech Wednesday the war had become a life-or-death fight which must continue "until our enemies realize that they could 'never win."

The Nazi foreign minister said the Allies would suffer enormous losses in coming battle and—ignoring the fact American troops already have crossed the Reich's western frontier . . added that "should the enemy succeed in temporarily setting foot on German soil he may be assured that absolute hell will spring up about him.'

Benito Mussolini and Mamorhu Shigemitsu, Japanese foreign minister, also spoke in celebration of Japan's signing four years ago of the Berlin-Rome Axis agreement.

Germany, Japan and Italy cannot be defeated by gold, or by unlimited hatred or by the material means of the enemies," Mussolini said, and charged the Rome government with treason.

Used extensively during World World I., the Ross rifle bayonet can now be purchased for use as a hunting knife, and a number of these are now on sale. The bayonets used in this war are much shorter and smaller in diameter than the Ross rifle type.

BLOOD DONORS

Eighty donors were at the clinic Wednesday. There were 25 from the C.G.E.-Genelco, and employees of the De Laval, the Outboard Marine, Peterborough Lumber, Peterborough Lock, Westclox and Nashua Paper. Out-of-town blood donors came in from Lakefield, Port Hope, Millbrook and Warsaw.

ROMANCE KILLER.

Evidently en route to meeting their best beaux, two young girls paused for a snack in a George Street eating place on Wednesday evening, ordering hamburgers with plenty of onions. Then, the thought struck both of them at once, and after a hasty whispered discussion, they decided to munch the victuals without the onions. "What price romance," sighed one of the damsels, under her breath.

FLIER TURNS UP

PO. Alvin Milburn Casey, the son of A. M. Casey, of Peterborough, is now reported safe. He was previously reported missing on active service.

ENTHUSIASTIC SUPPORTER

A boy working in a city plant and making $12.50 a week as an apprentice surprised a Community Centre canvasser by insisting on a donation of $10. "But I know you can't afford that much," the canvasser said. "No one expects you to give $10, only just as much as your means will allow." But the young man knew what he wanted, the canvaser got cash for $5 and a pledge for $5, and the Community Centre fund is that much richer through the hard-earned gift of a young working-man.

WOUNDED IN LEG—L.-Cpl. William Kerr, despatch rider, has been wounded in the leg while fighting in France, his parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Kerr of Millbrook, have been notified.

Pte. Don Caban Grateful For Civic Welcome

In the absence of Mayor Hamilton, who was in Toronto on municipal business Wednesday afternoon, Alderman Sullivan was requested by His Worship to extend the city's welcome to Private Donald Caban, arriving home on the afternoon train from Port Hope.

"I am glad the Mayor gave me that privilege," Alderman Sullivan said, "because I realized more than ever that the returning boys and their parents are glad that some from the council and the citizens generally is around at train time to help make them feel that their service has been appreciated."

Not Much Notice

The council has received only a few notifications preceding the arrival home of men on active service. Many of these boys have reached here unannounced, and the council has tried to arrange some means of communication with military authorities that would convey advance information to the council and its reception committee.

"I told this young man, Donald Caban, that Peterborough was proud of him and grateful to him for his service, and that I was conveying to him the thanks of Mayor Hamilton and his good wishes on behalf of the citizens generally," said Alderman Sullivan. "The reason I felt like mentioning this to the Examiner today was that the experience impressed me as something we should make further efforts to establish for future homecomings. I know the council has regretted that Peterborough boys should be arriving here seemingly unnoticed, and we would all like them to know that if the council could get the advance telegrams from the military dispersal centres no one would be overlooked."

"This boy's mother and sister were there to greet him, and when I introduced myself to them, Donald said we shouldn't have gone to that bother, and asked me to express his thanks to Mayor Hamilton."

C.G.E. Workers Add $23 To Good Record

A good record of achievement is something that stands for all time, nothing of future occurrence being able to either mar or efface it from records that it has established, and as such may be looked back to with pride in the days that are yet to come.

In this respect, the workers at the Canadian General Electric Co. Ltd. in general and some departments in particular will have cause for pleasant reflections on their achievement on behalf of the victims of air raid attacks by the enemy, and in the last stages of his ultimate defeat, the robot or flying bomb, for during the progress of the operations of the Peterborough and District British War Victims' Fund they have now rolled up a splendid total of $7,318.89 raised and given to help these sufferers through this fund.

Give $228 This Year

One of the outstanding achievements of this year in particular goes to the credit of the industrial control department, presided over by Percy Killingbeck, who have by means of a collection among themselves each week made a monthly contribution to the fund, which in the aggregate for that nine months' period now totals $227.97, a wonderful showing which reflects considerable credit to them all, and in particular to Philip Weir, who as one of themselves has taken a lead in this good work during the whole of that period.

In effect, this however by no means tells the whole story, for they had been active in working for this same cause prior to the period under review, which is best summed up by giving them a further credit of $154.87, giving them an overall total of $382.84 for this one war service assist, and a place among the leaders in the big plant in a very worthy work, the value of which is further enhanced because it is of an entirely voluntary nature.

Readers will recall that when the new plastics department building was first opened, one of their first acts was to raise the nice sum of around $80.00 for this fund, a splendid gesture spoken of at that time as getting away to a good start. Today a further gift from a portion of this department, coming under the supervision of Jack Copping, is also credit with a gift amounting to $1.50 which came from the plastic press-room employees at a wiener roast they held recently.

It is a fine type of pleasure that can keep in mind the needs of people in distress, and do something about it in a practical way to give them a hand to assist them in the time of their trouble.

Previously acknowledged	$81,767.32
Industrial control dept., C. G. E., P. Killingbeck, foreman, per Philip Weir	21.97
Plastic press - room employees, C. G. E., Jack Copping foreman	1.50
Total to date	$81,790.79

L.-Cpl. B. Kerr Wounded In Leg

MILLBROOK, Sept. 28—(ENS).—Word has been received Wednesday by Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Kerr, that their older son, L.-Cpl. Bill Kerr, was wounded in France. The message stated that he was suffering from lacerations of the left thigh and injury to the leg muscles, and was in hospital in England.

L.-Cpl. Kerr was mentioned in despatches in August, when he and another despatch rider brought in 1,600 German prisoners early in the campaign in France. He enlisted in June, 1940, and is now in his fifth year of service.

His younger brother, Cfn. Donald Kerr, is in England, and is in training with the paratroopers. Their father is manager of the Bank of Toronto, Millbrook branch, and he and Mrs. Kerr are active workers in Red Cross.

MISSING OVERSEAS — Flt.-Lieut. Jack Cowling is reported missing overseas, following air operations. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Cowling, 304 Park street north.

Jack W. Cowling On Missing List

Flt. Lieut. John (Jack) Wesley Cowling, R.C.A.F., son of Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Cowling, 304 Park street north, has been reported missing after air operations, overseas, according to word received Wednesday

The young airman was teaching in North Bay when he enlisted three years ago, and he has been overseas one year. The last letter his parents received indicated that he was engaged in work with a reconnaissance squadron. Flt. Lieut. Cowling attended the Peterborough Collegiate and Peterborough Normal School and was well known in tennis circles.

Mrs. Perks Dies In 86th Year

A resident of Gilmour street all her life, excepting an absence of ten years after her marriage, Mrs. Lottie R. Perks died at her home Wednesday in her eighty-sixth year, following an illness of two months.

Mrs. Perks was born in Montreal on May 6, 1859, daughter of James and Mary Mack. Her father died several years later and in 1862 Mrs. Perks came to Peterborough as a little girl with her mother, Mrs. Mary John Mack, and her grandfather, Robert S. Johnston, who immediately established a drygoods business on the east side of George street, opposite the former premises of the Examiner.

Mrs. Perks received her education at the old Menzies and Central schools in Peterborough, and subsequently attended Miss Field's school at Cobourg. In 1883 she became the wife of the late George S. Perks, of Port Hope, and lived in that town and also at Orillia and Brantford until her husband's death in 1893. She then returned to Peterborough and Gilmour street, where she had lived during the last fifty-one years. She is survived by one daughter and three sons, Mrs. J. C. Baldwin, of Vancouver, B.C.; W. George Perks, of Hamilton, Ontario; Arthur J. Perks, of Rockcroft, Ill., and Walter M. Perks of this city.

A life-long member of St. Paul's church, Mrs. Perks had occupied the family few for seventy-five years. It was the Johnston pew in which she used to sit as a girl with her mother and her grandfather. Mrs. Perks was a member of the Thursday Club, a gorup of women who became associated during the last war in the making of articles needed by the soldiers, and who continued their interest in the welfare of returned men during the years of peace and into the second war with Germany.

The funeral of Mrs. Perks will take place from her home at 530 Gilmour street, Friday at 2.30 p.m., to Little Lake cemetery. The service will be conducted by Rev. W. L. Newton of St. Paul's church.

Mrs. Perks lived in Peterborough nearly three-quarters of a century. Her death has severed another of the remaining personal links between the community of that time, the sixties when her grandfather came from Montreal to engage in the retail drygoods business of which he was for years a proprietor, and the city of to-day in which only a few of those old family names remain.

Obituary

MRS. ELLEN TROTTER

The death, in her 87th year, of Mrs. Ellen Trotter, occurred this morning at her home, 947 Water street. Born in Brantford the daughter of the late Zimariah Oliver and Salina Hamlin, she had lived most of her life in the city. She was predeceased by her husband, Alexander Trotter, who died in 1916. Mrs. Trotter was a member of Bethany Tabernacle.

Surviving are two sons, David and John of Peterborough; one daughter, Mrs. M. Palsbo of Buffalo, N.Y.; and a sister, Mrs. Annie Evans of this city.

The funeral will be held on Saturday at 2 p.m. from the Belleghem Funeral Home, 190 Hunter street west, with Rev. W. S. Crone officiating. Interment will take place in Little Lake cemetery.

Manufacturers Nearing $100,000 Mark

Manufacturers accounted for the largest increase in the Memorial Community Centre campaign between Wednesday and Thursday morning, with additional subscriptions of $16,500 received. The total of all divisions of the canvass now stands at $137,169.

Their donations now totalling $87,850, the manufacturers canvass is drawing near to its objective of $100,000 and is the most satisfactory aspect of the financial drive.

"Special names and retail merchants canvass has a long ways to go to come up to what is expected of it," John E. Keyes, finance committee chairman, stated today. Its advance over figures of Wednesday was $1,287, but with a goal of $40,000 to attain, the progress to date was "not satisfactory," Mr. Keyes said.

The employees canvass passed the 50 per cent. mark today, but it was emphasized that returns here are far from complete. Its increase in the 24 hours was $2,912. A breakdown by plants exhibiting the most detailed up-to-date figures available was promised for Friday.

Turn Figures In

Mr. Keyes issued an appeal to canvassers in the general section to get their figures in as soon as possible. This report is very incomplete and covers only a small fraction of the total city at the present time. He explained that difficulties had been encountered by team captains in organizing their teams, and several teams had been unavoidably delayed in starting their house-to-house canvass until this week.

Employees of the banks in the city have rolled up an impressive record in support of the community centre project. It was said today that 98 employees of six banks have contributed 100 per cent. to the Centre.

Still another former Peterborough resident sent in a contribution to the community Centre today. He is Dr. Murray Moher of Toronto, who stated in the letter accompanying his cheque: "I think your idea is a splendid one and typical of the progressive spirit which the citizens of Peterborough have always demonstrated."

Details of the canvass were as follows at mid-morning:

Manufacturers	$100,000	$ 87,850
Employees Canvass.	70,000	35,600
Special Names & Retail Merchants.	40,000	11,717
General Canvass ...	15,000	2,002
	$225,000	$137,169
City Grant	$ 75,000
	$300,000

AIRMAN MISSING — Flt.-Sgt. Charles John Brady, son of Mrs. E. Brady, 362 Burnham street, has been reported missing after air operations overseas.

Accident Toll Must Be Cut

TORONTO, Sept. 28. — H. T. Cranford, Western Clock Co. Ltd., Peterborough, chairman of the Metal Trades Safety Association, presided at a meeting of the organization at the Royal York hotel yesterday. H. A. Cranfield, Canadian General Electric Co. Ltd., chairman of the Central Ontario division of the Industrial Accident Prevention Associations, attended.

Wm. Morrison, chairman of the Workmen's Compensation Board of Ontario, told the meeting that during this month the Board was receiving reports on 425 to 600 accidents per day, including from two to five fatal cases. Commenting on accident prevention work in production plants, he said "industry has done a good job but must do more."

Flt. Sgt. C. J. Brady Missing In Operations

Mrs. E. Brady, 362 Burnham street, has received word that her son, Flight Sgt. Charles John Brady, is reported missing after air operations overseas.

Flt. Sgt. Brady is 25 years old and has been serving overseas a year. Prior to enlisting he was employed at the Western Clock Company, and he is a son of the late William T. Brady, who was a veteran of the last war, and an Imperial soldier.

Pte. Clifford Lucas Casualty In Italy

Serving with the Royal Canadian Regiment, Pte. Clifford T. Lucas, son of Mr. and Mrs. T. W. Lucas, 313 Louis street, has been officially reported wounded in action in Italy September 16, according to information reaching his parents.

The young soldier enlisted more than 2½ years ago, and went overseas in 1942. Formerly employed at the Raybestos Company, he has a brother, Pte. Ronald Lucas, serving at Kingston.

Photograhers See Toning Exhibition

Toning demonstration was the evening entertainment of the Peterborough Camera Club on Tuesday at the Y.M.C.A. in their dark room. The demonstration was sponsored by Barney Scarlett, who showed the members of the club two methods of toning. The first sample was using blue toner, which gave a very nice blue effect on the marine and snow scenes. The second method was sepia on brown, where the print is first bleached and then put into a sepia solution, giving a brown color. This is used mostly for portraits, but may be used for pictorial prints.

After the toning demonstration the nomination for new officers for the coming year was held, with the election of the candidates to be held at next meeting on October 10.

City Housing Questionnaire

In order to learn additional facts concerning the housing needs of Peterborough citizens and the number of new homes which will be required when houses again can be freely built, the City Council has prepared the following questionnaire. It is hoped that citizens will complete the questionnaire, clip it out and mail it to the City Clerk, City Hall, Peterborough. Every answer helps to assure a more complete and useful survey.

1. Do you require housing accommodation in Peterborough?......
2. What type of housing accommodation do you require?
   (a) Apartment
   (b) Separate dwelling
3. Are you interested in building a home?..................
4. How much are you prepared to spend in building a home?......
   What initial payment could you make? ....
5. Where in the City do you desire to build a home? ....
6. How many are in your family? ....
7. Do you desire to rent a home? ....
8. What rental can you pay? ....

Girls Take Lead Supporting Memorial Drive

The brightest spot in the Memorial Community Centre campaign is the generous response of Peterborough's girls.

Girls in the stores and in the big factories, according to the concensus of canvassers' reports, "are doing a grand job."

"Unlike so many of the men, some of the wartime preferred men who were not at Caen nor Falaise nor Cassino, the girls haven't got around to the alibi answer, the sleaziest kind of pretexts for not contributing to this community centre of Memorial."

There are said to be girls throughout the offices of the Quaker Oats Company who came across with a "saw-buck" each,—felt it was considerable, but likewise told themselves they expected to get a lot more than ten dollars worth of recreation and fun out of the Centre, and directly for themselves.

And there are down town men earning five to ten times the money these office girls get, and their giving to the Memorial Centre is for the most part "one saw-buck." And if they were doing their part,—not skulking behind alibis, their names would be down on the lengthening list for five to ten "saw-bucks."

And they wouldn't miss them any more than the girls are going to notice the absence from their arm bags of the fives and tens they have been parting with these last two weeks.

This is no unctuous attempt to please the girls with fine-sounding contrast,—"you wouldn't be kidding us, mister?" It is just a simple statement of fact.

The girls haven't had to learn any wartime alibis, nor have they had to live them, and resort to transparent excuses for continuing failure to do things.

The girls have never had to "alibi" wartime wages against the background of $1.30 a day, wartime pay to the men who have been making possible, for six years, those wartime industrial pay cheques.

And when the canvassers come around with the subscription list for a Peterborough Memorial to those men who have been getting $1.30 a day....but why finish that sentence....

The fact is that right from the canvassers and from the shop committees and also from the mercantile areas come reports that those wartime factory workers, not all of them, of course, but far too many, can do a swell job in saying "no" to the Community Centre in memory of the Peterborough men who kept those factory jobs going for the last five years.

Peterborough girls have been coming through generously and the committee is grateful to them, likewise canvassers, for their warm and self-stinting support.

Suspended Sentence Given Youths, 16

Two sixteen-year old youths who pleaded guilty to infractions of the Selective Service regulations were allowed to go on suspended sentence when they appeared in police court this morning on condition that they henceforth obey the orders of Selective Service regulations.

Max Hunter who pleaded guilty to leaving his job without the permission of Selective Service and W. McIlmoyle who pleaded guilty to a similar charge was the other.

Lakefield Boy Tells Of Wound

A telegram notified Mr. and Mrs. John Charlton of Lakefield that their son, Sgt. Irwin James Charlton, had been wounded while fighting with an anti-tank unit in France. On the heels of this, a letter arrived from the soldier announcing that the wound was slight and he expected to be back in action within a week.

Sgt. Charlton, who will have been overseas four years in October has seen some tough fighting. His last letter told about being at Falaise and Dunkirk. He wrote his parents that the birthday he observed in France in August was one he would never forget. He spent it in a water-filled ditch and the Germans shot over it all day.

For the French people around Falaise he had high words of praise. He told of approaching one farm house and said the crew hadn't even finished setting up their guns in the barnyard when a little old French woman came out and invited them in for supper. She fed them potatoes, home-made bread and plum jam, and it was a real treat for the men.

Sgt. Charlton has a wife and baby daughter in England, the latter having been born a few weeks ago.

Millbrook Boy Wed In Keene

A pretty fall wedding took place recently in Keene manse, when Jessie Mary Wilson, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William D. Wilson of Westwood, became the bride of Gerald Ormus Larmer, second son of Mr. R. O. Larmer and the late Mrs. Larmer, of Millbrook. Rev. W. A. Campbell officiated.

The bride wore a street-length frock of Gaiety blue crepe with navy blue accessories and a corsage of American Beauty roses. Mary Larmer of Ottawa, R.C.A.F. (W.D.), sister of the groom, was bridesmaid and wore a two-piece dress of rose crepe with a corsage of Talisman roses Johnston Rowland of Millbrook attended the grom.

The bride and groom left on their honeymoon to Toronto and points west, the bride wearing a two-piece dress of lime green with black accessories. On their return they will live on the grooms farm on the fourth line of Cavan.

Young Contralto To Sing In Peterborough

TORONTO, Sept. 28 — Portia White, brilliant young Canadian contralto, already has a lot of travelling to her credit—but this winter she's going to be busier than ever. Arriving in Toronto to sing tonight at the Prom concert in Varsity Arena, she laughed that she's "lost count, really," of the number of concerts scheduled in her new season.

Next week, for instance are two community concerts, at London and Peterborough. Then she's off to St. Louis; then to New York for her first Town Hall concert since tre one last March when critics called her "one of the finest contraltos to reach New York since Marian Anderson." After that will be a concert tour of Western Canada, something on the lines of her cross-Canada singing trek last winter.

Miss White was glad to get back to Canada for a few days, as she has sung here many times before. But, however often her audiences have heard her, they probably still find it hard to believe one thing about the charming, poised Halifax-born colored singer. She's only 24. That's a lot of travelling for a 24-year-old.

C.W.L. Convention At Lindsay Huge Success

Voting delegates from the Diocese of Peterborough who were present at the 24th Diocesan Convention of the Catholic Women's League in Lindsay Wednesday, were: St. Peter's, Peterborough, Miss L. Hurley; Sacred Heart, Peterborough, Mrs. J. Daly; Immaculate Conception, Peterborough, Mrs. J. Garvey; Lindsay, Mrs. T. P. Fox; Lakefield, Mrs. Delladon; Cobourg, Mrs. J. N.; Downeyville, Mrs. Mornsey; St. Peter's Juniors, Miss L. Hickey.

Following the opening services for the afternoon session, the president, Mrs. F. J. Lynch, called on the following conveners to give their reports: War convener, Mrs. F. Callahan, Lindsay; Citizenship and Infamous Literature, Mrs. Delladone, Lakefield; Organization, Mrs. J. F. Lynch, Peterborough; Study Clubs, Mrs. Hynes, Immaculate Conception; Sisters of Service, Mrs. M. R. Baker, Lindsay; Girl Guides, Mrs. T. Spratt, Lindsay; Social Service, Mrs. T. P. Fox, Lindsay; Magazine, Mrs. Black, Campbellford; Publicity, Mrs. F. McCarthy, Sacred Heart; Lay Retreats, Mrs. Finn, Kirkfield; Juniors, Miss G. Costello, Peterborough; Post War, Mrs. O'Leary, Douro; Business Women, Mrs. Richardson, Parry Sound.

The convention was one of the most successful in the League's history, and reports revealed splendid progress in all departments.

Banquet Opens Three Day Y.W.C.A. Rally

The three-day rally of the Y.W.C.A. got off to a good start Wednesday evening, when member of various "Y" clubs, and business and school girls interested in Y.W. work and activity, met for a banquet and an evening of fun and games. After a delicious supper served by members of the Girls' Council and the Friday Night Supper Club, the guests gathered into an informal circle, and were entertained by several skits and "stunts" presented by the '38 Club, the Friday Night Supper Club, and the Gym Swim Club.

Miss Betty Detcher, president of the Girls' Council, was chairman, and introduced the various numbers of the program. She welcomed the girls on behalf of the Y.W., and expressed the hope that they would find something to interest them in the many clubs and activities the "Y" offered. Mrs. L. J. Pettit, who is moving to Grimsby, was honored by the girls, in appreciation for her work with and for them, when she was presented with a corsage. Deeply moved by this expression of their esteem, Mrs. Pettit said that she had enjoyed her work in the Y.W., which she had continued for about 20 years, and said that she always thought of the "Y" girls as "her girls". She urged them to carry on the spirit of fellowship and friendship which had marked their associations throughout the years, and assured them how much she would miss her connection with them. Mrs. Pettit also asked grace at the beginning of supper.

Mrs. H. C. Sootheran brought greetings from the recent National Council meeting in Toronto, and echoed Mrs. Pettit's words, in urging the girls to continue in their efforts to become better women and citizens. She suggested as a motto for the "Y" year, "A better 'Y'" for better girls, for better citizens.

Special Guests

Special guests were Mrs. H. A. Mitchell, who sang two selections, "My Prayer", and "Nearest and Dearest", and Miss Eleanor Taylor, who played two piano selections. Miss Taylor accompanied Mrs. Mitchell.

Miss Leona McMillan led in a gay community sing song after supper, before several novel entertainments were presented. Mrs. A. McBride was at the piano. Mrs. Leo Copp organized a number of amusing contests in which various people, called upon unexpectedly from the audience, took part, the winners receiving small tokens.

Following the program, the group adjourned to the gym, where a demonstration of basketball practice, double gymnastics, and flying rings was presented. Two members of the Silver Finettes also demonstrated ornamental swimming and diving in the pool. Miss C. Littlefield extended an invitation to everyone to attend the big gym swim demonstation Thursday evening, and asked that they bring their gym shoes, so that all could take part. Coffee and doughnuts will be served at the close.

JUST FOR WOMEN

By CONNIE NICHOLSON
(Society Editor of The Examiner)

OVERSEAS PARCELS

Families with some loved one serving overseas in Canada's armed forces are beginning to send parcels away, to ensure delivery before Christmas, and they're wise. It's surprising how quickly that deadline date of October 15 will roll around, and find a great many people who have put off getting articles gathered together for the parcel. Boys and girls "over there" are working and giving their all, and a box from home is tops in morale boosting.

Practically every serviceman and woman will receive a token from an Auxiliary to his particular service from his home city. However, a Christmas box from home, filled with little personal gifts, and a piece of mother's special Christmas cake can never be displaced in his heart. Eleven pounds, when packed, is the limit for weight, but there's no limiting the sentiment and loving thoughts which go to fill the box.

Boys who have returned home on leave or for permanent duty, have rated photographs of the family, the girl next door, and even of the pet dog or cat, as tops in their popularity poll. They take up little space, and bring a little touch of Canada and home. Reading material of every kind, from the Bible, which incidentally is rated high on the list of presents service people like to receive, to the latest thrill stories and chilling murder mysteries are also welcome. If he smokes, a windproof cigarette lighter will be a welcome gift. Other "little" things, which come in handy are flints and pipe cleaners, shoe brushes, razor blades, hair tonic, soap, tooth powder, writing pads and envelopes, and yes, even sewing kits.

Food Tops

Food, however, gets a near-the-top rating too. Among the articles of food which can be sent long distances are waxed cheese and packaged crackers, and canned goods, such as fish, soups, or concentrated foods. Cookies or light cakes are not suggested for mailing overseas, but Christmas cake, fruit cake, and other more "solid" baking sweets generally travel well, if carefully packaged. Here's a recipe for "Overseas Squares", which might just fill the bill. It's made in two parts. For part one, the ingredients are: one cup of pastry flour, one half a teaspoonful of salt, one half a cup of shortening and one tablespoon of cold water. Method: Sift flour and salt together, cut in shortening, and add cold water, mixing to a stiff dough. Press the dough into an oiled pan, approximately eight by 12 inches, and bake in a hot oven, about 400 degrees Fahrenheit, from 12 to 15 minutes.

Ingredients for part two are as follows: two eggs, well beaten, one cup of brown sugar, one quarter cup of corn syrup, three quarters of a cup of chopped nuts, one quarter of a cup of chopped candied cherries, two tablespoons of pastry flour, one half a teaspoon of salt, one quarter of a teaspoon of baking powder and one teaspoon of vanilla. Method: Combine the brown sugar, corn syrup, nuts and cherries with the well-beaten eggs, and add the sifted dry ingredients and the vanilla. Spread the mixture over the partially cooked first mixture, and bake in a moderate oven, about 350 degrees Fahrenheit, for about 35 minutes. Cut into squares while still warm. The squares should be wrapped individually before being put into a box for packing.

If letters have mentioned frequently just how good mum's cookies were, though, and "mum" just can't resist making a batch and sending it, she should remember that the firm, thick cookies travel better, and will pack much easier if cut in squares. Each kind of food sent should be wrapped separately and carefully, to prevent one kind from "tasting" another.

FINGER CHARM

One of the newest shades in nail polish which is ...aking its bow this fall, is called Victorian rose, and is a deep red shade matching the rich tones of an American Beauty rose. It's ideal with neutral shades, and makes hands whiter by contrast, and yet is not too gaudy.

"SHORTIES" FOR SMARTNESS

Making a great hit with 'teenagers and college students, is the new shorty, or topper coat, which combines a collegiate touch with real usefulness and smartness. They're ideal for school wear, since they are not cumbersome, yet supply warmth. Coming in all shades and patterns, there's one to suit every taste.

For Friday, September 29

THE EMPHASIS seems to be on the lighter, finer and more artistic and cultural aspects of living, with those businesses thriving which are most closely related to these aspirations and objectives. Engagements flourish, with social, domestic and affectional ties holding the interest and talents. Funds may be easy and the affairs of youth give much happiness and satisfaction. Cultivate talents under this rule.

If It Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is may look for a pleasant and prosperous year, with affairs of the home, youth, with its romance, cultural developments and finer aspirations being under high stimuli for success and productiveness. All kinds of business pertaining to advancing such objectives are under benefic rule and should be pushed to high goals. But refrain from over extravagance or excesses, even though high romantic adventure may invite and stimulate.

A child born on this day may have artistic talents, with versatility and social or personal graces to assure a kindly, pleasant and successful life. It should be good natured and compassionate.

Seconds In Apples, Peaches Can Be Used As Big Saving

By MARY MOORE

While at the market one morning I dawdled over a basket of second quality peaches. The sums in question were 35c as against 60c for firsts, but I needed them for slicing only (I'm boasting that the canning's done), so finally took the seconds which were good peaches but a little dirty.

The result was, that when a Peach Chutney recipe came through the mail, from a reader, to be tried I promptly turned that basket of peaches into chutney. Seconds in apples and peaches can be used for such products at a big saving, and since there seems to be an abundance of them owing to variable weather it is our duty....

Peach Chutney

Three quarts (after they are peeled, chopped and stoned), 5 cups vinegar, ½ cup finely chopped onion, ½ cup sugar, ¼ lb. raisins, 1 or 2 oz. mustard seed (white), 2 oz. scraped ginger root, 1 oz. sweet red peppers, 1 clove garlic (optional). Add 2 cups of vinegar to the prepared peaches and cook until soft—about 5 or 10 minutes. Add 1 cup vinegar to the onions, sugar, raisins, mustard seed, ginger root, peppers and garlic, add to peach mixture, stir well, bring to boiling point, and add remaining vinegar. Boil about 15 minutes or until of good chutney consistency. Pour into clean, hot jars and seal at once.

Apple Conserve

Two lbs. sugar, 2 quarts chopped apples, 1 cup raisins, 1 cup walnuts or blanched almonds, ½ cup vinegar, whole spices such as 1 stick of cinnamon, 1 teaspoon whole cloves, 1-inch piece root ginger or 1 teaspoon powdered ginger are variable additnons. Mix all ingredients and cook until fairly thick stirring very frequently to prevent sticking. Seal in small sterile jam jars, with 2 coats paraffin.

Green Tomato Pickle

One peck, washed, drained, sliced green tomatoes 1 tablespoon black pepper 4 cups sugar, 1 oz. whole allspice, ¼ oz. ground mustard, 1 dozen medium onions sliced, 1 oz. whole cloves, 1 oz. mustard seed, 2 quarts vinegar, ¾ cup salt. Mix the tomatoes with ½ cup salt and onion with ¼ cup salt and let stand overnight. In the morning drain. Tie the spices in bag and lower into kettle with tomatoes, add vinegar, and sugar, and let simmer slowly for 20 minutes, then pack into sterile jars and seal. Popular and economical to make.

Old-Fashioned Mustard Pickles

Two quarts small white onions, 2 quarts gherkin size or cucumbers of about 4 inches cut in inch pieces, 2 medium heads cauliflower, ½ cup salt, enough water to cover cucumbers and onions. Make a brine of the water and salt, pour over prepared onions and cucumbers and let stand overnight. In morning drain, add the cauliflower broken into flowerets, and 2 quarts weak vinegar, and cook until onions are tender enough for eating, but not soft. Make a thickener, of 1 cup flour, ½ to 1 cup sugar (depending on how sweet you like the sauce), 1 tablespoon tumeric, 4 tablespoons mustard, mixed together and moistened with 2 cups water. Add to hot mix, stirring, and cook 5 minutes longer, stirring. Seal in sterile jars.

QUESTION: I would very much appreciate some recipes for cookies, cakes, etc. using molasses and little or no sugar. Also do you have any recipes using vegetable marrow in combination with oranges? or lemons or other fruit or dried fruit in making marmalade. L. J. N.

ANSWER: The best recipes calling for molasses usually require about half the quantity of sugar too.

Soft Gingercookies

Three to 4 cups flour, ½ teaspoon salt, ¾ teaspoon cinnamon, 1 tablespoon ginger, ⅛ teaspoon nutmeg, ⅓ cup shortening, ½ cup sugar, 1 egg, 1 cup mild molasses (if strong molasses is used reduce this to ½ cup and use not more than 3 cups flour), 1 tablespoon vinegar, 2 teaspoons soda, ½ cup boiling water. Sift 3 cups flour with the salt and spices. Cream the shortening and sugar and add the egg to them. Beat all together until light. Add molasses and vinegar, then sifted dry ingredients. Lastly, add soda dissolved in boiling water. If needed add more flour to make a soft dough. Drop by teaspoons on greased cookie sheet. Sprinkle with sugar. Bake 8 to 10 minutes at 350 deg. Fahr. This makes about 50 plump, spongy cookies.

Molasses-Raisins-Nutbars

One-quarter cup butter, ⅓ cup sugar, 1 egg, ½ cup mild molasses, 2 cups flour, ¼ teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon soda, 1¼ teaspoons baking powder, ½ cup sweet milk, 1 cup chopped raisins or dates or other chopped dry fruit. Cream the butter, add sugar and beat until light. Add beaten egg, mix well, then add molasses. Sift flour with dry ingredients and add alternately with milk to first mixture. Add chopped nuts and fruit last. Spread very thinly in shallow pan. Bake in moderate oven of 350 deg. Fahr. from 10 to 12 minutes. Cut in bars 3" x 1½", and let cool.

"Best" Gingerbread

One-half cup shortening, ½ cup sugar, 1 egg beaten, 2½ cups sifted flour, 1½ teaspoons soda, 1 teaspoon each cinnamon and ginger, ½ teaspoons cloves, ½ teaspoon salt, 1 cup mild molasses, 1 cup hot water. Cream shortening and sugar. Add beaten egg. Measure and sift dry ingredients. Combine molasses and hot water. Add dry ingredients to first mixture alternately with liquid, a small amount at a time, beating until smooth after each addition. Bake in paper-lined pan 9 x 9 x 2 at 350 deg. Fahr. for 45 minutes.

Marble Cake

Two cups sifted flour, 2 teaspoons baking powder, ¼ teaspoon salt, ½ cup shortening, 1 cup sugar, 2 eggs well beaten, 2-3 cup milk, 1 teaspoon cinnamon, ½ teaspoon each cloves and nutmeg, ¼ cup mild molasses. Sift flour, baking powder and salt. Cream shortening thoroughly, add sugar gradually and cream together until light and fluffy. Add eggs, then flour, alternately with milk, a little at a time, beating until smooth. Divide batter in halves. To one part add spices and molasses. Drop by tablespoons into greased loaf pan, alternating light and dark mixtures. Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. for 1¼ hours or until cake shrinks from sides of pan. Frost with plain butter frosting.

Marrow Marmalade

Four cups chopped vegetable marrow, 4 apples, 2 oranges, 3 lemons, 4 cups sugar, 2½ cups water. Peel and chop marrow and apples. Squeeze juice from oranges and lemons and cut rind in thin shavings. Mix all ingredients but juices. Boil until of consistency to jell a little. Add juices, boil up once, seal in sterile jam jars with paraffin.

THE TEA HOUR GOSSIP . . . .

Some recipes for pies or tarts are always welcome, as nearly everyone enjoys a piece of real good pie. Good pastry is the starting point of any pie turning out just right, so today our first recipe will be one for flaky piecrust.

Flaky Piecrust

1½ cups flour, ¼ teaspoon salt, ½ cup shortening, 3 to 4 tablespoons cold water.

Sift flour and salt. Cut in the shortening with two knives. Do not mix as thoroughly as for crumbly piecrust but leave shortening in small lumps or slices. Roll lightly and bake quickly in a hot oven.

Pumpkin Chiffon Pie

1 tablespoon gelatin, ¼ cup cold water, 1½ cups cooked pumpkin, 1 cup brown sugar, 2 teaspoons cinnamon, ½ teaspoon ginger, ¼ teaspoon salt, 2 tablespoons butter, ½ cup milk, 3 eggs, separated, 2 tablespoons granulated sugar, 1 baked pastry shell. Soften gelatin in cold water for five minutes. Combine next eight ingredients with slightly beaten egg yolks in the top of a double boiler. Cook over water until thickened. Add gelatin and stir until dissolved. Cook until beginning to congeal. Beat egg whites, add sugar, and beat until stiff. Fold into pumpkin mixture. Pour into baked pastry shell and chill until firm.

Butterscotch Pie

1½ cups milk, 1 cup brown sugar, 2 tablespoons cornstarch, 2 eggs, 2 tablespoons butter, 2 tablespoons powdered sugar.

Heat one cup of milk with the sugar until the sugar is free from lumps. Mix the cornstarch, one half cup milk and egg yolks and add to the hot mixture slowly. Cook in a double boiler until thick, stirring constantly. Then continue to cook for 10 minutes longer, stirring occasionally. Remove from the fire and add butter. When cool, pour into a baked pastry shell. Cover with meringue made from the stiffly beaten whites of the eggs and the powdered sugar. Brown in slow oven.

Banana Roll

Peel bananas and cut in halves crosswise. Roll flaky piecrust ⅛ of an inch thick. Cut into small pieces. Dip each piece in ice water and wrap around half banana. Place on a baking sheet and bake in a quick oven. Serve with custard sauce.

DOROTHY DIX . . . . .

BE GOOD FRIEND TO DAUGHTER

Mother Should Shift From Being "She Who Must Be Obeyed" to Sympathetic Companion.

NO one will deny that the mother of the modern average teenage girl has to deal with the problem that for contradictions and complications has no match in the world, and if the stork had any heart when it deposited a girl baby in a cradle, it would drop with her a manual of instructions about how to run her without friction.

Unfortunately, the bird doesn't do it. It wishes the job off on Mother and that puts Mother on the spot. So how is she to meet the situation? I think her best move is to shift her attitude from motherhood to friendship. Let her quit being she-who-must-be-obeyed and make herself a sympathetic companion with whom Annabelle can talk over things.

Don't throw cold water on all her plans. Don't criticize the boys and girls of her crowd. The reason that adolescent daughters don't confide in their mothers oftener is because Mother is so frequently a spoil-sport. No girl is silly enough to tell Mother everything if she knows that Mother is going to blab her confidence to her bridge club, or say DON'T.

Adolescense One Phase in Growth

Don't take adolescence too seriously. It is just a phase of growth. Every woman has gone through with it and been boy-crazy and done things that made here parents wonder how they ever happened to be afflicted with an idiot child, yet most of them have turned out sensible wives and mothers and pillars of the church. So will Annabelle.

Don't make a scene and forbid her to use lip stick and mess up her eyes with mascaro. Take her to a beautician and have her taught how to make up properly. Don't shut the door on her boy friends. Welcome them in. That is the only way a mother can look them over and weed out the undesirables.

Don't always be telling Annabelle what a paragon you were when you were her age. She doesn't consider you as a model, but as an awful warning. She wants more pep and fun in her life than just being a stooge of propriety. And she couldn't possibly confide in a mother who had been that kind of a stick. She would think Mother didn't know anything about it.

Drive with a light hand. Remember that all adolescents are drunk on their first draught of liberty and that they resent the slightest control. Capitalize on this knowledge and don't order them about, or forbid things. Ask their help and you will get it. Laugh off the things you don't want them to do as childish, and you will work a reformation that will surprise you.

The teen-age girl is a trial for Mother. She calls for a lot of patience and love and diplomacy, but she is worth it.

Obituary

C. GUNSTONE

NORWOOD, Sept. 28—(ENS)—The funeral of Mr. C. Gunstone took place at the United Church on Tuesday afternoon.

Mr. Gunstone, who died on Sunday, came with his mother to reside in Norwood 17 years ago. Four years later he married F. Marion Barker, who survives him. Two sisters also survive—Mrs. R. Pope, of Grimsby Beach, and Mrs. N. Ruff, of Sudbury.

A step-daughter, Mrs. N. Cavers, of Belleville, and two step-sons, George Barker, of Monteal, and P. Barker and Mrs. Barker, of Cardinal, attended the funeral.

For several years Mr. Gunstone has been superintendent of the United Church Sunday School, and also a member of the Legion and the Masonic Lodge.

Rev. E. E. Pugsley officiate[...] the funeral, and a short Ma[...] service was conducted by J. J. S[...]art. The bearers were A. M. [...] M. Bailey, R. Brown, S. S. Bre[...] J. J. Stewart and E. Hamblin[...] terment was in Norwood Ceme[...]

School Board Refuses Salary Increase

After further consideration the Board of Education has rejected tht idea of raising the salaries of principals of the Public Schools, a matter which was laid over from the last meeting in the early summer. This was decided at a meeting of the committee on Appointments Thursday night, and the action was ratified by the Board at a meeting immediately following.

Considerable discussion ensued and in order to bring matters to a head it was finally moved by G. W. Craw that the maximum of the Public School Principals salaries be increased to $3,100 a year.

When it was put to a vote Mr. Craw, D. V. Canning and Mrs. R. Parnall voted for it and Fred Reed and Dr. C. M. Scott opposed it. T. J. Carley, chairman, exercised his right to vote and failed to support the motion which was nullified.

Wage Rate Good

Before a vote was taken the committee studied comparative reports of 18 other cities in the province of Ontario, showing their wage scales for different types of teachers. It was the opinion of the members that Peterborough was well in advance of nearly all places the same size and in some cases compared favorably with larger centres.

Mr. Canning said that he felt the public school principals should get as much as Department Heads in the Collegiate, since they were carrying increased responsibility. He admitted that some of them did not possess the same qualifications as at the Collegiate, but declared their responsibility was greater.

Mr. Craw supported Mr. Canning. He suggested some consideration might be given those teachers who held extra degrees.

"Some on the Collegiate staff are getting $3,200 a year and I feel it is only fair to see that those giving equal service are treated in the same way," Mr. Canning protested.

Pay Too Much

"For every city of the same size, we seem to be out of our class in the amounts we pay. If we are paying too large salaries at the Collegiate, the matter cannot be rectified by bringing up the Public School salaries," Mr. Carley remarked.

"I think we should leave comparisons alone. I can't see any connection," Dr. Scott said.

"There certainly is. Why pay one man $3,200 and another doing just as important work, less?" shot back Mr. Canning. "I'm not worried about degrees, but about the amount of work. For example at Prince of Wales School there are 20 rooms for which the principal is responsible. I can't see how that compares with a department head in mathematics who works about five hours a day.

"But the principal is not teaching all that time. When he is out of the class room doing administrative work, he can't be doing both, so it shouldn't be so hard," Mr. Carley added.

In proposing his motion, Mr. Craw explained that he was doing so because assistants at the Collegiate were in the $3,000 bracket and that in the public schools there were now more class rooms, a lot more work, since the public school population has risen from 2,900 to 3,500 in the last few years. He remarked that the Collegiate work had not increased to the same extent.

Salary Increase

Inspector Keith Wightman suggested that since Miss Constance Wagar, part-time art teacher had a 25 per cent increase in teaching time this year because of the greater number of pupils, she be given a raise in salary in keeping with the duties she is now discharging.

Up till now, she has taught four half-days a week. She is now working five, and instead of having 74 class rooms, she has 92. The Inspector also mentioned that it was a long time since she had received any adjustment of salary.

It was pointed out by Mr. Craw that Miss Wagar held special classes after school for those pupils interested in art, and was voluntarily donating her time to help the children along. Mr. Carley said that her extra work showed that she was really interested in the pupils and he thought she ought to be encouraged.

It was moved by Mr. Canning and Mr. Reed that Miss Wagar be paid $1,300.

Two of the teachers who have been off since the beginning of September and who were expected to be back by October 1 will be off another month, Inspector Wightman reported. He suggested that Mrs. D. Brotherston and Mrs. I. Telford, who have been supplying, should be paid on a monthly basis, since they would be working for a period of two months.

It was moved that Mrs. Brotherston and Mrs. Telford be placed on a monthly salary basis for the length of time they were doing supply work at $125 a month salary.

New Teacher Is Named To PCVS Staff

In a mood to check expenditures, the Committee Appointments of the Board of Education had a stormy session Thursday night when C. S. Browne, principal of the Collegiate, requested the hiring of an additional teacher. His request was only acceded to when he positively declared that it would be impossible to carry on without harming the scholastic training of many of the students.

It was moved by . Wilson Craw and Dr. C. M. Scott, that Mrs. G. C. Tollington, formerly Mildred Brown who taught on the Collegiate staff, be appointed at a salary of $2,000 till June. This was carried.

After Mr. Browne outlined Mrs. Tollington's qualifications, D. V. Canning interrupted to say that he was not satisfied at the need of another teacher. He said that there were 32 classes and 38 teachers and he couldn't see why they needed an addition to the staff.

The principal explained that principally in the Vocational school the classes had to be divided since only a small class could be accommodated in the shops and for sewing and cooking. Where in ordinary subjects only one teacher would be used, this way, it might take as many as four. On several days it had been found that no extra teachers were available. In addition the staff has a considerable number of supervised study periods to handle. Mr. Browne continued by saying it was absolutely impossible to make up a schedule without another teacher.

Carrying On

"Why not? You're managing now, Mr. Canning interrupted.

"This has been going on for a month, and the school has been able to operate," interjected Fred Reed.

"It can be done, but it is very difficult. We must do what is best for the students. Education for democracy is not done entirely in the class room. You have talked about time in the performance of duty tonight, but department heads are often there until 6 o'clock, particularly those in history, mathematics and science. The extra curricular activities take a lot of time, and who is to say these are not more valuable than lessons in theoretical geometry. Teachers who have an average of two absolutely free periods a week have not enough time to take care of all the administrative duties connected with these extra activities. A program might be arranged using them, in full time duties, but I doubt if we would gain.

"In order to preserve harmony and see that the students are given the best attention, I feel that the Board should sanction another teacher on the staff in a temporary position to bridge the gap until the teachers overseas are back."

Still Understaffed

"You were given three full time teachers and a part time one in June, and now you want another," Mr. Canning remarked.

"We are still understaffed, compared with pre-war times," Mr. Browne replied. "We have now 1025 pupils and 38 teachers, and our 1939 peak was 1,130 students and 41 teachers.

Mr. Canning and Mr. Reed declared they both felt that with the number of "free periods" the staff had, another teacher was unnecessary. Even taking out the number of periods needed in teaching another Grade 9 form, there would still be 31 left over they said.

Lead to Failure

"Do you feel that for lack of a teacher that any of the children will be held over another year because of failure?" Mrs. R. Parnall queried.

"That is quite possible. An efficient teacher can handle 37 in a class, but it is difficult with 44, Mr. Browne replied.

The principal explained that this was true, particularly in the case of the mathematics teachers, who were badly overburdened with 44 and 43 teaching periods. He pointed out that those who had less than others, usually were engaged in furthering some other school activity. As an example he cited one teacher who was responsible for keeping up the list of boys on active service, for such things as Christmas boxes, and that it had now grown to more than 1,000 names.

When Mr. Browne remained emphatic about the necessity for another teacher, Mr. Canning declared that if the principal said it was impossible to manage, he would have to withhold his objections and approve the hiring of another teacher.

This motion was passed by the members at a brief Board meeting following the committee's session.

40 Hours' Devotions End At Sacred Heart

MARMORA, Sept. 28 — (ENS) — The forty hours' devotions continued Monday at Sacred Heart Church with a large attendance. An inspiring sermon was delivered by Rev. Father Carley, Trenton. The devotions also consisted of the Rosary and Benediction of the Blessed Sacrament. Assisting in the sanctuary were Rev. Father McCabe of Picton, Rev. F. D. Hyland, P.P., of Madoc, and Rev. W. F. Terrion, P.P., of Howe Island.

The devotions closed Tuesday evening with the Rosary, procession of the Blessed Sacrament, an instructive sermon by Rev. H. J. Farrell and benediction.

PURPOSES OF RUFFING

YOU USUALLY ruff a trick in the dummy, when you are the declarer, for the purpose of getting rid of a losing card in some other suit. There are times, however, when ruffing is done with a different object in view. One of these can be elimination of cards in preparation for a lead-throwing end-play. Another is the canceling of high cards held by the defenders, to set up your own length. A very vital purpose is gaining entry to the dummy for a finesse, to play high cards there and get discards, and for any other reason why you require an entry.

West got the high 8 from East on his heart K lead, so repeated with the 10, which East overtook with the A, so he could fire back his spade 5.

South took a quick look at that card, counted up and saw that nine trumps were on his side, and played the Q. He had learned that, when four trumps are out against you, the best chance to catch a K is by finessing. This time was the exception, however. The finesse did not work. West won with the K and returned the spade 2. Now the dummy was deader than a doornail. South had no way to get rid of his two low clubs, so lost two tricks in that suit at the end and was down two.

Not very intense study should have been required for South to see that the trump finesse was unimportant to him, but that getting rid of his clubs was vital. Had he reckoned thus, his course was to use his A on the spade lead from East, then take two club tops and ruff a club in dummy with the one remaining trump there. That would have enabled him to use a diamond for discard of his last club, making his contract safe.

WMS Requested For More Money

BETHANY, Sept. 28—(ENS)—The September meeting of the Evening Auxiliary of the W.M.S. was held in the basement of the church Tuesday evening.

Mrs. C. Rowan read a letter from Mrs. B. W. McLennan, Christian Stewardship and Finance secretary, telling of the urgent need of more money throughout the Dominion this year. The abnormal cost of maintenance in China, Africa and India is so great, that members are requested to add 15 cents to every dollar of the 1943 gift. Watchtower Herald's responded as follows: Mrs. Henderson, China; Mrs. Porteous, Africa. Mrs. Jakeman read the scripture lesson taken from John, 15th chapter. Mrs. Jackson gave a report of summer school held at Ladies' College, Whitby. Missionaries, representing different mission fields, were there to address the delegates; two Japanese girls spoke about the Government evacuating the Japanese Canadians. These young people feel that they are Canadians in every sense of the term and should be treated as such, Mrs. Jackson reported. The need for more missionaries is greater than ever before and the fact was stressed that if more money had been spent in this way, there would have been less need of war equipment and loss of life. Mrs. Jackson then gave a brief introduction of the new study book, "West of the Date Line."

Personals

Canadian Major To Be Cashiered

LONDON, Sept. 28—(CP-Reuter)—Maj. J. T. McLoughlin, 42, of Winnipeg, commanding officer of a Canadian General pioneer company, is to be cashiered, it was announced today.

He was court-martialed at Bordon, England, September 13. Sentence now has been confirmed and promulgated.

He was found guilty of an improper reference to the King in a sergeants' mess, one charge of drunkenness, of improperly consuming liquor in the kitchen of the sergeants' mess in the presence of an A.T.S. sergeant, and of threatening to commit suicide.

In the charge of making an improper reference to the King, McLoughlin is alleged to have stood in front of the King's picture and said, "I have no time for that guy or his wife. Eddie my type of guy."

"Eddie" is a popular term for the Duke of Windsor, the former King who abdicated to marry Mrs. Wallis Simpson.

Maj. McLoughlin rose from the ranks and was due to retire on pension in a few months' time after 20 years' service with the Canadian Permanent Army.

Grove Students Start 65th Rugby Season

The thirteenth of this month was the opening day of the sixty-fifth rugby (Fall) term for the Grove, Lakefield. Since this noted school was founded in 1879, it has attracted boys even from places still considered far by air travel. At present there are some who have come from British Guiana, Venezuela, Costa Rica, Cuba, the Bahamas, the United States, the North West Territories, the Jersey Islands and England—names that take the mind to three continents. Ten of the English students who attended returned in the spring and summer to their homes and last June fifteen other lads were graduated. Consequently, the number of new boys is unusually high, thirty-three in all, to make the total enrolment one hundred and ten, eight more than a year ago.

Tom Crawford Home.

Of the staff, Mr. Thomas Crawford, the housemaster, left in Easter to become a lieutenant in the American navy. He returned last Wednesday to make a brief but welcome visit and then flew back to New York in order to resume his duties. Mr. Watson, the artmaster, is relinguishing his post at the end of September. He has been given two important commissions in church decoration at Toronto, which will undoubtedly start him on a career in that profession.

Though the loss of these two men was a misfortune for the Grove, there is great satisfaction in the return, after his long illness, of Mr. Elsdell, the celebrated singer and composer, to his work as organist and music master and of Mr. Stanley Rickard, absent nearly two years at London as a meteorologist for the Air Force, to the leadership of the chemistry department. Besides, two new masters have been added to the staff. One, Rev. Canon Shepherd, will shortly bring to the Grove his rich and unusual experience as the head of a mission school for Eskimo children at Aklavik, North West Territories.

New Staff House.

The Rev. Mr. Ellis, a man who has travelled widely through the world, left his parish of Cacoona, Quebec, to teach in the Junior School. All this indicated increase in the number of residents in the old quarters makes even more necessary the new staff house that is now being built just to the north of the infirmary. The Grove still flourishes and its is fully anticipated, will enjoy another very successful year.

Already the time, honoured, extra-curricular activities have begun. On the twentieth the school and some of its friends took the "Islinda" to Indian Creek for the annual "up-the lake" picnic and on Monday, the twenty-fifth, the first of the Seaforth races, traditional Grove events, was held. Thanksgiving will bring the yearly Sports Day. The Sea Cadet Corps has been parading for some time. The football teams show real promise of a winning season and typify the zest and determination of The Grove boys to have a worthy excellent year.

Keene United Church Has Rally Day Service

KEENE, Sept. 28—(ENS)—Rally Day was held Sunday at Keene United Church when there was a large attendance at Sunday School and Church. A special program was presided over by D. D. Edwards, with several from the different classes taking part. The theme was "A Christian is Different." Next Sunday will be promotion day.

At the church service the sacrament of baptism was observed when seven infants were presented for this dedication cermony. The topic of the sermon was "Like a mighty army move the Church of God," based on the text Acts 20-28. Rev. George Murray eulogized the splendid work done by the officers and teachers of the Sunday School and the different organizations of the church. It is in these activities that the church is being educated, trained and inspired for the worship, service and demands of Christian faith. The teaching of the Bible must ever have its first place and prayer the second, in the life and service of the church. Referring to the teaching of the Bible in our Public schools, Mr. Murray said it was a forward move which would be very much helped when parents read the Bible in their homes with the children. The teaching of the Bible has always played an important part in the life of a nation.

"We have an insidious foe to fight against these days but it is a great thing to belong to a victorious army—the Church of God moves forward. We need more of our people rejoicing in what has been accomplished by the Church of Christ whose power and influence is very much in evidence today."

ALLIED TROOPS SIGHT BELFORT GAP

British 8th Enters Heavy Battle

American Forces Capture 3 Important Heights

ROME, Sept. 29—(CP)—British 8th Army troops have run into severe opposition in the Adriatic sector of the Italian front, with the enemy launching a series of fresh counter-attacks in the Rubicon river area, today's Allied communique reported.

American troops of the Allied 5th Army have captured Mount Battaglia, 11 miles from Imola, important Po Valley city of the Bologna-Rimini highway.

The Americans also seized three key heights commanding the direct route north to Bologna.

Eighth Army forces made gains in the southeastern edges of the Po Valley. The enemy has dug in along strong defence lines that parallel the Fiumcino river, the first major water barrier encountered since the break-through into level country, and is fighting savagely.

New Zealand troops fighting with the Canadians met strong resistance along a line 1,000 yards east of the Fiumcino river from the coastal town of Gatteo southwest to Savignano, where a fierce battle raged. The advance represented a two-mile gain from Bellaria.

The Canadians hammered the enemy out of the village of San Mauro di Romagna, eight miles northwest of Rimini and a little over a mile east of the Fiumcino river. Leading elements established a small bridgehead across the stream.

The 8th Army reported 9,000 prisoners captured in the current offensive in the Adriatic sector, in addition to the seizure of 73 armored vehicles and 43 anti-tank guns.

Allied headquarters gave no specific information on gains on the west flank of the 5th Army, where the Brazilians have been keeping a steady pace, but said "important advances have been made" and "the entire Gothic Zone has now been penetrated with the exception of a small area of the west coast."

Allies Discover Hun Weapon

SOMEWHERE IN FRANCE, Sept. 23 (Delayed)—(AP)—A 14-ton projectile with an explosive radius of 3 kilometres—almost two miles—is scheduled as the third in Hitler's series of vengeance weapons, it was learned today.

V-1 is the robot bomb launched from a platform.

V-2 is the long-range rocket fired from a carrier plane, for which the Germans are reported using the Heinkel III.

V-3, so far as is known here, has not yet been used against either Britain or the attacking Allied armies.

(This dispatch, written last Saturday and only today cleared through Allied censorship, did not expand upon the "explosive radius" of V-3. However, the implication was that its power to wreck or damage buildings extended almost two miles from the point of impact.)

Information on the "V-3," the successor to Hitler's flying bomb and long-range rocket, was obtained by American 3rd Army troops in their drive into Germany.

This information disclosed the projectile is just short of 60 feet in length, is five feet, five inches in diameter and weighs 14 tons at the take-off. Propelled by a mixture of liquid air and alcohol, it is shot into the air vertically, then is controlled by radio.

Germans Realize Defeat Make Plans For Third War

By JAMES F. KING—Associated Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Sept. 29—(AP).—Clearer picture of what to expect from a beaten Germany is slowly emerging here and the British Government has given credence to two of the most widely-circulated rumors in neutral capitals:

1. That the German general staff realizes Germany has lost this war and is preparing for a third great war;

2. That Hitler and his Nazis are serious in their threats never to surrender and are ready to wage guerilla warfare even after the German army is broken.

In a remark full of implications, Prime Minister Churchill yesterday revealed that there may never be a formal surrender from any representative group within Germany even after the country has been conquered and occupied.

For months reports have reached this capital of how the Nazis are laying away stores to fight in the hills even after the Wehrmacht has been smashed.

Will Fight To Last.

In the first official Allied comment on these reports, Mr. Churchill indicated there may be some truth to them asserting there was a possibility that "after organized resistance of the German state and army is completely broken fierce warfare may be maintained in the forests and mountains of Germany by numbers of desperate men conscious of their own guilt and impending doom."

There is no precedent in modern times for a major war ending without an armistice but the fanaticism of Hitler and his most rabid followers have long suggested they would try to carry on guerilla warfare from the hills of Bavaria or from Austria and at the same time maintain an underground throughout the country to terrorize the Allied army of occupation.

Mr. Churchill's revelations came only a day after Lord Cranborne, Government spokesman in the House

Calais Likely To Fall Soon

By WILLIAM STEWART
Canadian Press War Correspondent

WITH THE CANADIANS OUTSIDE CALAIS, Sept. 29—(CP Cable)—Canadian troops, who had fought their way up to the outskirts of Calais from the west and southwest, paused today while other Canadian infantry delivered an attack on Cap Gris Nez with its three main forts and cross-channel gun positions.

The Gris Nez assault came at first light this morning, following an attack last night by heavy bombers.

Maritime and Ontario troops are carrying out the assault while the forces attacking Calais have temporarily stopped their advance upon a German garrison—minus 2,000 prisoners—hemmed in on three sides.

The enemy commander is believed to be a naval officer making his headquarters in Fort Harringzelles, about 1,000 yards south of the Cape itself.

Here there are four cross-channel guns. One is believed knocked out, a second possibly is knocked out,

Meeting With Stalin Set For December

LONDON, Sept. 29 — (CP-Reuter). — The meeting between Prime Minister Churchill, President Roosevelt, and Marshal Stalin is planned to take place some time in December and may be at Turin, Wilson Broadbent, Daily Mail diplomatic correspondent said to-day.

Alternative places are, however, under consideration, though final arrangements cannot be made until after the Presidential election, he said.

Both Mr. Churchill and Mr. Roosevelt had hoped to have meeting with Marshal Stalin this month, the writer said, and two places other than Quebec were proposel to the Russian leader.

Argentine Bars Criminals

Britain Assured No Haven Allowed

BUENOS AIRES, Sept. 29.—(AP). The Argentine government has informed Great Britain that Argentina will bar entrance of war criminals and will prohibit them from depositing funds or acquiring property here, the foreign office announced last night.

(State Secretary Hull declared in Washington yesterday that neutral nations had been warned they would lose American friendship "for years to come" if they gave sanctuary to Hitler or other Axis leaders after the war.

(Asked about Argentina, Mr. Hull commented he would not go beyond his recent statement that the Argentina position needed confirmation and clarification.)

The foreign office said the Argentine government had instructed its ambassador in London Sept. 23 to deliver a verbal message to the British foreign office on the matter and this had been done Sept. 26.

"Some publications in Britain as well as other countries apparently are engaged in trying to establish the possibility that Axis leaders may seek refuge in the Argentine republic," said the foreign office. "It is illogical to believe that such commentaries are accepted in usually well-informed quarters."

Reds Launch 3 Armies At Hungary

Pressing Forward On 100-Mile Arc From Romania

By DANIEL DE LUCE
Associated Press War Correspondent

MOSCOW, Sept. 29—(AP). — The Red Army's three-way offensive against Hungary from Romania and Yugoslavia developed swiftly today while rumors of peace feelers by the Budapest government indicated Germany's last important satellite may be on the verge of deserting.

Hungary's defensive position was dark as strong Russian forces, pressing forward in a 100-mile arc on the Romanian-Hungarian frontier, increased their mountain salient and utilized Marshal Tito's permission to cross Yugoslav territory and strike the Hungarians and Germans from the south.

The Russian war bulletin disclosed that Soviet troops had fought their way into Lupkow Pass leading from Poland into Czechoslovakia, taking Vydran, a Czechoslovak rail station nearly three miles inside the frontier.

(The American broadcasting station in Europe, quoting the Turkish radio, said last night the Hungarian Premier was reported to have asked the Turkish Ambassador in Budapest to learn Allied peace terms, and to act as an intermediary in preliminary negotiations for Hungary's exit from the Axis.

(Enemy reports asserted Marshal Rodion Y. Malinovsky, commanding combined Russian and Romanian forces, was using 30 divisions, or upwards of 300,000 men, in an offensive that reached to within 15 miles of Szeged, Hungary's second city, and within 102 miles of Budapest.

Near Belgrade.

(A Free Yugoslav broadcast heard by Reuter News Agency said Marshal Tito's Partisans had reached the outskirts of Belgrade, the Yugoslav capital. Berlin reports said earlier Russian troops had crossed from Romania into Yugoslavia at a point east of Belgrade.)

In the north Russian forces converging on the Latvian port of Riga captured 50 localities, including Lode, 31 miles northeast of Riga. In Estonia 200 localities were taken by Marshal Leonid A. Govorov's forces, including the port of Virtsu on the west coast.

New Crossing Made On Danube

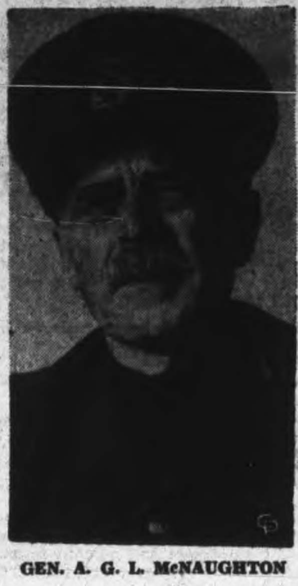
LONDON, Sept. 29—(CP)— The German news agency D.N.B. said today that the Red Army has made a new crossing of the Danube river south of the Iron Gate on the Romanian-Yugoslav border seven miles west of Russian-held Turnu Severin.

The German communique asserted that two regiments of Russians who burst across the Danube west of the Iron Gate of Orsova, invading Yugoslavia, had been smashed.

In Transylvania, the Germans said they "detached themselves to the Mures River sector without any enemy pressure," giving up Neumark.

The communique declared that more than 100 Soviet infantry divisions plus "numerous tank and mobile formations"—a total of perhaps 1,500,000 men—were attacking in the Baltic states east of Riga attempting to frustrate German "detaching movements." Nazi naval units were said to have shelled the east coast of the Bay of Riga. The enemy said more than 1,000 Soviet tanks and 698 planes were destroyed in two weeks of "this hard defensive battle."

German recapture of Banja Luka in Central Croatia was claimed by the communique.



GEN. A. G. L. McNAUGHTON

McNaughton Retires; Full General

By JACK BRAYLEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA, Sept. 29.—(CP).—The second General in Canadian army history—soldierly and scholarly A. G. L. McNaughton—characteristically was spending this first day of retirement from the army in an inspection of a war plant he had a hand in developing, leaving the question of his future employment unanswered.

An announcement last night by Defence Minister Ralston told of the General's promotion and his retirement and spoke of his natural desire "to make plans for the future."

In an exchange of letters the General spoke of the time having arrived when he should be free to give his attention "to other matters." And Col. Ralston replied that in recent talks he had noted the General's eagerness "to make plans for active work again."

But nowhere was mentioned the civilian post to which General McNaughton will eventually go. It was learned on good authority, however, that for the present at least, the General will not return to his pre-war post as president of the National Research Council. It was known that the General desires a post of public service.

If he is not returning to the Research Council, which still list him on official records as "president, on

House Problem Hits Cities Federal Aid Likely Soon

OTTAWA, Sept. 29 — (CP). — Spokesmen for cities in which families face eviction are being advised to seek provincial legislation to give the protection desired, with the assurance the Dominion will make the provisions effective on a temporary basis, Finance Department spokesmen said to-day.

Representations have been made to Finance Minister Ilsley by Toronto, Vancouver, and Victoria officials who say a serious situation has developed in their communities with some families homeless now and others likely to be displaced on September 30.

With extensive housing regulations for the protection of tenants already in effect. Federal officials said that the additional action considered necessary should be taken by the provinces.

The Dominion was prepared to make such provincial legislation effective immediately by Order-in-Council pending approval by the Legislature.

Officials said such an arrangement could be made with Ontario, although no proposals have yet been received from the Ontario Government.

600 Families Hit.

(C. S. Jackson, acting for the United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers of America (C.I.O.) yesterday sent a telegram to Premier Drew of Ontario asking immediate application to Ottawa for authority to stay evictions. The wire said about 600 soldiers families in Toronto require top priority on homes.

(Controller Balfour of Toronto told a delegation of citizens facing eviction yesterday that he had been informed by Finance Minister Ilsley that the Dominion did not want to invade the provincial field and that provincial authorities should request Ottawa to prevent evictions, with the Dominion granting authority on a temporary basis.

(In London, Ont., housing committee officials said about 140 families have received notice to vacate their present homes within the next week).

Prices board authorities on rental regulations said there appeared to be some misunderstanding as to the difference between a notice to vacate and eviction proceedings.

The regulations set forth that no notice to vacate may require a tenant to leave his home during the cold weather months from Oct. 1 to April 29.

But a landlord might have given his tenant proper notice to vacate the premises by Sept. 30. If his notice is not obeyed, the landlord may proceed with eviction under the law and it may take place at any time.

Officials said it was evident that persons now facing eviction had received notice to leave the dwellings by Sept. 30 at the latest, otherwise they would have the protection of the "cold weather" clause.

LONDON, Sept. 29 (AP)—Two American armies on the southern end of the Allied front advanced to within sight of the famous Belfort Pass today as the British 2nd Army to the north closed up to the Maas (Meuse) in Holland on a 20-mile front from two to three miles from the German border. Along the Channel the Canadians overran the last of the big German cross-Channel guns which had boomed at Britain from Cap Gris Nez for four years, and attacked anew at Calais after a 10 hour overnight lull in which the German commander asked for an armistice to receive surrender terms. He was told that only his unconditional surrender would be received, and the battle was resumed. Other Canadian troops, fighting at the south of 200,000 threatened Germans in Holland, advanced between two and three miles across the Turnhout Canal near the village of Oostbrecat, it was announced.

The U.S. 3rd and 7th Armies worked forward to within 20 to 25 miles of the four main passes through the Vosges mountains—looking across the Rhine into Germany. Fighting off repeated counter-attacks through a chill drizzle, the Americans marked up advances of three to five miles—the deepest gains of any on an Allied front bristling with menacing offensives.

The 3rd Army men alone knocked out 82 tanks yesterday in the advance. Eight or 10 villages were captured by the two armies, and Belfort, at the entrance to the strategic gap, was only 11 miles away.

British 2nd Army and parachute forces meanwhile moved in from the Nijmegen corridor in a bulging movement south of Kleve and beat off three counter-attacks from the Reichswald, the forest concentration centre just below that Siegfried anchor.

The U.S. 1st Army, on the middle reaches between British forces on the left wing and the U.S. 3rd Army, pushed the line of assault up to the German frontier in yet another sector, capturing Remich in Luxembourg.

Remich is on the Moselle boundary between Luxembourg and Germany, 11 miles southeast of the city of Luxembourg and 20 miles southwest of the German city of Trier.

There was no word from the 1st Army's salient through the Hurtgen Forest, 14 miles southeast of besieged Aachen, in the push toward the Rhine at Cologne. There the biggest Allied guns—10-inchers—have been duelling with German batteries and knocking at strategic targets.

Ripe To Topple

Two Channel strongholds—at Calais and Cap Gris Nez—appeared ripe to topple into Canadian hands today. At first light an all-out assault was launched on the Cap Gris Nez fortifications while troops besieging Calais and hemming its garrison in upon three sides stood by temporarily.

It was reported the Canadians had offered the German commander at Calais surrender terms which expires at 10 a.m., today (Calais time) but the hour had passed without their acceptance. Some believed his supposed consideration of the terms was merely a play for time.

Athabaskan Survivors Home Liberated In Allied Push

OTTAWA, Sept. 29—(CP).. — Five crewmen who survived the May 29 sinking of the destroyer Athabaskan in pre-invasion patrol in the English Channel have told how the Canadian ship was hit by a torpedo, how they were taken prisoners and how they were delivered by Allied invading armies. A naval release today tells of the experiences of the five Canadians: Surg.-Lieut. James Fyfe of Crystal City, Man.; Chief PO. William Mitchell, Vancouver; Stoker John Dolan, Montreal; AB. Edward McCloy, Hamilton, Ont., and OS. Raymond Moar, Chatham, N.B.

The five, with 30 other Athabaskan personnel, were plucked out of the water by German naval craft and taken to a Brest hospital. They were in Brest from May 29 to June 11 when they were removed to a French hospital at Orleans. On June 11, 22 who had recovered, were sent to German prison camps while the other five were liberated by the Allies August 16.

Use 7300 Planes In Four Days

LONDON, Sept. 29 —(CP)—Allied airpower maintained today a non-stop aerial invasion of Germany which has blasted Nazi war industry with bombs and bullets from some 7,300 planes and crews totalling 45,000 men in the past four days.

The round-the-clock air offensive was carried on by waves of planes which streamed across the Channel in daylight after R.A.F. Mosquitoes returned from moonlight attacks on Brunswick and enemy airfields deep in central Germany. One plane is missing.

The German radio reported this morning that "weak" formations of bombers were over the Reich for the fifth consecutive day.

Armadas of more than 1,000 Fortresses and Liberators, with an average daily escort of 700 fighters, have been over Germany every day since Monday, when 2,000 planes launched a new campaign to smash railroad centres and war plants feeding the German army.

Losses from Monday through Thursday were 110 heavy bombers, each carrying 10 men, and 25 one-

Gloom Pervades Chinese Armies

CHUNGKING, Sept. 29—(AP)—Recent Chinese defeats and the possibility that the American 14th Air Force may lose additional bases in China produced an atmopshere of gloom today in this capital unmatched since the dark days when China was fighting alone.

The prestige of the Chinese Central Government has been harmed. This is important not only with respect to relations between the Chinese and their Allies but because the reverses resulted in the Central Government losing a certain amount of face in dealings with the Communists in the north.

Maj.-Gen. Chennault has lost several major and minor airdromes, from which he was able to harass Japanese forces in China and damage shipping along the coast, as well as easy access to other air fields.

The loss of the three remaining forward bases at Kweilin, Tanchuk and Liuchow is possiblew ithin a short period.

200 Jap Ships Sunk In Week

PEARL HARBOR, Sept. 29 — (AP). — The U.S. Navy disclosed yesterday Admiral William F. Halsey's marauding 3rd fleet swung its air arm Saturday at the Philippines to obliterate puny air opposition of seven Japanese interceptors and bag 29 more on central Philippines airfields to raise its seven-day toll to 1,014 enemy aircraft.

It sank 22 ships, including four warships, to raise the seven-day toll to at least 160.

It damaged 43 more, including two warships, probably sinking 15 of that number and destroyed or damaged 20 to 30 small craft, raising the seven-day toll of enemy surface craft probably sunk or damaged to more than 200.

Robot-Laden Planes Downed In North Sea

LONDON, Sept. 29—(CP)—Just before dawn today the Germans loosed another flurry of flying bombs against London and the southern counties.

The Air Ministry announced that British fighters had knocked down over the North Sea two German planes carrying robot bombs. The Nazis have been reported launching robots from planes since losing most of their flying bomb bases along the continental coast.

Col. Ralston Goes To Italy

Plans Complete Tour Of Battle Areas

WITH THE CANADIANS ON THE ADRIATIC FRONT, Sept. 29—(CP Cable)—Col. J. L. Ralston, Canadian defence minister, has arrived here to visit Canadian troops in action after a flight from New York.

En route to this front Col. Ralston stopped at Lt.-Gen. Wilson's Headquarters and had a talk with the Allied Mediterranean commander-in-chief.

The defence minister was lunching at one bridgade headquarters yesterday when shells fell nearby.

He is here to make a tour of hospitals, base areas, headquarters and units and will endeavor to meet as many soldiers as possible.

When he stopped at a forward reinforcement battalion the minister became involved for more than an hour in a question bee.

The troops, mostly veterans ready to return to the line, kept gathering until nearly 600 were firing questions at him about discharge, zombies, beer, the Japanese war and other subjects.

Col. Ralston answered all the questions and when he left was loudly applauded by the men.

Albania Push Minor Allied Move

Progress Made Uniting Greek Partisans

By J. M. ROBERTS, Jr.
Associated Press War Analyst

It is clear now that Allied operations in Albania are minor, airborne and commando units having been landed to help plug any gaps through which enemy forces fleeing Greece might escape to Northern Italy or through the loosely-held Yugoslav Partisan territory to Austria.

It is doubtful that the Western Allies plan any major action in the Balkan area, leaving it instead to Russia and Partisan forces.

The intensity of Allied interests in the situation, however, is indicated in the announcement of an Allied over-all command for Greek Partisan forces which not so long ago were fighting among themselves.

One of the headaches which the Greek government in exile was unable to solve in recent unity conferences was the matter of command. The Elas army of the Leftist E.A.M. which has claimed control of a large portion of Greece, insisted that other Partisans, including the Edes which also had been very active against the Germans, should come under Elas command. This was refused.

Win Approval

Now, apparently, the Allies have stepped in to take over the whole show, probably with the approval of both sides.

The Elas are reported to have some 25,000 men. Edes and other Partisan groups have a few thousand. Progress has been made in arming them, but they probably can't approach the efficiency of the French Forces of Liberation. Nevertheless, with some Albanian and Allied help, they shouldn't have too much trouble clearing up the isolated Germans, of whom there may be 25,000 but who are accustomed to fit into a regular army supply system and probably helpless without it.

Another little-known Partisan outfit from which we may hear more soon is the Russian-sponsored P.N.O.F. (People's National Liberation Front) in Bulgaria. They may become particularly active in clearing from Yugoslavia the Bulgarian Army forces sent there last spring to relieve German units for duty against Russia.

The main job against Germany, of course, is to be done by the Allies in the west and Russian forces from Poland. But a southeastern front is rapidly being developed which may prove, in the long run, more important than the Italian campaign in the actual battle for Germany.

Soldiers Get Fine Treatment

TORONTO, Sept. 29.— (CP). — Canadian servicemen overseas "receive the very best treatment available to any fighting force in the whole world," Premier Drew of Ontario said last night in a broadcast over a provincial network of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation.

Reviewing his recent trip overseas, Mr. Drew told of leaving Toronto Aug. 26 and visiting R.C.A.F. men in Labrador, Greenland and Iceland before arriving in London.

While in the British capital he officiated at the opening of Ontario House, visiting hospitals for Canadian wounded in action and later went to France where he saw Canadians in action.

My primary purpose in going to Britain," he said, "was to establish a more effective arrangement for assuring the young men and women from Ontario every advantage of the rehabilitation, and if necessary hospitalization, which is available."

He said the government discovered that the service men and women returning to their homes here had no idea of the rehabilitation opportunities open to them and "it became absolutely necessary to make our own arrangements in London."

"Since I have returned, we have set up two new instructional centres" and also have established special classes for those desiring to take university courses but who need further instruction to give them the necessary matriculation standard.

Ontario, he said, has the most advanced rehabilitation organization in Canada.

Murder Count At Hamilton Reduced To Manslaughter

HAMILTON, Sept. 29—(CP)—Alfred Douglas Dunsmoor of Hamilton, who confessed to starting five fires in this city, is being held in custody today pending sentence by Mr. Justice J. A. Hope on a charge of manslaughter in the death of Mrs. Dorothy Martin, 33, one of 10 victims of the Moose Hall blaze here last May 23.

The 25-year-old former employee of the Royal Oak Dairy originally had been charged specifically with Mrs. Martin's murder but it was reduced by an Ontario Supreme Court jury last night when they returned a verdict of manslaughter, bringing to a close the three-day trial. The jurors deliberated three hours.

A statement police said Dunsmoor had given to them voluntarily during investigation of the fire was entered in evidence at the trial. The statement said he put a match to a piece of burlap in the cloakroom of the hall while more than 70 employees of the dairy were attending a dance.

Mrs. Martin was found dead by firemen sitting in a chair on the dance floor. Nine of the other 40 burned and injured died later in hospital.

During the trial four psychiatrists testified to the mental condition of Dunsmoor and in an hour-long charge to the jury Mr. Justice Hope confined his remarks mainly to this evidence.

"In his (Dunsmoor's) statements regarding the fire there is never any suggestion in the narrative of a mental lapse. He remembers perfectly what he did," said the justice.

He stated that the Criminal Code provides that no one will be convicted on an offence while laboring under the natural disease of imbecilibility to such a degree as to render him incapable of knowing it was wrong.

Up To Jury

"It's up to the jury," he continued "to decide from the evidence whether the accused's mind was such as to render him incapable of knowing the nature or quality of his act and knowing it was wrong."

There were three possible verdicts they could return—guilty of murder, guilty of manslaughter, or acquittal because of insanity.

Mr. Justice Hope said "if you find that he knew or ought to have known his act would cause death, then you should return a verdict of murder. If, however, you believe he did not know death would result from his act for any other reason than insanity, then it is manslaughter."

In summing up his evidence, Defence Counsel E. D. Hickey said "there was no motive for murder, no intention on the part of accused to harm any named individual."

"I say frankly that Douglas Dunsmoor committed a crime on the night of May 23. That crime was certainly arson . . . but . . . the accused's state of mind at that time of the fire was such that he was not responsible for the consequence of his actions."

Crown Attorney Harvey McCullough said "much has been said about the accused's state of mind, but we might say that every criminal would not be a criminal if he was normal."

Dunsmoor will be sentenced at the conclusion of the Fall Assizes.

Hanover, Hamburg Deserted Cities

TORONTO, Sept. 29 — (CP) — A party of six repatriated prisoners of war and two civilians who returned on the exchange ship Gripsholm, arrived in Toronto Wednesday night.

A civilian arrival, Rene Vandergust of Simcoe, told of passing through Hanover and Hamburg on his way out of Germany and said: "There is nobody living there now."

He said he was on a visit to Belgium when the German invasion came and he was picked up and imprisoned in Germany. His wife was allowed her freedom but she died two months later. His five daughters, who had accompanied their parents on the trip, still are in Belgium.

Already 2,000 prisoners have been taken at Calais and the city has been under recurrent attack from rocket-firing planes of the tactical air force and from British heavy bombers.

Field Marshal Montgomery's 21st Army group forces pushing out westward from their salient in Holland, where they threaten to cut off some 200,000 Germans, also moved to within five miles of Hertogenbosch and, closing in from the south, extended their bridgehead over the Antwerp-Turnhout canal. Canadian troops also had advanced from two to three miles across the canal.

But the fiercest fighting was to the south.

The U.S. 3rd Army struck five miles due east of Pont a Mousson, between Metz and Nancy, and liberated Port Sur Seile, just north of the historic hinge where French troops in 1914 stalemated the German drive through Lorraine and held a pivot on which the whole front swung from the northwest.

Lost Many Tanks

Thirteen to 20 miles in an arc northeast and east of Nancy the 3rd held firm against four major counter-attacks near Pettoncourt, Bezange and Coincourt and smashed ahead to high ground in the Forest of Parroy.

It was in and around that forest that the Germans pushed in most of their tank strength—and where they lost the most.

From there and Epinal, Lure and Remiremont—cores of the Allied front—the Vosges slope up 3,000 feet to the Passes of Salles, Bonhomme, Schluct and Bussang, gateways to the Rhine.

Bult, 3½ miles south of Rambervillers, and the village of Destord just south of Bult, were captured in advances of three miles.

Somewhere south of Remiremont, 150 miles southeast of Nancy, strongly dug-in German forces ambushed an American advance force.

Farther south another attacking force cleaned up the last German resistance in Servance and several nearby villages and hammered on east.

Servance, 13 miles northwest of Belfort, is 29 miles west of Mulhouse and only 40 from the Rhine border of Germany.

The Germans lashed out again and again with counter-blows, but the Americans gave no ground. East of Lure, south of the Vannes Forest, they withstood a heavy attack and drove the enemy back from a field littered with German dead.

East of Lure, smashing through head on, the U.S. 7th Army also won a foothold close to the 15-mile-wide valley that is the Belfort Gap to Germany—the break between the peaks of the Vosges and the snow-powdered slopes of the Alps.

Along the whole front Canadian, British, American and French forces were getting strong fighter and fighter-bomber support. Their planes flew almost 2,500 sorties of direct support yesterday.

Assessment Ideas Vary In Council

If William J. Henry, head of the city's assessment department, were guided by a desire to please the council instead of carrying out his duties according to his pledged undertaking he might find difficulty in following some definitely suitable course.

Some weeks ago criticism was expressed at a council meeting of certain increases which had been made in assessments for 1945. It was suggested that Mr. Henry might be invited to attend a meeting and discuss assessments.

On the other hand Mayor Hamilton said at Thursday night's meeting of the finance committee that "some assessments are ridiculously low." It should be added that His Worship was making a specific reference on some properties obviously of low value which he said were "assessed down to $400. They are owned by people with at least as much money as the owners of $4,000 houses, and they are getting exactly the same municipal services."

a third is firing inland and the fourth is believed in normal position.

Behind the Canadian-held citadel and immediately to the south, Canadians have crossed a wide strip of flooded territory and worked their way east of the railway lines at the western outskirts of the town.

On All Sides

To the south, Western Canada troops also are right up to the city's outskirts and an Ontario force has swung round to the south of Calais and started to work in from the east.

Yesterday, in addition to attacks by heavy bombers on eastern gun positions, the tactical air force flew several hundred sorties against German defence points in attacks requested by ground troops.

Dozens of planes circled the town, ready to blast with rockets and bombs any targets offered. The Germans tried to drive them off with anti-aircraft fire.

The Calais attack is as difficult as last week's successful attack on Boulogne and is against similarly-tough defences.

Canadian shock troops who had to use 'Mae Wests' in their attack across the water lines have fought with the same distinction that marked all their difficult engagements since early in the campaign.

At Dunkerque, a few miles northeast of Calais, the German forces which have been backed up against the town and port for weeks have started to show signs of aggressiveness, making attempts to regain some of the perimeter village positions they gave up days ago.

British forces under Lt.-Gen. Crerar's command have widened their bridgehead across the Antwerp-Turnhout Canal and Canadian troops also have thrust across. There still is stubborn Nazi resistance north of Antwerp.

Canadian infantry and armored forces in the area northeast of Bruges are sending regular patrols across the Leopold Canal into the flooded area to the north where a fresh German division stands on guard over the south bank of the Schelde.

Facing the Canadian and British forces north and northeast of Antwerp is the 711th German Division, veterans of the fighting around Caen and the retreat across the Seine and the Somme.

Torture Case Goes To Jury

FORT FRANCES, Ont., Sept. 29 —(CP). — Case of four men on trial in Ontario Supreme Court here for the hot stove torture slaying of Mrs. Viola Jamieson, 49-year-old Flanders, Ont., woman, is expected to go to the jury late this afternoon.

Defence counsel will address the jury in the morning and Deputy-Attorney-General Cecil L. Snyder will wind up the case for the Crown in the afternoon. The men being tried are Anthony and George Skrypnyk, Eino Tillonen, and William Schmidt.

Mrs. Jamieson died in hospital here on July 2 from injuries suffered when she was tortured by robbers in her home June 10. The robbers held flaming newspapers against her limbs and placed her on a hot stove in a search for money.

Schmidt testified in court yesterday he went to the Jamieson home on June 10 "to rob" but did not participate in the torture which caused the woman's death.

Called to the stand by his counsel, C. R. Fitch of Fort Frances, Schmidt said he signed a statement August 12 before Inspector Frank Kelly of the Ontario Criminal Investigation Department in which he claimed the Skrpprryk brothers grabbed the woman and put her on the stove. The statement was admitted as evidence.

leave to the army," the speculation is that he may be going to an executive post with the United Nations' Relief and Rehabilitation Administration. His recognized force for organization and administration are believed to fit him admirably for such a berth.

The General's deep interest and constant concern in the welfare of war veterans is well known and with the government on the eve of announcing a demobilization plan, it also is considered a possibility that he may be slated to administer it.

Another possibility was that he might be given a high appointment in the diplomatic service—possibly an ambassadorship. This speculation arose from the announcement that one of the General's close collaborators in the formation of the overseas army—Maj.-Gen. Victor Odlum, has returned from his post as ambassador to China. However, there has been no official word that Gen. Odlum is retiring from the diplomatic service or accepting another post. Another Canadian soldier holding high diplomatic office is Maj.-Gen. Georges P. Vanier, representative to the French Committee of National Liberation.

But whatever was in store for him, the only Canadian besides Sir Arthur Currie to become a full General, was at nearby Renfrew, Ont., to-day squinting at the processing of magnesium. And this was typical of the great soldier who, in his long career never let his scientific interest flag in the production of tools of war.

Monument To Him.

And the little magnesium plant was another monument to his foresight and planning in pre-war years. As president of the Research Council he had a hand in the development of the plant.

Previous to that as chief of the Canadian General Staff in depression years he had taken charge of the government's big relief program and put unemployed to work building 168 projects, most of them for his defence department — at that time suffering budget slashes. He didn't speak loudly of the purpose of his preparations back in those days.

But his ground clearance scheme provided the network of emergency landing fields on which the T.C.A. and Commonwealth air training plan could operate. Other projects became artillery ranges and he once told reporters, following him around the expanded small arms works in Quebec—described as one of the biggest of its kind in the world—that he had prepared for the expansion in one of his relief projects.

His longheadedness and engineering genius had perhaps one chief aim and that was to make sure that preparations and science were exploited to their fullest to make certain there was no unnecessary loss of life when what he saw was inevitable was started.

Grand War Record

The slim, fast-striding 57-year-old soldier was granted leave of absence from his overseas army command Dec. 26 through illness. This six months was up June 27 and he was granted three months leave.

But on Sept. 23 he wrote Col. Ralston and asked to be retired. And this came after a career that saw him credited with being the inventor of the box barrage in the last war when he won decorations and was wounded and came home a brigadier-general at the age of 31.

He held high staff appointments at home until he served two terms as chief of the general staff and then was seconded president of the Research Council. The outbreak of the war saw him back at defence headquarters, whipping the 1st Canadian Division in shape and taking them overseas.

He saw his little contingent grow in strength to buttress Britain's flagging defences after Dunkerque, to learn the lessons of Dieppe for future invaders, to strike in the Mediterranean and finally to invade France itself with the status of an army.

Records—Rev. F. Horton, Mr. Robt. Collins.

Archives — Rev. A. M. McConnachie.

Finance—Rev. A. L. Sisco, Rev. J. W. Wilkinson, Rev. J. E. Glover.

Reports of the recent General Council held in London were given by I. H. Keefer and the president of the Bay of Quinte Conference, Rev. B. W. Thompson of Kingston. Mr. Keefer referred to the vast amount of business which was transacted by the council, and of the contracts made with men who came from the distant parts of Canada. The keynote of the council was good will. Bishop Seager of the Anglican Church and Rev. I. J. Watson of the Presbyterian Church had spoken in terms of real brotherhood, and had advocated co-operation between the churches. The devotional periods were conducted by Prof. R. J. McCracken of McMaster University.

Mr. Keefer referred to the report on "the church, the nation, and world order" which filled almost half the space of the agenda manual. The sum of $15,000 had been set aside for radio messages by church leaders. The motion to adopt the "closed shop" in the United Church Publishing House was carried by a majority of two to one. The minimum salary for ministers had been fixed at $1,800, and an increase was given to men on Home Mission Fields. The Pension Fund had occupied much time and an appeal will be made to the Church to raise a sum of three and a half million dollars to make it solvent. Mortality benefits were reduced from $500 to $150. Pastoral changes will be assessed by a fixed percentage, based upon the minister's salary. The Minister's payments will be deducted from salary, and paid by the church treasurers.

Rev. Mr. Thompson said that gratification was felt by the council that the church debt had been liquidated. We must not however, regard the raising of money, he said, as the chief work of the church. The feeling of the council was that a divided church can do little to heal the wounds of a divided world.

The committees met for an hour in different parts of the church building, and lunch was served by the ladies of Trinity Church, who were thanked on the motion of Rev. F. W. Craik and W. F. Fallis.

Afternoon Session

In the afternoon, Rev. F. W. Craik introduced the Missionary and Maintenance Fund. The amount raised up to date by the Presbytery was a little less than last year, but this was accounted for by the fact that several churches had not yet forwarded their collections.

Rev. Harold Veals recently returned from West China said that the picture of China today is difficult to grasp. It is a miracle of God's grace that China has been able to hold out for so long against the Japanese. She will not give in now. Christian Missionaries receive a hearty welcome in China. Inflation has caused great hardship.

Rev. E. E. Pugsley presented the report, and emphasized the importance of a missionary committee in every charge. Rev. A. R. Graham will speak at a missionary rally in the city in a few weeks.

Rev. J. F. Everson reported for Christian Education. The action of the Ontario government in promoting religious education in the public schools was commended. Fall Rallies for Young People will be held in Millbrook October 6, Lakefield October 10, Knox Church October 3, and Norwood October 4.

Evangelism and Social Service was represented by Rev. H. J. Mahoney. He emphasized the value of world wide Communion Day, October 1st.

A special meeting of Presbytery will be held in November to consider in greater detail the findings of the General Council. Ministers were urged to hold church services to give thanks to God on the day that Germany acknowledges defeat, and a letter will be sent to the liquor controller asking that liquor stores and beverage rooms be closed on that day.

Rev. George Murray representing Home Missions, reported that Herbert Lander sought a year's leave of absence, which was granted.

R. F. Downey, speaking for colleges and students proposed that Mr. Frank Whiteley be sent to Queen's University for another year, and Allan L. Borland and Mr. James E. Harvey be sent to Victoria College.

Consent was given to George Street Church to sell Hilliard Street cemetery to the city of Peterborough for $300.

The chairman, Dr. E. W. Young, reported on pastoral relations. The request of Rev. H. L. Roberts for a year's leave of absence from George Street Church was granted, also his resignation of the charge to take place on June 20th, 1945.

The Presbytery sustained the call to Dr. James Semple of Belleville to become associate pastor until 1st July 1945, and minister of the church from that date. The call will be sent to the Settlement Committee.

Rev. W. E. Honey, proposed a vote of thanks to the minister and board of Trinity Church for the use of the building for the day, also to the ladies who had provided a beautiful lunch for the members.

The work of Rev. A. H. McConnachie and Rev. H. J. Mahoney on the Fraserville charge was highly commended by the Presbytery.

The treasurer, Rev. A. L. Sisco, appealed to the charges to send in a part of their allocation at an early date, to meet the expenses of the Presbytery.

Man Opens Business To Be Near Kawarthas

The irrepressible lure that always seems to bring a sportsman back to the Kawartha Lakes district has given Peterborough a new citizen.

He is F. J. Buchanan, formerly in business in Woodstock, who will re-open the John Hill China Shop Saturday. With a record of never having missed a season since the last war hunting duck and angling for lunge in these parts, Mr. Buchanan recently decided to settle here and get closer to the scenes of his enjoyment.

Each year he has faithfully turned up to share the pleasures of a hunting or fishing expedition with friends in Peterborough; and his glimpses of the city even from the beginning were ample to convince him that he wanted to live here some day. So the opportunity came and he took it. "You've only got so long to live, so why not enjoy yourself, while you can," is Mr. Buchanan's philosophy.

pital in southern England. AB. McCloy is in hospital in Scotland. Stoker Dolan and OS. Moar are completely recovered.

The morning that the Athabaskan was sunk, Fyfe was at his action stations post in the sick bay. Suddenly there was a terrific explosion. The ship lurched heavily, heeling far over from one side to the other.

Tossed Into Water.

He rushed out on deck. The whole after end of the ship was on fire. Debris was lying around the decks. With a group of seamen, he tried to jettison the depth charges on the quarterdeck, but the flames barred their way. "I think a torpedo struck us astern," he said.

The deck became so hot from the fire, raging over the ship, that he crawled up on the torpedo tubes. While standing there he was knocked unconscious by the force of a second explosion.

He tried to raise himself then, but couldn'nt. He realized that his legs were broken. "I thought I was finished," he said. "I was completely incapable of helping myself the slightest bit."

At that moment, the ship lurched violently, heeled far over, and Fyfe was washed into the sea.

He remembered making fast to a cork raft. Other men joined him there. He doesn't know who they were. He recalled seeing the Athabaskan burn and sink. He remembered a German destroyer steaming up to survey the scene of the battle and then turning away.

After being in the water four or five hours he and 12 other survivors were picked up by German patrol craft.

Cattle Receipts Swamp Toronto Yards

TORONTO, Sept. 29 — (CP). — Cattle prices were fully 25 cents a cwt. lower on all grades in trade on the Livestock Market here this week. Calves were steady. Hogs lost 10 to 20 cents cwt. Lambs were down 50 cents cwt. and sheep were steady.

After getting within sight of a cattle clearance last week, yards and packing plants were snowed under again this week with heavy receipts. The yard holdover of 3,200 head on Monday was reduced to somewhere around 2,400 by Thursday. Included in the holdover were medium to good butcher cattle as well as good weighty steers. Common stockers were also plentiful. Top for good weighty steers was $12.35 for a small lot. Other steers sold from $9.50 to $12.25. Butcher steers closed at $8.50 to $11 with heifers mostly $10.75 down. Boning steers and heifers sold at $6 to $8. Butcher cows were $7 to $8.75, with a few tops at $9. Canners and cutters were $5 to $7, with bulls slow at $6 to $8. Fed yearlings were $12 to $13.50, with early tops at $14. Stockers were slow at $6.50 to $10 cwt. according to quality. The best milkers and springers offered sold at $130 to $150 each.

Calves were $14 to $15 for choice vealers, with common downward to $7 and thin grassers at $6 to $6.50 cwt.

Due to inadequate slaughtering accommodation small local butchers were unable to purchase as many hogs as usual and the market price dropped 10 to 20 cents cwt. Closing quotations for Grade B1, off trucks at yards and packing plants, were $17.65 to $17.75. Sows were $13.25 dressed Grade A hogs were $17.65 to $17.75 Feeders sold from $4.50 each for weanlings up to $14 cwt. for chunks weighing 80 to 120 pounds.

Lamb prices slumped with several lots unsold. Good ewes and wethers closed at $12 to $12.50 and bucks were $11 to $11.50, with culls from $6 to $9 cwt. Sheep were steady at $2 to $4 cwt. according to quality with good breeding ewes going at $5 cwt.

Vagrant Nabbed Near Warsaw

John Hartman, who said that he was on his way from Toronto to Montreal, and who was arrested by Constable Lonsboro at Warsaw Thursday pleaded guilty in police court this morning to a charge of vagrancy.

At the request of the crown Hartman, who said that he had been hitch-hiking and working at odd jobs along the way, was remanded for a week.

"He had no registration card," Crown Attorney McElderry stated, in remanding the accused Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., said that if the man had lost his registration card he should be given an opportunity to replace it.

"He never had one" said Provincial Constable Price Morris.

Harold Brooks and Albert Raclot, arrested here Thursday and also charged with vagrancy, pleaded not guilty and asked for an adjournment. Instead they were remanded in custody until tomorrow.

At Thursday's session, Lorne Gibson, facing charges of escaping from custody and breaking and entering the C.G.E. canteen and Carl Northey also charged with the C.G.E. job were remanded a week at the request of the crown.

W. C. Grant appeared in behalf of Gibson while Northey was defended by John A. Bradshaw.

of Lords, flatly declared that there was reason to believe that the German general staff envisaging defeat, had started making preparations for the next war.

He did not elaborate nor did he suggest that the war-minded Junkers were working with the Nazis in planning for the next war.

He did say, however, that the Allies should make it "utterly impossible" for Germany ever to stage another war and asserted that this meant that "we should use whatever means are necessary to make certain of this."

This suggested that Britain was ready to back some de-industrialization of Germany, or at least insist on complete Allied control of heavy industries, but Lord Cranborne avoided making any comment on Treasury Secretary Morgenthau's proposal that the country be completely de-industrialized.

Aid In Training Apprentices For Building Trade

Lack of apprentices for the building trade in Peterborough has led F. E. Johnston, head of the Vocational School, to interest himself in recommending some new courses to be given at night school this year, he announced at a meeting of the Advisory Vocational Committee of the Board of Education, Thursday night.

After outlining his report on the year's activities of night school, he requested permission to form three new classes, if a sufficient number of pupils enrolled. He stressed sheet metal work classes, plumbing and oral and written expression classes. In addition, Mr. Johnston thought that a revival of the general science class might prove useful.

During the discussion committee members expressed the belief that after the war there would be an increased demand for trained help in building, particularly with the housing project. The men felt that if sufficient interest could be aroused, it would be a splendid thing to produce apprentices for this work, and emphasized that they were at a premium right now.

It was moved by J. Cunningham that permission be granted Mr. Johnston to make preparations toward organization, if the required number of pupils enrolled.

Few Refunds

In his report on the year's work, Mr. Johnston said that in Home Economics, 297 were registered and 155 received their refunds, for 80 per cent attendance. The year before there were 190 attending and 131 refunds. In Industrial Arts there were 478 enrolled and 154 fee refunds as compared with 489 enrolled and 193 refunds in the previous year.

The Vocational head informed the committee that the lumber supply, for vocational classes was badly depleted and requested action as soon as possible. He explained that it had been the custom to keep 4,000 feet of kiln dried lumber in the yard and he would like at least that much basswood on hand, as well as a little extra in fir and oak. At a previous meeting the Board had authorized the purchase of the lumber, but while it was ordered, the order was reduced when they came to get it.

J. Huggins secretary, suggested that it might be cheaper to order the lumber by the carload, because some dealers here had been charging $400 for 1,000 feet.

"Is there no ceiling price on wood?" queried T. J. Carley?

"It's just like fruit," remarked Mr. Johnston.

"The prices seem to be considerably higher here than in other places." Mr. Huggins remarked.

"I didn't know there was such a gold mine in the lumber business. I think I will have to tell some of my lumber friends that Peterborough is a good field. I don't see why we can't purchase 4,000 feet here at a reasonable figure," Mr. Carley declared.

It was moved by G. W. Craw that it be recommended to the Board that at least 4,000 feet of basswood be kept on hand.

Part-time Assistant

A motion supported by C. Derry and J. Cunningham, recommending that a full time girl be employed as typist and mimeographer for Mr. Johnston was lost when Fred Reed, Mr. Craw and T. McMillan voted against it.

Mr. Johnston pointed out that a revision in the night school courses was necessary and this involved too much work for the regular office staff at the school to get finished.

Mr. Reed suggested that Mr. Shearer, head of the Commercial school might be able to supply a girl, and when he said that would not be possible, Mr. Reed then suggested that two married women might be willing to work part time at night during the classes.

Mr. Johnston remarked that this would not be satisfactory because even when he gets an assistant it will take several months to train her in stencil work.

When the committee failed to accede to the request for a full time helper, Mr. Johnston requested that he be given a part-time helper and on a motion by Mr. Craw it was decided to recommend a typist and mimeographer, to work on a part-time basis.

Low Attendance

In his report, Mr. Shearer said 185 attended the commercial school night classes. He explained that the attendance was excellent in the fall but dropped off in the spring. He said the stenography class was disappointing, partly because the work demands a certain grade in English, which some applicants lacked. He also declared that a student could not afford to miss a night without going behind.

Mr. Johnston blamed part of the lowered attendance in his department on men being called into army service, doing night work in war plants and to being transferred to other cities.

The committee recommended that the Board authorize the organization of night school classes as usual.

First Wounded Repatriate Arrives From Nazi Hospital

By DON McGIBBON

A first-hand story of life inside Nazi Germany today is unfolded in the experiences of Pte. F. Richard Page, of Smith township, who arrived home Thursday evening after more than a year spent in a German prison-hospital camp. He was wounded and captured while fighting with the Hastings and Prince Edward regiment in Central Sicily in July of 1943. He is the first wounded soldier to be repatriated from imprisonment in Germany from Peterborough and district.

Smiling, but a little tired, and anxious to be home, he greeted the friends meeting him at the station, including Reeve G. McIlmoyle, of Smith township, Clerk A. I. Edmison, and George Middleton, on whose farm the young soldier formerly was employed, located on the second line of Smith.

Berlin Mess

Of all the impressions of Germany, 1944, perhaps the greatest, Pte. Page said, is the sight of the terrible damage wrought by British and American bombers on Reich cities. The entire suburban district of Berlin, he stated, has been absolutely gutted, adding that the heart of the capital, plastered the most by Allied fliers, was even more damaged.

"I've seen London before and after the great German blitz", Pte. Page reported, "but it doesn't come anywhere near the havoc done in Berlin. Those airmen certainly made a job of it," he said proudly.

Although the German authorities discourage prisoners from seeing damage done to German cities, Pte. Page, on the trip through Germany to Sweden, where he boarded the Swedish liner Gripsholm, to come across, said many cities in the Reich have been damaged by bombs.

The story of Pte. Page's fortune of war, since he landed in Sicily, actually begins the day, two weeks after his arrival, when German mortar fire hit him, while out on a patrol to take a bridgehead. The patrol had become entrapped by the barrage laid down by Nazi gunners, and he was struck in the back by shrapnel.

He remained where he fell for six hours, until a German soldier found him, and took him back for medical treatment. He was taken through Sicily in an ambulance, and was sent immediately back up through Italy to Germany.

Splendid Care

"Hospital and medical attention was excellent", Pte. Page said, describing one of the few things that was good during his Naziland sojourn. He said the prisoners received the best possible medical treatment from the Nazis, from that first day onwards.

When he reached his destination in Germany, a prison camp hospital largely operated by captured British doctors and other prisoners, he began his stay that was to last more than a year in the same place.

According to Pte. Page, prison camp life is unpleasant, but bearable. Food, never very good, became increasingly poor as the war dragged on. A small portion of meat would be served only once every three or four days. The food mainstay seemed to be turnips and potatoes, of which small portions were served.

"We were treated all right by the guards though," he said, adding that the prison guards were not allowed to converse with prisoners except when extremely necessary. Because Pte. Page was in a hospital all the time in Germany, a regular prison life did not come his way, and the main objective for the day was to sleep as long as possible. Reading matter was in reasonable abundance, and near the last, German radio programs were to be heard in the camp.

Proud of Buzz Bombs

As is usual, the Nazi attempted much propaganda on the prisoners, and among the favorite topics, was the damage being done England by the robot bombs.

"I never heard anything about the other secret weapons, or poison gas, but they used to tell us plenty about the robots. We never listened to them at all," he said.

"No bombs ever fell near our hospital, and when on the trains, there were no interruption from the air, not, at least, while I was on them. Once we did have an alarm, but nothing happened," Pte. Page observed.

The hospital-camp where he was imprisoned was not extremely large, he said. Guarded by wire barricades, there was no chance of escape, and no one in the hospital was able to attempt one anyway, he reported. Attached to the hospital, which housed around 350 patients, was a regular Stalag, prison camp. He said as soon as a patient was finished with medical treatment, he was moved to the regular camp.

Matter of Time

The men, who were mostly British and American, with a few Germans, were grouped in large wards. During his stay in Germany, Pte. Page said he had become on speaking terms with two or three Germans who had been wounded in the front lines, and he said their attitude to the war was not "when will the Germans win it," but, "when will they lose it!" Of course, he said, the German not in the front lines is still quite optimistic about the outcome of the struggle. "But you must remember there is a Gestapo agent everywhere to keep them "optimistic", said the ex-prisoner-or-war.

News of the invasion of France reached the camp within a few hours of the attack, via the German radio. There was great rejoicing among the Allied prisoners of the camp, he said, when the news came.

Now, at home, after four years of being overseas, Pte. Page is looking very well after his adventures inside Fortress Europe. He doesn't know exactly what he'll do next, but it may be back to the farm, where he worked before enlisting in March 1940.

However, he is glad to be home, and he said that when the news of his repatriation reached him at the prison, he was without words! 'We just thought over and over again, 'I am going home' ", he said.

London Paper Urges Vast Emigration

By DOUGLAS AMARON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Sept. 29 — (CP) — The London Daily Sketch, urging speedy formulation of a scheme for Imperial emigration, said in an editorial that if Empire bonds, "strengthened out of all knowledge" in wartime, are maintained after the war, the Commonwealth, "in political and economic power and influence will not have to yield priority to any other political entity in the world."

The newspaper's comment followed a press-conference statement by Premier Drew of Ontario that if freedom of trade is restored throughout the world, Ontario could easily absorb 1,000,000 people within five to 10 years after the war.

"This is more than credible," said the Sketch, and "with few exceptions is true of every constituent of the Empire, which, in relations to its size, is a grossly underpopulated as the Motherland is overpopulated."

"The riches are there waiting to be developed," the editorial added "Who is going to develop them? the first place, of course, will be given to the nationals of the various Imperial countries. But after them the Empire will want to have British immigrants.

"A scheme for Imperial Emigration cannot be formulate in a week or a month, however. It will take a great deal of working out, and the sooner this process gets under way the better."

C.G.I.T. Celebrates First Anniversary

BANCROFT, Sept. 29—(ENS)—A mother-and-daughter banquet was held in the basement of St. Paul's United Church, when the girls of the C.G.I.T. played hosts to their mothers at a banquet commemorating their first anniversary.

The tables were decorated in pink and blue streamers with vases of flowers in the centre. There were more than forty-six present.

Miss Agatha Coultes, missionary minister from Maynooth, was guest speaker and there were several musical numbers: a solo by Miss Lois More accompanied at the piano by her mother, Mrs. H. J. More; also a sing-song by the members of the C.G.I.T.

Prior to the program the president of the C.G.I.T. Miss Hazel Vance gave a toast to the mothers which was responded to by Mrs. H. Strudwick. Mrs. R. A. McLauchlin was mistress of ceremonies for the evening. A large birthday cake adorned the head table with one lighted candle to honor the occasion of the first anniversary.

V-Day Recedes In The Distance

After several months of optimistic talk about the possibility that the war might end this year, we are now being warned by authoritative persons that it is very likely to continue well into 1945. Mr. Churchill has said so, and Mr. Churchill does not say such things merely to get his name in the papers. Indeed, General Montgomery is the only person whose opinion carries weight who has said recently that the war might end before Christmas.

This sobering of opinion means simply that although the Germans have lost the war, and know it, they do not mean to stop fighting. They have good reasons for following this course: Britain had lost the war in 1940, but she did not stop fighting, and she is now in a very different position. Germany cannot hope for such a reversal; she has lost her men and she has lost her friends; but she can sell herself dearly, and perhaps gain a little satisfaction and a little prestige by doing so.

Nobody seems to think that Germany can hold long after next spring. Her army is now made up of semi-invalids and old men, with enough Gestapo men among them to keep them galvanized into a semblance of action. Such troops may hold up our advance in the bitter winter weather; they will be powerless in the spring. And it now appears that Germany's two-front war may become a three-front war at any time.

The Gothic Line in Italy has been smashed and the Allies have made landings in Dalmatia. Apparently they mean to advance upon central Europe from the Balkans. The Germans cannot hope to make an effective resistance to such an invasion, and next spring their country will be under pressure from all sides.

V-Day is sure, but it has receded into the distance. We were too optimistic about our victory, and Mr. Churchill's warning should teach us a lesson. The Germans are tough opponents, and they mean to be tough till the last. But they know that their resistance can do no more than postpone the day of defeat and reckoning.

Roosevelt vs. Dewey

In American presidential campaigns hard knocks are given and hard knocks are taken; politics in the U.S.A. is traditionally colourful and uninhibited and presidential candidates do not carry the courtesy of debate to extreme lengths. The slugging match between Roosevelt and Dewey is now in full swing and it is clear that the contest will be a lively one.

• • •

Mr. Roosevelt is the more experienced campaigner and his speech last Saturday night showed him at the top of his form. He counts on labour for a large part of his support, and he knows precisely how to appeal to labour audiences; his speech was full of meat, and it was also full of jokes; it was packed with charm and assurance; it was almost the ideal campaign speech. Mr. Dewey has said that it was frivolous in tone and suggests that the President hopes to wisecrack himself back into office. But the speech was not merely a wisecracking speech; Mr. Roosevelt closely followed George Bernard Shaw's principle of discovering what needs to be said, and then saying it with the utmost levity. Mr. Dewey is short on levity himself and cannot hope to meet the President on his own ground—hence his charge of frivolity.

• • •

Mr. Dewey has referred to the President as a tired old man, and newspapers which support the Republican interest have pointed out that Mr. Roosevelt delivered his Saturday speech in a sitting position, as evidence of his fatigue. This is nonsense, of course; Mr. Roosevelt, disabled by infantile paralysis, cannot stand without serious discomfort, and no one suggests [illegible] should endure such discomfort [illegible]e an appearance of vigour. His speech was neither tired nor old, and strong legs are no special recommendation for high office. On his side, Mr. Roosevelt and his supporters have poked a good deal of quiet fun at Mr. Dewey who, like many small men, tries to make up in bounce what he lacks in inches. The personal side of the campaign is being well looked after.

• • •

On the more vital, political side of the campaign both sides are hitting hard. The New Deal did not bring the prosperity in its wake which Mr. Roosevelt promised, and Mr. Dewey has pointed that out. He has also taken pains to show that Mr. Roosevelt's policies were hard on business, involved heavy taxation and showed a lack of faith in America's future. Mr. Dewey thinks that he can do great things for his country by reversing these policies, and allowing Congress to have a free hand with tariffs.

• • •

In the sphere of national defence Mr. Dewey declares that his opponent left the U.S.A. unprepared for war, and failed to recognize the necessity for a two-ocean Navy—a necessity which Mr. Dewey himself made clear. In reply Mr. Roosevelt points out that the Republican party opposed Selective Service on two occasions, and that Mr. Dewey was spectacularly wrong about the intentions of the Axis. Mr. Dewey has a typically Republican aversion from entangling alliances, and Mr. Roosevelt points out that an entangling alliance may be a friendly and comforting thing to a nation at war.

• • •

So far as it is possible to judge, Mr. Dewey is putting up a very good fight, considerably handicapped by the record of his party. To offset this disadvantage he is displaying the failures of Mr. Roosevelt's own record, and is doing it with great skill. But it will be a superhuman task to reduce Mr. Roosevelt's great prestige to the point where the odds between the contestants may be said to be even.

Sister Aimee Dies

Aimee Semple McPherson is dead in her 54th year. Her career was astounding, and there was a time when her extravagances were headline news. She possessed extraordinary qualities of magnetism, and although she often put heavy burdens on the credulity of her followers she never urged them to make even the most elementary use of their powers of reason; consequently she never lacked for disciples, and supported herself for years upon what H. L. Mencken has aptly called "the virulence of the national appetite for bogus revelation".

The lives of such people as Mrs. McPherson are stranger than fiction. Fiction is governed by laws of good taste and credibility; life suffers from no such restrictions. It is a safe bet that in future years a true and unvarnished life of Sister Aimee will be a best-seller. Sinclair Lewis undoubtedly caricatured her—at least in part—in the character of Sharon Falconer, the evangelist in Elmer Gantry; but Lewis could not paint Sister Aimee as she really was, for no one would have believed him.

Was there, in the freakish prancings and posturings of Aimee Semple McPherson, anything of the spirit which flowered in the great cathedrals of the Middle Ages, and in the music of Palestrina and Bach? Perhaps so; we cannot judge. But it is an alarming topic for reflection.

NOTE AND COMMENT

Churchill says the war may extend into 1945. There are a lot of letters between D-day and V-day.

We read that after the war we may have 'personally monogrammed waffles'. Not to be confused with such articles of peasant-craft as the hand-knotted pretzel.

When our troops captured a Channel coast town they found the German commandant and all his officers at the movies. Probably they had heard that the films were a wonderful 'escape'.

Dorothy Dix says that parents should make an effort to 'sell' themselves to their children. We know a lot of parents who have sold themselves to their children—body and soul, and can't escape from their bad bargain.

We suggest that the people who have nothing but hard words for French Canada should clip Cardinal Villeneuve's address in Westminster Cathedral out of the paper and paste it in their scrapbooks. Then, when they want to read a noble and generous tribute to the British people they will have it ready at hand.

Away From The Sun

By BRUCE HUTCHISON

SLOWLY now the year begins to die. You can see its decline in the morning and again at night. Man rises nearer to the dawn now and soon will rise in the night. The evenings close in. Day by day, at first gradually and then with a rush, the daylight diminishes and the long nights of this northern land march in, with dark triumph.

All this began last June when the earth turned quietly on its axis, for no good reason, and began to move us, in the northern hemisphere, away from the sun. We started to cool off then, but the process was so slow that we did'nt notice it. The momentum of the heating-up period, from December 21, 1943, was so great that it carried through until next spring, though in fact we shall be turning back to the sun in about three months.

It is not clear, to me anyway, why the earth tilts this way and causes vast inconvenience to all its inhabitants. Nor can you rely absolutely on its future tilting. Several times in its history the earth suddenly lurched on its axis and exposed different surface to the sun with remarkable results. Tropical jungles spread over England and hot-blooded dinosaurs roamed the prairies of Canada, causing more confusion than Social Credit. Then the earth swayed again in its stride and, jerking us away from the sun, sent the ice ages down from the north pole, extinguished the dinosaurs, polished off the rocks and created the flint-like character of the modern Canadian.

There is no reason to believe that this won't happen again. In fact, by the law of averages, it is bound to happen and at any moment. The results will depend upon the direction of the tilt. If the northern hemisphere is exposed more to the sun, Winnipeg will quickly forget the theory that snow and zero are essential to human health, will wear Palm Beach suits at Christmas and express deep pity for the natives of a newly-frozen Florida. If the tilt is the other way and the ice comes down again, Winnipeg may become actually cold, even by the admission of its natives, and the rose gardens of Victoria and Vancouver will be covered in five feet of snow, and the coastal Canadian will stop sniffing at the prairie climate for his nose will be frozen.

THERE is no reason to expect that these things will not happen, for they have always happened before. Yet we rely on the rhythmical twist of the earth's axis twice a year as if it were guaranteed with the rent. All our civilization is built around this simple but inexplicable fact—our cities, our agriculture, our industry and racial habits. Nobody ever pauses to question these arrangements. Everybody takes the shortening days of the autumn as a matter of course. Everybody buys up fuel against the long winter nights and plans to do some heavy reading and never by any chance gets around to it. Everybody counts on the days starting to grow longer at the end of December, just as if it were written into our lease upon the minor planet.

So sure is everyone of these arrangements that the turning of the earth twice a year is not even a news story. We are vastly excited about the minute writhings of a few strange creatures upon the face of the earth but take no notice of the earth itself. Yet if it failed to tilt just once, for a single year, it would be the greatest news story of all time, making the war appear a minor irritation.

But there is no use telling people about that, no use warning them of the inevitable upheaval ahead of us some time, when the earth gets tired of its old gait and shifts a little in its cosmic easy chair. People won't listen to such warnings and few of them, coming out of their offices these afternoons and observing the shortened day, the onrush of the autumn darkness, will pause to picture the gigantic process which this represents, the shifting of incalculable quantities of matter in the universe, the laborious twisting of our whole hemisphere, the lifting of all land and every living thing upon it, ourselves included, northward from the sun.

Family Politics

In the old days there were few instances in which members of Canadian families supported different parties. When election time strife was carried into a domestic circle, it was usually due to the intrusion of relatives of the mother who were of the opposite political faith from those on the paternal side. She and her children almost invariably ranged themselves with the party that the father favored.

That is much less true now. The granting the franchise to women has not led to a falling out over politics between many wives and husbands though there is a case that might be cited in which they disagreed so violently on public issues that the wife went to meetings her husband was addressing and heckled him to his great embarrassment. Usually married pairs vote the same way. But the children are more apt to make their own choices, regardless of parental opinion.

In the recent New Brunswick election the Progressive Conservative and the C.C.F. candidates in one constituency were twin brothers and a cousin of theirs was brought into the field by the Liberals. We all know of those of both sexes who have been brought up in the same household and who take opposite sides in politics without having their personal relations impaired.

Such evidence of an increasing tendency of individuals to think for themselves is welcome. Electoral decisions must be all the sounder because we are getting away more and more from the state of things that prevailed when audiences first heard the Gilbert and Sullivan song which told how "every boy and every girl that's born into the world alive" was either a little Liberal or else a little Conservative. — Edmonton Journal.

Library Systems

Those who really know what is what in the library field believe that a national library should follow, not precede, an adequate library service in all Canadian provinces. To start up a national library before the people have library service within reasonable reach is to build up an imposing house without laying the foundation.

The establishment of library systems comes within the provincial field. Some provinces are fairly well advanced. Other provinces lag terribly. It is up to the provincial governments to inaugurate sound regional systems and place books within reach of even the most isolated.—Saint John Telegraph-Journal.

For Good Local Government

(FINANCIAL POST)

THE announcement that Queen's University this year inaugurates an Institute of Local Government is of importance to all Canadians.

Its job primarily is one of research into municipal problems. Its research staff will be in a position to examine, and report impartially on, the multitudinous questions that arise in civic administration.

The institute is headed by a highly educated public servant who has length practical experience in civic administration. He is K. G. Crawford, for 10 years deputy city clerk, London.

What does a dollar of, for instance, Kitchener taxes buy, compared with a dollar of Windsor taxes? That is the key problem of efficient local administration. Today, there is little concrete, comparative information with which to answer that question.

Most problems in municipal affairs are administrative. Once the facts are obtained there is usualy one sensible answer. Presently, the problem is to get the facts. The Queen's Institute promises to fulfil a function of prime importance.

There are dozens of vital matters involving spending of citizen's money on which facts are needed; dozens of places where the Institute's work should lead to sound decisions rather than foolish decisions.

Very important is the powerful impulse this fact-finding will have on all municipalities. Widespread publication of the fact that one local administration gets half as much value as another for expenditures on a certain public service will very promptly lead to immense pressure for reform.

The appalling apathy of citizens with respect to civic government elections and activities will be best countered with ample supplies of impartial and expert information on civic affairs. Today the normal citizen simply doesn't know what the sound policy is on most civic matters because, like any sound decision in a business or profession, a wise decision depends on analysis by experts of all relevant facts.

While research will be the main function of Queen's Institute, special lectures on problems and techniques of local government start this fall for students in certain Arts courses.

It is devoutly to be hoped that Queen's executives go a step farther and provide intensive short courses for local government officials when the organizational phase is past.

Present plans are to cover the entire field of local government in Ontario; for the present, to restrict the field in other provinces to main cities.

Many communities have been and are devotedly served by permanent officials. But local government is usually the biggest business in any community. Its problems are becoming increasingly complex; more and more expert and specially trained management is urgently required.

Queen's is to be congratulated on its enterprise in inaugurating this course. Immense benefits to the taxpayer will most certainly result.

Socialist Basis In Canada

(OTTAWA JOURNAL)

REFERENCE was made in The Journal last week to the correspondence between the Finance Minister of the Dominion, Mr. Ilsley, and the C.C.F. Premier of Saskatchewan, in which Mr. Ilsley scored Premier T. C. Douglas for the latter's effort to repudiate public debt. The Saskatchewan Premier's course, "The first important move by a C.C.F. government", was termed by The Journal dishonest and dishonourable. It is a curious thing that the same words long apply to the Social Credit government of Alberta, which has repudiated public debt. The thing is curious for two reasons. First, that these two provincial governments are the first in Canada which are not based on the old party lines, Conservative and Liberal. Secondly, that these two provinces are the only ones in Canada in which the population is not preponderantly of British stock. Except, of course, Quebec.

The population figures of this country are rather interesting. In the provinces of Canada, outside Quebec, the English-speaking stock is in the majority except in the two Prairie provinces. Highest in the list is the little province of Prince Edward Island, with a population almost entirely of British origin, namely, 83 per cent. Next comes Nova Scotia with 77 per cent., then Ontario with 73 per cent.; the balance being largely French-Canadian on the Quebec border. New Brunswick is 60 per cent. of English-speaking descent, 40 per cent. French-Canadian. British Columbia has 70 per cent. of English-speaking stock; Manitoba over 50 per cent. Last come the two Prairie provinces, Alberta with nearly 50 per cent.; Saskatchewan with only 44 per cent. of British strain.

The almost complete victory of the C.C.F. in Saskatchewan, at which so much elation was expressed by C.C.F. leaders, was thus obtained in the only province in Canada where the British stock is in a minority, except possibly in Alberta. The following provincial election in New Brunswick where British and French-Canadian stock constitute practically the entire population, showed not a single C.C.F. candidate elected out of several dozen. The provincial election in Quebec earlier showed one C.C.F. candidate elected out of a considerable number in the 69 constituencies; and he by 2,000 votes out of 10,000, owing to the numerous other candidates splitting up the vote.

Roughly speaking, Canada's total population is 50 per cent. British stock, 30 per cent. French-Canadian, 20 per cent. others. Of the latter, there are mainly 5 per cent. of German stock, Scandinavian and Ukrainian 3 per cent., Dutch 2 per cent., Polish 1½ per cent., Russian 1 per cent. Most of the [illegible] est probably of U.S. immigrant stock. The European continental element is chiefly distributed in the Prairie provinces; and it is there that Socialism, or any cry for some new miraculous social order, not unnaturally finds its strongest appeal. There is less root there of British traditions.

These remarks are not made with any thought of reflecting upon the Canadians of the Prairie provinces of whatever strain. They are Canadians; they have a right to their own political opinions, and are to be congratulated on going to the polls to register their political views. If the Socialist party which has triumphed in Saskatchewan can convert a majority of Canadians elsewhere to their political and social views, it will be the duty of the rest of us to accept the decision loyally, and make the best of it we can. The endeavour here is merely to indicate that the three provincial elections this year, taken as a whole, do not give reason to fear that Socialism appeals to a majority of our people, and particularly not to even a moderate proportion of our people of either English-speaking or French-Canadian origin.

Green Fields Afar

Much is heard of what the socialist governments of Australia and New Zealand have done for their people, but the farmers of those countries are not in nearly as good a position as the Canadian farmers, according to J. Gordon Ross, M.P. for Moose Jaw, and Dr. T. F. Donnelly, M.P. for Wood Mountain, Sask., who were among the Canadian delegates of the Empire Parliamentary Association who recently visited the two British countries in the south Pacific.

The prices received by the farmers in Australia for their products are much lower than in Canada, and they pay considerably higher prices for farm implements although there are some farm implement factories owned by the government, Mr. Ross states, and he quotes a comparative list of prices. The farm lands are rich and livestock can be produced cheaply.

With an urban population in Australia 65 per cent of the whole, the farmers should be in a very favorable position if prosperity were possible in a self-contained economy — something that Canadian socialists have always imagined to be possible. Australia is a highly protected country, but the things which the farmers produce best, they produce in far greater quantity than the country can consume, and the export markets are far away.

There are no better examples than Australia and New Zealand of dependence on trade with other countries if the people are to prosper. But precisely the same thing is true of Canada. It is of the very first importance though our Canadian socialists have not yet recognized this.—Winnipeg Free Press.

A Bible Message

Have mercy upon me, O God, according to thy lovingkindness: according to the multitude of thy tender mercies blot out my transgressions. Wash me throughly from mine iniquity, and cleanse me from my sin. For I acknowledge my transgressions: and my sin is ever before me. Against thee, thee only, have I sinned, and done this evil in thy sight....

Behold thou desirest truth in the inward parts: and in the hidden part thou shalt make me to know wisdom. Purge me with hyssop, and I shall be clean: wash me, and I shall be whiter than snow....

Restore unto me the joy of thy salvation: and uphold me with thy free spirit. (Ps. 51: 1-4, 6, 7, 12.)

Thou wilt shew me the path of life: in thy presence is fulness of joy; at thy right hand there are pleasures for evermore. (Ps. 16: 11.)

BIG YEAR FOR NUTS

Among the crops that are breaking records this year are nuts. According to United States Department of Agriculture estimates English walnuts, grown chiefly in California and Oregon, are expected to reach a total of 74,000 tons, the highest production on record.

Although October is the big month for harvesting walnuts they will not be on the market in any quantity until November.

Most of them will be sold in their shells, while less than a fourth of the crop will be marketed as nut meats.

Pecans, the second largest estimated crop, are expected to reach 71,470 tons which is 64 per cent more than the average.

They are grown mostly in the South. Almonds, produced almost entirely in California, will yield an estimated crop of 19,700 tons, about 3,700 tons larger than that of last season. — New York Times.

DON'T MIX CLEANERS

There is a lesson for housewives in the curious case of the Birmingham woman who was nearly killed by poison gas while scrubbing her bath. It is: Never mix two different kinds of household cleaners.

Birmingham City Analyst revealed the case in his quarterly report, stating that the misadventure resulted from the combined use of two proprietary brands of household cleansers.

The housewife sprinkled 2 oz. of a powder cleaner on her bath, and then, anxious to get the surface as clean as possible, added about half a pint of a liquid.

There was lots of fizzing, but the woman had lost her sense of smell in childhood and did not realize a poison gas was being given off.

The gas was chlorine, which was used by the Germans in the last war.

The woman fainted, came round again, crawled into the garden, and eventually recovered under medical treatment.—London Daily Mail.

Unconsidered Trifles

The two travellers were discussing the careless manner in which trunks and suitcases are handled by some railway companies.

"I have a very cute idea for preventing that once," said one of them, smiling reminiscently. "I labelled each of my bags: 'With Care—China.'"

"And did that have any effect?" asked his companion.

"Well, I don't know—you see they shipped the whole darned lot to Hong Kong."

It was four in the morning when the drunk, staggering into a cocktail bar, found a discarded newspaper on a table and looked at the advertisement columns. After reading one of the ads, he leaped up, dived for the exit, and took a cab at once to the address given in the advertisement. This turned out to be a large hotel. The drunk stood on the pavement outside and began to shout: "Cunningham! Cunningham!" until the entire neighbourhood was awake. At last a head emerged from a window.

"What in Heaven's name do you want?"

"You Professor Cunningham?" asked the inebriate.

"Yes, what about it?" snapped the other.

"You advertise for a companion to go with you on an exploring expedition to North Africa?"

"Yes."

"Well," hiccoughed the drunk, "I just wanted to tell you I can't make it."

Commando Back From Invasion For Furlough

Back home after 22 months of service overseas, AB. Robert Jopling, 21, says he saw everything from 15 minutes after the start of the invasion. Before leaving for Canada, he was constantly engaged in cross-channel trips ion Canadian-manned LCI's, and had made more than a dozen trips before notice of his leave came through.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry L. Jopling, of Bridgenorth, he enlisted in the Navy back in June, 1942 and his first year overseas was spent in commando courses at several different Navy stations in the British Isles. Later he made one trip aboard an English carrier delivering men and supplies to the Mediterranean just prior to the Italian invasion.

"We didn't know it was D-Day until we were well out from shore," AB. Jopling said, "since we had been making training trips like that almost every day and it could have been just another practice run." His ship, with officers and crew numbering 27 in all, delivered infantry to the Norman beachhead through the crucial days.

AB. Jopling saiad that his LCI had been lucky enough not to get hit, and there had never been any casualties aboard. Once or twice their landings at the beachhead had been held up for hours because of tide conditions, and they were subjected to Stuka dive bombing attacks during the night.

AB. Jopling worked in his father's fur business on Murray street before entering the Navy.

Soldier Blown High In Air By Mortar Shell

Hugging a ditch along a road near Cassino in Italy, when shrapnel from an exploding mortar struck his leg, hurling him bodily into the air, is one of Pte. Donald M. Caban's experiences recalled rather grimly when he arrived home Wednesay evening, after serving overseas more than a year with the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment. He was with the British 8th Army, that helped smash the vaunted Gustav Line below Rome.

"When I heard the explosion and felt the blast, I was sure my number had come up," he remarked. Explaining that the road was about four miles from Cassino, and was bordered on each side by a high ridge, he said he and several others had thought the space immediately beside the road to be the safest, and they lay flat on the ground.

"Jerry must have been pretty accurate that day," he said, "because several landed right around us. One blew me up, and when I came back down, I looked and saw my pants all ripped, and knew I had been hurt. I hurried back about 50 yards where I could receive medical treatment, and my main worry then was how not to get hit again."

The young soldier recalled the Nazis were using six-barrelled mortars at the time, that shot five shells almost together, and a sixth a moment later.

After that, the hospital was his address for the time he remained in Italy, and although his injuries were received in May, he returned to England, and subsequently to Canada on a hospital ship, which arrived recently. He has been in Toronto before coming home.

It's Your Luck

Pte. Caban indicated a fatalistic attitude is taken by many soldiers with regard to whether they get hit or not. "If it's going to get you, it's going to get you.....that's the way most of us felt."

On his way to the front lines in Italy, was a period of great nervousness to Pte. Caban, as it is to most soldiers. Mental or nervous breakdowns in men going under fire for the first time were extremely few, he said, adding that usually those soldiers respond to treatment for that type of case, and are well again in a short time.

As for entertainment in Italy, Pte. Caban said that there was not too much. What there was, was mostly provided by the Y.M.C.A., which presented shows regularly.

"It was really something to get the news of the invasion of France," the member of the famed "Hasty Pees" Pte. Caban said. "I first got the news on a special edition of "Union Jack," a British paper published there."

Pte. Caban enlisted in 1942, and went overseas in June, 1943. His father, a veteran of the last world war, when he served with the 9th Battalion, First Division, was wounded in the head, and this morning, jokingly put the situation thus: "We both got it! I stuck my head out, and Don put his leg out."

Formerly an employee of the Punch Press section of the C.G.E., he has a brother also serving in Italy. Another brother, Victor, was killed while serving with the same regiment in Italy. A brother-in-law has been a prisoner-of-war in Germany for three years.

Machine Amputates Farmer's Fingers

LIFFORD LINE, Sept. 29—(ENS) Gordon Staples, who was helping to fill silos Wednesday at the farm of Clare Staples one concession north of Lifford had three fingers cut off his right hand when he slipped and caught his hand in the machine.

The men had been experiencing difficulties all day, only one load of corn being cut in by noon. The climax came at 5:15 when the knives of the cutting box were scraping the leger plate and Staples went to adjust them. He stood on a plank and lifted the inspection plate off. While so doing the plank which was wet slipped and he lost his balance. He grabbed for a hold at the top of the box and althought the engine was stopped the knives were still revolving. The little finger and the next two were completely severed. Mr. Staples was taken immediately to Lindsay Hospital for medical treatment.

Merchants Adopt Plan For Industry Canvass

A meeting of the Peterborough Businessmen's Association was held Thursday evening in the Chamber of Commerce office, designed to come to a decision of each city merchant's liability with respect to his contribution for the Memorial Community Centre.

Ian McCrae, Works Manager, C.G.E., was the guest speaker, and he outlined to the members the practical system for the breaking-down of each factory's assessment, in connection with its contribution.

This method was unanimously acceptable to every manufacturing plant in the city, and the same plan as outlined by Mr. McCrae was adopted by the Association.

It was decided that each merchant who has not as yet contributed the total of his assessment will be notified through the mails, which will be followed up by canvassers comprised of his fellow merchants.

A discussion of the problems confronting merchants, and the task of being assured of their contributions was made by the Association.

There will be an executive meeting Friday evening for further work on the subject. Vern Selkirk presided.

Pioneer Woman Recalls Early Havelock

HAVELOCK, Sept. 29—(ENS)—Congratulations were extended to Mrs. Beatrice Dewey, a pioneer resident of the village on the occasion of her 65th birthday on Tuesday, when friends and neighbors called at her home, George street, for afternoon tea.

Mrs. Dewey received, Mrs. W. Rice poured tea and Mrs. H. Hoard served. The chairs in the dining room used by the guests were over 160 years old.

Mrs. Dewey is a daughter of the late William Mathison and Agnes Bannon the village being built on the property owned by her father and his brother, the late Alexander Mathison. The dividing line was between the two farms running almost in the centre of the town. She has the honor of being the first baby girl born in what is now known as Havelock, there being at that time nothing but woods with footpaths here.

Recalls Early Days

The first store was situated at what is now called Old Havelock, and was operated by the late A. V. Fuller, who was also the postmaster. To make the journey to Norwood it was necessary to go to the concession lines at either end of the village which connected with the Marmora-Norwood road. It was in 1884 when the C.P.R. built the railroad through this district that other residents began to make their homes here.

Mrs Dewey's husband, the late Charles Dewey, passed away in 1938. They were married in 1912. Her only child, the late Mrs. Fred Hull (Agnes), of Stoney Lake, died suddenly in 1939. A stepdaughter Mrs. J. R. Wilson (Alice) resides in Flint, Mich.

Mrs. Dewey has three brothers, Postmaster Harold T. Mathison, Havelock, George in San Francisco and Archie in Aylmer West, Ontario.

Aimee McPherson's Body Lies In State

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 29.—(AP).—Followers of Aimee Semple McPherson prayed fervently in their Angelus Temple Watchtower on Wednesday upon learning of her death in Oakland, Calif.

"Bring her back — bring her back," implored a woman with crutches by her side.

"Make it not true," exclaimed others. "Restore her gift, Lord."

A hundred persons were gathered in the upper chambers of the Temple, where "prayer warriors" make incessant petitions for persons who have asked their intercession.

At nearby Hermosa Beach, the evangelist's 74 year old mother, Mrs. Minnie (Ma) Kennedy, from whom she was temporarily estranged over management of the Temple, disclosed she sent Mrs. McPherson $1,000 recently as the proceeds of a Canadian mortgage.

"Only God can help," Mrs. Kennedy commented.

At the Temple it was stated a burial plot had been provided in Forest Lawn Memorial Park, Glendale. Pending funeral services, the evangelist's body will lie in state in the Temple.

Election Race Is Bewildering

By C. R. BLACKBURN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Sept. 29.—(CP).—Political forecasters in Washington are getting cross-eyed trying to look so many ways at once before committing themselves.

President Roosevelt and Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, his Republican opponent in the Presidential election campaign, both have opened up barrages that invite typical, old-fashioned, peacetime campaigning.

But it is not peace time — far from it. The deplorable fact remains that a time when so much of the world's future depends upon the attitude of the United States the country should be torn by the animosities of a Presidential election campaign.

Thus we have had President Roosevelt at Quebec treating with Prime Minister Churchill on matters of the gravest import; matters which will come to a head perhaps after the Nov. 7 elections. Yet there is no certainty that after Nov. 7 Mr. Roosevelt will be in a position to speak for the United States.

Forecasters are getting cross-eyed because they have to look at the rapidly changing war picture and consider the chances of peace in Europe before voting, and at the various international gatherings, Quebec, U.N.R.R.A. and Dumbarton Oaks, and add up what it all means to the chances of the rival candidates.

Already there have been political charges that Mr. Churchill's second coming to Quebec to meet Mr. Roosevelt was nothing but a convenient method of boosting Roosevelt stock in the campaign.

Here and There in Sport

By The Canadian Press

Soccer returns to the continent this week-end, with British Internationals meeting a team representing France in Paris Saturday and playing Belgium in Brussels Sunday. The last games played in France took place four years ago, when a British army team met a French army side.

Mentor of the Brooklyn Dodgers next year will be Leo Durocher, who has managed the club since 1939 and who has signed a one-year contract for the 1945 season. This is the first year the Dodgers have been out of the first division since Durocher succeeded Burleigh Grimes as pilot.

A Winnipeg charitable institution will be the beneficiary of the east-west schoolboy football series to be played there Oct. 14 and 16, the western sportsmen sponsoring the series have announced. St. Michael's College of Toronto will oppose St. Paul's and St. John's Colleges of Winnipeg in the games.

Baseball Fight At London May Finish OBA

By The Canadian Press

Rules and regulations laid down by the Ontario Baseball Association may be meaningless to senior teams in the Inter-County League operating in Southwestern Ontario and the Niagara Peninsula next season unless a dispute between the league and parent body is patched up.

It's possible also that the O.B.A. will have some difficulty calling a meeting of all members if action isn't taken soon on an Association ruling last Wednesday night ordering a replay of the senior semi-final inter-county series between Windsor and London which, incidentally, London won.

The tangle between the two bodies was precipitated when the O.B.A. upheld a ruling of its sub-committee that London and Windsor replay their series because Hank Biasatti, 21 year old Canadian corporal, played on Sundays during the summer with Dufferins in the Detroit Baseball Federation and was on London's roster during the Windsor series.

On Thursday night, the executive of the Inter-County League met at Kitchener and decided to recommend at the annual meeting of members in November withdrawl of the league from the O.B.A. because of the "detrimental manner in which baseball has been administered by the O.B.A. this season."

Two Resign

At the meeting, A. R. McFadyen of Galt, member of the league and the O.B.A., re-affirmed a Wednesday-night decision to resign from the provincial body for their action, and W. G. Ward, immediate past-president of the O.B.A. and a member of the 1944 sub-committee, said at Niagara Falls that he had placed his resignation in the hands of Secretary W. J. Snyder of Hamilton.

McFayden and Ward both voted against the association's action Wednesday.

To further complicate matters, the executive of the Welland Senior Baseball Club, at a meeting in their hometown Thursday night, decided to play London Majors for the "real championship" of Ontario.

The Welland Club endorsed a resolution asking the O.B.A. to reconsider its stand and said Biasatti was being discriminated against since Windsor and Niagara Falls players engaged in Sunday baseball during the summer without interference by the provincial body.

Earlier Wednesday President W. F. Farquharson said London would not abide by the O.B.A. ruling and that arrangements had been completed for the Welland-London best-of-three series to be played Sept. 30 and Oct. 4. The dates coincide with those set by the O.B.A. for the Windsor-London replay.

Here's The Battle Everybody Wanted

WHIPPER BILLY WATSON

Karl Krippler Davis, the Texas bad man has been knocking so many of Promoter Tunney's mat stars around recently that the impressario has decided to give him a crack at the pick of the crop, Whipper Billy Watson. This is the battle everybody has been looking for, the most popular hero against the worst of the rowdies and they will meet here at Brock Street Arena Tuesday night in the main bout of the Tunney show.

LAWN BOWLING

By HERB MARTIN

Tonight at 7.30 o'clock men's rinks. Saturday 1.45 p.m., mixed rinks.

In both of these tournaments the draw will be from the board and the fee will be the same as usual. Phone your name in early. To anyone who wish to bowl, we say come on out tonight and tomorrow.

And the committee is hoping — weather permitting—to finish all games by not later than Tuesday evening.

After this week there will be only one green available. The east green is being prepared for the winter.

Mr. Gould Slips

NEW YORK, Sept. 29 (AP)—The Army said yesterday that Capt. Joseph Gould, identified by Army Public Relations as manager of James J. Braddock when he was heavyweight boxing champion, was under arrest charged with having conspired to influence the award of contracts involving more than $1,000,000 worth of army equipment.

SPORTS-Day by Day

By FRED D. CRAIG

Big Earl Revoir who has pitched the Military Training Centre to victory in two series in the competition for the championship of No. 3 Military District will be given the assignment against the Canadian Postal Corps team of Ottawa at Riverside Park at 2.30 p.m. tomorrow afternoon when the two teams meet in the first game of a best-of-three series for the district title. The second game will be played at the Military Training Centre diamond at 2 o'clock Sunday afternoon and if a third game should be required it will also be played on the same field later in the afternoon. From all accounts this Ottawa team is the strongest the Peterborough Soldiers have encountered in their battle for the military title but the local club is not letting the reputation of the visitors worry them. They are confident that they can repeat their performance against Barriefield Radar and Kingston R.C.O.C. and grab off the series from the powerful Postal team. There will be a real crowd of fans not only at Riverside Park tomorrow for the opening game but also for the Sunday card. Soldiers have a big following and local enthusiasts are right behind them in their fight to carry off the Military District championship.

The Memorial Health Centre scheme is being hailed by newspapers all over the country as one of the most comprehensive and far-reaching programs ever offered to a community in Peterborough's size group. It includes a complete sport layout that would move this city into the forefront of Canadian centres. In addition it provides for the building of a combined hockey arena and auditorium that would answer the demand here for modern facilities for Canada's national winter pastime and at the same time provide the accommodation so badly needed for conventions, carnivals and many other events. The scheme in fact meets so many needs that a dozen civic problems can be solved by putting the present campaign over the top. It is the finest opportunity that the citizens of any centre in the country have had presented to them and Peterborough would be short-sighted to an extreme if this chance were to be allowed to go by default. Make no mistake about it. If we fumble the ball now we are not likely to be within striking distance of an objective of this kind in the next decade. We have got to go over the line now or hand over the ball. There is no alternative.

Equal A Record

When Hal Newhouser blanked the Philadelphia A's Wednesday for his 28th victory of the season the feat enabled the left-hander and his pitching pal Dizzy Trout to equal a long standing record for a it gave the Detroit pair a mark of 55 wins this season matching the exploit of Jim Bagby and Stan Covaleski of the Cleveland Indians years ago. The Newhouser-Trout total of 55 wins passed the best performance of many better known pitching pairs and the $64 question right now is whether the Bengals' winning combination are really as great a pitching duo as the figures indicate or whether their showing is due in considerable measure to the fact that the opposition they have been facing falls considerably below pre-war standards. Certainly up to this season Newhouser and Trout have been run-of-the-mine twirlers and their previous record gives little indication that in 1944 they would blossom out into one of the greatest winning combinations in the annals of baseball. There will be plenty of arguments over the ability of the Detroit aces but they can't take away from them the fact that they have equalled a long-standing record and are likely to break it before the race ends Sunday.

Incidentally if the Tigers come through, and there seems to be little doubt of that, with a game lead and only four to go, the whole burden of stopping St. Louis Cards will fall upon the shoulders of Newhouser and Trout. A month ago this column would have said that the task would prove too much for the Detroit stars but in view of the long slump the Cards have been experiencing the chances of Newhouser and Trout to triumph over the National League champs are not so remote as they would have looked at the beginning of September. Of course there is always the possibility that the Cards will fire up just in time to go into the big series with the heat on and in that event the Tiger aces will find themselves with a tough problem on their hands. On paper and on the season's record the Cards have the edge on the American Leaguers and if they can regain the steam they had over most of the distance they should take the big series. The pitching of Cooper, Brecheen and Lanier, the consistent hitting of Stan Musial, Whitey Kurowski, Johnny Hopp, Ray Sanders and company and the sensational defensive work of lanky Marty Marion should do the trick.

Football Statistics

Jack Koffman of the Ottawa Citizen touches on a pet grievance of this column's in the following paragraph: "Football scoring statistics at their best mean very little. The man carrying the ball over the goal-line finds himself credited with five points but he would be the last person to claim he is fully entitled to them. The fellows along the line get no credit in the scoring table. They open gaping holes for the ball-carriers, make the scorer's task relatively simple but are completely ignored in the scoring figures. A club may travel 30 or 40 yards with one pass. It can cover the same distance with three or four plunges or an extension or two. The ball may be moved to the one-yard stripe yet only the man covering the last yard is recognized in the scoring table. That's why the fact that Joe Krol and Annis Stukus are the East's leaders with a dozen points apiece will not cause any eyebrow lifitng. Both are recognized as outstanding football players. As good as they are, however, they wouldn't go very far without eleven other fellows paving the way."

* * * * * *

Old Jupiter Pluvius got out an injunction against the American League clubs yesterday and not a game was played. The result is that double-headers will have to be staged today to pick up the slack for the schedule comes to an end on Sunday. St. Louis Browns, a game behind the Tigers, are faced with the task of staving off the Yanks but even that will not turn the trick for them if the Washington Senators cannot do anything about stopping the Tigers. In the National League the St. Louis Cards coasting along until the world series opens rested a bunch of their regulars and used a rookie pitcher Blix Donnelly, formerly of Rochester, to beat the New York Giants 2 to 0. Donnelly allowed the New Yorkers only five hits. Danny Litwhiler hit his 15th homer of the season for one of the two Cardinal runs.

O.B.A. President Gives Verdict

HAMILTON, Sept. 29—(CP)—President Herbert Bercsht of the Ontario Baseball Association said today that Welland Combines have been ordered to play Windsor in the finals for the Association title and if Welland fails to do this, Windsor will be declared champions.

The president's announcement followed refusal of the London club to replay its semi-final series with Windsor after First Baseman Hank Biasatti of London had been declared ineligible because he played Sunday ball in Detroit. Biasatti, native of Windsor, is a Canadian Army sergeant stationed at Chatham.

Whether the Welland club will play Windsor is not known here. It decided last night to play a series with London for the "real championship" of Ontario and Berscht said today the O.B.A. regards this as an exhibition series. He added that if the Welland club fails to meet Windsor it will be liable to suspension but declined to state definitely whether such action would be taken.

He did make it clear that the O.B.A. executive would not hold another meeting to discuss the situation.

Want Priority

DETROIT, Sept. 29 (AP)—Leaders of the Automobile industry appealed yesterday for a priority ahead of other civilian production for machines and tools, prompt delivery of which, they said, would help cut about three months from the period of unemployment during reconversion.

Weary Hurlers Welcome Bad Weather

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sports Writer

If it pours until Sunday night, Detroit Tigers could sit home by the fire and plan their world series strategy while the Browns, one game back, and the Yankees, three lengths out, rue lost opportunities.

All clubs are scheduled for doubleheaders after yesterday's complete washout but even another day of heavy dew wouldn't wash any games off the calendar for keeps. The same teams play one another the rest of the season four games and could make them up with twins on both Saturday and Sunday.

Steve O'Neill probably welcomes the downpour like a share cropper in a drought as it gave him time to rest his weary pitching staff. No extra delay came to Dizzy Trout or Hal Newhouser because Trout was still slated to work one tilt today. But Rufe Gentry, scheduled to go with only two days rest the second straight time, got an extra 24 hours before the pair with Washington whom the Bengals have chewed 15 times in 18 starts.

In the East, St. Louis Cardinals were polishing off some unfinished business with the Giants and getting lined up for Wednesday's opener in Sportsman's Park. Billy Southworth took Stan Musial, Walker Cooper, Ray Sanders and Marty Marion out for a rest yesterday and only used Johnny Hopp in the last of the ninth as Rookie Blix Donnelly blitzed New York 2-0 with five hits.

Ray Mueller set an all-time major league record by catching his 152nd game in Cincinnati's 10-6 romp over Brooklyn. Leo Durocher learned just before game time he had been named to boss the Dodgers in 1945 but his joy was short lived as the Reds scored nine runs in the fourth. Other National Leaguers were not scheduled.

Frankie Hayes of the A's can also pass out Ray Schalk's old catching record if he ups his total to 152 by catching both games in Cleveland.

Hamilton Wildcats Meet Trojans In Saturday's Football Program

(By The Canadian Press)

Saturday's four-game football program in Ontario may provide the answers to some of the questions which have been puzzling the always-eager gridiron fans.

One is whether the Hamilton Wildcats are as good as the 35-0 whitewashing of Toronto Indians last week would indicate. The Wildcats have a chance to provide that answer in their Ontario Rugby Football Union game with Ottawa Trojans, in Ottawa. Trojans demonstrated strength on the field by whipping Verdun Grads of the Quebec Rugby Football Union 36-6 in an exhibition game last week. But the Grads had no Joe Krol, Bill O'Breza, Paul Miovinovich, Jimmy Simpson or anyone like them and the real test for the Trojans also comes tomorrow.

Another question concerns Toronto's two O.R.F.U. teams—Indians and Beaches—who play in Toronto. Beaches, bolstered by the addition of Dean Griffing from Regina, likewise have a strong team on paper. The game may show whether Indians are as bad as their 35-0 loss at Hamilton last week would indicate or whether Beaches will offer any real threat to the Wildcats this year.

Hagersville R.C.A.F. Bombers—regarded in pre-season paper dope as the team to beat in the Armed Services Football League—have serious opposition at Hamilton in the Toronto Navy Bulldogs led by Leading Seaman Annis Stukus who tallied 12 points last week to lead the Bulldogs to a 22-6 victory over Camp Borden R.C.A.F. Hurricanes. Leadership in the league is the chief issue at stake in this game, as Hagersville also won its first start with a point in the last few minutes giving them an 8-7 edge over St. Thomas last Saturday.

The final question is whether an extra week's training has brought the Hurricanes up to their expected form. They meet St. Thomas at London and the losing team will be in the Services League cellar.

Recreation Centre To Open Saturday

Another milestone in Peterborough's war effort will be passed Saturday afternoon when the new recreation centre for servicemen on Charlotte street is officialy opened at 3 o'clock in a brief ceremony.

Col. G. W. Peacock, chief secretary of the Salvation Army for Canada, Alaska, Newfoundland and Bermuda will preside and will be accompanied by Major Harold Wellman, inspector for War Services in the Dominion, who will pray. Mayor James Hamilton will bring greetings from the city; Col. William Dray, secretary for war services for the Dominion, will bring greetings and the dedicatory prayer will be made by Lt-Col. R. Spooner, S.A. divisional commander of the Toronto district.

The hightlight of the ceremony will be when Lt.-Col. James Turnbull, officer commanding the Training Centre, will turn the key in the new recreation centre, and then hand it over to Adjutant Velma Graham, who will be in charge. Following this there will be a short program inside when Miss Marie Kearns, representing the senior hostesses, will sing "Bless This House," and the Peterborough Temple Silver Band will provide music.

During Saturday afternoon, Sunday afternoon and evening, the Centre is holding open house and Adjutant Graham has invited the people of Peterborough to drop in and become acquainted with the Centre. Sunday evening there will be a singsong and the Temple Songsters will give a program.

TORONTO, Sept. 29 (CP) — The baseball season should have ended in Toronto when Leafs were knocked out of the playoffs by Newark Bears but no one would blame President Pete Campbell if he thought the battle was only starting.

The diminutive Campbell, president for two seasons and now believed to be principal owner of the Leafs, is being bombarded by fans who think he ruined the club when he fired Manager Burleigh Grimes and Red Kress, coach, utility player and most popular man on the team.

The fans have been waiting for weeks for the full story of the clash between Campbell and Grimes and now that they have it a good proportion have decided Campbell went out on a limb when he fired Grimes, who made a hustling ball club out of a flock of mediocre players and brought them into the playoffs for two years.

It was developed that Campbell has been in control of the club since August when he bought out the interest of Percy Gardiner, Toronto financier. He and Grimes have been at odds for some time but Campbell waited until the playoff stage before he handed Burleigh his walking papers.

Campbell, it seems, had not only been fed up on Grimes but on an organization known as the Boosters some of whom attempted to run the club. The Boosters disappeared in a Campbell purge some time before the axe fell on Grimes.

Pete carried on the latter part of the season with the fans, Grimes and a few others taking pot shots at him, not to mention the departure of several players who took it on the lam before the playoffs, presumably because they weren't satisfied with their cuts.

Campbell, who has no baseball background, draws the ire of the fans for that reason among others but the fact is that he has brought prosperity to the club in two seasons and figures to emerge from his present spot to do it again.

When Annis Stukus drove Navy Bulldogs to a 22-6 victory over Camp Borden Hurricanes last Saturday he emphasized the Toronto Star sports department's contribution to Navy sports life in Toronto. Stuke is one of several sports writers on the Toronto daily who have chosen the Navy for their service. Ed Fitkin of the Star and Hal Walker of the Globe and Mail, are running the H.M.C.S. York Bulldog, the station newspaper, and Fitkin took time out from reporting the game Saturday to superintend the lovelies who lead the Navy cheering section.

Other Toronto sports writers who are in the Navy are Gord Walker, the Star and Scott Young, The Canadian Press, now overseas, and Alan Harvey CP, struggling with Morse at St. Hyacinthe, Que., training station.

It was nice to discover that the Capt. Keith Saunders who recently won the M.C. is none other than "Peanuts" Saunders, well-known as an athlete around Ottawa. "Peanuts"—pardon, Capt. Saunders—played snap for Ottawa Rough Riders until a broken shoulder put him out of action, and was prominent as a skier and oarsman at the capital.

Charge Against Mayor Adjourned For Week

MATTAWA, Ont., Sept. 29 (CP)—Gambling charges against Mayor Art Valois, Chief Constable Frank C. McDonald and Ernest Dore, all of Mattawa, were adjourned for one week when they were called in Mattawa police court Wednesday afternoon.

The charges, laid by Provincial Constable S. Berard, Mattawa, were in connection with the operation of a Crown and Anchor game on the main street in Mattawa several days ago. That game and one of Bingo were being operated, it was stated, to obtain the nucleus of a fund for the creation of a war memorial in Mattawa.

H. J. Reynolds, K.C., North Bay, is defense counsel and prosecutor is Crown Attorney E. A. Tilley, K.C., North Bay. Adjournment was ordered by Magistrate M. G. Gould of North Bay.

EINDHOVEN DUTCH WAVE WELCOME TO BRITISH TROOPS — Colorfully-dressed girls of Eindhoven, Holland, gave this cheery welcome to British troops who entered this city following their parachute descent behind the German lines.

Army Scavenger Hunters Corner Mayor James Hamilton In Hunt For Articles

A scavenger-hunt, in which everything from a D-Day Examiner to Mayor Hamilton's autograph was needed to win the prizes, was a featured part of a night of entertainment concocted Wednesday evening by the CWAC girls of the training centre, for a group of soldiers also stationed there. Residents in many parts of the city were frankly wondering, when one after another, soldiers and CWAC's came to the door, enquiring after such out-of-the-way objects as a red hot poker and pair of ladies' spats.

Twice a month, the girls think up some form of entertainment for an invited group of soldiers, to be had right in the camp recreation room, and this week, the scavenger-hunt, always a favorite, was on the menu.

The boys and girls came out on the streets close to nine o'clock, and started the search for objects designed to put a smile on even the grouchiest face. Before 10 o'clock, they were scheduled to be back at the camp, and the winning members would win the prizes. They were divided into teams, six to a team, and five teams altogether. Each team was given a list of objects to be hunted, and the search was on.

Shortly after, a staunch group of hunters invaded the Examiner office, to get a June 6, D-Day paper. The lone reporter on duty at the time could only scare up one copy, and the invasion forces beat a hasty retreat from the Examiner, to the telephone company, looking next for a 1942 telephone directory.

One couple, being asked by a passer-by what was going on, replied, "It's a scavenger-hunt", adding cheerily, "just like looking for Easter Eggs".

Get Their Man

A clever rear-guard action brought a group to Mayor Hamilton's residence . . . with the object, an autograph. Finding the mayor just on the verge of going out, nothing daunted, the soldier and CWAC came away with the desired signature.

Nobody turned in a pair of ladies' spats, officials told the Examiner this morning. "Maybe they're off the market, because if there had been any, someone would have ferreted it out!"

Some of the CWAC girls asked to go on the hunt, had never taken part in this particular fun-fest before, and naturally, were quite in the dark about barging into a residence asking for a "red-haired bobby-pin". One girl is reported to have wished to change clothes, since "going through garbage cans is a dirty job, isn't it?"

Co-operation

However, the boys and girls had a great time, and the citizens of the city fell into the spirit of the game, and co-operated to the best of their ability.

After the hunt, when the soldiers and girls disengaged themselves from further action and retreated to the camp, hot-dogs and coffee were waiting, after which, dancing was the feature of the evening.

Oh yes, the prizes? For the six winning members, each received a delightfully flavored all-day lollipop!

Paper Claims English Officer Wants To Resign

LONDON, Sept. 29—(CP)—The Maidenhead Advertiser published a letter yesterday over the name of Capt. William Douglas-Home of the Royal Armored Corps saying he had refused to fight at Le Havre, and had sought to resign his commission.

"When ordered to attack Le Havre, I refused to do so because rightly or wrongly I could not bring myself to take part in an operation against troops who admittedly did not want to fight, but whose commander refused to accept unconditional surrender," said the letter.

The newspaper said the letter was written from Tas de Calais Sept. 17.

The younger son of the 13th Earl of Home, Captain Douglas-Home was defeated in a by-election last April when he ran as an Atlantic Charter candidate in a Derbyshire district. He then said he would return to the army "to fight a war which I no longer consider just."

Lift Travel Ban

OTTAWA, Sept. 29 — (CP) — Restrictions on service travel to the United States, imposed Sept. 3 on account of the spread of polio in that country, will be lifted Sept. 29, it was announced yesterday.

Scouts Prepare Events For Yearly Jamboree

The Scouts and Cubs of Peterborough and district will hold their annual Jamboree on the Scout grounds just north of Lock 22, above Nassau on Saturday.

The first records go back to 1937 when this annual event was held in Lakefield. It was held one or two years previous to that on the grounds of the Canadian General where the ski jump was built. Many visitors of note were at those meets and groups from Port Hope, Lindsay, Campbellford, Bowmanvile, Cobourg, Lakefield, Cannington, Bobcaygeon, Little Britain and Picton were regular attenders at the week-end event.

When first arranged the Jamboree was held on May 24 with many of the groups campaign on the grounds one or two days ahead. In 1939 Lindsay invited the district to hold the Jamboree on the Fair Grounds of that town and a real turn out was on hand to support them. In 1940, all arrangements were drawn up to hold the Jamboree on the C.G.E. grounds but days of rain preceded it. Commissioner John Hornsby accompanied by Assistants Wolff and Grant went to the grounds and found them under water. A quick switch was made with the consent of the Hydro, to the present property.

Hut Built

Since then, a lease has been taken and a Hut built on the grounds. Plans are being made to better the present building and also parts of the ground for permanent use as a training and camping centre.

So this year, the Scouts are on the job again. The war regulations abolishing May 24 as a holiday led to postponement of the event and also gas regulations and tire worries have cut many of the out of town groups from the attendance list. However, invitations have been sent out to groups in Lindsay, Hastings, Marmora and Millbrook and it is hoped that they will be able to attend. The sports as arranged are not made for definite competition but rather to help those boys participating to build up the real sense of the Scout spirit.

Last year, for the first time, the Bill Coleman Memorial Trophy was awarded to the Cub Pack getting the most points and was won on a narrow margin by St. John's Pack of which the late Bill Coleman was once Cub leader.

Jamboree Events

Most of the events run off are planned along the Cub and Scout badge tests with some fun tests to make the day worth while with the Camp Fire program as a grand climax to the whole affair. The Cub events are, Knot relay, Leap Frog, Hopping Obstacle race, Book Balancing, Skin and Snake and Caterpillar race, whilst the Scout events embrace, Skin and Snake, Pillow fight, Message Relay, Tub Tilting, Tent Pitching, and Fire lighting.

One of the main events of the day is the Beal Trophy race for which eight Scouts with complete uniform make up the team. This cup was presented to Scouting by Mr. Beal of Lindsay and many close races have been run for its covered possession. It cannot be won outright and may be challenged for after one week from it being awarded to any one team. If the holder does not accept the challenge without reasonable excuse for not doing so, it is immediately awarded to the challenger.

The parents of the Cubs and Scouts are urged to attend this Jamboree and help the Pack or Troop with its transportation problems. Soft drinks, chocolate and hot dogs will be sold on the grounds.

Wounded Men From Overseas Want To Forget

KINGSTON, Sept. 29 — Twelve soldiers of Military District No. 3, who returned to their homeland on Monday aboard the British hospital ship Aba, arrived here early this morning.

Some of the men had their wounds of battle swathed in bandages, others were in casts, grim reminders of bloody engagements which they wished to forget.

Pte. L. L. Brenton, of Warkworth, who captured a German sergeant-major and several other prisoners while searching a small French village, lost his right leg when an enemy mortar bomb exploded near him while he and other Canadians were making an attack south of Caen. Among his prisoners was a young Russian lad, who had been detailed to dig trenches for the Nazis. The trenches, said Pte. Brenton, were well filled with food and warm blankets.

Warm Welcome

Under the new arrangements drawn up by Military District No. 3, headquarters and civic officials, relatives were able to greet returning soldiers both at Fort Frontenac and Kingston Military Hospital.

Mayor C. L. Boyd welcomed the soldiers home on behalf of the city of Kingston, and wished them every success in their future efforts.

Relatives expressed themselves as extremely pleased with the splendid arrangements prepared to enable them to have a reunion with their returned soldier when he arrived in Kingston.

Following are a list of the personnel who returned to Kingston on the hospital train this morning. The first six were admitted to Kingston Military Hospital, while the others were cleared through No. 3-A District Depot and allowed to proceed to their homes:

Pte. L. L. Brenton, Warkworth; Gnr. M. E. Brisbin, Plainville; Gnr. J. C. F. C Graham, Orono; Pte. I. V. McLean, Brockville; Pte. J. P. McManus, Jellyby; Cpl. H. Wilson, Kingston, Ont.; Gnr. W. H. Barnes, R.R. No. 3, Gananoque; Pte. D. M. Caban, 543 Park street, Peterborough; Pte. G. Aylesworth, Belleville; Sgt. T. Donaldson, Kingston; Gnr. M. L. Hancock, R.R. No. 1, Oakwood; Sgt. H. A. O'Byrne, Cornwall.

CWL Convention Held In Lindsay

LINDSAY, Sept. 29—(Special to the Examiner) — Addressing the Catholic Women's League Diocesan convention here Wednesday, Hon. P. N. Dewan, stressed the importance of rural communities to national life. He emphasized the necessity of keeping rural communities intact and of making farm life more attractive. The future of Canada, he stated, lay in agriculture and it was pioneer farmers who had welded the country together.

The convention opened at St. Mary's Church with a guard of honor being formed by pupils of St. Dominic's School for His Excellency Bishop J. R. MacDonald of Peterborough.

The celebrant of the Pontifical High Mass was Bishop MacDonald, the assistant priest, Very Rev. J. V. McAuley, the Deacons of Honour, Rev. V. McFadden and Rev. L. Cleary, the Deacon of the Mass, Rev. W. P. Meagher and the sub-deacon, Rev. J. Walsh. The masters of ceremony were Rev. C. Kay and Rev. F. Marrocco. An inspiring sermon was preached by Rev. J. P. Collins on the subject of the Christian home, and the important part played therein by good mothers.

The convention sessions were held in the K. of C. committee rooms. After the registration of delegates, Mrs. T. P. Fox, president of the local sub-division extend a welcome to visitors, her address being followed by one from Very Rev. J. V. McAuley. On behalf of Mayor C. Lamb, Reeve R. Butler extended cordial greetings from the town of Lindsay.

Honorary Members

The morning session was concluded with a luncheon in the Benson House and speakers were Most Rev. J. R. MacDonald, Captain the Rev. F. Grant, D.D., Rev. W. P. Meagher, Capt. the Rev. J. McGuire, Mrs F. Lynch, Mrs. Butler and Miss M. R. Parker. Mrs. Bowen brought greetings from Washington, D.C.

In the afternoon the reports from the various sub-divisions were read as also those of diocesan conveners. All the reports were interesting and gave evidence of the excellent work accomplished during the year. A pleasant feature of the afternoon was the conferring of honorary life membersships on George O'Sullivan, Campbellford, and Miss M. R. Baker, Lindsay. In the elction for the diocesan executive the following officers were chosen: President, Mrs. T. P. Fox, Lindsay; vice-presidents, Miss M. R. Baker of Lindsay, Mrs. Gus Torpey of Douro, Mrs. George Hynes, Peterborough; recording secretary, Miss L. Hurley, Peterborough; corresponding secretary, Mrs. F. Callaghan, Lindsay; treasurer, Mrs. Bulger, Cobourg.

After the elections were completed and the new executive installed a handsome gift was presented to Mrs. Lynch, the retiring president, by Miss Marlene O'Neill.

MISSING

Pilot Officer Arnold Johnson, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Johnson, of Haliburton, has been officially reported missing from operations overseas.

KILLED IN ACTION

Rfn. Southey Hall Thurston, the son of Mrs. Emma Thurston of Bobcaygeon, has been killed in action fighting with a British Columbia Regiment, the Canadian Army's casualty list revealed today.

SMALL WORLD

Two Lindsay boys who think it's a small world are Joe Begkey, son of Thomas Begkey, and Douglas Lamb, son of Charles Lamb, who, while serving in Canada's forces in France, met quite unexpectedly at a dance in Belgium.

GRIM MOMENT

Sent out to a bank during business hours, a girl employed in a Charlotte Street office decided to stop in for a snack at one of the city's coffee-drinkers' haunts, and comfortably seated herself— right next to her employer. She left in a hurry.

FIGHTING IN BELGIUM

Pte. Frank Buller, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Buller, 272 Simcoe street, is now in Belgium, according to a letter received by his parents. He went overseas in July and has been attached to the Lake Superior Regiment. Prior to enlisting, he was employed at Adamson & Dobbin, and he writes that he is fine and having a good time.

LINDSAY BOY KILLED

In France only a short time, Tpr. John H. Hardy, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. Hardy, 30 Glenelg street, has been officially reported killed in action September 14, his parents have been notified. Not yet 19 years of age, the young soldier enlisted in May 1943, and went overseas in February of this year. He was formerly employed by the Canadian Pacific Telegraph Company in Lindsay.

NOT SUCCESSFUL

Peterborough is showing neighbouring places up in the matter of the recent salvage collection of waste paper. The director of the Ontario Salvage Division has congratulated this city on the fine job which was done, but a report from Bowmanville indicates that that town's campaign is not coming up to expectations.

LONG TRIP

A large black drake was brought down by Jack Wade, R.R. 11, while shooting near Rice Lake Thursday afternoon, and at first it was believed to be one of Jack Miner's birds. A closed examination of the band on the bird revealed it was sent out from the Biological Survey of Washington, D.C. The band number was 40-74405 and the band indicated it had been sent out in 1940.

INDUSTRIAL FINALS

Quakers and Brintons will meet in the second game of the Industrial League finals at the Brinton field at 5:45 o'clock this evening. Quakers took the opening game in the series.

VOTE OF THANKS

"For his very valuable information," the finance committee of the council extended a vote of appreciation to T. A. Lister, C.G.E. safety engineer, Thursday night for his suggestions, arising out of the approach of "safety week."

HOLD FIRST MEETING

The Y's Men's Club opened its 1944-45 season Thursday evening with a meeting under the chairmanship of its new president, Robert Simmons. A donation of $250 to the Community Centre was voted, and committee heads for the year were selected.

NO TIME

Pte. F. R. Page, the first Peterborough and district man to be repatriated from imprisonment in Germany, arrived in Peterborough Thursday evening without the familiar red patch on his shoulder. Asked why, he replied he had not enough time to put one up when he was overseas, and that he received one upon reaching Canada, that he would wear.

NO PLASTIC PLATES

Although the uses of plastic for dinner ware and other kitchen purposes will undoubtedly be widespread after the war, merchants specializing in dishes report they have had no inquiries from patrons wishing plastic plates. Even if there were any requests, as far as is known, there have been no plastic plates offered to trade yet, although other utilities are made with the new material.

WILSONS COLLIDE

Cars driven by Gerard H. Wilson, 481 Wellington street, and Rex Wilson, 563 Walnut street, were damaged in a collision at Park and Sherbrooke streets. Rex Wilson had been travelling south on Park street and was about to make a left turn into Sherbrooke street when Gerard Wilson's car, also moving south on Park street met in collision with the other vehicle.

FINISH COURSE

Three non-commissioned officers of Peterborough Reserve units returned Thursday night from a motion picture projectionist course held at Reserve Army district headquarters, Kingston. They are Sgt. Majors C. H. Chapman and James Miller of the Prince of Wales Rangers and Sgt. Major James Crain of the 4th Battery. The course is the outgrowth of the Reserve Army's policy of making greater use of films for training purposes.

Salvage Director Lauds Peterborough

A letter of thanks and congratulations to the people of Peterborough for the success of the September 21 one-day waste-paper drive, has been received by Mrs. R. Whalon, chairman of the campaign, from James C. Gray, Provincial Superviser, National Salvage Campaign.

The letter says in part "We were greatly pleased to learn of results of your most recent paper drive. Every pound was most acceptable, and may we add, the situation due to sudden heavy overseas requirements is still very critical."

Mr. Gray wrote that the response of the citizens of Peterborough to the appeal made, proves conclusively they realize the seriousness of the situation, and also that they will continue to meet every urgent situation with which they become acquainted.

"Please convey to the citizens of Peterborough," he wrote, "to the city council, men who helped, contributors of trucks the newspaper, and all others associated with you in this drive, the sincere thanks of this division of the Department of National War Services."

Obituary

MRS. JOHN McCOMBE

Amelia Louise Mallory, widow of the late John McCombe of Millbrook died at her home, 503 Stewart street this morning after a long illness in her 83rd year.

Mrs. McCombe who had lived here for the past seven years, coming to Peterborough from Millbrook where she lived most of her life had been active until last December in church affairs at St. James' United Church and in St. Andrew's United, Millbrook, previously.

She was born in Kendall, Durham county, and was the daughter of the late Alban Mallory and Maria Robinson.

London's Mayor Sends Thanks For Cabled Gift

Genuine thanks for deeds of goodness always make the donors feel that there is a real appreciation of their gifts, and might also be said to offer encouragement of similar worthy deeds while the need is still known to exist.

Throughout the course of the operations of the Peterborough and District British War Victims' Fund, which has solicited aid to relieve the distress of the sufferers from enemy air raids and robot bomb attacks for nearly four years, every single gift forwarded by it to the Lord Mayor's National Air Raid Distress Fund, has been fully acknowledged both by a cable and a personal letter from the Lord Mayor who happened to be the incumbent of the office at the time of its despatch.

Another of these personal letters of thanks has come to hand from Sir Frank Newson-Smith, the present Lord Mayor, whose term of office will expire in about a month's time, expressing his thanks for the gift of £500 cabled to him on August 24, accompanied by official receipt No. 106908, itself an indication of just how widespread has been the support given to this fund.

Since this letter very much concerns all those who so kindly assisted in making the gift possible, a portion of its text is given herewith, that all be acquainted with this further expression from the Lord Mayor, which reads as follows: "I am very grateful for this further generous gift from the citizens of Peterborough and District, and will be glad if my warm and sincere thanks can once again be conveyed to your citizens for the very practical way in which they express their sympathy for those who have suffered as a result of enemy air raids."

In the years to come, these letters will form valuable souvenir's of a patriotic and humanitarian endeavor by the citizens of this part of the Empire, well worth retaining in the archives for future reminiscences of a worthy effort to assist the fight now being waged for all that people in a democratic country hold dear.

Regent Foto Nite

From time to time money has come in to assist the fund through Jack Marshall as master of ceremonies at the Regent Theatre Foto Nite held on Monday's of each week. The latest ingenious stunt which brought $5.00 to the fund, came as the result of the efforts of Doreen Sullivan, Lillian Rose, Violet Payne and Jean Harvie of the Package Dept. of the Quaker Oats Co. Ltd. who had to eat a real juicy ice cream sundae with the four spoons tied together close enough that hardly enough elbow room was left to operate in, and of course there was much fun, which is all the further enhanced by the good the money will do for those in need.

Then a gift that practically comes into the list of personals, is also included in today's returns from C. Kitney and Sons, for an amount of $10.00, and in making the gift, young Mr. Kitney told of how a close relative in London working on a fire fighting crew, had recently written to say how much more devastating were the robot bomb attacks, as compared with those of the great blitz of 1940 and 1941.

It is hoped that a list of personal gifts will appear in the forepart of next week, there now being five of such on hand for that purpose.

Detroit Driver Bailed On Reckless Count

Eugene Schlenkert, Detroit, Mich., was bailed for trial at the General Sessions of the Peace in police court this morning after a preliminary inquiry before Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., into a charge against him of reckless driving in connection with a fatal accident on the Warsaw Road in the late afternoon of Labor Day.

Bailment was consented to by J. F. Strickland, K.C., acting for the accused after the evidence of one crown witness had been heard. Bail was fixed at $3,000.

Provincial Constable Price Morris who investigated the crash supplied the evidence. He said that a map of the scene of the accident prepared by John W. Pierce and put in as an exhibit showed accurately the locale. A photograph of the scene was also put in.

Constable Morris said that Schlenkert had been the driver of the car involved in the accident. Mrs. Felix Courneya had been killed in the crash and Schlenkert himself and a number of other persons were injured.

"From your experience in investigating such accidents was there any evidence from the indications as to speeding," asked Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry, K.C.

"There was," said Constable Morris, adding that marks on the road showed that from the point from where the car had first left the travelled portion of the road to where it turned over in the ditch the distance was 174 ft. 7 inches. There were indications that for the last 119 feet 6 inches of that distance, after it had struck a small post, the car travelled with its right hand wheels over the side of the road until it eventually turned over.

"It was a modern car with good brakes and the indications were that it had been travelling very fast," said the officer in concluding his evidence.

Mr. Strickland did not cross-examine Constable Morris. Schlenkert, in answer to the customary warning from the court, said that he had no statement to make and Mr. Strickland announced that the defence would not call any evidence at this stage.

Defence counsel intimated that he would consent to bailment for trial and Crown Attorney McElderry also agreed to that course.

Aldermen On Lookout For Surplus Funds

In the hope of channelling toward the city hospital project any available municipal funds that are standing idle instead of shining in use, the finance committee of the council Thursday night appointed its acting chairman, Alderman Ovens, Alderman Sands and Mayor Hamilton a special committee to interview commissions and any other custodians of monies ultimately belonging to the citizens.

The motion by Alderman Bradburn was seconded by Alderman Sands, and was inspired in the beginning by Mayor Hamilton, who mentioned especially the surplus of the Utilities Commission. Incidentally His Worship said the restrictions directed by the Hydro-Electric Commission should be substantially moderated and broadened for advantage of the people who were creating surpluses by setting up electric, gas, waterworks services to be operated for them.

Members of the council refer to a surplus in the Utilities Commission's waterworks department, and they have been previously considering the surplus of the City Trust Commission. The finance committee directed their sub-committee Thursday night to ask for interviews with the several commissions and explain to them the desirability of obtaining for the proposed civic hospital funds which would lighten the incidence of its cost on the ratepayers.

Percy A. Crane Dies Suddenly

Peterborough friends of Percy A. Crane will deeply regret the news of his death in Toronto on Thursday.

Mr. Crane was born here, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. William E. Crane, and went into newspaper work on the Examiner more than thirty years ago. From that experience he joined the financial news department of the Toronto Globe and after a year or more transferred to the MacLean Publishing Company with whom he remained as a valued member of news and advertising staffs until a partial but incapacitating attack of paralysis five years ago compelled his retirement from active duty.

It was learned from Toronto today that Mr. Crane had recently been about his home and nearby district even up to Thursday morning, and that death had come suddenly.

Mr. Crane is survived by his sisters, Jessie, Hazel and Eva M. Crane, and his brothers, Charles and William Harold. Funeral service will be held in Toronto Saturday at 1 p.m., and interment will be in the Little Lake Cemetery, Peterborough, on the arrival of motors about 4.30 p.m.

Death For Christian To Not Approach God

Dr. Nathan Cohen Beskin, internationally known prophetic speaker, brought a thrilling message from Genesis 24:58, "I Will Go." The story of Isaac and his bride Rebecca was made anew.

Dr. Beskin said "Once it was certain death for a Jew to approach God except at certain stated occasions; but now it is death for a Christian to not approach God at anytime." He spoke of Abraham as a beautiful type of the Father in Heaven. He had a son that was obedient and carried the equipment for the sacrifice. There on the mountain Abraham obeyed God and prepared the sacrifice of Isaac, then God came and stayed his hand from killing his son. On the very same mountain, 2,000 years to the day and hour, God gave His Son in sacrifice on the cross.

Mrs. M. J. Shadgett sang a solo as well as Roy Wilfong.

Dr. Beskin announced his subjects for tonight "World Events in the light of Bible Prophecy" This is in the Bethany Tabernacle at 8 p.m. Saturday night in the Collegiate Auditorium he will give his famous message on "Russia." Sunday afternoon he will tell "His Life Story" and will be dressed in his Rabbi robes.

Note Of Delay Sounded For City Hall

"It will be three years before the council will have a new city hall to move into," said Mayor Hamilton in finance committee discussion Thursday night. It was one of those expressions that float above the immediate subject, but it reached the press table as a opinion emerging more clearly from month to month.

In fact, listening to the council's approaches to various problems, and there is a heap of them at Simcoe and Water, on imagines that a five year plan culminating with Peterborough centenary of its municipal incorporation in 1950 may be nearer to the shape and destiny of certain civic things in the making than may be imagined at present.

Mayor Hamilton posed a question Thursday night as to modernity of proposed "layout of the offices and study be given to this phase of the planning, especially what might be termed the "pooling" of clerical and stenographic staffs, instead of their present attachment to separate civic departments without provision for their moving from one to another as might be at times required.

City Treasurer Shaver told the committee of a firm of experts in Chicago who are consultants in matters pertaining to office efficiency. Alderman Bradburn suggested that an enquiry be made as to their fees, scope of work and other details for the guidance of the council with respect to Mayor Hamilton's proposal of study of departmental distribution.

Memorial Drive Canvass Is Disappointing

The campaign of the Peterborough Memorial Community Centre stands far from reaching its objective of $225,000 as the end of the second week of the drive draws near; and speculation has it that it is more than likely that the drive will be extended into the first week of October. Today announced figures gave total contributions as $142,458, an increase of $5,269 over the previous day.

Only the manufacturers section and the special names and retail division showed any appreciable changes in their totals. Manufacturers have added another $3,000 bringing their donations within 90 per cent of the goal of $100,000; while $2,063 was the increase in the special names and retail canvass.

The average contribution of plant employees to the Community Centre fund is $7.53. Late reports have not been received from most of the industries and show little change over figures published two days ago.

A contribution of $1,000 was voted by the Kinsmen Club at their meeting Thursday night; and the Y's Men's Club, which originally determined on a donation of $100 to the Centre, increased the amount of their gift to $250. It was also reported two contributions of $10 apiece had been received from H. A. Shearer and W. W. Shearer of Buckhorn.

The canvass at the Quaker Oats Co., now nearly complete, shows a total of $4,001 collected from 463 employees, which comes to an average of nearly $9 a person. Here are other industrial canvass reports as they apeared Friday morning:

From 40 employees at B. F. Ackerman's, $75; Brinton Carpet Co., $730 from 114; Canada Packers, $1,197 from 137; C.G.E., $17,164 from 2,381; Canadian Nashua Paper Co., $536 from 68; Canadian Sealright, $340 from 33; Raybestos, $353 from 45; Colonial Weaving, $209.75 from 63; De Laval, $1,058.25 from 174; Dominion Woollens, $388 from 65; Outboard Marine, $2,346 from 307; Peterborough Canoe, $228 from 36; Examiner, $321 from 34; Peterborough Lock Co., $570 from 94; Peterborough Lumber, $300 from 21; and Peterborough Utilities, $294 from 47.

Manufacturers	$100,000	$ 90,850
Employees Canvass.	70,000	35,600
Special Names and Retail Merchants.	40,000	13,780

Softball Fans Get Two Special Games

Peterborough fans will see two good softball battles at Riverside Park Saturday afternoon, for in addition to the first game of the military playoffs between Canadian Postal Corps, Ottawa, and the local Military Training Centre which will be played at 2:30 o'clock, Belleville and Toronto juniors will meet in an O.A.S.A. junior semi-final game at the same park immediately after the military fixture. This is the game originally scheduled here for Wednesday and rained out. Belleville won the first game of the series in Toronto and the Queen City team evened it up with a victory in Belleville. Now it is all up to tomorrow's games here. The winner plays Windsor in the Ontario finals.

School Children Promised Holiday Treat

Nicholls Oval will be the scene of a County Day Picnic for Young Peterborough next Wednesday afternoon, when Group Capt. Bell-Irving, commandant of the Trenton Air Station, presents a plaque in recognition of the splendid efforts of the pupils of urban and rural schools of Peterborough County in purchasing sufficient War Savings stamps to pay for a Hurricane fighter.

The campaign, which extended from February to June of this year, saw school children pile up purchases of War Savings stamps in excess of $25,000, the goal of the drive. As pupils of the public schools in the city bought the largest amount of stamps, K. S. Wightman, inspector of public schools, has been selected to receive the plaque on behalf of the boys and girls.

The program, which will mean a half-holiday for school children, is to get underway at 2 o'clock; and arrangements are being made to transport a large number of rural pupils into the city for the occasion. R. F. Downey, inspector of public schools for Peterborough-Victoria, will be master of ceremonies; and Quirt McKinney will lead in community singing.

A fine program of music and entertainment has been planned for the children, with three bands at the Oval, a performance by the Y.W.C.A. girls and an act by a ventriloquist. With the kind permission of Group Capt. Bell-Irving, the R.C.A.F. band from Trenton will come up for the afternoon; and the bugle bands of the Prince of Wales Rangers and the Peterborough squadron of Air Cadets will also be on hand.

NOTICE

Under the regulations of the Building By-law of the City of Peterborough no builder or owner shall start any work within the fire limits without first having secured a building permit from the Building Inspector. Outside the fire limits no permit is required for a small job costing less than $25.00. There is no charge for issuing a permit.

No contractor shall start any work without making sure that a permit has been issued. In case of infraction of this By-law both the owner and the contractor are held responsible.

Compliance with the above will save owners and contractors a great deal of trouble.

Red Cross Group Sends Shipment

NORWOOD, Sept. 29.—(ENS). — The executive meeting of the local branch of the Red Cross Society was held this week in the Red Cross room, and a report was given on work shipped to headquarters during the summer. Included in the shipment were 50 women's flannelette gowns, 1 girl's dress, 2 girls' skirts, 17 quilts, 1 blanket, 1 afghan in crib size, 5 girls' sweaters, 10 pairs of boys' stockings, 4 pairs of children's mitts, 59 knitted articles for babies. The co-operating groups donated 38 large quilts and 9 small ones since the end of June.

The Elgin group had a travelling apron during the summer months from which they realized the sum of $16, which they donated to the prisoner of war food parcel fund. Other donations to this fund included $5 from Mrs. N. F. Sutton and $7.20 from "Dime Savers."

In addition to this it was decided to send a further donation of $50 to this fund and $50 to the blood plasma department. The need for more blood donors was emphasized.

Army Auxiliary Hears Talk By Col. R. T. E. Hicks-Lyne

The regular second monthly meeting of the Peterborough Women's Active Army Auxiliary was held Thursday evening in the Green Room of the Y.W.C.A. with the president, Mrs. J. A. Dewart in the chair.

Mrs. B. D. Hall reported 12 calls were made on the next-of-kin of casualties reported since September 14 and several war brides have been visited and invited to join the auxiliary.

Mrs. J. Duncan said that cigarettes and airgraphs had been sent to 17 men wounded and hospitalized.

Mrs. Herb Mason, convener of knitting reported plenty of socks on nand and more wool for knitting.

Mrs. James Turnbull reported the paper salvage drive was quiet a success and the returns would be around $100. The next drive for salvage would be for both dirty and clean rags to take place October 3, 4 and 5 beginning at 8 a.m. She also reported the checking and rechecking of the list of names and addresses for Christmas boxes for men and women in the active army overseas amounted to approximately 1,000 names and the men stationed in Canada to be checked at a later date.

Mrs. Kenneth Kingston reporting on the advertising for these names and addresses outlined the various methods used. The generous help supplied by the newspaper in giving such prominent and complete write ups. The theatres kindly donated time on their screens for display slides. The radio has been donating spot advertisements every morning. She reported Mrs. Diplock has been in contact with Mr. K. Wightman for Public Schools and Sister Lucretia for Separate Schools who have been most kind and generous in offering assistance in the task of getting the children to bring in names and addresses. Also Mr. C. S. Browne of the P.C.V.S. assisted by making announcements in the Assembly Hall. Letters of apreciation were requested to be sent to all mentioned above for their generous assistance.

The president, Mrs. J. A. Dewart, made special mention of Mrs. Neilson who has five sons overseas—four of whom have been wounded. To Mrs. Gahagan who has three sons overseas — all have been wounded and two have been wounded twice. All others who have lost sons or have sons wounded or missing are not forgotten by the auxiliary.

Mrs. H. Willis asked for volunteers for waxing pretty fall maple leafs to be included in the Christmas boxes.

Mrs. Herbert Mason and Mrs. J. Tompkins in charge of the purchasing committee showed a sample of the proposed Christmas box and the greeting cards. The boxes and their contents would be at the Parish Hall of St. John's Anglican Church Tuesday morning October 3rd to be prepared for the packing of the boxes on Wednesday and Thursday, October 4-5 at 9 o'clock a.m. She stressed the need for the women to come for as little or as much time as possible to help on all three days from morning until night. Any outside help other than the members of the auxiliary would be apreciated.

Mrs. Dewart introduced Col. R. T. E. Hicks-Lyne as the guest speaker by saying he was the original Officer in Command of the S.D. and G. Highlanders that went overseas in July of 1941 and who has recently been head of Canrecords in Headquarters Offices in London, England, and has now returned to Canada.

Col. R. T. E. Hicks-Lyne began his talk by saying he was glad of the opportunity of speaking to the mothers, wives and sisters of men now serving overseas in his original regiment as well as all other Peterborough men. He thanked the auxiliary on his own and on the behalf of the chaps overseas for the many gifts sent over to them. Letters and gifts when away from home mean so much to the soldiers and play a major part in keeping up their morale.

He visited many hospitals before leaving England he found the general spirit excellent and the boys in good physical shape. Their main thought being to get the war over and to return home in the very near future. He stressed the best possible treatment is being given to each and every one in all ranks.

He extended messages and greetings from Col. J. Harstone of Military Headquarters to the members of the auxiliary. He also extended sympathy to those bereaved by the war. All were splendid chaps who have paid the supreme sacrifice which is the result of the war.

The Peterborough soldiers have been able to make many friends and become acquainted with English families. Canadians are favorites with the English people who have opened their doors to them. The soldier helps and fits into every community. Their parcels become very useful in social times which they share with the English families and this helps to bnid their friendships much closer.

He stated the realization of our boys over there with not having to worry over their families welfare here in Canada. It is not like the English soldier who always has the thoughts of which danger threatens at home. The Canadians know that their families and homes will be waiting for them when they come back.

The president moved a vote of thanks and the meeting was closed by the singing of God Save the King with Mrs. D. T. Diplock assisting at the piano.

Tea was served by the refreshment committee in charge of Mrs. James Morley.

St. Andrew's YPU Plans Meeting

MILLBROOK, Sept. 29 —(ENS)— Citizenship Committee, convened by Bruce Ingham Jr., was in charge of the recent meeting of the St. Andrew's Young People's Union, when plans for the Y.P.U. Presbyterial meeting in Millbrook United Church on October 6 at 8 p.m., were discussed. Members were informed that officers of the Presbytery had planned a program taking in all departments, Worship, missionary, Christian culture and Christian citizenship, and all were invited to attend.

A donation of $5 was voted to the Christmas fund for parcels for boys and girls overseas, and the sale of boxes of Christmas greeting cards was discussed. Following a talk on "Temperance," ways and means of promoting temperance education were suggested. Bruce Ingham was chairman, and George Ingham read the scripture. Conrad Stinson led in a reception period after the meeting had been adjourned.

Mission Rally Held At Trinity Church

Members of the Women's Missionary Society of Trinity United church were hostesses Wednesday for the Central Sectional Rally for the Peterborough Presbyterial of the Women's Missionary Society. W.M.S. auxiliaries throughout the city were represented, as well as the Stewart Hall auxiliary.

The morning session opened with a worship service conducted by the Stewart Hall W.M.S., with Mrs. George Hanbidge giving the call to worship, Mrs. Gordon Savigny reading the Scripture lesson, and Mrs. Hanbidge offering prayer. The address of welcome to the visiting delegates was given by Miss Tena Mathers, who spoke of the fine work of the W.M.S. members, who "ably gave leadership and support to the 'forward movement'."

Among the speakers during the morning was Mrs. G. Adams, who told of the school for leaders conducted recently at the Ontario Ladies' College, Whitby, stressing the value of the school to prospective leaders. She urged the auxiliaries to send delegates from the younger groups. Following Mrs. Adams, Mrs. E. Davis gave a short talk on Missionary Literature, laying particular stress on Bible study. Books she particularly mentioned were: "Unfolding Drama in South Asia" by Basil Matthews, "At Trail's End," "People of the China Seas," "Fuzzy-Wuzzy Angels of Papua," "From Carados to Clipper," "Burma Diary." "In these books," she said, "one finds romance, adventure, and spiritual insight."

During the afternoon, a model missionary program was conducted, opening with a service of song, followed by an address by Mrs. F. W. K. Harris, who reported on a meeting of the Dominion Board, which is the highest administrative body in the W.M.S. "Overseas missionary work has been much depleted because of war conditions," she said, "since all missionaries have been withdrawn from Japan and Korea. On account of the inflation in China and India, the W.M.S. are endeavoring to raise a special fund of $100,000 to meet this serious situation," she continued, and called upon every auxiliary to help wherever possible.

"Prayer and Consecration" was the theme for the worship service, conducted by the St. James' auxiliary, after various reports had been presented by the department secretaries, to Mrs. H. T. Rehill, first vice-president of the Presbytery, who presided. Mrs. E. Davis, Mrs. George Rowe, and Mrs. Woodley took part in the service. Solos were given by Mrs. E. Johnston and Mrs. Weldon. Mrs. G. Adams conducted the study period, and introduced the new study book, "West of the Date Line." She outlined the scope of the book, creating a lively interest in South Pacific islands and countries, which this year will be studied by all American church groups. After a short talk by Mrs. R. Hanscom on co-operating with the younger W.M.S. groups, Mrs. Rehill closed the meeting with prayer. At noon, dinner was served to the delegates by members of Trinity W.M.S.

"BOOK OF CORINTHIANS: CHAPTER 15: VERSE 55."—Through the heat of battle L.-Cpl. Jim A. MacGowan plunged on a bright July day of this year. His unit was close on the heels of the fleeing Huns in France. A stinging sensation in his right arm .. blood trickled down the flesh against the sleeve .. he was spun around by a weight smashing into his chest. .. Later, in the left hand pocket of his battle dress blouse he found the New Testament. A piece of a mortar bomb splinter was embedded in the Book. It had torn through 264 pages to stop at chapter 15, 55th verse, Book of Corinthians, which reads: "O death where is thy sting? O grave where is thy victory. .. But thanks be to God which giveth us the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ." L.-Cpl. MacGowan, who lives in Ottawa, is showing his battered New Testament to Nursing Sister Sue Barton, Toronto, who was an R.C.A.F. nurse, aboard his hospital train. MacGowan arrives in Canada aboard the British hospital ship Aba.

Mrs. H. Ashmore Describes Work In West

The regular meeting of the Church Women's Year of All Saints' Anglican Church was held Thursday afternoon with the president, Mrs. J. Adams, in charge. Mrs. Adams read the opening prayers and Mrs. L. Ackford read the Bible lesson.

Reporting for the Navy League Mrs. R. N. Jones said that 45 articles had been handed in for the month. In her reporting for the visiting committee, Mrs. J. Johnson said that 13 calls had been made and five cards sent to sick and shut-in members during September. Mrs. P. Hooper played an enjoyable violin solo accompanied at the piano by Mrs. W. H. Logan.

Mrs. W. A. Filer, in the absence of the rector, Rev. W. A. Filer, introduced the speaker, Mrs. Horace Ashmore of Loon Lake, Sask. Mrs. Ashmore, here as a delegate to the W.A. convention being held in London next week, gave an interesting talk about the work of the church in Northern Sask. Loon Lake is 350 miles north of Prince Albert, near the Alberta border. Rev. and Mrs. Ashmore work among Indians, Ukrainians and Anglo-Saxons. The Ukrainians are the most regular attendants and are very interested in the church and its work.

During the summer months the Indian children go to school and learn very quickly she said. Mrs. Ashmore stressed the need for warm clothing, especially children's.

Tea was served by Mrs. Johnson and her group.

Doomed to failure he thought, as he watched others walk off with the prizes of life—good jobs, friendships, romance. Unknown to him, the invisible barrier of "B.O." stood in his way.

Yet today he is successful in business. He is happily married, and has hosts of friends. A refreshing Lifebuoy bath is his daily safeguard against "B.O." Missionary Tells Of China At Annual Deanery Meeting

A large attendance marked the annual meeting of the Women's Auxiliaries of the Deanery of Peterborough, Thursday afternoon in St. John's Parish Hall. Representatives from Campbellford, Hastings, Havelock, Lakefield, Norwood, Otonabee, and the three Peterborough Anglican churches, St. George's, St. Luke's and St. John's, answered the roll call, and gave reports of the year's activities.

The increasing interest of the Auxiliaries in missionary work, especially in China, was reflected in the choice of a missionary speaker, Mrs. G. A. Andrew, who recently returned to Canada after several years' service as a missionary in occupied and unoccupied China. Mrs. Andrew described the difficulties she and her husband and their party met, as they journeyed from occuped China into unoccupied territory, taking 26 days to make the trip.

Her descriptions of life in the war-torn village portrayed the suffering and hardship of the Chinese vividly, as she told of gathering groups of children together under a leader, and sending them into the country, to spend the day in comparative safety from Japanese planes. There were between 500 and 600 orphaned children separated from their parents in a refugee camp which had been established in her village, she explained. Each morning, after they had received the first of their two daily meals, the children received medical care from the missionaries, before being sent to the country. Since the bombing seemed to come in "fits," often it was not necessary to move the children into the country during the day.

Famine Hardship

Coupled with the suffering brought about by bombing, and frequent floods, came a terrible famine in 1943, which caused the death of about one third of the population in the district. One third moved away seeking other homes, leaving just one third of the original number. The missionaries did everything in their power to help, and set up special kitchens, where porridge was served each day to children. They also sent out requests for wheat to supplement the poor crop which had caused the famine, and some relief did arrive.

Mr. and Mrs. Andrew left China by plane, and left India by ship to return to their homeland. Mrs. Andrew felt that the war, although terrible, had been the means of bringing them in contact with great numbers of Chinese, so that they could preach the gospel. She said that this opportunity had not been passed by, and that every effort was being made to teach the Bible, and to help the people learn to read. She said that classes had been organized, especially among the women, who had not had opportunity to go to school, and they were eager to learn to read.

In conclusion, she assured the members that the work of the church was being carried on, and asked them to help by remembering them in their prayers and keeping faith. She said that she hoped to return to her work in China when the war was over.

Reviews Work

Mrs. R. W. E. Greene, of Toronto, a Diocesan member, reviewed the progress of the year, stressing the value of the use of annual reports in presenting a survey of the year's activities. She spoke of a resolution from the Toronto Diocesan Board, which was presented to the annual meeting of the Dominion Board in London, to the effect that consideration should be given to the possibility of having 50 women fully trained in missionary work, in the mission fields within the next five years, and asked the support of all women of the church.

She also mentioned the new Girls' Hostel to be opened shortly in Toronto, and told of the "showers" held every month in the W.A. House, Toronto, for bomb victims. The work of Dufferin House, where service people can meet their families, was also outlined by the speaker, and she said that a staff of hostesses was provided every day.

Reports were presented to the presiding Deanery Officer, Mrs. R. E. Lemon, by secretary's of the following branch W.A.'s: Campbellford, Hastings, Havelock, Lakefield, Norwood, Otonabee, All Saints', Peterborough, Afternoon and Evening branches; St. George's, Peterborough; St. Luke's, Peterborough, and St. John's, Peterborough, Afternoon and Evening branches. St. Luke's W.A were congratulated on their coming golden jubilee on October 18, and an invitation was extended to all to attend.

Election Interest

Mrs. J. Edgar, in a brief talk, urged members to take a greater interest in the election of Diocesan officers, and said that she and her committee would furnish any information about the duties of the various offices. Mrs. Lemon, retiring Deanery officer, introduced the new Deanery officer, who takes office for two years, Mrs. A. W. Turner. After an invitation to meet for the next annual meeting at St. George's Anglican church, Peterborough, had been accepted, Canon W. P. Robertson closed the session with the benediction.

In the evening the young people's groups were addressed by Mrs. G. A. Andrew, who told of her experiences in China, laying particular stress on stories about Chinese children and young people. Mrs. F. D. Craig and Mrs Clare Collins were in charge The groups brought their lunches and had supper together, with chocolate milk being provided for them.

In the morning, Deanery delegates were addressed by Bishop H. R. Ragg, of Calgary, after a service of Holy Communion in the church.

THE TEA HOUR GOSSIP . . . .

Nearly everyone likes cookies, and our recipes today are going to be on this kind of cake. Cookie doughs range from very soft to very stiff. Whatever the degree of stiffness, a cookie dough is always easier to handle if it is allowed to stand for a time, about half an hour, in a cold place before it is rolled. This allows the moisture to be thoroughly absorbed and hardens the fat and both of these conditions tend to prevent the dough from being sticky, even though it is a soft dough. Soft doughs may be dropped from a spoon on to a baking sheet, but stiff doughs must be rolled out and shaped by cutting. They can also be made into small balls and flattened by pressure from the hand, a broad knife or rolling pin.

½ cup shortening, 1 cup granulated sugar, 2 eggs, ½ teaspoon salt, 1½ cups pastry flour, 1 teaspoon baking powder, ¼ teaspoon vanilla extract. Cream shortening and sugar until light and fluffy. And beaten eggs and sifted dry ingredients. Add vanilla and mix well. Spread the batter on a baking sheet as thinly as possible and frost with the following. Remove lumps from 1 cup brown sugar and fold into 1 stiffly beaten egg white. Spread on cookie batter, sprinkle with one cup chopped nuts and bake in moderate oven for 30 minutes, cut in squares. This makes from 24 to 36 cookies.

Sour Milk Jumbles

1 cup shortening, 2 cups sugar, 3 eggs, 1 cup sour milk, 6 cups flour, 2 teaspoons baking powder, ½ teaspoon salt, ½ teaspoon soda, ½ grated nutmeg. Cream the shortening with the sugar and add eggs, well beaten. Mix and sift the dry ingredients and add them to the sugar and shortening, alternately with the milk. Roll out in a thick sheet and cut with a doughnut cutter. Bake in moderate oven (375 degrees F.).

Rolled Oats Cookies

1 cup sugar, ½ cup molasses, 1 cup shortening, 2 eggs, ¼ cup sweet milk, 2 teaspoons ground cinnamon, ½ teaspoon soda, 2 cups flour, 1 cup chopped raisins, sprinkled with 2 tablespoons flour, 2 cups rolled oats.

Mix ingredients in order given. Melt the shortening before adding it and sift the soda and spices with the flour. Drop by teaspoonsful on greased pans and bake in moderate oven, 375 degrees to 400 degrees F.

THE STARS SAY . . . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Saturday, September 30

A DRASTIC and sudden avalanche of events may prove so disruptive and uprooting as to change the course of the entire life and its fortunes. Nevertheless, this devastating visitation may be of far reaching and benefic intent in placing the affairs on an exceedingly safe, sound and enduring base and the disruption may be the simple tearing down of old, effete and useless possessions, conditions or ties, to make way for a more desirable, favorable and secure way of life. With such menacing adventure sanely and decisively handled, and not with panic, confusion and terror, lasting benefits should be certain. But act firmly, sensibly, without anger, conserving all available resources. The climax may be constructive and profitable as well as happy.

Those whose birthday it is may not be surprised should a sudden turn of affairs, descending without hint or warning, engineer the life and its fortunes into wholly unexpected and unpredictable environs, circumstances and adventures. The sudden undermining should be of benign purpose, as it will probably demolish and disintegrate all the useless, futile and outgrown connections and interest in favor of a more balanced, promising and practical foundation, with safety, endurance and worthwhile conditions eventuating. In the meantime conserve all manner of resources, of funds and energies, refrain from impetuosity, emotional strife and confusion.

A child born on this day should have many safe and sane talents and qualities, although impetuous, emotional, erratic and given to sensational or unorthodox doings. With care it might have security and success after drastic reversals.

DOROTHY DIX . . . . .

IMPULSIVE MARRIAGE UNWISE

Boys, Girls Advised to Look Over Many Friends Before Choosing Life Partner.

DEAR MISS DIX—I am a girl 16 years old. About two weeks ago I wrote you telling you I was so much in love with a boy that I couldn't eat, sleep or think of anything but him and I asked you how I could get him. The next day in your column you advised girls to cut out the puppy love stuff and go around with a lot of boys before they finally decided which one they liked best.

Well, Miss Dix, I tried the plan. And it worked. In two weeks I have been completely cured of my infatuation for that boy. And just think how awful it would have been if I had married him, not knowing really what I wanted in a husband, and in to weeks to have lost my taste for him!

THELMA.

Take Sentiment With Reservations

ANSWER—Indeed, it would have awful, Thelma. Yet that is what thousands of girls do and that is why there are so many divorces. Girls and boys rush into marriage on the impulse of the moment just because it is a moonlight night and they feel sentimental, or because they have had one cocktail too many, or because they have a passing physical attraction for each other, and almost before the ink is dry on their wedding certificates they are sorry for it.

Young people should take their sentiment with reservations. They shouldn't put too much faith in the strength of their love. They should say to themselves, "Yeah, I know I'm crazy about Clare or Sam and I believe I will never love anybody else, but I used to think I could never get enough ice cream soda and now I loathe the stuff. So I'll just play around until I am grown and see how I feel about it then."

Marriage is like everything else. The bigger the stock you pick from, the more apt you are to get what you want. So, boys and girls, look 'em all over before you make your final choice. And take your time about it.

DEAR MISS DIX — All other things being fairly equal, can a young business woman hope to find happiness with a prospective mate who is self-made, successful, likeable and attractive, but who murders the King's English? Is this a minor fault that I should forget and forgive? Frankly, it grates on my nerves. I am also self-made, but have tried to eliminate such rough edges from my own speech. I work all day, attend law school three nights a week and am entering my sophomore year. What to do?

DISTURBED.

Wife Must Be Proud of Husband

ANSWER—It isn't so much the man's English that matters as your feelings about it, and inasmuch as you seem supersensitive about it, I think you would be doing a very risky thing to marry him. For the one thing that seems to be absolutely necessary to a woman's happiness in marriage is for her to be proud of her husband.

Of course, as a matter of fact, a man who possesses all the other good qualities that you have enumerated in your suitor is a grand catch as a husband, even if his English is rickety, but it takes a woman of deeper understanding and a broader mind, and more love than you have to see this and appreciate him.

DEAR MISS DIX — Will you please tell me why women persist in wearing the abominable slacks we see on every hand? If they knew how disgusting they were in the sight of men, they would never appear in public with such things on.

SMART ALEC

ANSWER — I don't know why women wear slacks. Every time I see one of the hideous travesties of men I ask myself that question. My best guess is that the women who do such awful things to themselves have no sense of humor.

Surely any woman who has gotten a rear view of herself in a mirror and seen how funny she looks would stick to skirts, and thank God for them, unless, of course, she was a philanthopist who wanted to hand the beholders a laugh.

Mrs. E. Manning W.C.T.U. Hostess

Mrs. E. Manning, George street north, was hostess Thursday afternoon to the initial fall meeting of the Peterborough Women's Christian Temperance Union, when a good attendance of interested women were present.

Miss Emma Might, the pesident, presided. A devotional talk on prayer was given by Mrs. Aitchison. She defined prayer as talking with God and listening to His voice. Prayer said Mrs. Aitchison, is a privilege which we should exercise every morning and evening. During the business session Mrs. (Rev.) J. Brown was appointed as representative to the Local Council of Women.

A delightful solo, "Where the Gates Swing Outward, Never," by Mrs. V. Whittington, was accompanied by Mrs. Frank Dawson.

Highlights of the 31st biennial convention of the National W.C.T.U. held recently in Moncton, N. B., were brought in her interesting report by Mrs. E. Beavis. One of the outstanding speakers was Mrs. Ida B. Wise Smith, of Evanston, Ill., who said that liquor is the great enemy of national progress. The speaker, Mrs. Beavis, supplemented her address with many clippings and facts pertaining to the temperance cause. Prince Edward Island is the only totally dry province in our Dominion, while in Ontario the selling of liquor is as legal as preaching the gospel, and the drink bill of Ontario is away above that of any other province. We must pray more earnestly that we may send men to our Government who will curb this evil.

The Mizpah benediction concluded the meeting.

150 Girls Attend Gym Program At YWCA Rally

A gratifying attendance of about 150 interested girls marked the gym swim program of the fall rally of the Y.W.C.A., Thursday evening, in the gymnasium. Sponsored by the health education department of the Y, the impromptu and informal program was entertaining throughout, and everyone had a jolly evening. Since all who could had worn their sport togs and running shoes, there was practically no audience at all, and the floor was crowded with happy girls taking part in an impromptu program of stretching, swinging and body twisting exercises to music, led by Miss C. Littlefield, head of the department.

Special features were sparkle club swinging and double gymnastics by the seniors, and Mrs. Hopkins did some excellent work on the flying rings. Archery was in charge of Mrs. H. DeWolfe and Mrs. Sullivan and Miss Maralyn Hollingsworth presented a Spanish dance. Mrs. M. McBride and Mrs. Wilfred Preston were at the piano. Following the program in the gym, an exhibition of ornamental swimming and diving was presented in the pool by senior swimmers, in charge of Mrs. Forbes.

Refreshments of coffee and doughnuts were served in the recreation room by the social committee, Mrs. J. E. Lillico, Mrs. A. A. Moir, Mrs. C. Collins, Mrs. W. Lauder and Mrs J. H. Vernor. Miss C. Littlefield announced the big junior rally set for Saturday morning from 10 to 12 a.m. in the gym. She said that there would be races and prizes, and a demonstration of life-saving in the pool, and extended an invitation to all school girls to attend. She also introduced Miss Mary Gall, new girls' work secretary, and the girls chatted together, becoming acquainted among themselves and with Miss Gall, who will conduct their club activities during the year.

SCOTT'S SCRAP BOOK

—By J. R. Scott

ALLIES BREAK INTO PO VALLEY—After taking the stubbornly defended seaport of Rimini (1), and crossing the Rubicon the 8th Army troops have pushed on into the vital Po Valley. At the same time, Yank 5th Army units captured Firenzuola (2), strategic junction 29 airline miles south of Bologna. The twin victories will enable Allied forces to cut all Nazi communications to the Gothic Line. On the west coast (3) Brazilian troops moved northward after capturing Pietrasanta, 19 miles north of historic Pisa. Large black arrows show eventual direction of present Allied drives.

Paratroopers Escape In Night Ending Epic Fight At Arnhem

By ALAN WOOD
Distributed By The Canadian Press

WITH THE AIRBORNE FORCE, Sept. 26.—(Delayed)—(AP).— This is the end.

The most tragic and glorious battle of the war is over and the survivors of this British airborne force can sleep soundly for the first time in eight days and nights.

Orders came to us yesterday (Monday) to break out from the forest citadel west of Arnhem, cross the Rhine and join up with the Second Army on the south bank.

Our commander decided against a concentrated assault on the Germans around us. Instead the plan was to split it into little groups ten to twenty strong, setting out along different routes at two-minute intervals, which would simply walk through the German lines in the dark. Cheeky patrols went out earlier, tying bits of white parachute tape to trees to mark the way.

To hinder the Germans waking up to what was happening, Second Army guns laid down a battering box barrage all afternoon.

The first party was to set off at 10 p.m. Our group was to leave at 10.04 p.m. They went around distributing little packets of sulfanilamide and morphia.

We tore up blankets and wrapped them around our boots to muffle the sound of our feet in the trees. We were told the pass-word—"John Bull." If we became separated each man was to make his way by compass due south until he reached the river.

Linked Together

Our major is an old hand. He led the way and linked our party together by getting everyone to hold the tail of the parachutist's smock of the man in front of him, so our infiltrating column had an absurd resemblance to some children's game.

It was half-light, with the glow of fires from burning houses around, when we set out. We were lucky. We went through a reputed enemy pocket without hearing a shot except for a stray sniper's bullet.

Another group met a machine-gun with a fixed line of fire across their path.

Another had to silence a bunch of Germans with a burst of Sten fire and hand grenades. Another had to pause while a German finished his evening stroll across their pathway. But we got through without the enemy realizing that we were doing anything more than normal night patrolling.

The worst part was awaiting two hours by the river side till our turn came for assault boats to ferry us across. The Germans, if not yet definitely suspicious, were inquisitive—they kept sending up flares and it was vital to lie flat and motionless. In our boat queue we lay flat and shivering on a soaking field with cold rain drizzling down. Occasionally machine-guns spattered out and bullets tweaked through the grass.

We were lucky again; our actual crossing was quiet. But soon after it seemed that the Germans had guessed what was going on because they mortared and shelled heavily along the shallow river banks. One soldier in the next field was hit and called out for help. Men whose turn for a place in the boats had come after hours of waiting insisted on staying under fire a little longer so that the wounded could go first.

Any wounded left behind, of course, became automatically prisoners of war. So many sick and limping left their beds to take a chance with the escape parties making their way to the river.

And so this epic stand of the British air-borne soldiers ended as it had been fought — with honor, with high courage, with selfless sacrifice.

What of the spirit of these men as they trudged back through the wet night to the billets where they are now sunk in sodden sleep?

You can best judge it by the name they chose for last night's break-out. It had the same objective as they have always had, and they still mean to get in there. They called it "operation Berlin."

Quebec Enlistments Top World War 1

KINGSTON, Sept. 29 (CP) — At a meeting of the Frontenac Addington Liberal Association at Verona, Wednesday, Agriculture Minister James G. Gardiner said Prime Minister Mackenzie King has done more for Canadian unity than any other Canadian.

Mr. Gardiner told the Association the voluntary enlistment system was the best possible and said more Quebec men had joined the army in this war than in the First Great War.

Saw A Pelican

BELLEVILLE, Sept. 29 — (CP). — Believe it or not, Norman Brown, a farmer who lives north of the Napanee area, says he recently saw a pelican on the shore of Mud Lake. A pelican is somewhat of a novelty in this area as this fish-eating bird's habitat is much further south. However Mr. Brown insists his eyesight is perfect and that the bird was no optical illusion.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

PUNCH IS NECESSARY

A BOXER with fair defense, but who couldn't punch, would be comparable to a No Trump declarer who had stoppers in every suit, but such a misfit with his partner's hand that he couldn't score his partner's tricks. Getting into a No Trump contract when you have a singleton in your partner's suit is pretty bad, because you can lead only once toward it, but having an absolute blank in the suit is worse and more of it.

North: ♠ None ♥ J 10 9 5 ♦ Q 9 8 7 6 5 3 ♣ K Q

West: ♠ 10 8 5 4 ♥ K 3 2 ♦ 2 ♣ A J 9 6 3

East: ♠ J 9 2 ♥ A Q 7 6 4 ♦ A J 10 4 ♣ 2

South: ♠ A K Q 7 6 3 ♥ 8 ♦ K ♣ 10 8 7 5 4

(Dealer: East. North-South vulnerable.)

East	South	West	North
1♥	1♠	2♣	Pass
2♦	2♠	Pass	2 NT
Dbl

After the disaster on this deal, North complained that South should have taken out into 3-Spades, with his strong six-card suit, but he was dead wrong. South's suit, appearing solid to him, was fine No Trump material, and that worthy had no way of knowing what a crazy-quilt North had, let alone dream that North did not even have a singleton to lead into the big suit.

East led his heart 6 to the K, scored his Q and A on the return and then fed the 6 to North's J to clear the suit. The declarer, trying a long-chance to get into the dummy, led his diamond 3 toward the K, but what a fool East would have been to lay off with the A. He took it, cashed the heart 7 to complete his side's book, then led the club 2 to the A for the setting trick.

North took the club return with the K, brought in the diamond Q, but then had nothing left except diamonds. He led one for East to take the J and 10, and East had to offer a spade then to give the dummy the last two tricks. It was down three, or 800 points, whereas if North had possessed sense enough to pass the 2-Spades, despite his stoppers in the other suits, the contract could have been set only one trick.

Tomorrow's Problem

North: ♠ Q 8 4 3 ♥ A J 2 ♦ K 7 5 ♣ 10 6 4

West: ♠ K 6 5 ♥ Q 6 ♦ Q 4 2 ♣ Q J 8 3 2

East: ♠ J 10 9 7 2 ♥ 10 8 3 ♦ A J 9 6 ♣ 9

South: ♠ A ♥ K 9 7 5 4 ♦ 10 8 3 ♣ A K 7 5

(Dealer: South. East-West vulnerable.)

What defensive danger does West risk in leading against 4-Hearts here, and what smooth work must North do to make 3-No Trumps if East leads the spade J?

Reds Speed Drive Into Hungary

Crack 90 Miles Of Frontier In Latest Surge

By DANIEL DE LUCE
Associated Press War Correspondent

MOSCOW, Sept. 30 — (AP). — Russia opened up to-day with a strong propaganda campaign urging Hungary to surrender as Red Army troops tightened a pincers offensive against Hitler's big Balkan vassal state.

Leaflets dropped over the Hungarian lines declared the Romanians were well received when they threw down their arms. Broadcasts informed the Hungarian people it was not too late to desert Hitler and save themselves.

The Russian offensive against Hungary has cracked a 90-mile stretch of frontier fortifications along the Czech-Polish border defending the Ruthenian highlands, and is sweeping west through Northern Transylvania.

Gen. Ivan Petrov's combined Russian-Czechoslovak forces, driving a wedge into every important Ruthenian pass, extended their grip on pre-war Czechoslovakia's frontier to 160 miles.

Plug Escape Route.

Marshal Rodion Y. Malinovsky scored a major success in the Eastern Carpathians by capturing the Transylvanian city of Targumures and crossing the Mures River line at a point within 50 miles east of Cluj, the Hungarian - annexed Transylvanian capital.

Operations of Malinovsky's forces on the Hungarian plain from Western Romania were not mentioned officially here.

(A Bucharest broadcast said the Russians had broken into Ordea, a strategic rail city controlling one of the main escape routes out of Transylvania. It is only six miles from the pre-war Hungarian frontier.

Whiskey Quota Up On October 1

TORONTO, Sept. 30.—The Ontario Liquor Control Board will announce Monday in the form of paid advertisements the doubling of the monthly liquor ration, from 13 ounces to 26 ounces. The boost will go into effect the same day and will continue until at least the beginning of 1945. By that time, it is reported, there is a definite view that the King Government will be ready to remove the restrictions on alcohol for beverage consumption.

An increase in the Ontario quota was rumored at frequent intervals in recent weeks. Attorney-General Leslie Blackwell and Liquor Board Chairman Victor Goggin went into conference on the liquor reserves situation and came up with the decision to boost the individual quota —the first upward move since the Dominion restrictions went into effect.

The Dominion Government is said to be reviewing the entire situation, keeping in the forefront the probability of a reasonably early termination of the war with Germany. Warehouse stocks of liquor are said to be about the same as for the past three years.

In making the 26-ounce ration effective for October, the Liquor Board is bettering by one month the predictions as to when the increase would become operative. Stocks in the board's warehouses have accumulated to a volume which it is thought will withstand the heavy demands over Christmas and New Year.

SWIM LINES ACROSS MOSELLE—Three times, the vital communication lines laid across the Moselle River in France by a signal battalion were broken. This time, the men, determined to get across, decided to swim the lines across farther down the river. Two of the men can be seen in the water holding the end of the cable as they swim across, while others of the unit stand on shore feeding the cable to them.

New Financial Institution To Aid Small Businesses

By FRANK FLAHERTY—Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA, Sept. 30—(CP). — Canadian businessmen soon will get a chance to shoot suggestions and ideas at the head of one of the nation's newest financial institutions, the Industrial Development Bank. One of the first acts of S. Randolph Noble, appointed general manager, will be to make a trip across Canada, stopping at all principal business centres, meeting bankers, businessmen, prospective borrowers from the I.D.B.

His purpose will be to size up the role the new bank can play in aiding business and maintaining employment in the post-war period.

As early as 1919 he was an advocate of a central bank for Canada, but the Bank of Canada was not created until 1934.

will have a potentional capital of $100,000,000. Its job is to provide capital on medium and long terms to small and medium-sized businesses, longer-term capital than can ordinarily be obtained on a bank loan and in cases where the enterprise is too small to permit the flotation of a bond issue on reasonable terms.

Mr. Noble has been vice-president of the Prices Stability Corporation and was its organizer.

This companion body to the Prices Board, steps in with money where mere restrictions can't keep prices down. It has paid out millions in subsidies to prevent price rises where costs increase. In one year it spent more than $100,000,000 in bulk purchases of imported goods in order to get them to Canadian consumers at the lowest possible price.

Born in Fredericton 57 years ago, Mr. Noble, tall, lean and active, started his career with the Royal Bank at the age of 16. He is assistant general manager.

Moscow Likes New Pact

Says Allied Alliance Will Endure

NEW YORK, Sept. 30 — (AP). — A Moscow broadcast today quoted the newspaper Izvestia as saying in a review of a newly-published collection of "wartime Soviet foreign policy documents" that the volume showed clearly the Soviet Government regards the Anglo-American "Association" as one that will "endure for a long time to come."

The United States Federal Communications Commission reported the broadcast.

"Documents in this volume," Izvestia was quoted as saying, "make it clear that the Soviet Government does not regard the Anglo-Soviet-American coalition as a temporary association, but as one rooted in a community of fundamental interests between the peoples of the U.S.S.R., the United States and Great Britain, and in fact of all peace-loving people; as an association intended not only to achieve complete victory over the common foe, but to establish a stable and lasting peace and economic, political and cultural cooperation among the various nations."

British Lose Bridgehead Across River

Resistance Fierce As Nazis Protect North Italy

ROME, Sept. 30—(AP)—Furious German counter-attacks have pinched out the small bridgehead won by the British 8th Army across the Fiumcino River eight miles northwest of Rimini, but similar savage efforts to wrest Monte Battaglia, 11 miles south of Imola, from the Allied 5th Army have failed, Allied Headquarters announced today.

On the Adriatic front New Zealand troops drove to the Fiumcino River on a 400-yard front. The enemy, defending the north bank strongly, launched two night counter attacks which were repulsed.

Gen. Leese's troops gained a small bridgehead across the Fiumcino west of San Mauri di Romagna, but before it could be reinforced strong enemy armored units compelled a withdrawal.

The Marecchia and Rubicon rivers were reported running swiftly with rising water, making crossings difficult in the Canadian-New Zealand sector.

Steadily rooting the enemy from commanding heights overlooking the roads into the Po Valley, both American and British forces of the 5th Army reported moderate gains in the central sector of the Italian front.

The Americans captured Giugnola, an important highway town 7½ miles northeast of Firenzuola, and patrols forged into Belvedere, 18 miles south-southeast of Bologna.

Other American units pushed more than three miles along highway 65 toward Bologna from La Mazetta to Filigare.

Enemy efforts to retain Monte Battaglia, which overlooks most of the route down the northern slope of the Apennines to the Bologna-Rimini Highway, were launched in strength. One German regiment was beaten off Thursday and another yesterday.

Other 5th Army troops captured the village of Montefredente, nine miles northwest of Firenzuola, and nearby Monte Balestra.

From the west coast sector, where the Brazilians and other units have been advancing slowly, came only a report that pressure was maintained on the enemy with aggressive patrolling.

Heavy rains flooded some roads over which the Americans were moving up the mountains at the centre, making a few paths impassable even to mule trains.

Poor weather curtailed aerial activity. Allied planes flew only 60 sorties, mainly against German communications southwest of Milan.

WESTERN GERMANY BLASTED

LONDON — Between 750 and 1,000 United States heavy bombers today attacked Munster, Hamm and Bielsfeld in Western Germany, Headquarters announced.

Mosquitos Hit Karlsruhe City

LONDON, Sept. 30 —(CP)—R.A.F. Mosquitos bombed Karlsruhe last night in what the air ministry said was a well-concentrated attack, but bad weather restricted operations over the continent again today.

A communique said all the bombers returned from Karlsruhe. Other R.A.F. planes laid mines in enemy waters.

The campaign to destroy the German Army's material and the means to get it to the front saw nearly 2,500 sorties flown in poor weather yesterday by the U.S. 9th Air Force, the 2nd Tactical Air Force and the air defence force of Britain, most of them in direct support of ground troops.

The 9th Air Force, making its deepest bombing penetration into Germany, hit a supply depot at Julich, 10 miles from the Holland border, and a railway yard at Bingen, 25 miles west of Cologne, Friday evening. Five Havocs were lost in the intense flak. Two other bombers were lost during the day.

The other attacks were the bombing of Siegfried Line defence points and a railway yard at Saarbrucken by British-based Marauders, and of railway yards at Euskirchen, Bitburg and Prum by French-based Marauders and Havocs.

Flying Bombs Kill 6 More

LONDON, Sept. 30.—(CP).—Flying bombs killed at least six persons early to-day in the southern counties and the London area, and caused injuries to many others.

The Germans took advantage of overcast weather to launch two attacks, the second just before dawn.

One bomb crashed on top of a tenement house, killing three residents and injuring 12 others.

Three persons were killed in a residential district, and a dozen homes were demolished. Many others, including children asleep in their beds, were injured seriously. Five persons were listed as missing, and rescue parties began digging through the wreckage before the all-clear sounded.

ARNHEM SURVIVOR — Lieut. Philip Turner, son of Mr. and Mrs W. Turner, 548 Gilmour street, is one of two Canadian officers serving with the airborne troops at Arnhem, who escaped and is reported to be safe. He was loaned by the Canadian government to act as officer with a British unit.

10,000 People Evacuated During Truce

By WILLIAM STEWART
Canadian Press War Correspondent

WITH THE CANADIAN ARMY IN FRANCE, Sept 30 (CP Cable)—Before the battle for Calais was resumed today after a 24-hour armistice more than 10,000 civilians had been evacuated from the port. Some 4,000 Germans were estimated to be in the town, and around the port, poised, like the Canadians, for fighting to break out again.

Up to the moment when hostilities were halted between 2,000 and 3,000 Germans had been taken prisoner by the Canadians who had fought their way into the outskirts of Calais. At Cap Gris Nez yesterday the Canadians took 1,300 prisoners, including a German Colonel whose name has not yet been disclosed.

Meanwhile, Canadian infantry fighting along the eastern bend of the Canadian front in Belgium have established a bridgehead across the Antwerp-Turnhout canal near St. Leonard and are meeting stiff resistance.

The evacuation of Calais started at 2 p.m. Friday. Canadian transports waited at the southeastern outskirts of the port to drive the civilians away and special army personnel examined all coming out to make sure there was no attempt by the Germans to smuggle out members of the garrison in civilian disguise.

On the Canadian army front between Antwerp and Turnhout British forces under Lt.-Gen. Crerar took 350 prisoners of all types of units in an engagement on the edge of their bridgehead east of St. Leonard.

Hitler's New War Weapon Burns Alcohol, Not Gasoline

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE
Associated Press War Analyst.

Hitler's V-3, as described from France, is just another rocket, and the only new things about it are its huge size and its substitution of alcohol for gasoline fuel, and even the latter is not altogether new.

Sixty feet long and five feet in diameter is the description divided by three, it sounds like the meteorological rocket which Dr. Robert Goddard was firing in New Mexico years before 1939. His was a long, cylindrical tube, a sort of air torpedo.

The V-3 is said to use liquid air, which is probably not an important change, as the purpose of either liquid air or of liquid oxygen is to get enough oxygen to keep the explosive jet burning to dive the projectile.

Substitution of alcohol for gasoline could be a confession of acute oil shortage. Alcohol certainly would make a fine rocket fuel, but gasoline contains more heat energy volume for volume and weight for weight.

The engine which drove the buzz-bombs to London evidently has been abandoned for the V-3. The buzz-bomb draws its oxygen from the air outside. That would not be posible for V-3 as described. The buzz-bomb flies low. V-3 is said to start almost straight up, like a long range artillery shell.

The expected altitude of a V-3 trajectory would carry it to a point where it could not efficiently draw oxygen from the air. Hence it seems to be designed as a true rocket, which carries its oxygen in its fuel.

The only information about the weapon's power is that it has "an explosive radius of three kilometers," or almost two miles.

Holland Battle Nears Climax British Holding at Nijmegen

By JAMES M. LONG—Associated Press War Correspondent

LONDON, Sept. 30 — (AP). — The battle for Holland swept toward a climax today with British 2nd Army units holding their Nijmegen bridge and fighting for Arnhem crossing, nine miles to the north in a series of toe-to-toe battles.

On the coast Cap Gris Nez had fallen to 1st Canadian Army assault and its cross-Channel batteries that had made life touch-and-over and Folkestone for four hard years were silenced at last.

The Canadians and the heavy bombers of the R.A.F. ceased their knockout attack on Calais for that long to permit evacuation of 20,000 civilians from the siege-ringed port, fall of which seemed imminent.

The attack on Calais was resumed a few minutes after noon, according to frontline reports. The garrison commander Colonel Schroeder, was said to have declared in discussing the truce:

"I have received orders from my Fuehrer to fight to the last man, and that is what I intend to do."

2,000 Prisoners.

More than 2,000 prisoners already have been taken in the siege.

U.S. 7th Army troops pushed through rocket and mortar fire into the first two passes of the Vosges barrier to the Rhine, and the armor-wrecking U.S. 3rd Army, beating back German counter-blows in a hard slugging fight, had knocked out at least 113 enemy tanks in two days.

In a co-ordinated attack farther north, the U.S. 1st Army cut through eight Siegfried line fortifications southwest of Prum, south of Aachen.

The whole front from the mist-shrouded Belfort gap to the sodden lowlands of Holland was rain-splattered and slippery with mud.

German troops who had pushed to the south of the Dutch Rhine opposite Arnhem were shoved back across the river last night — and destroyed the northern approaches to the bridge in their desperation to prevent a British crossing.

From both sides, east and west, they hurled S.S. troops into attacks against the thin British corridor through Nijmegen. In that battle they risked at least 300 of their fighters and fighter-bombers in one of the Luftwaffe's biggest days of concentrated close support since the invasion.

British and Canadian planes met them headon, destroyed 33, damaged 16, and kept them from getting ground forces at any time in the into strafing range of British fight. A single British plane was lost.

American paratroopers helped the Tommies beat off the attacks without yielding more than a couple of orchards. The Germans, failing to gain, were reported digging in for an attempt to bog the battle down into positional warfare.

Southwest of Nijmegen British troops widened their corridor within four miles of the Dutch communications centre of 'S Hertogenbosch which the Germans fortified to hold an escape corridor to the north around the broad Maas estuary for troops hemmed tightly in western Holland.

U. S. 1st Army infantry was punching into German defences again all the way from north of Aachen to the southern tip of Luxembourg.

Landlady Bewildered By Newest Tactics Rents Room To One, Finds Seven Move In VANCOUVER, Sept. 30 — (CP). — Infiltration tactics of a tenant were described by a protesting landlady in rentals appeal court here yesterday.

She detailed before Judge Bruce Boyd a history which began when on a five-dollar deposit she rented a room to a man who claimed to be single.

The following day he moved in — with his wife and baby.

The day after that his two daughters arrived and the landlady gave in, to the extent of renting the two girls a second room.

The next day a fourth child arrived and took up residence.

The crisis came on the fifth day when a grown son of the family traipsed in accompanied by a pet dog — and the pet dog's puppy.

Questioned by the bewildered landlady, the "single" man's wife announced laconically.

"That's the works."

The landlady concluded her report remarking that the tenant had paid no rent so far and had neglected to repay the five-dollar deposit which he had borrowed back from her a few days after his arrival. The case was adjourned 10 days.

Dover, Hell-Fire Corner Jubilant As Shelling Ends

DOVER, England, Sept. 30—(CP).—Just over four years after the first German shell crashed into Dover from across the narrow straits, the people of Dover were told officially today that their ordeal by gunfire was ended. Shortly after 10 a.m. loudspeakers in the town gave this message:

"The Mayor has received official information that all the long-range guns on the other side of the Channel have now been captured."

The message was also broadcast in the caves where many people have been sheltering during the fierce bombardment of the last month.

Cheers echoed through the battered streets of this little capital of "hellfire corner."

Jubilant citizens swarmed into the streets for an impromptu celebration marked by singing, shouting and dancing, while flags appeared by hundreds from windows of nearly all the town's houses.

It is expected that thanksgiving services will be held on the beaches next Sunday, with the Archbishop of Canterbury presiding, and tomorrow undoubtedly will bring special rites in all the churches of "hellfire corner."

Mayor J. R. Cairns said there would be no official celebration until Calais and Dunkerque fall to the 1st Canadian Army now besieging them.

But his fellow-citizens let off plenty of enthusiasm in their first feelings of joy and relief and even the baby carriages in the streets flew Union Jacks while the older children—many of whom never were evacuated—had their own flag-waving parades.

Men working on the hundreds of shell-damaged houses paused in their labor long enough to whoop out a few cheers and then went back to their jobs so Dover would be ready to welcome its returning evacuees.

Doverites knew that they were in for their worst pasting when Canadian forces started to close in on the French Channel ports opposite. They knew the Germans woud get rid of as many of their big shells—many of them 16-inchers—as possible.

Besides shells, the city has received 464 German bombs, three parachute mines and as many flying bombs.

During the last couple of years most of the German shellings came as retaliation after British big guns attacked German ships trying to slip through the Straits at night—apparently in hope that the citizens of Dover would protest so strongly that the shelling of enemy ships would cease. But Dover took it in silence.

GreekShepherds Aid British

WITH THE CANADIAN CORPS ON THE ADRIATIC FRONT, Sept. 30—(CP)—Now come the Greeks to fight in that company of men who know no equal in the international diversity of their army.

The Greeks went into the line one late summer night on the coastal sector of the British 8th Army Front. The Germans counter-attacked their positions almost immediately. Men who took over a slit trench one hour were dead the next but the Greeks held on and next week they were in Rimini, lifting their flag above its ruins and sending back to Maj.-Gen. Chris Vokes for a Canadian flag to hang by its side.

They fought under Gen. Vokes, commander of a Canadian division.

The men in the ranks are farmers and shepherds from the hills, their officers almost entirely regular army officers. Some slipped away from their homes a matter of years ago, others left in recent months.

The unit as such, is the child of the revolution in the little community of Greek expatriates in the Middle East. It is formed of men who remained loyal to the monarchial element while others of the orginal two brigades took up arms for the Communistic E.A.M. organization seeking representation in the Cairo government.

Says La Guardia Going To Rome

LONDON, Sept. 30—(CP)—The Rome radio said today Mayor La Guardia of New York city will arrive in Rome "shortly" to become administrator of liberated Italy. The broadcast did not give the source of its information.

President Roosevelt said in Washington yesterday there might be some news on a possible assignment of La Guardia to Italy, but the Mayor said in New York when asked for comment: "Yes, I had an assignment today with my dentist."

Says Election Farther Away

OTTAWA, Sept. 30—(CP)—Persons in Ottawa, who a few weeks back were confidently forecasting a Federal general election this year, now consider that the developments on the western front and Prime Minister Churchill's warning in London on Thursday that the war against Germany may extend several months into 1945 have wiped out any prospect of a vote that soon.

March now is being talked about as a likely election month. While Prime Minister Mackenzie King in his speech on the 25th anniversary of his election as national leader, Aug. 7, made it clear he did not desire a Federal election in the heat of the war in Europe, neither did he desire parliament to extend its life, which automatically ends next spring.

Colleagues of Mr. King at the time said if it came to a case of having to decide between a wartime election and extension of parliament's life, the Prime Minister would call an election. This decision may have to be made.

Ontario Seeks Power Sites

Negotiates With Quebec For 6 Spots

OTTAWA, Sept. 30—(CP).—Premier George Drew of Ontario yesterday announced that negotiations would be started immediately with the Quebec Government for development of six power sites on the Ottawa River between Des Joachims to Carillon in Quebec.

He said the newly-created power would transform eastern Ontario into "one of the greatest industrial sections of Canada." Construction on the projects would start at the beginning of demobilization of the armed forces.

Mr. Drew said no question of cancelling existing agreements for developments of the sites was involved in the negotiations.

"If satisfactory agreements can be made, as I believe they can, they will be substituted for all existing agreements," he said. The agreements, passed between Liberal administrations in Ontario and Quebec, had contemplated export of power to industrial centres as far away as Windsor.

He added:

"It is my conviction that a reversal of that process makes more sense—we should [illegible] industries close to the source of power."

Safety Rules Important In Home Life

T. A. Lister, safety engineer with the Canadian General Electric Company, has contributed the following article in the hope of stimulating in homes a sharper awareness of the importance of "safety" as part of the message and purpose of Safety Week which is being observed between October 2 and 7—next week.

Every day millions of housewives on this continent flirt with death unconsciously (and don't realize it.) You think that's wrong? Let's look at the accident statistics as furnished by a popular American magazine.

Three million persons were injured and thirty-two thousand lost their lives through accidents in the home last year, this represents 34 per cent of all recorded accidents, which is just 1 per cent less than the number of injuries caused by motor vehicles and over twice as many as occur in industry. It has been established that the three most dangerous places in the home are the porch, yard, and kitchen and that by far the most of the accidents are caused by falls, which give the old Safety Slogan of "Watch your step" a new meaning.

"This astonishing casualty list is in no way connected with the war effort and there is little likelihood of any decrease in the future unless the housewives take notice of the warnings given by Insurance Companies and other groups interested in their welfare. In almost every home you will find brooms or boxes stored on stairways, step ladders that have outlived their usefullness, electrical connections that have been "temporarily" repaired, furnaces with defective pipes and other death traps which take their yearly toll in death and suffering.

"Good housekeeping is just as important in the home as it's in the factory and for the safety of your family it would be well to find a safe place for the storage of these brooms, mops and pails which repose on the cellar steps. Fido — your faithful hound can be trained in a very short time to select some place other than the dark corner of the stairway for his afternoon nap and when you balance the cost of having the electric stove or toaster repaired by a competant person against the doctor's bill which may accrue if you receive a severe shock you will find that it is good business to leave your electrical gadgets to be looked after by a man who understands them.

"Thousands of children have been killed or crippled for life because some dangerous condition has been left unattended. The files of any hospital show the record of scalded and broken bodies of tiny tots who, in their innocence, have wandered into danger. It is the hope of every person who is connected with accident prevention that our Safety Campaign will help prevent accidents not only in industry but also in the home. The Safety of your family and yourself can be assured only if you are prepared to incorporate into your home life the principles of safe living."

Memory Ship Takes Wistful Farewell Of Kawartha Lakes, Home For 40 Years

By PETE McGILLEN

Echoing blasts from the whistle of the steamer Stoney Lake, heard Thursday evening from the canal, was the valedictory to forty years of service for this well-known excursion boat in the Kawarthas, as it sped downstream to Lake Ontario, and a new phase of its existence.

The "Stoney" has been sold to the Thousand Island Steamship Lines and its remaining useful years will be spent as an excursion craft carrying passenges in cruises among the Thousand Islands of the St. Lawrence River with Kingston as its home port.

Back in 1904 this ship was launched, and since that time more than three generations of Peterborough people have graced its deck on picnic trips, and moonlight excursions. Many men and women will feel a little wistful at the news that this venerable craft is leaving, for hundreds of romances that blossomed on is upper deck as it journeyed down the Otonabee or across the beautiful stretches of the Kawartha lakes, have long since ripened into marriage, and thus the boat holds a hallowed spot in the minds and hearts of these happy people.

One Skipper

The boat has had only one skipper down through the four score years, and he is Captain Bill Scollard of Young's Point, now living in Peterborough. Memories thronging from out of the shrouded mists of other years must have flashed in kaleidoscopic array across his mind's eye as he took his old friend of long standing on her final Kawartha trip, and it is not unusual that he gave the whistle string a few extra tugs as he neared the Lift Lock, a parting salute as she bowed out of the Kawartha scene.

Changing times bringing with them, the motor car and improved highways shaped the drop in popularity of the excursion boat, and while there has been a revival in recent years in the demand for boat accommodation, it has not been sufficient to warrant a continuance of this form of recreational travel. Hence the times and the changing mood of pleasure seekers helped the Young family to the decision to part with this craft, which has been the doughty flagship of the Stoney Lake Navigation Company. Other ships owned by this firm were the Empress, burned at Mount Julian some years back, the Manita which was dry-docked about five years ago, and the Islinda, the only one of the four in use in the upper Kawartha Lakes.

The Stoney Lake is 92 feet long with a beam of 20 feet and is powered by a fore and aft compound engine. Her hull is reinforced with steel and she has steel bulkheads to give added strength to the craft, a fact scarcely known to any of those who enjoyed the excursions.

The new owners of the boat are Captain Ross W. Carnegie and H. C. McIlquhm, both of Kingston.

The ship was given a rigid inspection at Young's Point earlier this week by marine inspectors and passed all of the tests and trials in a most satisfactory manner, thus putting the final touch to the transaction that took the beloved "memory boat" from its old haunts.

In the north the battle for the Latvian port of Riga grew in fury. The Germans were knocked out of 30 additional settlements, but enemy resistance definitely stiffened.

An official summation last night said that Marshal Leonid A. Govorov's clearing of the Estonia mainland had cost the Germans more than 30,000 killed and 15,745 prisoners between Sept. 17 and 26.

(The Swiss radio said the Russians landed on the islands of Hiuu (Dago) and Saare (Osel) off the Estonian coast. Capture of the islands would complete the ousting of the Germans from all Estonian territory.)

Moscow regarded as big news the revelation of the widening scope of the attack against Hungary—attacks were more convincing than words that the Magyars must seek peace or meet catastrophe.

With the capture of Wysocko-Wyzno in the Czech-Polish frontier zone, Petrov's forces outflanked Uzok Pass from the east and west. At the eastern extremity of Ruthenia Petrov was within three miles of Korosmezo after occupying the former Polish mountain resort village of Worochta. In the central sector his artillery controlled Volocz Pass.

Drew's Figures Are Challenged

OTTAWA, Sept. 30.—(CP).—Premier George Drew of Ontario said in an address last night that he stood by a statement of Aug. 9 opposing "large sums going from the pockets of Ontario taxpayers for the benefit of the people of Quebec when their general representatives take the position that they deny their obligation to bear their full share in the (war) struggle now reaching its most critical stage."

Speaking before the Eastern Ontario Progressive Conservative Association, Mr. Drew said he accepted the figure of the chief Ontario statistician that under the Federal family allowances plan Ontario would contribute between $15,000,000 and $20,000,000 to Quebec. He said the figures had been challenged.

Mr. Drew said it had been made clear that Ontario was prepared to support other provinces where that support was needed. The objection to a contribution to Quebec was because the Quebec Legislature had gone on record opposing the effective use of the military reinforcements in Canada at a time "when these reinforcements are desperately needed at the front."

"We have no intention of dodging that issue, and I stand by the position I took on Aug. 9," he continued.

Mr. Drew, speaking of his trip overseas, said a military civil affairs organization had been established to serve in France after liberation as it was expected it would not be possible to have a civil government restored at once. But it was found the French quickly set up their own local civil governments without confusion.

The Allied civil affairs branch had no major task in France, he said. The French people had become more conscious than they had for many years that every person who loved his country must take an active part in the life of that country.

Attorney-General Leslie Blackwell said he hoped there would be a Progressive Conservative Government in Ottawa after the next election which would bring unity between the Dominion, provincial and municipal governments.

Highways Minister George Doucett said eastern Ontario would receive more consideration on road-building than it had in the past.

Apple Demand Heavy At Market

Business and the weather was brisk at the Farmers' Market this morning, with apples, pears, watermelons and other late growing products giving the scene a distinctive Autumn touch.

On almost every stall, apples held the feature spot. MacIntoshes was favored by many, and they sold generally at 50 cents a peck. St. Lawrence apples were 70 cents for the same measure. Wealthies were 50 cents, Alexandra apples were 40 cents a basket, and Culbert held firm at 30 cents for the six quart basket. Some people preferred to buy their apples via the bushel basket route, and for these, Wealthies were $2.25, and Gravensteins were $1.75. Baxters were 35 cents a six quart basket, and red crabapples at 50 cents a six quart basket.

Pears, most of which were the Duchess variety, selling at 75 cents a basket, Bartletts were 60 cents, and Monarch plums, big and blue, were to be had for 75 cents a six quart basket.

Grapes were on hand in lesser quantities, and both green and blue sold for 55 cents a 6 quart basket. Watermelons in varying sizes ranged from 10 cents to 50 cents, muskmelons also began at 10 cents and advanced to 35 cents as the size increased, and big Hubbard squash went for 10 and 25 cents.

On the vegetable stands, cabbage was 8 and 10 cents, beets and carrots were 5 cents a bunch, cauliflower ranged from 15 to 20 cents each, and marrows were 5 cents each.

Green tomatoes and red tomatoes, were 40 cents a six quart basket, and an 11 quart measure of red tomatoes sold for 60 cents. Red and green peppers were 3 for 10 cents, egg-plants were 10 cents each, potatoes were 40 cents a peck or 30 cents a basket. Brussel sprouts were 15 cents a quart, pickling onions were 25 cents a quart, and little Gherkins were $1.25 a 6 quart basket.

Poultry and eggs were abundant, and usually eggs ranged anywhere from 25 cents to 45 cents a dozen. Hens sold generally at 27-28 cents a pound, and chickens went for 33-35 cents a pound. Roasted fowl sold for 50 cents a pound. A few ducks made an appearance at the Market this morning, selling at 38 cents a pound.

Minister's Wife Given Coffee Table By IODE

NORWOOD, Sept. 30 — (ENS) — The women of the I.O.D.E. decided to postpone their tag day for a week at their meeting recently, when they honored one of their members. Mrs. D. B. Cutcliffe read an address of appreciation to Mrs. R. E. Lemon for her splendid work in the Chapter and Mrs. E. P. Cuffe presented her with an oval coffee table with a glass tray, three cups and saucers and a tea-pot.

Afternoon tea was served from a table decorated with carnations and asters in a cutglass centrepiece. Mrs. G. Bitten was convener for the tea.

The Church of England wardens presented the minister's family with a purse of money at their home, and afterward were entertained by friends at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Mainland, where they were presented with a fountain pen and two linen pieces by personal friends.

Court Fines Two Men On Vagrancy Charges

Arrested Thursday night and remanded until today on charges of vagrancy Harold Brooks and Albert Raciot entered pleas of guilty in police court this morning and were fined $5 and $1.75 costs or ten days in jail. The fines were paid.

On a written plea of guilty to illegal possession of liquor David C. Bennett was fined $15 and $2.50 costs. The charge was laid by Provincial Constable Price Morris.

Four Sentenced To Hang In Stove Murder

By MARSHALL BATEMAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

FORT FRANCES, Ont., Sept. 30—(CP)—Four men will pay with their lives Dec. 6 for the hot-stove torture death of 49-year-old Mrs. Viola Jamieson in her Flanders, Ont., home last summer.

The quartet—William Schmidt, 27, of Fort Frances, Anthony and George Skrypnyk, brothers, aged 23 and 28 respectively, of Atikoken, Ont., and Eino Tillonen, 19, of Port Arthur—were sentenced last night to hang in December by Mr. Justice F. H. Barlow of Toronto after a 12-man Ontario Supreme Court jury returned a verdict of guilty of murder.

The charges were laid after their arrest and the death in Fort Frances Hospital of Mrs. Jamieson July 2 from burns suffered June 10 when tortured with burning newspapers and then placed atop a hot stove in the kitchen of her home.

The men were lodged in Fort Frances jail, but shortly will be taken to the provincial jail at Kenora, Ont., 170 miles northwest of here, where the hanging is likely to take place.

Out 3 Hours

The jury, which returned its verdict after deliberating two hours and 54 minutes, recommended mercy for Tillonen and Mr. Justice Barlow said he would forward the recommendation to Justice Minister St. Laurent.

The accused were all calm and showed no signs of emotion when the trial judge pronounced sentence. Only one, Anthony Skrypnyk spoke. He said: "If I have a chance at all, I would know how to live."

After the four had been taken to their cells, C. R. Fitch, K.C., counsel for Schmidt, said he would appeal on behalf of his client. Defence counsels for the others made no comment.

During the hearing of the evidence, which begun here last Tuesday, statements given by the four to Inspector Frank Kelly of the Ontario Provincial Police were accepted as evidence by Mr. Justice Barlow. In the statements, the men admitted torturing Mrs. Jamieson in an effort to make her tell them where she did her money.

Stole $1,300

Schmidt, who was arrested at Morris, Man. Aug. 9 in his statement said the four men stole $1,300 from the Jamieson root house sometime in May.

Tillonen said that while the four were enroute to Flanders Schmidt said "he knew how to make her talk—torture her with fire."

Anthony Skrypnyk said "all four men lit papers and burned" Mrs. Jamieson, but his brother, George, in his statement said he never was at Mrs. Jamieson's home, but Sgt. R. W. Wonnacott of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police at Ottawa, showed George's print on a sealer taken from the kitchen of the home, June 11.

In charging the jury the trial judge said their verdict must be either "guilty or not guilty" and termed the torture a "shocking crime."

Medical evidence showed Mrs. Jamieson, the mother of two boys—Arthur 10 and Harold, 12—died from burns covering 38 per cent of her body.

Two Band Leaders Coming To City

The visit this week-end of Lt.-Col. James Merritt and Band Leader Percy Merritt, of Toronto, brings to Peterborough two of The Salvation Army's most notable composers and musicians. These men are the oldest and youngest of four brothers, all of whom are outstanding band trainers of The Salvation Army in Canada. Lt.-Colonel Merritt has a large number of compositions in the current Band journals, best-loved of which are "Canadian" March and "The Singing Salvationist". Band Leader Percy is an even more prolific writer of music, his "Golden West" March and an air varie, "Sunshine", being among his best works.

Lt.-Col. Merritt holds the joint position at the Toronto Headquarters of Men's Social Service Secretary and Property Secretary. Other guests during the week-end will be Lt.-Colonel and Mrs. Bunton and Major Harold Wellman.

In addition to his prowess as a composer, Band Leader Percy is an excellent euphonium soloist and will be heard in the Saturday night and Sunday afternoon programs.

Monaghan Population Reduced To 1,008

Population of North Monaghan will be reduced to 1,008 after suburban annexation to the city as shown in the 1945 assessment rolls prepared by Reg Hunter, assessor.

"The township is losing more than 4,000 people," Bruce Johnston, township clerk, said today; "one hundred or more in excess of 4,000."

Mr. Johnston said he could not remember exactly the decrease. "There are 224 children in the township with its revised boundaries, and fewer than one hundred are distributed between the remaining schools, Nos. 1, 3 and 4."

S.S. No. 1 is Brealey's; No. 3 in the old town hall neighborhood and 4 at Joe Madill's.

Noted Missionary Is Coming To City

On Sunday the Rev. K. Paul Yphantis of Boston will be the guest speaker of the Peterborough Christian Business Men's Committee at their opening service in the Centre Theatre at 8.30 p.m.

Mr. Yphantis was in Greece when the Italians and later the Germans invaded that country and witnessed much of the suffering and misery that the people of Greece had to undergo as city after city was blitzed. In 15 months more than a million people died of starvation.

The committee has also secured one of the best male quartets in the Dominion, "The Dayspring Male Quartet of Hamilton". This musical organization will render a number of musical selections that will be worthy of the occasion.

The song leader, Aylmer Moore of Peterborough, will lead the audience in the singing of gospel hymns. Last fall and winter forty services were held in the Centre and Regent Theatres by the C.B.M. committee, all of which were marked by splendid attendances which on one or two occasions passed the 600 mark. This season the committee, which is now affiliated with the International Christian Business Men's Committee, which has as its chairman R. J. Le Torneau, who visited Peterborough last July and addressed a capacity audience in George Street United Church, is anticipating even larger meetings this season.

east of Sittard on the Dutch-German frontier 20 miles north of Aachen and drove anew against Hurtgen, 14 miles southeast of the besieged fortress town.

They made only what the communique called "limited progress" in the Siegfried-Denting attack southwest of Prum, eight miles inside the German border midway between Aachen and Trier, but knocked out eight strong points in a single attack and were forging ahead.

They liberated Monpach and Wasserbillig on the Luxembourg border just six miles west of Trier and captured Haute-Contz six miles south of the border town of Remich which was won the day before.

The 7th Army was running into heavy fire of German artillery concentrations—a whole thundering arsenal from field guns to six-barrelled rocket mortars—but kept up its gains, mile by mile.

Probe Weak Spots

The Germans for the first time were taking the initiative in patrol operations, however, probing Allied lines for thin spots in every indication of a fierce fighting stand in the Vosges.

Seventh Army troops captured St. Gorgon one mile south of the road network town of Rambervillers in a two-mile advance and were pushing east on a five-mile front.

They slugged their way forward through desperate German resistance at the entrance of the narrow Vosges foothills pass of Bouvellieurs, 14 miles northeast of Epinal.

A hard German counter-attack was repulsed west of Le Thillot midway between Epinal and Belfort.

French troops of the 7th reached Belfahy and smashed on to the entrance of another Vosges Pass at Chevestray, 11 miles northeast of Lure.

The 7th held its Clairegoutte foothold, 11 miles from Belfort, and repulsed a German scouting thrust against nearby Mignavillers.

Pressure on German positions also was being applied along the U.S. 3rd and 7th Army fronts.

Millbrook Soldier Now Dangerously Ill

MILLBROOK, Sept. 30—(ENS)—Word was received by Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Kerr that their son, L/Cpl. William Kerr, previously reported wounded is now dangerously ill. The telegram explained that an operation had been necessary and on September 17 the right leg was amputated at the knee. The first message mentioned only injury to the left thigh and leg.

YWCA At Home Ends Fall Rally

Girls of the Y.W.C.A. concluded a successful three-day rally Friday evening, when the residence girls were "at home" to friends. After a grand march, in which everyone joined, a series of games and amusing contests was enjoyed. As a conclusion to the gay evening, a humorous skit was presented by several of the residence girls, and dancing was enjoyed.

Members of the social committee of the Y.W.C.A. assisted in serving refreshments, Mrs. F. D. Kerr, Mrs. T. Barrie, Mrs. A. A Moir, Miss Olga Johnston and Mrs S. L. Smoke. Resident girls on the committee in charge of the evening were Misses Hazel Wilson, Mary Taylor, Connie McKelvie, Pauline Humphries, Hilda McConkey, Helen Warner, Lois Warner and Helen Moore.

Safety Week

Next week will be safety week, and we are all invited to look everywhere—in our workshops, places of business and in our homes—for signs of the type of neglect which causes accidents. Every year great numbers of people die because they, or someone else, have failed to take common precautions against accidents; and for every death from this cause there are a dozen injuries, more or less serious.

• • •

Accidents are rarely unpredictable. Now and again an accident happens which no one could have foreseen, but most accidents are the result of carelessness. In talking of accidents it is impossible to avoid hackneyed expressions, and we make no apology for repeating one of the commonest—Familiarity breeds contempt. However dangerous a machine may be, the man who operates it every day is likely to become offhand in his approach to it, and a serious accident may be the result. There are many instruments in common use which do not seem to be dangerous, such as stoves, irons, toasters or heaters which, if they are not inspected now and again, are likely to give serious trouble.

• • •

Traffic accidents are continually reported in newspapers, and newspapers continually warn against them in their editorial columns. Go to any busy corner in Peterborough today and you will see pedestrians crossing the street against the traffic lights, motorists running through stop streets, and children and adults on bicycles driving to the danger of themselves and everybody else. If everyone took a little more care, traffic accidents could be cut in half.

• • •

There are plenty of breeding-grounds for accidents in most homes. Is your medicine cabinet orderly, or is it full of old pills and dregs of tonics and sedatives which might seriously harm an inquisitive child? Do you leave poisons—and many disinfectants are poisonous—where they might be taken for something else, in the dark or by someone who knew no better? Have you a collection of old rusty razor blades waiting to cut an unwary groper, and give him blood-poisoning? Is your back stairs a booby trap filled with ironing-boards, soft drink bottles and sacks of potatoes? Is your cellar a firetrap filled with inflammable rubbish? Next week the factories and workshops of Peterborough will be inspected; inspect your home at the same time. Remember the proverb: The way to be safe is never to feel secure. And do not forget that an accident has been defined as "an inevitable occurrence due to the action of immutable natural laws".

Volley In The Word War

When is a supreme value not a supreme value? When it is a 'supremer value'. We are sure that the fighters in the Word War will be obliged to us for this information, which we derive from the columns of a usually meticulous contemporary. We shall not divulge the contemporary's name, as we have no desire to cause hot blushes and editorial hara-kiri (disembowelling with the file hook), but this is the sentence as it appeared: "It should be time that we understood that civilization does not consist of better plumbing, and that if we go on neglecting supremer values, imagining that we can live by bread alone, only failure can await us."

Our contemporary, funnily enough, was talking about education. Apparently English usage is not one of his supreme values, let alone a 'supremer' one.

Fighters in the Word War, when something is 'supreme', it has reached the highest in praise; it can go no further. If you attempt to give it an extra boost by describing it as 'supremer' you merely make it, and yourself, an object of derision.

Housing In Peterborough

On Thursday and Friday nights of this week a questionnaire has appeared on the local page of this paper asking for information about the housing situation in Peterborough; it was prepared and inserted at the instruction of the City Council. People who filled out the form were asked to sign their names to it, not that they might be listed for future reference, but only as a sign of good faith. The object of the form was merely to discover certain facts which will be necessary if the postwar expansion of the city is to take the most useful and acceptable form.

If a large number of houses are needed in this city after the war it is desirable that they should be built in suitable districts where they can be conveniently supplied with water and sewer facilities, sidewalks and fire protection, and all the services which the city provides; it is also desirable that they should be built in such a way that they form pleasant settlements, and are not dropped helter-skelter all over the place. Capital from within the city, or from outside it, can readily be interested in the prospect of building a new residential section, and a better job can be done than if the building is haphazard.

It is also a fact that Peterborough has nothing large in the way of an apartment block; there are flats all over the city, but no apartment building such as is found in most cities of this size. If the information which the Council receives shows that there are a hundred or so families who want apartments at a certain rental, it will not be hard to find speculators who know their business who will be glad to come here and fill the need.

What the Council is undertaking is a recognized scheme for city expansion. By stating your needs you are not committing yourself to anything, but you are helping your Council to understand the nature and extent of the city's wants; when these are known the job of supplying the wants in a manner advantageous to Peterborough is comparatively easy.

The High Cost Of Authorship

A Canadian author, Miss Gwethalyn Graham of Toronto, has written a book called Earth and High Heaven, which has brought her a large sum of money: to be precise, she has sold the serial rights to it for $7,500, the moving picture rights for $100,000, and the book-club rights for $42,000; in all the book has brought her $149,500. If she is taxed on this money at the current rate, she will be allowed to keep $28,246 for herself, and the Dominion treasury will be enriched by $121,254.

Every writer in Canada will be interested in what happens to Miss Graham's money. Many a Canadian writer has groaned under the insult of having his royalties taxed as 'unearned income'; many have dreaded the sort of sudden success which has come to Miss Graham, for fear that they might be unable to navigate its difficulties safely. They will all want to know what attitude the Department of Finance takes toward her earnings.

If we are correctly informed, this is the first novel which Miss Graham has published since 1935. It may be regarded as the result of eight years of work. But the financial rewards have all come in one year, and nobody knows whether the Income Tax officials will consider that fact or not. As Bernard Shaw pointed out recently, authors and other artists live in a hand-to-mouth manner, and they have to depend on sudden strokes of success to carry them over long stretches of bad luck or unproductive work. If the fruits of success are snatched from them as though such windfalls were yearly occurrences, artists, literary and otherwise, will suffer greater hardship than ever before. Shaw's suggestion was that they be allowed to reckon their income over a period of several years, and not on every year, like people whose earnings are more predictable.

We wish Miss Graham every success. Canadian literature is a sickly child now; if every author who makes a respectable sum of money is to have most of it taken from him—if, in fact, success in the arts is to be penalized because it is rare—we need not expect the puny invalid to live much longer.

NOTE AND COMMENT

At Rogers, Ark., a clothesline with a complete family wash on it was robbed of a dozen diapers and nothing else. Milk bars and day nurseries are being systematically dragged for the culprit.

Diary of A Fly-Swatter

By
SAMUEL MARCHBANKS

SUNDAY: Went for a walk this afternoon and reflected, as I do every year, that there is no season to compare with autumn; threw stones into a pool, and discovered that the knack of 'skipping' which I once possessed in the highest degree, had left me.... In the evening listened to Bergen and Charlie McCarthy, and unless I am greatly mistaken, they are not as funny as they used to be; a new charcater, called Aunt Effie Something, appears on the program, and she is about as funny as a fishbone in the throat. The program depressed me so much that I went to the kitchen and cleaned several pairs of shoes, which I always find a satisfactory and restoring occupation; I can put a better shine on a shoe than any professional shoeblack that I have ever seen at work; this is the result of several secret processes which I shall not divulge here.

MONDAY: Was talking today to a man who is In The Know about a number of things which are likely to happen after the war, and I asked him what would become of all the women who now have jobs in industry and who would want to keep them. He told me that organized labour was coping with this situation by demanding 'equal pay for equal work'; knowing that women cannot do equal work with men over a period of time, owing to their many disadvantages, they anticipate that this will squeeze the women out of industry effectively. Obviously nobody will employ a woman at a man's wage when she cannot do a man's work....If this should ever come to the ears of some of our militant feminists they will undoubtedly blow a fuse, for it is their cherished belief that women and men can compete in the postwar labour market without causing any serious economic upheaval. 'May the best man win,' they cry, but it is their conviction that in at least half the cases the best man will be a woman.

TUESDAY: For years I have been known to a large circle of sports enthusiasts as the Nimrod of the Fly-Swatter; I take no interest in other blood-sports, but when it comes to swatting flies I admit few equals and no superiors. I prefer a swatter with a rubber flapper to the ordinary wire affair; the wire mashes the game, but the rubber merely slaps it into oblivion and leaves the carcass unmutilated, and suitable for stuffing or table use....It is not generally realized that when a fly rises from a standing position, it jumps backward; it is necessary to allow for this jump when swatting. I have also noticed that amateurs, particularly women, swat at flies as though they were driving spikes; this causes a noticeable breeze, and the fly is warned. The way to swat a fly is this: grip the swatter firmly but not tensely, hold it six inches over the quarry, and then swat with a decisive but not vindictive motion. If the fly escapes, do not pursue it with yells and wild swipes of the swatter; wait until it lights again, and swat like a gentleman and a sportsman. With my rubber swatter I can often stun a fly while it is in the air, but you had better not try this; only an Annie Oakley like myself has the finesse for such refinements.

WEDNESDAY: To the movies to see "The Hour Before The Dawn," a piece which was based on a story by Somerset Maughan. Surely no other author in history has achieved such a reputation by the sale of corn, green on the cob, as this same Maugham? There is not a superficial emotion, a cliche of thought or speech, a threadbare dramatic situation, which he has failed to exploit again and again, with the utmost skill and cynicism. The film which I saw was about the redemption of a pacificist; he was a peculiar sort of pacifist, who could not bear to kill anyone, but had no objection to knocking a man's block off with his fists....Why do I go to the movies every week? Nine out of the ten are mere weariness of spirit, designed for audiences of morons. But one must have some sort of entertainment. When there is no water but bilge, I drink bilge, but I refuse to pretend that I like it.... The newsreel contained some first-rate pictures of street-fighting in Paris; they really conveyed the impression that brave and determined people were fighting for something which they loved. These pictures were to the Maugham nonsense as bread is to a mouthful of sawdust.

THURSDAY: Business called me to Toronto, where I found the lobby of the Royal York thronged with men in handsome blue uniforms which were richly ornamented with gold lace, gold rope and gold insignia; many of them wore impressive medals and ribbons, and I heard one of them address another as 'General.' All of them carried swords, the scabbards of which appeared to be composed of gold and ivory, and one of them was accompanied by a lady of dominating appearance who wore a purple cloak of military cut, and a hat with a prodigious ostrich plume in it. I assumed that they must be foreign grandees, perhaps a government-in-exile, until I noticed that fighting men in ordinary khaki and blue did not salute them, but seemed indeed to look upon them with ill-concealed amusement; I saw one airman point them out to his dinner partner with what I can only describe as a contumelious gesture....I made discreet enquiries, and learned that the gorgeous creatures were attending an American Odd Fellows convention. There is a corroboree of some sort at the Royal York every week.

FRIDAY: Every day I pass a beverage room in the course of my duties, and at least every second day an habitue of the place pursues me for a hundred yards or so, telling me in a low, compelling voice, how badly he needs twenty-five cents. I have given him money several times, chiefly from a fear that he will fall dead at my feet if I refuse, but I am beginning to be indifferent to his fate. What is more, an uncharitable suspicion dawns in my mind that he uses my money to buy beer. Now if he spends all his daily income, which is my twenty-five cents, on drink, he is obviously an improvident oaf and the despair of economists, and next time he appears trembling and muttering at my side I shall tell him so. If he were a true Canadian he would spend five cents of my quarter on food and drink, he would save five cents, and he would pay the other fifteen for income tax and the Baby Bonus. That is what I have to do. Why should he live a life of pleasure, spending his whole income on drink, when I have to slave and pinch to keep him and several thousand civil servants in luxury? This is the sort of social injustice which make communists of white-collar workers like me.

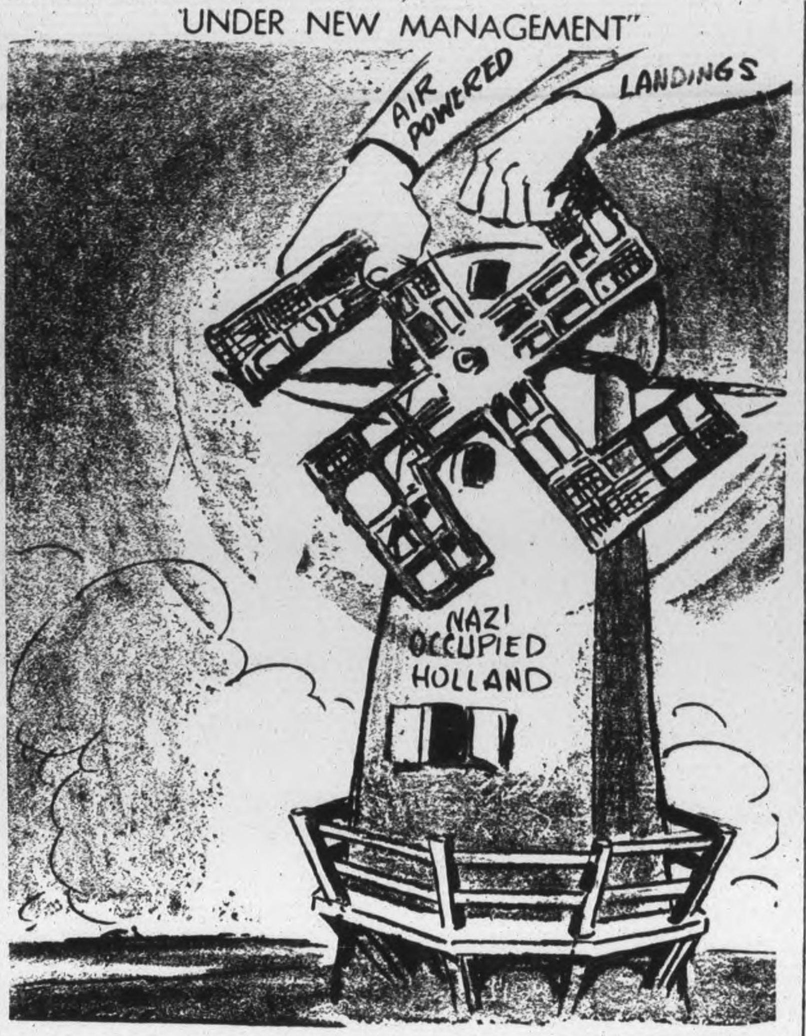
SATURDAY: Woke early this morning, and lay for some time in a state of drowsy half-consciousness, oppressed by a dismal foreboding of evil. When at last I was fully awake, I realized that this sense of impending doom sprang from the knowledge that I had two cords of wood to carry into my cellar and pile this afternoon. I braced myself for the ordeal and when I went downstairs onlookers remarked that the condemned man ate a hearty breakfast....At lunch I fortified myself with braised spare-ribs, corn on the cob, baked potatoes, squash, cherry pie, a peach, a bunch of grapes and three cups of coffee and set about my task. The pile of wood looked like one of the Himalayas transplanted to my back garden. But I lugged and trudged, and lugged and trudged, and by six o'clock it had shrunk to the size of the Hamilton mountain; I was all in, and narrowly averted coma by eating another light meal. Then I wrote for an hour and a half; that work finished, I looked at a pile of books which had come for review; they all had a forbidding appearance, so I settled down with a murder-mystery by Dashiell Hammett and read till I fell asleep; woke much later to find the fire out and the room very cold.

"UNDER NEW MANAGEMENT"



The Sword Will Not Be Sheathed

(MONTREAL GAZETTE)

FOR Adolf Hitler and his associates the looming of Nazi defeat must have a distressingly personal quality. For as their defences fall about them, the hour of their accounting grows alarmingly nearer. The defeat of their armies is not like a storm that shall roll over their heads. In these black nights they must be sleeping the sleep of the unjust.

Escape is, of course, the natural craving of those faced with an unacceptable situation. Yet the only escape that seems open to them now is the escape of fancy, or the wish-fulfilling dream. Like Napoleon in the last drab days after Waterloo, Hitler and his friends are probably thinking of all the pleasant places in which they would like to dwell, much like a starving castaway on a raft, who imagines all the pleasant things he would like to eat. In grim fact, the world has become their prison. All its vast skies and oceans, its islands and its continents, represent only the places to which they can never go.

Many are the voices which have proclaimed their doom, and another heavy voice has now joined that fateful chorus. On his return from the Quebec Conference, Prime Minister Churchill was questioned in the Commons concerning Hitler's post-war future. With a characteristically determined nonchalance he replied: "Odd as it may seen, the point has not entirely escaped our attention." And he went on to make clear that it was not the intention of His Majesty's Government to allow the war criminals to flee into any sanctuary, however neutral.

There is something satisfactorily final in these words from Mr. Churchill. The fist which was shaken in defiance at Hitler in the days of Nazi ascendancy, will not fail to close upon Hitler in the hour of his defeat. One is reminded of a speech made by Mr. Churchill back in 1939, when, with the war's outbreak, he had come back to his old post as First Lord of the Admiralty. He spoke then of the sword that had been drawn, and which would not be sheathed until its sombre and retributive work had been done. Those words of determined justice, spoken in the uncertainties of 1939, have their full meaning in the rising assurance of 1944.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

AN ERRONEOUS IMPRESSION

Sir,—On your editorial page of last evening, September 28th, there was an article in regard to the Civic Hospital proposition that does violence to the merit of our late benefactress, Mrs. Charlotte Nicholls. The article conveyed the impression, in fact stated the fact that Mrs. Nicholls had a strong dislike for the Church of Rome, and that she desired the hospital to be sectarian. The source of my information is the late lamented Dr. Halliday who was on the Board of the old hospital at the corner of Charlotte street and Monaghan road and was one of the first at the new hospital and was a confidant of Mrs. Nicholls.

When the matter of building a hospital was mooted, the Bishop of Peterborough at that time, who I believe was Bishop Lamot, took the matter up with Mrs. Nicholls and suggested that the Catholic patients should be segregated. Mrs. Nicholls claimed that that was physically impossible as it would duplicate each ward, maternity, medical, surgical, emergency, children's, etc., and might also make necessary the service of nurses and sisters. It was her desire that the hospital be open to all citizens of the City of Peterborough and that if the Bishop desired segregation, it would be necessary for his church to build a hospital of its own.

There was no intolerance or rancour in the matter and it was decided that that should be the solution which eventuated.

I rather regret that it becomes my duty to state the facts as I know them but I feel in justice to Mrs. Nicholls, in justice to other denominations, and to remove any rancour that might rest in the minds of our Catholic citizens, that it was my duty to present the information which was in my possession and which I have extended privately on more than one occasion.

Thanking you for your space and hoping that this will rectify a very erroneous impression.

Yours very truly,
S. H. MITCHELL.

Making Mischief

(OTTAWA JOURNAL)

NOT long ago we had a member of the United States Senate charging that diplomatically and in the securing of markets the British were out to get the better of Americans. Now we have the London Daily Mail practically accusing General Eisenhower of permitting United States businessmen to get to Paris to "establish contacts and conduct affairs which may prove ruinous to British enterprise."

What can be done about such tales—or about the people who spin them? If they aren't true—and most people will refuse to believe them—there should be some way to deal with their authors. Because they are doing the devil's and Hitler's work; creating a spirit of suspicion which, if it be permitted to grow, will be destructive of everything we can hope for the future.

Somebody once said that if trouble or war came between the British Empire and the United States "all hell would clap for joy." All hell would clap; yet there are people on both sides of the Atlantic who, with an utter lack of responsibility, say and do things calculated to destroy Anglo-American friendship.

Since the foregoing was written word has come of an American Congressman, one Calvin D. Johnson, of Illinois, making outrageous charges of British failure to co-operate with Americans in Burma, speaking of consequent cost of "thousands of American lives," and telling Britain that she is less concerned with "affairs of today" than with hre "Empire of the future."

This is not merely mischievous; it is reprehensible. The campaign in Burma is necessarily but a part of Allied global war strategy, planned and discussed and agreed upon at Allied conferences, with American military authorities, from President Roosevelt down, taking part in them. Yet here we have this irresponsible Congressman using the United States House of Representatives as a world sounding board to base vile attack on an ally on the basis of things about which he can know nothing.

If this sort of thing be not stopped, then any hopes we may have about English-speaking co-operation in the coming years may well crash about us.

SANTA CLAUS RUTH

Ruth Mae Jackson, 20, of Chicago, just couldn't stand to think of her soldier boy friends going around without any money, the Federal grand jury heard today.

The jury was told by Bernard Sokol, assistant U.S. attorney, that she bought money orders, "raised" them to 10 times their value by adding a zero and sent them to her widely scattered admirers.

She was named in an indictment returned today before Judge John P. Barnes on a charge of forging money orders.

Sokol said Miss Jackson, a chocolate dipper in a candy factory, bought a $6 money order, added a naught to make it $60 and sent it to Pte. George Williams, 22, at Stormville, N.Y.

Ruth Mae did the same for Pte. James Keys, 20, now stationed at Houston, Tex., according to Sokol.—Chicago Daily News.

"Well," gasped the would-be tourist, "jes' give me a ticket an' point out de track!"

Those Lublin Shoes

Just as regularly as the Germans are driven from the cities and towns of Europe, come the reports of atrocities inflicted by them upon the civilian populations, stories which are almost beyond belief.

We in Canada have been reluctant to believe that human beings could behave quite as badly as the Germans have. The stories of their wholesale butchery of the Jews, their decimination of the population of Poland, their unspeakable Gestapo tortures were almost too much to believe. Yet out of Lublin in Poland has come one piece of evidence which is so damning to the German case that we are no longer justified in believing anything but the worst of them.

Lublin was their great murder camp to which Jews and Poles and Russians were sent by the thousands. Correspondents have visited the place. They have examined the ovens in which the bodies were cremated. They have told their stories.

But the evidence which counts heaviest of all against the Germans was the warehouse filled with salvaged boots and shoes. There, neatly piled and classified were untold thousands of pairs of men's, women's and children's footwear. The Germans—the careful, methodical, thrifty Germans—had no compunction about wasting human life. But leather was extremely scarce in the Third Reich. It could not be wasted. The Germans killed the people, but they saved their shoes. How many thousand pair were shipped out of the warehouse and back to Germany is of course unknown. But the fact that these thousands of pairs were still there will convict the Germans of the atrocity charges which have been levelled against them. These carefully salvaged shoes are evidence which could not be fabricated and which cannot be explained away. —Winnipeg Free Press.

Jesus Brings Light To Men Pharisees Retain Unbelief

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL

(The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for Oct. 1 is Isa. 9:2; Matt. 4:12-16; John 1:4; 8-12; 9:1-41; 12:35, 36, 46; II Cor. 5:6; Eph. 5:14; I John 2:8; Rev. 21-23, the Golden Text being John 8:12, "I am the light of the world, he that followeth Me shall not walk in the darkness, but shall have the light of life.")

"The people that walked in darkness have seen a great light; they that dwell in the land of the shadow of death, upon them hath the light shined."

We are told that at the end of the 8th chapter of Isaiah, Israel is warned of a coming Assyrian invasion. This would have plunged the country into trouble and darkness. Chapter 9, of which the second verse is quoted, opens with the promise that light would yet shine for them who dwelled in the shadow of death, and the first light would come to Galilee.

The lesson today is all about light, and more particularly about Jesus, "the Light of the World;" He who more than any other person or power has bought light, hope, strength to men. This verse is repeated by Matthew in speaking of John the Baptist being cast into prison and Jesus, hearing of it, leaving Nazareth, and going to dwell in Capernaum.

Jesus the Life

John says of Jesus, "In Him was life, and the life was the light of men." Again John tells of Jesus saying, "I am the light of the world: he that followeth Me shall not walk in darkness, but shall have the light of life."

From John, also, we have the beautiful story of the man, blind from birth, who was restored to physical sight and to belief through Jesus' ministration.

Jesus and His disciples were one day passing the temple in Jerusalem, when they saw a blind beggar blind from birth. Jesus' companions argued that someone must have sinned to bring such an affliction upon a man, so they asked Jesus whether He supposed it was the man himself or his parents who had sinned. Jesus reproved them for the thought, saying that neither had sinned but that the man's state was a challenge to helpfulness.

"I must work the works of Him who sent Me," said Jesus, "while it is yet day; the night cometh, when no man can work." Jesus' time on earth was short, and these acts of helpfulness must be done at once.

Spitting on the ground Jesus made a clay with which He anointed the man's eyes, then told him to go and wash in the pool of Siloam. The man unquestionably obeyed and received his sight.

Evidently the man was well known and the miracle was much discussed. The Pharisees, who represented the power of the church whose authority, they thought, should not be disputed, came to him and asked what had happened. He faithfully related the circumstances, but they were not satisfied. They asked his parents, who said as Him. All they knew was that he had always been blind but now could see.

Pharisees Cannot Agree

The Pharisees could not agree among themselves.

Some said the man could not have been blind; others that it was sinful to perform such healing on the Sabbath, and Jesus could not have been of God, but a sinner. "How can a man that is a sinner do such miracles?" asked others.

Again they questioned the man. He answered: "Whether he be a sinner or no, I know not, one thing I know, that, whereas I was blind, now I see." They made him tell them all about it once again, and then they reviled and cast him out. They would no accept the light, you see. They preferred to live in darkness if it meant accepting new ideas.

Jesus, hearing that the Pharisees had cast the man out, sought him and said, "Dost thou believe on the Son of God?" He answered, "Who is He Lord, that I might believe on him?"

Jesus said to him. "Thou hast both seen him, and it is He that talketh with thee."

"And he said, Lord, I believe. And he worshiped him."

Jesus said, "For judgment I am come into this world, that they which see not might see; and that they which see might be made blind." Some of the Pharisees heard the words and asked, "Are we blind also?" Jesus answered, "If ye were blind, ye should have no sin; but now ye say, 'we see; therefore your sin remaineth.'

"I am the light of the world: he that followeth Me shall not walk in the darkness, but shall have the light of life."

The Peril Of Emptiness

REV. E. R. JAMES

The unclean spirit said: I will return unto my house. St. Matthew 12; 44.

It is good for us to remember that our Blessed Lord uttered some fearful words. We are in danger of emphasizing His gentleness and mercy and forgetting that He is also a Man whose wrath is most awful to face. Meditate upon these fearful words:—"Verily, I say unto you; all sins shall be forgiven unto men, but he that blasphemest against the Holy Ghost hath never forgiveness, but is in danger of eternal damnation." The religious teachers said:—"He hath an unclean spirit. St. Mark 3; 29. The horror of the accusation drew from the compassionate Lord that some men would be guilty of the Eternal sin.

So you can understand how cold was the Voice of the Christ when He uttered this parable, given practically word for word by St. Matthew and St. Luke. It is one of the least known of the parables, yet most modern in its teaching of the power of the mind over the soul.

We do not know why the evil spirit left the man. Now he is respectable. But the house is empty; the door is open. One day the evil spirit returns with seven other evil spirits more wicked than himself and the last state of the man is worse than the first.

There is a historical background. Our Lord is speaking first of all to "His own people". Their fathers had spent seventy years in exile in Babylon in order to purge out the sin of idolatry. The fires of exile burnt it out. They hated idolatry. They returned believing in the one living God. "Hear, O Israel, the Lord thy God is one Lord."

This revelation of the One living God was God's special gift to the Jews that they might pass it on to Gentile people. They kept the knowledge to themselves. They despised Greeks and Romans and cultivated the more terrible spiritual sins of hatred, pride and hypocracy. They believed they were "the superior race" especially intended by Jehovah to rule the world. How modern. Their spiritual sins blinded their eyes. When the incarnate Son of God, born of the Virgin Mother, came to them "they received Him not". They hated Him; they crucified Him with the taunting words:— "Let God now deliver Him if He will have Him". Towards the end of the century came the awful destruction of the people by the Romans, and they became wanderers upon the face of the earth.

The parable lives for every individual and nation. It is very practical. It teaches that evil is a parasite. Perhaps you saw the picture and the article of the owl bird laying five eggs in another bird's nest and driving it out. There was no room for her because the parasite, the outsider, came in.

Evil has a strange faculty of entering into the human soul and heart and in time taking complete possession of the will and mind till the whole personality becomes evil; evil even looking through the eyes of the man.

"The unclean spirit findeth it empty, swept and garnished". Mark

Jesus the Light of the World — By Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—Isa. 9:2; Matt. 4:12-16; John 1:4; 8:12; 9:1-41; 12:35, 36, 46; II Cor. 4:6; Eph. 5:14; I John 2:8; Rev. 21-23.

"The people that walked in darkness have seen a great light: they that dwell in the land of the shadow of death, upon them that the light shined," said the prophet Isaiah.

One Sabbath Jesus, passing the temple, saw a man who had been blind from birth. Jesus spat on the ground, made clay with the spittle, anointed his eyes, told him to wash in Siloam.

After washing in the pool of Siloam the man saw, and the Pharisees heard of the matter and asked him what had happened, and he told them what Jesus had done.

The Pharisees said Jesus was a sinner to perform healing on the Sabbath, but the man who had been blind believe in Jesus and worshipped Him.

GOLDEN TEXT—John 8:12

Let's All Work Together For - SAFETY

Everyone should pay particular attention to safety during this next week—and then practice it every week from then on.

Approved Safety Clothing For Women In Industry

Any one of these types of safety clothing is suitable and will protect workers from unnecessary hazards in plants. Safety shoes are important and either overall, overall with blouse, or slacks with shirt tucked in at the waist afford comfort and protection.

For machines with moving or rotating parts safety hats too are essential.

Peterborough Safety Week - Oct. 1-7

October 1 to 7 has been designated as "Safety Week" in Peterborough. This means that everyone in the factories, in the schools, and at home, at work or play should help to keep "Safety Week"—Accident Free. Not only during Safety Week, but every day we should take precautions which will save needless suffering. Accidents in the factories means time lost—precious time which is necessary to the winning of the war. Everyone of us therefore must carry on, preventing accidents every day and always in order to accomplish the task before us. We urge every man and woman, boy and girl, to watch for infractions of the safety rules and draw attention to them so they will not be repeated.

MOTHERS—Listen To The Children's Safety Program Over CHEX 10.15 a.m. Monday Through Friday

Commencing Monday, October 2 there will be special Safety Programs broadcast from CHEX. Children in all public schools will be assembled at 10.15 a.m. each morning to hear them. By this means, Safety in the schools, at play and in the home, will be stressed.

Similar Broadcasts will be made Wednesday and Friday between 1.30 and 1.45 p.m. to the Collegiate.

Combination Smart In Soccer Game

Two smart Public School Soccer teams battled in a scheduled game, on Friday afternoon, on King Edward Park. Prince of Wales getting the decision from King George in a tussle that was pleasant and pretty to witness, by the score 3-1. Kimberley, Kidd and Killingbeck scored for the winners; Wyatt for the losers. This win puts the winners in the next category to King Edward.

League standing:

	P	W	L	D	Pts.
King Edward ..	3	2	0	1	5
Prince of Wales	3	1	0	2	4
Queen Alex.	3	1	2	0	2
Central	1	1	0	0	2

Two points for a win, and one for a draw.

First Half

Both elevens settled down to smart combination that made play interesting in and around the goal area as the full backs never faltered to safeguard their citadel. Exchanges continued even with the half backs nullifying the attack whenever they got within shooting distance. On one occasion Kidd rattled across a perfect centre into goal to witness the ball hit the inside of the far upright for the custodian to kick clear. But a minute later, Prince of Wales was successful when another flag kick was diverted into goal by Killingbeck. Quick as a flash, King George replied with a dangerous raid on the left wing by Wyatt who worked a flag-kick off the full back. His corner kick landed in front of goal to hit an opposing player and even the count. Just before the interval, Prince of Wales registered another when Kidd sent a low grounder in between a sea of legs to beat King George goalie. Half time — Prince of Wales 2, King George 0.

Second Half

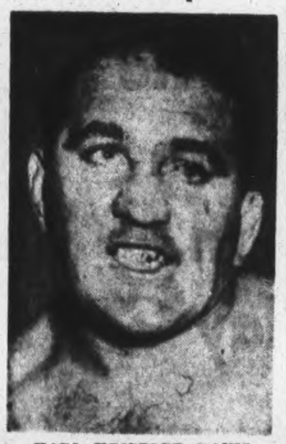
Right from the resumption, King George confined the play to the Prince of Wales territory where the defense were put right back into goal. Time and again, the East City boys had them groggy as they peppered the goal from all angles. Eventually the steady bombardment wilted to a surprise when Hughes, at right full back, robbed Wyatt of a sure goal when in the act of scoring. His parting drive landed to the foot of Kidd who shot the ball out to his right wing. G. Kimberley scoring after the goalies had saved. They kept up the steady attack to find themselves being called up for offsides repeatedly. Full time—Prince of Wales 3, King George 0.

King George:—J. Shearer, goal; J. Deckrell and T. Davis, full backs; A. Beavis, B. Gandy and K. Monsen, halves; N. Thompson, P. Ferguson, G. Rome, A. Northcott and B. Wyatt, forwards. Sub.: K. Batchelor.

Prince of Wales:—T. Kay, goal; G. Hughes and A. Miller, full backs; B. Grainger, J. Moncreif, F. McMullen, halves; G. Kimberley, G. Mongraw, R. Kidd, B. Killingbeck, J. Storey, forwards. Subs.: R. Berwick, B. Lasenby.

Referee—Stroyan Leith.

Fans Clamoring For Davis' Scalp



KARL KRIPPLER DAVIS

Promoter Frank Tunney has won fan approval in Peterborough by matching Whipper Billy Watson against Karl (He Kripples Them) Davis in the main bout of next Tuesday's show. The unruly Texan has been so wild in his methods in recent bouts that everybody is clamoring for his scalp and they feel that the smooth-working Whipper Watson can do the trick. Biggest crowd in months will see the card which will include two other good bouts.

SPORTS-Day by Day

By FRED D. CRAIG

With Canadian Postal Corps, Ottawa, and the Military Training Centre team clashing here this afternoon in the first game of the final series for the championship of No. 3 Military District and Belleville and Toronto juniors battling afterward in the O.A.S.A. smei-final round there will be plenty of softball for local fans. The Soldier game is the opener in a best-of-three series and should be a lively battle as the two teams will do their best to get the jump on their opposition. Regardless of the result of this afternoon's game there will be one and possibly two games at the Military Training Centre diamond Sunday afternoon, with action starting at 2 o'clock. If a third game should be necessary to decide the winner it will be played a few minutes after the first fixture of the afternoon. This series between the two strong Soldier teams will undoubtedly draw a big crowd for the Military Training Centre outfit has played fine ball all season and won for itself a flock of friends who will be pulling for the Soldiers to come on and take the district championship. The diamond at the camp is in good shape and the teams should perform at their best in the Sunday battle or battles, as the case may be. The public is invited to the Sunday card and hundreds will probably take advantage of the opportunity.

For those who cannot get over to Riverside Park for the first game this afternoon we pass the word along that there will be another battle later that will be well worth seeing. Belleville Columbian Squires and Toronto Carlton Park teams, all tied up in their junior O.A.S.A. semi-final series will settle the argument with a sudden-death game here today to be played immediately after the Ottawa-Peterborough Soldier game which should be wound up around 4 o'clock. The juniors play fast ball and they will exhibit here today two of the best young pitchers in Ontario in the person of Don Boyle of Belleville and Joe Chintulak, Carlton Park ace both of whom have plenty on the ball, according to the reports from the rival camps. The game looks like anybody's for the first two tilts in the series were decidedly close and strangely enough each team managed to win on the other fellow's diamond. It is all up to this afternoon's battle and it should be an exciting tussle between two well-coached, well-balanced young teams. With a trip into the final round against Windsor as the prize for victory the rivals should make it a fight every foot of the way.

The Crucial Test

The Westclox team, accompanied by a number of supporters left shortly after 6 o'clock Friday evening for Stratford where they meet the Stratford Kroehlers at 2 o'clock this afternoon in the second game of the final series for the Ontario intermediate championship. Should the Big Bens come down in front in this battle—and Peterborough fans are fervently hoping that they will—the deadlock will be broken with a third game to be played this evening. While Stratford got the jump by nosing out the Westclockers here last Saturday by 3 to 2 the Peterborough girls say that they were below standard in that engagement and that they will return to form today and square the series by taking this afternoon's game. Isobel Bullock was slated to do the pitching for Westclox and it was expected that she would be opposing Greta Harmer who held the Big Bens under control here, although there was a possibility that with a game advantage Kroehlers might gamble on a second-string pitcher, keeping their ace in reverse in the event a third game was needed. That was the policy followed by Stratford last season when after beating the Big Bens in Stratford with Hazel Baynton on the rubber they used Greta Harmer in the second game. The Westclox lineup for this afternoon's game is likely to be Aggie Anderson cf, Viola McLean ss, Nona Whetung 1b, Marg Hawthorne 3b, Isobel Bullock p, Beryl Dobbin c, Barbara Rome lf, Jean Castle rf, Verna Patterson 2b and Joyce Withers and Olive Hanwell reserves. Manager Ab Delahaye, Russ Kitchen, Lefty Sturgeon, Jack Watson, President Bill Bennett of the Girls' City League and several others, including a number of the Aircraft team will form the Westclox rooting section.

Extending the time for the Memorial Health Centre drive would be a wise move for bad weather during the past week interfered to some extent with the canvass, especially the house-to-house end of it and many citizens have not yet been called upon. The way is still open for those who have not yet made their donation to get in line with the many hundreds of people who have already shown their faith in this magnificent community effort by signing on the dotted line. This column cannot too strongly urge citizens who have not subscribed to let this opportunity of a lifetime pass. Nothing so comprehensive as this plan, so far-reaching in its results, has ever been offered the community and it would be tragic if the chance were to be lost—and lost for many years. We are all proud of Peterborough as a place in which to live and here we have an opportunity to make living in Peterborough infinitely richer and more enjoyable because this Memorial Health Centre scheme will provide the finest of facilities for sport, recreation, culture and entertainment. Put this drive over the top and it will mean the biggest forward step this community has taken. Let it fail and we put Peterborough definitely into the list of second class cities.

St. Louis Browns, all but counted out in the hectic American League race, announced to the world yesterday that they have no intention of cracking up. All they did was to pile into the New York Yanks to take both ends of a double-header from Hank Borowy and Ernie Bonham, the New Yorkers' two best pitchers, knock the McCarthyites out of the running and out of a chance even to finish second and climb up into a first place tie with the Detroit Red Wings. The last part was made possible because the Washington Senators broke even with Detroit yesterday pinning back the ears of one of the Tigers' aces, Dizzy Trout and the pennant may hang on that loss. Steve O'Neill was on the spot. He had to take a chance on two of his less effective pitchers or call upon the overworked 55-wins combination. Eventually he decided to compromise, using Rufe Gentry in the first game and calling on Trout in the second. The former with the aid of Gorsica grabbed off a win but Dizzy was given a shellacking by the Senators and lost 9 to 2. Now the Detroit pilot is really worrying. He will have to use Newhouser in one of the remaining games and depend upon Overmire in the other while the Brownies having disposed of the Yanks two best twirlers have Bob Muncrief, Denny Galehouse and Sig Jacuki available for the remaining two games. Anyway no matter what happens today the pennant winner will not be decided until Sunday's game—and possibly not then. If the two clubs should be tied the championship will be settled in a Monday game at Detroit.

The National League doings just now are colorless with the only interest left the battle between the Pittsburg Pirates and the Cincinnati Reds for second place. The Corsairs' lead shrunk to half a game yesterday when the Phillies beat Pittsburg 3 to 0 on four hit pitching by Kennie Raffensburger while the Reds had an easy 10 to 2 win over the Brooklyn Dodgers. The Cards still playing indifferent ball were bumped off 3 to 2 by the New York Giants and Ted Wilks who will undoubtedly see action in the world series and who had his last workout game yesterday in preparation for the annual classic suffered his fourth loss of the season as against 17 wins. The Giants hammered 11 hits off the delivery of the Cards' star and put together two doubles in the ninth to take the decision. Billy Southworth apparently hasn't his champs levelled away yet for the big series, although he had good news yesterday in the announcement that Max Lanier's sore arm has responded to treatment and the ace southpaw will be ready for action next week.

Quakers Win 2nd Game In Plant Loop

Brintons dropped the second game of the Industrial League finals with Quaker Oats on the short end of a 10 to 8 count at Brinton Field Friday evening, in nine furious innings of play. The tilt, second of a three out of five schedule to decide the Industrial League champs, was highlighted by a unexpected four-run rally by Brintons in the last section of the ninth, which brought their count to within two runs of the hard-hitting Quakers.

A splurge of heavy hitting off Horton at that time enabled the Brintons to chase in the markers, although earlier in the game, the veteran Quaker hurler kept the Brintons guessing, allowing only 5 hits during the previous eight innings.

On the other side, Brintons sent Bun Rose into the box to start proceedings, but Quakers caught on to his slow-ball technique soon, and in the sixth frame, after he had been nicked for 10 hits out of which six runs blossomed, Phillips went in to take over the hurling.

The four Brintons runs turned in during the eight inning period before the break-through in the ninth, came in pairs, in the fourth and fifth innings. In the fourth, Corbett, Brintons' top hitter of the game, singled to centre, and scored when Eric Jones shot one into the same place, and the ball got away from Willshaw. Catcher Mel Byers sacrificed to bring home Jones. Came the fifth inning, and Sid Craig laid down a tricky roller along the left foul line, and Reg. Kingdon bunted. Craig scored when the ball was fumbled by Horton, with the remaining runner coming home on a lusty smack over first base by Bun Rose.

Quakers got away to a good start when three runs crossed in the third inning. Ash singled to centre, Willshaw popped to Rose, and Pollock rolled one past first base to score Ash. A single into centre by

NEW YORK, Sept. 30 — (AP). — The United States Military Academy has just issued a booklet, written by the able Joe Cahill, based on the theme "football pays dividends in battle." . . . today, when the 1944 cadet football team opens its season, we can think of nothing better than to quote a few passages about three of the eight football-playing officers whose careers are sketched.

Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower

When 21-year-old Ike Eisenhower entered West Point, he was known as a lightweight tackle for Salina Kans., high school who couldn't be fooled more than once on a play . . . as a plebe he was shifted to the backfield and was on his way toward becoming a Varsity standout when he broke a knee plunging into the Tufts line. So Eisenhower finished his undergraduate career as a freshman coach and cheer leader. . .

Gen. Joseph Stilwell

As a cadet, "Vinegar Joe's" 145 pounds made him a second-stringer. But when Army played Chicago in 1903 it was Stilwell who won the game . . . with the score tied at 6-6, Joe Stilwell entered the game in the last few minutes. A Chicago back fumbled and Walter Eckersall was called upon to punt out back on the 45-yard line. Stilwell took the punt and, seeing a Chicago player ready to smack him, he signalled for a fair catch . . . the over-anxious westener interfered and the resulting penalty gave Army the ball on the 20-yard line, from where a field goal brought the winning points. . .

Lt.-Gen. Omer Bradley

Another lightweight, Omar Bradley was kept on the Army "B" squad for two seasons before dogged determination won him a berth as Varsity end in 1913. He was noted for his tackling and offensive play. . . .

Pep Defends Title Handily Against Wright

By FRITZ HOWELL
Associated Press Sport Writer.

NEW YORK, Sept 30 — (AP)— Having cut a wide swath through his own division, climaxed by last night's successful title defence against veteran Albert (Chalky) Wright, featherweight champion Willie Pep aimed to-day at a scrap with Juan Zurita, Mexico's holder of the N.B.A. lightweight laurels.

The dancing weaving, jabbing former sailor from Hartford Conn., didn't give Wright a chance, outpointing him by a much wider margin than when he took his crown in November, 1942. Pep kept his left hand in Chalky's face for practically the entire 15 rounds, keeping him off balance and never letting him get set for his "Sunday punch." There were no knockdowns.

The 22-year-old holder of the New York version of the feather crown picked up 50 per cent of the $66,740 paid by 15,433 fans, and Wright got 12½.

Pep's victory over Wright was his 79th in 80 starts, his only setback being at the hands of Sammy Angott, former lightweight champion. Despite that loss to a heavier foe, Pep is anxious to do some campaigning in the heavier class again.

Lou Viscusi, Pep's pilot, said he would open negotiations immediately for a bout with Zurita, with neither title at stake.

American Loop Tied Again Nearing Finish

By JOE REICHLER
Associated Press Sport Writer

Detroit Tigers and St. Louis Browns are tied again in the American League thus forcing the race, tightest in either major league since 1908, to go the full 154 games—and perhaps into a playoff—before the winner is decided.

As a result of the Browns' 4-1 and 1-0 double triumph over the New York Yankees while the Tigers split, 5-2 and 2-9 with the tail-end Washington Senators yesterday, the winner will not be known until the last outs in the Tigers-Nat and Browns-Yankees games Sunday.

In the event the season ends with both teams still deadlocked a single game play-off will take place on Monday at Detroit.

Only once before has such a drastic move been necessary—in 1908—when Chicago Cubs and New York Giants clashed for the National League flag. The Cubs behind three-fingered Mordecai Brown won that one from Christy Mathewson, 4-2, and went on to win the world championship from the Tigers.

The Brownies moved up on even terms as Jack Kramer bested the Yanks' Ernie Bonham in the opener and Nelson Potter outpitched Hank Borowy in the nightcap. The victories not only eliminated the Yankees from any mathematical pennant chance but also made it impossible for Joe McCarthy's men to gain second place.

In winning the second game, the Browns made only two hits but Don Gutteridge's double, a wild pitch and an infield out scored the lone run in the first frame

The Browns were helped by sensational fielding. Mike Kreevich robbed Johnny Lindell of an extra-base hit in the eighth with two on and two out, and Gutteridge ended the game with a sterling stab of Pinch-Hitter Paul Waner's looping fly with the tying run on second and two out in the ninth.

Trout Chased

After winning the opener handily from the Nats, the Tigers saw their ace Paul (Dizzy) Trout routed in the nightcap and went down to defeat as Stan Spence belted a home run and a triple to account for seven runs, four runs batted in and three runs scored. Southpaw Mickey Haefner was the winner.

Cincinnati moved to within a half-game of the second-place Pirates by whipping the Brooklyn Dodgers, 10-2, while the Phillies blanked Pittsburgh, 3-0, behind the seven-hit pitching of Ken Raffensberger. Ted Wilks, likely world series starter, lost his fourth game against 17 victories as the Giants defeated the National League champion Cardinals, 3-2, in 10 innings. Boston beat the Cubs, 5-1, for Nate Andrews' 16th victory.

In other American League games, Philadelphia's Athletics won the first from Cleveland, 4-2, and gained a tie in the second, 1-1, the game being halted by darkness at the end of nine innings. The Chicgao White Sox, behind Thornton Lee, defeated the Boston Red Sox, 4-3, at night.

Canadian Press Staff Writer

VANCOUVER, Sept. 30 — (CP). —A suggestion that a lacrosse Hall of Fame be established at New Westminster has been put forward by Jack (The Voice) Wood, coach of that city's famed Salmonbellies. Wood opened discussion on the subject when he did a guest column for Alf (Vancouver Sun) Cottrell.

Claiming New Westminster was known the world over as the home of lacrosse, Wood pointed out Salmonbellies have been in the finals 16 times in the past 25 years and won the title nine times. New Westminster Adanacs were in the finals once and captured the championship once.

Wood adds that the Minto Cup, for years emblematic of professional supremacy in Canada, came West in 1908, and the East failed to take it back for the next 17 years of competition.

Dan (Vancouver Province) Ekman kept the ball rolling with the comment that "most lacrosse men agree that it is of no great moment where the Hall of Fame is established, so long as it is kept on the West Coast. New Westminster would appear to be the logical site ......"

Ekman reported that when a large Hollywood movie outfit conferred with Dominion Government officials about making a short on box lacrosse the Ottawa men advised: "Go to New Westminster—for there is the home of box lacrosse."

Ekman added the Pacific Coast is the last remaining sector of the nation in which the game thrives in its old-time splendor with the comment that "boxla officials out here are worried over the possibility that a dyed-in-the-wool Easterner will come along with imposing proof that the Hall should be established in some Ontario hamlet."

Improvement of the breed?

Some of the horse race fans are a bit perturbed about conditions on the Coast this summer. Johnny (Vancouver Province) Park writing about the Victoria meet said 'some horses couldn't stand up in soft mud one day and the next, in only a trifle heavier course, they would gallop and romp in front of their field. This baffled some of Vancouver's biggest bettors to such an extent that six of them left for home......"

Joe (Victoria Colonist) Delahunty said some owners "swear that they will not return to the Willows next year under the same conditions which prevailed this season." The Racing Association asked the owner and trainer of the horse to appear before a board after Royal Canadian Mounted Police reported the horse was stimulated in a race it won.

However, the Provincial Government wasn't heard protesting about anything. Official figures showed $6,168,817 was bet at Vancouver and Victoria this year, an increase of $562,021 over 1943. It collected $431,817 as seven per cent of the mutuel handle and received 10 per cent of the total gate receipts.

Newark Bears Evens Internat. Series

NEWARK, N.J., Sept. 30—(CP). —Newark Bears and Baltimore Orioles were ready to square off again to-night in their International League Governor's Cup final series for the right to enter the Little World Series against Louisville of the American Association.

Newark evened the series here last night with a 4-0 victory behind five-hit pitching by Elmer Singleton, who allowed only two singles up to the eighth inning, fanned seven and walked five.

The Bears raked Oriole hurler Red Embree for 10 hits, scoring twice in the second and twice in the fourth.

In to-night's third encounter in the best-of-seven series, 17-year-old Don Johnson will start for the homesters against either Bobo Palica or Stan West of Baltimore.

Tulachmore Goes To United States

TORONTO, Sept. 30—Tulachmore, leading money winning Canadian bred for the past two seasons will be returned to the United States next week for racing. The reason the great son of Worthmore and Tulach Ard did not start during the racing at Woodbine was on account of excessive weights assigned the colt.

W. E. MacDonald, owner of the colt, stated last night he shipped Tulachmore home from Detroit with the intention of racing Tulachmore during the Thorncliffe meeting. MacDonald wanted to see his horse race here but says he will not allow any handicapper to pile weight onto his horse with the danger of breaking him down. MacDonald went so far to say he would not race Tulachmore again here if they keep packing weight on the horse.

Tulachmore was entered in a handicap last Wednesday and when weights were announced the Canadian-bred was assigned 135 in the 1 1-16 mile race. He was withdrawn and entered for Thorncliffe Handicap in which he was assigned 130.

Bon Jour, winner of the Trenton Handicap, after setting two new track records in the U.S., returned to Canada and was only given 126 in a handicap in which most of the same field with the exception of Bon Jour was entered in the race. Tulachmore was given top weight. Mugwump, which ran a close second to Bon Jour, carried 117 in that race. In today's handicap, Mugwump drops a pound, getting in with 116, meaning that had MacDonald agreed to start his Canadian-bred he would have to concede five pounds to Mugwump.

CELEBRATED 86TH BIRTHDAY—Mrs. W. J. Elliott of Dummer has lived in the township since her nineteenth year when her husband built their brick house on the Belmont boundary. She is now living with her daughter, Mrs. John Drain, and her grandson and his wife, on the old Drain farmstead east of Gilchrist Bay and south of Stoney Lake.. (Parks' Studio Photo.)

86-Year-Old Dummer Resident Recalls Trials Of Early Days

Eighty-six years old on Wednesday, Mrs. W. J. Elliott of Dummer Township, received the congratulations and the respect of relatives and friends at her home, the John Drain homestead in the 8th Concession, east of Gilchrist Bay, where she lives with her daughter, Mrs. John Drain, and her grandson Basil Drain and his wife.

Three generations are represented in that household, one of those old-fashioned homes which from all accounts used to be more numerous in town and country alike years ago, where youth afforded a happy hearthside for its family elders, and reserved to them a place of affection and honor in the Biblical tradition of tribute to parenthood and age.

So, grandmothers birthday—Mrs. Elliott is actually a great-grandmother — was quietly observed within her family and by well-wishing neighbors with remembrance in shining ord and gift as due one to whom life itself was extending far beyond normal bounds of time its endowments of vitality and of bodily and mental health, continuing interest in daily affairs, even the helping hand about the house, and the joy of living among kindred, with a sense of sharing in immortality as represented by third and fourth generations.

Wednesday was one of the latter days of the girl who was Phoebe Isteed in Prince Edward County a long time ago.

In Virgin Country.

The Isteed men had come out from England in the days when new homes were to be had in a virgin country. Four or five brothers of them lived in the Hallowell neighborhood of the peninsular county. Phoebe Isteed's father was William. After he married he moved north into Hastings County, in Rawdon Township, four miles east of Stirling. He was then working on some share agreement with another man who had arrived there before him. Mrs. Elliott was then about four years old.

Several years later William Isteed became indisposed with a cold. He fancied that his father was also ill, and that he should go to him.

This impression quickly took firmer place in his thoughts, and in a few days he set out for Prince Edward. The children were left in good care for this brief separation, as it was conceived. William Isteed visited his father and his brothers and other relatives. His illness became worse at home of a brother and he asked that the children be brought to him.

Childish Alarms.

Mrs. Elliott was then about seven. She remembers vividly almost every mile of the drive from Rawdon through Belleville and across the ice at the beginning of spring—herself, her brother Charles, an energetic boy of five years, and the twin girls Harriet and Helen, two and a half years.

Two men undertook to drive the little family in a large wagon. The twins were in their cradles, securely blocked at their rockers, to prevent any swaying with the progress of the horses. The men had promised to take the best care of their little wards, but at Belleville their pledges wavered at a hotel. They hitched the horses, and went in. Phoebe was left as guardian. She was about six or seven. Charles became restless waiting for the return of two weak but gallant horsemen, leaped out of the wagon and hustled off down the Belleville street. Sight of a negro halted him in wonder until his sister overtook him.

Finally the little guardian of the family got her charges together again, and at length the two brave gentlemen stepped unsteadily from the hotel. Phoebe knew they had been drinking, and th trip across the bay was a succession of alarms as spring had begun to melt the ice and a narrow fringe seemed to be almost open but shallow water. At last the children were delivered to their father and were with him until his death, probably less than a week later.

To Mrs. Elliott that was a long-felt tragedy and a memory that retains some little shadow of poignancy even yet.

Mrs. Elliott recalled some of that long past to a reporter Wednesday afternoon, and from the repository of all the little day to day events of her life, some of them not so little in their personal effect, came incidents the nearby world has long forgotten.

Reverting briefly to her childhood, Mrs. Elliott told of the sad return trip by wagon from Prince Edward, retracing the way through Belleville into Rawdon, the recently widowed mother and her four small children facing back to the home without husband and father. Eventually, Mrs. Isteed remarried, and eventually the family moved to Marmora. In her later teens, Phoebe Isteed met William J. Elliott, and when she was 18 they were married at the bride's home.

In Their Own Home

The following spring the young couple sought out their future in Belmont township. Mr. Elliott built a red brick house in the vicinity of North School, north of the present provincial highway and between Norwood and Havelock. The young wife helped her husband in some of the details of that building.

Mrs. Elliott recalls the construction of the Canadian Pacific Railway between Havelock and Norwood during the middle eighties, and she remembers as vividly as if it were only yesterday the Italian workmen to whom she used to carry jugs of buttermilk for their refreshment in the heat and dust of summer. They were living in tents along the right of way. Her husband profited by the coming of the railway. For a time he was engaged in cutting trees cut into lengths for ties and posts, drawing them to McLaughlin's Corner for sale to the C.P.R.

Limestone Kilns

Occupations that were incidental to farm life in those years which only elders of the county remember from their youth were the burning of limestone in open kilns that were dug as spacious pits convenient to nature's supply of stone, and also the leaching of wood ashes for a supply of potash. The lime was required, then as now, chiefly in the making of plaster for the building of houses that were springing up in the countryside and villages. The potash was reduced to a white purity and was sold to the drug trade, wherever a market could be found. Mrs. Elliott remembers the man who used to call at the farm home for its potash product, and drive off with it to Belleville.

The fires in the lime kilns had to be kept glowing while the stone was being burned, and that required tending throughout the night. Often Mrs. Elliott used to join her husband at his kiln taking with her eggs and potatoes to cook in the hot ashes. That was only part of the purpose of those evening missions. Her chief motive was to be with her husband, and because he wanted her wifely company in the outdoors.

The Elliott house in the McConnell settlement was on the boundary between Dummer and Belmont, and was on the Dummer side. And so from her nineteenth year until today in her eighty-seventh, Mrs. Elliott has lived in Dummer township.

Husband's Death

The death of her husband 34 years ago was the darkest trial in Mrs. Elliott's long life. He and Thomas McNeeley had gone deer hunting in November to Sandy Lake in Methuen. Mr. Elliott was taken suddenly ill in the camp, and so seriously that he could not be moved. Mr. McNeeley sent word to Mrs. Elliott and she immediately set out over the 40 miles of rough roads to Sandy Lake. Her husband had passed the stage of recognizing her when she arrived, and he died shortly afterward in her arms.

The next day she turned back home, companion of her dead husband, in slow and pathetic transport by wagon.

Mother and Daughter

After that home-breaking tragedy Mrs. Elliott went to live with her daughter, Mrs. John Drain, whose husband was the original John Drain on the homestead east of Gilchrist Bay, and a mile south of Stoney Lake. The family extends back to pioneer days in the northern section of Dummer and is widely known and just as widely respected. John Drain, the younger, was a successful farmer, particularly remembered throughout the township as one of its citizens who took a special interest in its municipal affairs.

"In the 65 years of my life," Mrs. Drain mentioned to the Examiner, and it is manifestly an unusual circumstance in family life, "my mother and I have been separated only five years. I was five years married when my father died on that hunting trip, and mother has lived here the last 34 years."

Today's family of the young couple, W. J. Elliott and Phoebe Isteed who were married in Marmora, extends into the fourth generation. They are Mrs. Elliott herself and her daughter, Mrs. John Drain, and her son W. H. Elliott who lives in the North School vicinity.

The grandchildren are Basil Drain on the Drain homestead, and Earl Drain who lives at Trent River; and the great grandchildren are Sylvia Darlene Drain and Carl Drain, the children of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Drain.

The grandchildren of the family of W. H. Elliott are three girls and two boys, Miss Lulu Elliott of Havelock, Mona of Peterborough, and Mrs. Edward Simpson who lives on the old Wm. Elliott homestead. Albert Elliott of Asphodel and Mansell Elliott whose farm adjoins the homestead at North School.

Mrs. Elliott received many cards from far away friends and wished to express her appreciation for the many lovely gifts she received.

OTTAWA, Sept. 30 (CP)—Federal government health authorities are considering an order under which no Canadian cheese would be sold until it was at least 90 days old, it was learned Thursday.

The Peril Of

the word "empty". No inhabitant. Nature abhors a vacuum; so does the spiritual world. A man cannot remain neutral. He must get better or worse. The value of the individual in God's sight is the important lesson. He is made in the image of God; God is His owner; yet man is free.

"I will return unto my house" is the decision of the unclean spirit. He does not ask permission to enter. On the other hand the Lord stands at the door and says:— "Behold, I stand at the door and knock. If any man will hear My Voice and open the door, I will go in to Him and will sup with him and He with Me." He knows what is in man. He only asks permission to enter and He will overcome. Gradually He will transform your character.

In a Spanish church there is a beautiful statue of the Christ. You stand before it but you are not attracted. The verger whispers:— "You cannot see its beauty till you kneel and look upwards." A parable for the thoughtful man.

WHEN THOU SAIDST: SEEK YE MY FACE. MY HEART SAID UNTO THEE: THY FACE, LORD, WILL I SEEK.

Wreck Kills 10

MISSOURI VALLEY, Ia., Sept. 30—(AP)—A collision Friday between a Chicago and Northwestern passenger train and a freight train on the outskirts of this city killed at least 10 persons, including three soldiers, and injured about 100 of whom 42 were in hospitals in nearby Council Bluffs. TREASURER'S SALE OF LANDS FOR TAXES

COUNTY OF PETERBOROUGH

TO WIT:

BY VIRTUE OF A WARRANT made under the hand of the Warden and Seal of the County of Peterborough and to me directed bearing date the 8th Day of June in the year of our Lord, One Thousand Nine Hundred and Forty-four, I am commanded under the authority of the Statutes in that behalf, to levy on the land hereinafter mentioned and described for the arrears of taxes due thereon with the costs as hereinafter directed by the said Act. Therefore I give notice that unless the said arrears and costs are sooner paid I will proceed to Sell, by Public Auction at the Court House in the City of Peterborough on the Third Day of October, 1944 at the hour of Ten o'clock (D.S.T.) in the Forenoon, the said Lands or so much thereof as may be necessary for the Taxes and all lawful charges incurred, in and about such Sales, and the collection of the Taxes.

A List of the Lands for Sale for Arrears of Taxes will be published in The Ontario Gazette on Saturday, July 1st, 1944. Copies of the List of Lands for Sale may be had in my Office.

LINDSAY SOLDIER WOUNDED

Rfn. Norman Frederick Lywood, the son of Mrs. Ada Lywood, 100 St. Peter street, Lindsay, has been wounded fighting with a Central Ontario regiment, according to the Army casualty list.

BIG POTATO

Bill McKim, local insurance agent, brought in a potato today, tipping the scales at exactly two pounds, 2 ounces. Of the Chippawa variety, it was grown by R. Humphries, R.R. 3, Hastings. The rest of Mr Humphries' potato crop is about half the size of this one.

FLORAL NOTE

The zinnias and the marigolds at the C.G.E. are in the sear and yellow leaf. Lilies have a weary and bedizened look, but the big castor bean plants have so far ridden through the weather without casualty even along the edges. The floral season is moving toward the wings of the stage of life, leaving the hard aster family and the golden rod with few companions along the highways and in the fields.

MILD WINTER

A branch of wild raspberries, with ripe fruit, green leaves and blossoms picked by Mrs. Offa Williamson, 567 Bolivar street, in her bee apiary on the farm of Harold Bebee, South Monaghan, possibly indicates a mild winter, Mrs. Williamson said. Although many predictions have been advanced about a cold winter, the fact raspberries are growing and thriving during the last days of September as they did a year ago, is one sign the coming winter might not be so cold after all, she said.

ANOTHER ORGANIZATION

If there are still any occupational groups not yet organized they must be few. The latest is the Bay of Quinte Chapter of the Society of Industrial and Cost Accounts of Ontario which held its inaugural dinner meeting of the season at Belleville Thursday night.

IMPROVING

His many friends in this city will be glad to learn Cpl Gordon Bocock, recently reported dangerously ill after being wounded in Italy, is improving considerably, although he is still officially listed as being "seriously ill". The young soldier, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Bocock, 216 King George street, has taken part in three major battles since landing in Italy. With the Hastings and Prince Edward regiment, he is now on the road to recovery, his parents have been informed.

HAT TROUBLE

A young lady, evidentally trying to please her husband, bought and wore rather a revolutionary styled hat Friday afternoon. Although many men detest the increasingly "funny" hats women buy these days, this particular husband tried hard to take it with a grin. Finally he burst out with, "Heavens darling, where DID you get that hat?" The chapeaux had a tiny crown, of black, a wide rim in red, and was topped off with a bundle of little green feathers, hanging down the front.

SHINE ON . . . . !

Harvest moon in August! That was the comment of a romantic who probably wasn't thinking much about crops and their gathering when he said "that's a swell harvest moon" a month ago. Possibly he was correct, but traditional appellation has been the nearest moon to the 21st of September, and that wasn't a warm night in August. More likely a damp and chilly September night. Although the harvest is in the barn and even the threshing finished, and the work worry of 1944 a perturbance of yesterday, the harvest moon is shining on the corn in the stook and on pumpkins robbed of their vines by the frost.

AT RANGES SUNDAY

Their second expedition to the Norwood Ranges in as many weeks will be held by the 2nd (R) Battalion, Prince of Wales Rangers, this Sunday for small-arms range practice. Parading at 9.30 a.m., members will dress in drill-order uniform, with field service cap and skeleton web. They are expected to bring their own lunches.

VICTORY SIGN

In keeping with other agricultural "V" signs which have appeared from time to time, is a large double tomato, forming the shape of a "V," which was grown by P. W. Fisk, 539 Gilmour street.

RETURNED MAN IN BATTERY

Alexander Steven, 700 Park street, who served between June, 1940, and June 1942, with the Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry Highlanders is a recent recruit with the 4th (R) Heavy Anti-Aircraft Battery. Another new members of the unit is Norman Leslie Rendell, 12 New Chamberlain street.

ASK APPLICATIONS

Preference will be given to residents of the Peterborough area in the acceptance of applications for a rather long list of positions in the organization of the Peterborough Veterans' Hospital. They extend from the hospital manager all the way down to kitchen, messenger and other details of help.

SAFETY WEEK

Next week is Safety Week in Peterborough and R. B. Morley, general manager of the Industrial Accident Prevention Association will be guest speaker at Monday's luncheon of the Peterborough Rotary Club. He will speak on the general subject of "Safety."

BOY ARRESTED

An eleven-year-old boy, a ward of the Bowmanville Boys' School, was picked up by Constable John Morrow Friday night and is being held here pending the arrival of a school official. The youngster had been placed on a farm in Dummer township and when taken in charge here was endeavoring to hitch-hike to Hamilton, where his mother lives.

Centre Drive Continues For One Week

The first week of October will tell the story whether Peterborough is going to get its Memorial Community Centre or whether the project will have to be put aside once more for another 10 or 20 years.

Announcement was made today that the campaign, $70,000 short of it goal of $225,000 in contributions, has been extended for another seven days in the hopes that the money needed to realize the Foundation Committee's aims will be forthcoming. Ten thousand dollars a day each day of next week will assure the campaign's success.

"We know that the sum of money we asked for at the start of the drive is a large amount," J. A. Jebson said today, "but after all we wouldn't have begun on that basis if we didn't know there was a great deal of interest in a community centre. The fact that $155,000 has been collected is proof of the real interest."

Mr. Jebson went on to say that there was no member of the Community Centre's committees who didn't feel that with a real effort the desired goal could be obtained in the coming week.

Peterborough was the first city to begin campaigning for a project of this type, but news received today from Hamilton is assurance that development of the city's scheme has been watched with interest and given rise to similar action elsewhere. For it was announced today that voters of the city of Hamilton will be requested to vote upon establishment of a memorial centre costing $1,000,000 and an additional $500,000 for extension of park services in their December municipal elections.

The campaign today showed a total of $154,939.85 in the four divisions of the canvass, with greatest progress recorded in the special names and retail merchants canvass, which contributed an additional $6,918 to the Community Centre fund. It is now past the half-way mark in reaching its objective.

Over 94 per cent of its objective, the manufacturers canvass added $3,500 since Friday and now stands at $94,350. The employees canvass is at $36,789 and the general canvass at $3,102.50.

Contributions of $1,000 each were made Friday by Lowlaw's Groceteria and by the Toronto Savings and Loan Co. Donations of $100 apiece were sent in by the Paris Cafe, the Churchill Restaurant and the Silver Moon Grill.

COOKIE BLITZ

A big jar of cookies melted into thin air in a matter of seconds Friday afternoon when several men from the Training Centre raided the cookie jar. The soldiers were engaged in moving furniture from the old Recreation Centre to the new one on Charlotte street. One of them appeared with a big jar, whispered to a few of his companions and in a flash there was a crowd of men having an afternoon lunch. It was every man for himself and the driver up in front was caught at a disadvantage. His plaintive wail "Don't forget me, I'm here too," accompanied the satisfied crunching of the rest of his companions.

Traffic Bylaw Changes To Be Presented

"Now we'll get some action," commented Alderman Mark when the Board of Works Thursday named Malcolm McIntyre, assistant building inspector, chairman of a committee to revise the building bylaw. The other members are City Engineer Parsons, Plumbing Inspector Metheral, Fire Chief Gimblett, and Sanitary Inspector MacPherson.

It seems that some time in the past, more or less remote, a similar group was asked to sift the building bylaw down to present day usefulness, but nothing ever came of it. No one convened it, and the council's expected action "came to naught." Hence, the point of Alderman Mark's statement at which some of the other aldermen raised eyebrows.

Traffic Bylaw

The traffic bylaw is also to be consolidated. Since it was passed in 1939, it has gathered the accretion of thirteen amendments, City Solicitor Huycke told the Board, and Alderman Bradburn said "it's about time it was consolidated."

A traffic report by Chief Thompson and City Engineer Parsons was generally adopted and recommended to the council. One of its clauses advises that Reid street be made a through street from Charlotte street to the Chemong road, cancelling stops at Hunter street which Alderman Gordon, who lives a block away, persuaded the council to authorize several years ago as safety precaution for the large number of people crossing Reid street at St. Peter's Cathedral. Since then members have been advocating return to the zooming accommodation passed Hunter street, and several months ago the council asked for the report which was in turn referred to the Board of Works for their opinion.

Hunter street will be made a through street from "the western line of Reid to the eastern line of Park," and "danger, go slowly" signs will be set at Simcoe and Stewart streets.

Another perennial subject in the traffic chapter is the corner hedge, screening view of converging cars. It has been frequently mentioned, but nothing is ever done about it. In fact at several corners new hedges have recently grown to obscuring height. The hedge at Hunter, Donegal and Park was frowned on the other night, and it was stated that all hedges are required to be cut back twenty feet from their corners. Something was also said about the southeast corner of Monaghan road and Weller street and various other clauses of the report which will be received by the council Monday night.

Frost Comes Too Late To Harm Tomato Crop

Contract growers of tomatoes will have unusually light loss this season, according to opinion at Canada Packers, and the plant is quite happy about it.

"Most of the tomatoes have been picked and by the middle of next week we expect to wind up and get ready for pumpkins," E. S. Ford, department head, remarked today. "We feel we have got the most of them, and any loss to the grower is going to be slight."

Frost was reported in this morning's probabilities, but it is arriving too late to cause any material damage to tomatoes. Most of them are now in tins, Mr. Ford said.

Soldiers Overseas To Get Cigarettes

Three hundred cigarettes will go to each of the following soldiers, airmen and seamen, whose names were drawn from the box at the Canadian Legion overseas bingo held in their hall on Friday night: Pte. C. R. Cavanagh, Pte. C. J. McIlwain, AB. Edward M. O'Brien, Gnr. M. McMahon, Pte. Edwin Smith, LAC. V. F. Pargnoli, Pte. James K. Cross, Pte. John L. Barkwell, tPe. Patrick Condon, ERA. R. F. Ringing Door Bells For Centre Fund

"Now, if my son was here I know he would give $10, but he is with the R.C.A.F., so I'll put in $10 for him."

That was the response of a London street father to a pinch-hitting canvasser for the Memorial Community Centre Friday night.

Twenty dollars from that house so cheerfully given "that it was really a pleasant experience," said the canvasser relating today some details of his reception.

"There was one woman who told me she had only two dollars, but she would like to give something to the Memorial Centre, and would that be all right with me.

'It is entirely what you feel you can give,' I said to her, and she opened her purse and handed me a dollar bill and four quarters. I thought this canvassing business might be kind of tough, but Pat Scollard told me some of his men couldn't go out last night, they had essential engagements or something, and would I help.

The very first house I called at the man who came to the door was friendly enough but he had his mind made up, so I sensed. He said something about the boys who were fighting for us having had a tough time as young fellows during the depression, and any way he thought a civic hospital should come first. I had made up my mind I wasn't getting into any arguments. That wasn't the purpose of my call, as I saw it, so I simply said we'd get a hospital, too, one of these days, and besides if Peterborough was able to provide more playing fields and a Community Centre the youngsters of tomorrow should have better opportunities to grow healthier in the outdoors, and in skating and hockey and all the rest of the games, and we would have something that most of the smaller cities in the country would be envying. And that was that, just a pleasant and brief exchange.

Offers Help

At another house the man says to me 'I've seen you often' and called me by my first name; and he had me a bit embarrassed because I didn't know him, and it was dark by that time to see the names on my list. He said "I haven't got the spare money right now, but how would five dollars do some time next week. I'll take it out of the next pay."

So I said to him: 'With a spirit like that the five spot is as good as in the treasury. Do you feel like signing a card that will remind you about it?" And that's what he did, and he says 'If I don't get around to the office on Water street, somebody can call here, but you can count on me to do the calling."

A lady came to the door at one house. She said her husband had contributed at the De Laval and her daughter at the Quaker Oats, and she thought that household was doing its share. I agreed with her, as gratefully as I could.

No Money There

At three houses no one answered the door, and apparently the people were out. At one of them an Examiner paper boy was banging on the door. I gave it a couple more knocks and we both decided there was no money for either of us at that place.

At another place the man says "I'll sign the card for ten dollars but I won't be around to the office until next Thursday or Friday. How will that do?"

"Splendid," I said, and he signed the card in the hall light. And he remarked: "I see the factories, I mean the managements, are certainly coming through for this Memorial Centre. I think the citizens would be crazy if they don't get right in behind them. We don't get chunks of money like that every day; and the people as a whole will own the place... I guess I won't get much out of it; some hockey matches, or a concert now and then, but I've got ten dollars just to be in there on having a real place; the men overseas will wonder how we did it... They and their kids ten or fifteen years from now!"

I said to him, looking at the name on the card: "Mister ——, you ought to be out with a handful of these cards. I ought to turn the rest over to you."

Friendly People

That is the way it went, something a little different at every house, and honestly they were a friendly lot of people. I was like visiting them. If canvassing for the Memorial Centre is like that stretch of London street I'd say it's a cinch if the weather was like last night. But it seems better to get around before dark..."

That is an unvarnished report of the pinch-hitting canvasser's account of his hour and a half's ringing door bells Friday evening.

On the other and some stories are going the rounds about people waiting for canvassers to call and wondering when they are due...

Flower Holders Bring $14 To Robot Victims

An adage "Waste not, want not" has been aptly demanstrated throughout the five-year war period which might, through the lessons learned, warrant a continuance as time procedes, even were it only utilized to assist public benevolent campaigns which from time to time are bound to find a need even in the most prolific days that lie ahead.

Many instances of this have occurred during the life of the Peterborough and District British War Victims Fund, and been recorded in this column, but none of them tells the story in a better way than that unfolded in to-day's account of how money has been raised to help the fund.

To William Naish goes the credit both for the idea and its execution, which with the co-operation of the staff at the Little Lake Cemetery, particularly Isaac Harrison, Miss Jennie Saunders, and C. F. Kitney. He has over the past three summers been responsible for raising well over $50.

Tin cans are scare, so much so that compositions have for a long time been in use, and yet all the old tin cans that became empty in the early stages of the war never seemed to find anywhere the profitable use that might be thought possible under those circumstances.

Mr. Naish conceived the idea that by placing a long spike through the bottom of used motor oil quart cans and soldering them to make them leak-proof, and painting them a green color, they would give good service as flower holders to decorate graves, and putting this thought into action he was able to supply hundreds, the entire proceeds of which have all come to the fund.

With little possibility of further sales being made this season, the amount for those sold this year was turned into the fund, and is recorded to-day, the final 25 cents to make $14 credited from this source having been supplied by those responsible for the sales end of this enterprise. From a value standpoint in returns, this salvage effort must surely have proven proportionately to have been one of the best on record.

Proceeds of sale of flower holders made and donated by William Naish, and sold by staff, Little Lake Cemetery	14.00

Lt. Phil Turner Escapes Arnhem Trap

A number of calls which poured into the Examiner Friday night related the glad tidings from a radio newscast that Lieut. Philip Turner who fought with the British "Red Devil" Airborne Division at Arnhem, is one of two Canadian officers who escaped. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. Turner, 548 Gilmour street.

This is the first word of his safety his parents have received. He went overseas in May, one of four Peterborough men to be loaned as officers to the British Army. His people knew he had been training with an airborne unit and a letter informed them that he had expected to see action on the Continent soon.

After two years at Trinity College, Toronto, Lieut. Turner left school to enlist in the Army. When he received his commission he joined the Prince of Wales Rangers (C.A.) in February 1943 and after going overseas was attached to the British South Staffordshire Regiment. The 23-year-old soldier is an honor graduate of the Peterborough Collegiate.

A Reuters News Agency despatch told for the first time that 20 Canadians took part in the disastrous paratroop attack. Only two of them made their way out of that unbelievable hell in Holland. Of 8,000 men who held out nine days, only 1,800 made their way back to Allied lines, exhausted but unbeaten.

The suffering endured by Lieut. Turner and the other airborne troops is something beyond imagination. One report gives the following description: "The Germans kept slinging mortars at us until it fell like rain.... There were plenty of self-propelled guns and German S.S. units came out at dusk every night and pumped away for 20 minutes from a range of about 300 yards. Packed in a tight perimeter it was positively hell. Men were lost all around you in a bewildering nightmare, but no one gave up hope."

Before entering Trinity College where he was taking a course in commerce and finance, Lieut. Turner was Examiner correspondent for the Collegiate, and he was a familiar figure in school activities.

Christmas Box Suggestions For Overseas

A great many service boys and girls will be spending another Christmas overseas this year, and families at home are packing boxes to send to loved ones. It's often a difficult problem to decide just what to put in these eleven-pound cartons, since the boys and girls generally don't ask for anything in particular. In many cases, the serviceman or woman is well supplied with practically everything he needs, before leaving Canada, and just "replacements" are necessary from time to time.

However, there's usually some little thing to catch the eye, which would appeal to someone far from home, and it's all the more appreciated because it did come from Canada. Men's specialty shops have reported pyjamas, gaily striped, and good quality shirts, on the top of their sales lists for overseas, with underwear running a close second. Other standard articles, such as ties, scarves, handkerchiefs, sweaters, sox and gloves are finding a good market too, and are certainly acceptable.

Pen and pencil sets top the sales in most jewellry stores, since everyone manages to lose one or the other occasionally, and it doubly hard for service people to keep track of them, when constantly on call and often on the move at short notice. Identification bracelets are always good, and a few active service watches are being sold. For someone in a quandary as to what to send, a crested ring would be perfect, or for girls in the service, a smart and useful paid of cuff links. Money belts or wallets are also good.

Leather Goods

Speaking of leather goods, a zipped leather writing kit, in brown black or blue is an ideal gift, and servicemen have spoken of these handy compact kits as "just the thing." A leather carry-all, with waterproof lining, would be useful for keeping toilet articles together. For girls in the service, cute little cosmetic kits are available, and are remarkable morale builders, for a woman always feels better after she has put her "face" on.

Here are a few suggestions for friends sending to another friend in the service: handy metal cups in a leather case; zipped leather cases for various toilet articles; a compact little stove, which fits into a small case, and gets its heat from "pills"; regular toilet articles, especially razor blades, and soap; windproof lighters; flints; cigarettes and more cigarettes; gum, chocolate bars and life savers.

Canned food, or fruit cake, Christmas cake,—anything that tastes like mother's cooking—is bound to make a hit over there. However, whatever the box contains, it comes from home, and that means most to them. Returned servicemen have said that they didn't remember just what their boxes contained, but that it really didn't matter, as long as they were remembered. So don't forget, get that parcel off right away. And here's a thought, wrap the present in gay Christmas trappings, so he can have the fun of opening it—just like Christmas at home.

Honor J. A. Troke For Service During 30 Years

Genial John A. Troke, past president of the Kiwanis club, and retiring superintendent of the Peterborough district of the Prudential Insurance Company, was honored by the staff at a gala banquet Friday evening at the Empress Hotel.

On behalf of the staff, C. W. Nicholson, who has been associated with Mr. Troke, as an assistant superintendent, during the latter's five years in Peterborough, presented him with a gift in recognition of his thirty year's service to the company and fine work in Peterborough. In his address, Mr. Nicholson said that he hoped Mr. Troke would always keep a "niche in his heart" for them.

Mr. Troke expressed his regret that Mrs. Troke was in Toronto, and was unable to attend, saying that he wished she could have been there to share his evening with him. Paying tribute to the help Mrs. Troke had given him, he urged the wives of the men to "be patient" with them, and to encourage them in their work. Briefly reviewing his service with the company, he said that he had never worked with a "better bunch of boys", and brought appreciate laughter from the gathering with his account of a trip he had made recently, when he had received several offers of positions. "Everybody seems to think I want a job", he continued, "and I've just retired to take a rest."

During the evening, another presentation was made, when Harold Howay, and O. S. Smith presented him with a pipe, on behalf of the Life Underwriters' Association, wishing him many happy years in his retirement.

Ken Jones, as chairman, said that the staff had enjoyed working with Mr. Troke, and were sorry to learn that he had decided to retire. "However", he continued, "we all wish you happiness and health, and many years to enjoy your well-earned rest." He spoke of the help Mrs. Troke had been to her husband throughout the years, and said that he knew that she would continue to aid him. E. J. Henwood, new superintendent of the district, said that he hoped to carry on as well as Mr. Troke, and wished him happiness and luck.

Mrs. W. L. Hepburn, guest soloist, sang "Little Coon's Prayer", by Barbara Hope, and "The Silent Call", a composition of the accompanist, C. W. Nicholson, with words by Mrs. Nicholson. Mr. Nicholson was also at the piano for a singsong, conducted by Pat Anglesey. Ernest Jeffrey of Cobourg, presented Mr. Troke with a letter for Mrs. Troke, expressing regret that she could not be present, and instructing her to call a florist for a bouquet of flowers ordered for her as a remembrance of the evening. The toast to the women was proposed by M. A. Johnston of Oshawa, and the toast to Mr. Troke was proposed by F. S. Raymond of Orillia.

Thoe present were: Fred A. Turpin, Donald A. Riggs, Mat Johnston, Thomas Gill, Charles E. Hawkins from Oshawa; Mr. and Mrs. E. Jeffrey, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Cockburn, A. F. Allen, of Cobourg; Mr. and Mrs. D. A. Warner, Port Hope; F. S. Raymond, George K. Bates, H. McNabb of Orillia; Elmer Moore, Midland; Jack Goodwin, Barrie; and from Peterborough, Misses Hazel Jackson, Clothilde Hurley, Madeline Flynn, Connie Nicholson, Mrs. W. L. Hepburn, Mrs. D. Greer, Mr. and Mrs. Ken Jones, Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Nicholson, Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Wray, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Wright, Mr. and Mrs. M. F. Mackie, Mr. and Mrs. Pat. Anglesey, Mr. and Mrs. L. Munden, Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Harris, John A. Troke, T. J. Best, E. J. Henwood, R. Woodward; Reg. Doubt, Lakefield; F. S. Linton, Campbellford.

MARRIAGE SNARLS OF OTHERS SELDOM SEEN AS RED LIGHTS

Despite Constant Examples, the Young Folks Fail to Avoid Nagging, Grouching, Tyrannizing.

DEAR MISS DIX—Fifteen years ago I married one of the best men who ever lived because I was tired of working and supporting myself. I didn't love him. I loved no one but myself. I took all he offered and gave as little as I could in return. I never even tried to make him a comfortable home. He bore with me patiently for ten years, when he woke up and told me he no longer cared for me.

Now I have discovered that I love him madly and have tried in vain to reawaken his old affection. We live in the same house and meet at meals, but that is all, and I am grateful even for that. Oh, what would I give for what I have thrown away! I wish that all indifferent wives might profit by my mistake.

MRS. A. H. R.

Marriage Failures Identical

ANSWER—So do I, Mrs. A. H. R., but red lights that every divorce hangs out along the matrimonial road never seem to warn husbands and wives of the dangerous places where they are likely to skid over the embankment if they don't slow down and drive carefully.

Did you ever stop to think what a strange and pitiful thing it is that nearly all divorces are granted for the same causes? That almost every marriage that is a failure is one for the same reason? That practically all husbands and wives fall out of love with each other because of petty tyrannies and nagging and selfishness and lack of consideration?

This being the case, wouldn't you think that every young couple who got married would make a cast-iron resolve, and keep it, not to be guilty of the faults that they have seen alienate their friends and break up their homes? Wouldn't you think that when they saw that the A's were ruining what ought to be a happy marriage, by snarling at each other like an angry dog and cat, they would refrain from quarrelling? Wouldn't you think that when a bride saw Mrs. B. driving her husband away from her by perpetual fault-finding she would bite her own tongue off before she would criticize her husband?

Wouldn't you think that when a man saw how Mr. C. was taking all the joy out of life for his wife by his grouching, he would resolve to be a little ray of sunshine in his own home? Wouldn't you think that when a man saw how Mr. D. was killing his wife's love for him by never speaking to her except to find fault with her, and by starving her heart to death, that he would take the trouble to jolly his wife along?

But they don't. Nobody is warned by another's experience. Such is human conceit that every husband and wife think that they can treat those to whom they are married just as badly as they want to, that they can be just as careless as they wish, and the partners of their bosoms will go right on loving them.

In your particular case you were not warned by the women whom you had seen lose good husbands because they were too selfish and self-centered to take the trouble to keep them. No more will others be warned by your fate, or else we would not have so many wrecked homes.

DEAR DOROTHY DIX — What do you think of a husband who says that all the money he earns is his and that his wife has no right to any share in it? Also, he asserts that she is not earning anything by staying at home doing the cooking, washing, cleaning, baby-tending and so forth. He expects me to work for him all my life and never have a cent I can call my own.

TIRED WIFE.

Sitdown Strike Warranted Here

ANSWER—A woman who is married to a man like that should go on a sit-down strike and refuse to do another hand's turn of work until he agrees to give her for her own personal use at least the wages of a servant.

Let him come home and find no dinner and tell him that the cook refuses to cook another meal until she is paid. Let him find the beds unmade, the floors unswept, because the house maid has refused to work any longer without wages. Let him find that he hasn't a clean collar or a clean shirt, because the laundress likewise would not work without compensation. Go off and leave him with the children to take care of and tell him that the nurse has left because she couldn't collect her wages. That will bring him to terms.

The reason that widowers with children are always in such a hurry to remarry is because when they find that they have to pay half a dozen different women to do the work that their wives did just for their board and clothes, it bankrupts them. Wife labor is the only scab labor that is left in the world.

For Sunday, October 1

SUNDAY'S horoscope shows a rather peculiar state of mind, with the inclinations, feelings and emotions as well as the mentality in a confused, chaotic, imaginative and undependable condition. This dubious situation may make it imperative to weigh all situations with caution, straight vision, as well as straightforward conduct, since the easy, illicit, and crafty way seems to beckon.

Those whose birthday it is may have a baffling and bewildering year ahead of them, in which the mentality, emotions, impulses and proclivities seem to lean toward the subtle, elusive, even illicit and eccentric. In material affairs this may be hazardous and may create snares, traps, entanglements and regrets.

A child born on this day may be nervous and temperamental, with erratic and strange complexes.

For Monday, October 2

Monday's astrological forecast is for a day of outstanding events, with sudden opportunities for reaching high goals and keenly desired objectives, and this against tenacious obstacles, delays, and other frustrating and trying details. But shrewd, original, fresh and ingenious methods and swift grasp of an exceptional opening may finally bear results.

Those whose birthday it is may be confronted by a year of surprising or unusual chances for a quick grasp of an opportunity, which might possibly land them in public esteem and power. This may have to be wrested from difficult, tenacious and delaying obstacles, to be vanquished by practical, but original or novel tactics, clever skills, and keen grasp of thwarting situations or malevolent opposition. Let personality and charm have play rather than sarcastic or caustic remarks.

A child born on this day may be smart, original and quick to grasp an opportunity. It may finally win out against many odds by its personality and charm.

THE TEA HOUR GOSSIP . . . .

The casserole saves dish washing because it makes it possible to bring food to the table in the dish in which it has been cooked. Frequently also it contains a one dish meal, which eliminates all but the one cooking dish.

The casserole makes it possible to use left-overs, in attractive, palatable combinations and to prepare vegetables in an almost unlimited variety of ways. A whole meal may be cooking in the oven in the casserole while the oven is being used for some other purpose, such as baking cookies.

Bananas En Casserole

6 small bananas, 1 glass currant or grape jelly, 1 cup boiling water, 1 lemon. Peel the bananas, remove the coarse threads and divide in quarters, cutting first crosswise and then lengthwise. Place in a greased casserole and pour over them a sauce made by melting the currant or grape jelly in the boiling water and mixing with it the juice of the lemon. Cover the casserole and bake in a hot oven (400 degrees to 450 degrees F) until the bananas are tender. The cover may be removed at the last moment, and the bananas sprinkled with granulated sugar and allowed to brown slightly. Serve as an entree with game or beef.

Scalloped Ham and Potatoes

6 potatoes, 1 pound raw smoked ham, 3 cups milk, 1 green pepper (may be omitted), flour.

Cover the bottom of an oiled baking dish with sliced, raw potatoes. Sprinkle with flour, add inch square pieces of ham. Repeat until the dish is full. Pour in as much milk as the dish will hold. Bake (350-400 degrees F) until the potatoes are tender (1 to 1½ hours). The chopped green pepper adds to the flavor.

Chopped Beef En Casserole

2 pounds chopped beef, 2-3 cup tomato catchup, 1-3 teaspoon tabasco sauce, boiled beets, salt. Mix chopped beef with tomato catchup. Add tabasco sauce, using more if desired. Season well with salt. Place in casserole and bake 350 degrees slowly from 2 to 2½ hours, basting frequently with water or Worcestershire sauce. A few strips of bacon across the top will add to the richness and improve the flavor. Garnish with quartered beets.

UNDER THE BIG TOP—The "big top fashion" is what some of us have facetiously named the larger-looking hats that have created such a stir this Autumn. Hats of the type shown here are selling in the specialty shops and leading millingrs report a tremendous demand for them. Men, who always hated the doll hats, like these. So Anitra Andra does a beauty in peacock blue hatter's plush, dramatically draped and trimmed with swirling biot feathers in gray and Mexican pink.—By Alice Alden.

Corkery Sisters Married In Pretty Double Wedding

An event of wide interest took place this morning, when the double wedding of Misses Margaret Frances Corkery and Mary Nora Corkery, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. John R. Corkery, Gilmour street, took place in St. Peter's Cathedral. The cathedral was decorated with white 'mums and gladioli, the ceremonies being performed by uncles of the brides, and their respective godfathers, Rev. Kevin Corkery and Rev. Vincent Corkery. Rev. Vincent Corkery celebrated the Nuptial mass. Miss Marion Best, A.T.C.M., was organist, and Miss Geraldine Collins was soloist.

Miss Margaret Frances Corkery became the bride of Lieut. James F. Dunn, National Defence Headquarters, Ottawa, son of Dr. John F. Dunn and Mrs. Dunn, of Almonte, Quebec, and Miss Mary Nora Corkery became the bride of Captain John F. Brown, United States Army, son of Mr. Kenneth Brown and the late Mrs. Brown of Niagara Falls, N.Y.

Given in marriage by their father, the brides were gowned alike in floor-length white Duchess satin, with fitted Basque bodices, buttoned at the back from neck to waist with tiny self-covered buttons, Sweetheart necklines, and long full Bishop sleeves. The full skirts fell from gathered waistlines into sweeping trains. Their floor-length veils of tulle illusion net, fell from caps of lace, made from their mother's wedding gown, and each carried a bouquet of Butterfly roses, gardenias and adiantum fern.

The attendants were frocked in dresses on similar lines, made of corded taffeta, with Sweetheart necklines, and full skirts gathered to fitted basques. Misses Catherine Corkery and Louise Hickey, as maids of honor, were gowned in blue and peach taffeta respectively, while Misses Frances Dunn and Helen Hickey, as bridesmaids, wore rose and lime taffeta. Each wore a matching Dolly Varden bonnet caught under the chin with long velvet streamers, and carried a Colonial bouquet of pink Rapture roses.

Assisting as best men, were Lieut. Robert Nassoiy, U.S. Navy; Cadet Fergus Walsh, C.I.C.; Flt. Lieut. John Epping, R.C.A.F.; Staff Sgt. Tussel Provan, R.C.O.C.; Major J. Francis Brennan, R.C.A., and Capt. A. H. MacLean.

At the reception held at the home of the bride's parents, their mother received the guests in a powder blue crepe ensemble, with matching velvet hat with ostrich plumes, and a corsage of Dream roses. Mrs. John F. Dunn was gowned in maroon crepe with a small feather hat, and a corsage of Johanna Hill rosse. Miss Nassoiy, aunt of Capt. J. F. Brown, also receiving, wore blue crepe, black accessories, and a corsage of Briarcliffe roses.

For a wedding trip to Toronto and other points, Mrs. James F. Dunn wore a powder blue suit, with matching topcoat and brown accessories, and a corsage of gardenias. On their return, Lieut. Dunn and Mrs. Dunn will live in Ottawa. Mrs. J. F. Brown chose a lime green wool suit for travelling, with matching topcoat, brown accessories, and a corsage of gardenias. On their return, Capt. Brown and Mrs. Brown will live near Baltimore, Maryland.

The most glorious help a civilian can give to the fighting men is also one of the easiest to give. It is a pint of blood..... Blood you will never miss.

Today a Blood Donor Clinic—serving all branches of the armed forces is carrying on the greatest life-saving business in the whole history of mankind.

Through it, any healthy adult between the ages of 18 and 60—with no harm to himself or herself, and with almost no inconvenience—can directly and certainly save the lives of three, four, five and even six of our fighting men each year — Men who will die unless someone gives his or her blood.

If you live within reach of the Blood Donor Clinic, call now for your appointment. Somewhere, months later, a man will come back to his home, where he never would have come again except for you. Surely you could spare a little blood to see one of your family return home safely — maybe your own son, husband, or sweetheart is out in the field wounded and is badly in need of a transfusion. Won't you help to bring him back?

The heavy fighting which has gone on in France since D-Day has meant a tremendous drain on the live saving stocks of blood plasma. It is vital that the blood plasma bank be maintained and increased. As each day of fighting goes on the need increases. Don't delay, sign up as a Blood Donor today.

Quakers Win

Sullivan brought home Pollock, Rose was fanned, while a hit by Gunn over second base scored Sullivan. The heavy hitting in the third marked the spot where Pitcher Rose's efforts began to lag, and while the Brinton hurler played good ball all the way, hard-hitting Quakers showed enough signs of liking his tosses later in the game, to warrant the replacing act.

In the sixth, Phillips went on the hilltop for Brintons. Quakers kept up the hitting in this frame, making three clean blows to score two players. The eight and ninth innings, played in dusk that made seeing the ball a task in itself, brought the Porridge team a pair of runs, totalling the count at 10.

In the ninth inning, Brintons were at their best of the game. It started off rather brightly for the Carpet-Makers too! Craig singled to left, advanced to second on a passed ball. Kingdon popped out. McGarrity singled over first base, and Craig made a dash for home, climaxed by a circus-slide and tumble. Phillips continued the attack striking a powerful blow into centre field to score McGarrity, and reach second base himself. Corbett whammed the ball into deep centre to bring home Phillips, and Rose was nabbed at first base. Corbett came down the home stretch on Jones' single, and Mel Byers popped to Willshaw to end the inning and game.

For the Brintons, Corbett contributed the hitting features, bashing out four powerful blows in five trips to the plate. Craig, also of the Brintons, hit three times out of four times at bat.

Quakers' hitting star was Sullivan, who made four hits out of six trips to bat. In the two cases where a hit wasn't made, the Quaker second-sacker shot flies to Jones in deep centre field. Pollock also smacked four blows. Horton, hurling for Quakers, struck out two, walked none, and allowed 10 hits, five of which came in the last half of the ninth.

Between Rose and Phillips for Brintons, three were fanned, two were walked, and 15 hits were allowed.

In taking the second straight game of the Industrial League playoffs, Quaker Oats needs only one more win to gain the championship. The next game will probably be played Monday evening.

The teams:

Quaker Oats—Sullivan, 2b; Roote, ss; Gunn, c; Horton, p; Fisher, lf; Weaver, 3b; Ash, 1b; Willshaw, cf; Pollock, rf.

Brintons—Corbett, 3b Rose, p, rf; Jones, cf; Byers, c; Weese, ss; Craig, 1b; Kingdon, lf; McGarrity, 2b; Phillips, rf, p.

Farmers Worried

TORONTO, Sept. 30 — (CP). — Agriculture Minister Kennedy of Ontario said yesterday prospects of a strike in packing houses throughout Canada are aggravating a labor shortage in the abbatoirs that will cost Ontario farmers $250,000 and possible twice that much, if packing plants are unable to handle their cattle.

Hockey Players Asked To Help

FORT WILLIAM, Sept. 30—(CP) —National needs come before sport, A. A. Heaps, Dominion Grain Controller at the Lakehead, said here last night.

He was commenting on an appeal he made earlier in the day to hockey players training in Port Arthur with St. Louis Flyers of the American Hockey League. He urged them to trade their hockey sticks for work in hard pressed Lakehead elevators.

"An unprecedented bottleneck in grain handling exists here and physically capable men are urgently needed," he said. "Hockey players, I believe are physically able to do this work."

The grain controller said there were men not only over 60 but beyond 70 and 80 years doing a grand job in the elevators "while these young men are chasing a puck."

Mr. Heaps said the next two or three days would indicate what course of action would ensue.

Training of the St. Louis club was suspended yesterday while players attended a meeting with Selective Service officials. No results of the meeting were disclosed.

LAWN BOWLING
By HERB MARTIN

There will be no bowling out at the club this evening.

There were only a few bowlers out last evening — just the real die hards.

It is most likely that this coming week will see the end of our local lawn bowling season.

The ladies games committee announces that as long as the bowling last they will hold a tournament every afternoon, providing the weather is fine.

Monday night program is—
7 p.m.—Single competition.
7.30 p.m.—
G. Sorenson C. Williamson
Group 3 play off.
8 p.m.—
D. Bell K. Sloane
W. Ashby J. McDonald
F. Fitzpatrick L. Turner
F. Kerr V. Selkirk

The winning rinks last night were skipped by C. Lawrence, T. McMillan and J. Harrison.

St. Kitts Beats Mimico 10-6

TORONTO, Sept. 30.—(CP).—St. Catharines Athletics defeated Mimico Mountaineers 10-6 at nearby Mimico last night to deadlock the Ontario senior lacrosse championship series at two games each in the best-of-seven final.

Frank Nelson and Madsen each tallied three goals for the winners.

The fifth game will be played at St. Catharines to-night.

THE SEASIDE AT HOME

CHESTERFIELD, England—(CP). —During the "Holidays at Home" period this year iodized vapor is being provided in the local park through 300 diffusers to give the touch of seaside air.

0. Dean McLaughlin allowed only four hits and struck out 11 Hamilton batters but the Colts could not get him any runs....The second game will be played in Oshawa today....This week-end's games will mark the final appearance of Harry Morgan with the Soldiers. The pilot and first baseman of the Military Training Centre team during the past two seasons is being transferred to the Provost Corps at Kingston....Cadmiums who played a close game with the local C.G.E. team at the C.G.E. picnic on July 1 were beaten 4 to 0 by Peoples last night in the final game for the Toronto senior title....The Hamilton Wildcats-Ottawa Trojans game is regarded as today's football classic....Ontario is to have two senior championship teams this season which is certainly par for the course in a lean year.

PRO-NAZI DUTCHMEN ROUNDED UP—Dutch patriots, steel-helmeted, rifle-armed, and wearing identifying orange armbands herd together their fellow townspeople accused of having collaborated with the Nazis. The pro-Nazis were rounded up after the town of Nijmegen was liberated.

New Donors Slow In Volunteering To Sign Up At Red Cross Clinic

In the past few weeks Red Cross authorities have been stressing the urgent need of replacing blood plasma supplies overseas which are lower now than at any time in the war. Casualties in France and Italy have required so much of the life-giving fluid that spare stocks are almost exhausted.

Donors who have signed up in Peterborough at the Red Cross Clinic have been faithful in their attendance and the list with 5, 7 and 9 donations marked after the names is growing greater. New donors appear to be scarce. The first two days of this week, with an attendance of 148, there were only ten people listed as making their first contribution for plasma. There must be many in the city and district who have not yet gotten around to signing up, and if the men overseas are to do a good job in the lines, they have the right to expect that those at home will see that medical supplies will be had in sufficient number.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

TWO HANDS IN ONE

OCCASIONAL duplicate deals, which wind up in different contracts at different tables, present interesting points of play in each case. One may be an offensive point and the other a defensive feature, one at No Trumps and the other at suit. There is hardly any limit to the variations which may develop in this funny game of ours which we call contract bridge.

North: ♠ Q 8 4 3 ♥ A J 2 ♦ K 7 5 ♣ 10 6 4
West: ♠ K 6 5 ♥ Q 6 ♦ Q 4 2 ♣ Q J 8 3 2
East: ♠ J 10 9 7 2 ♥ 10 8 3 ♦ A J 9 6 ♣ 9
South: ♠ A ♥ K 9 7 5 4 ♦ 10 8 3 ♣ A K 7 5

(Dealer: South. East-West vulnerable.)

South	West	North	East
1. 1 ♥	Pass	1 NT	Pass
2 ♣	Pass	2 NT	Pass
3 ♥	Pass	4 ♥
2. 1 ♥	Pass	1 NT	Pass
2 ♣	Pass	3 NT

In the heart play, a vital factor was displayed with the very first card offered, when West picked the club Q. It displayed the danger of leading a two-card sequence, a danger which does not exist with a three-card one. South won with the K, scored the spade A, finessed the heart J, ruffed the spade 4 with the heart 5, led the heart 7 to the A, ruffed the spade 8 with the heart 9, scored the heart K to clear trumps, then led the club 5. When the J won, the dummy's 10 became good. Leading to it would have meant also discard of a diamond on the spade Q, so that only two diamonds would be lost in addition to the one club. West led his diamond Q instead, and the K and A played, the J scored, but then the 10 was good. In either event, the club Q lead made game easy for South.

At No Trumps, East led the spade J to the A. The heart J was finessed, the A scored and the 2 led to the K. With eight tricks sure, South did not like to embarrass himself by forcing discards from dummy on his last two hearts, so instead led his club 5, which West won with the J. Now notice how a spade return builds the ninth trick there, a diamond will do it in that suit, and a club will do it in that. West tried the diamond Q, but it made no difference.

Your Week-End Question

When should a defender try deliberately to make the dummy ruff, instead of leading trumps to prevent it?

Allies Rip Two-Mile Breach Fourth Hole In Siegfried Line

2,700 Planes Turn Guns On Siegfried

1,000 Fighter-Bombers Blaze Path For Allied Troops

LONDON, Oct. 2—(AP)—More than 2,700 Allied warplanes struck in close and deep support today of the new American offensive against the Siegfried Line in the Aachen sector of northwest Germany.

Over 1,000 medium and fighter bombers blazed a path into the Nazi wall immediately before the Americans.

About 900 heavy bombers with 500 escorts tore at targets around Cologne and Kassel while another 300 heavy bombers poured bomb loads into Germany's greatest freight yards at Hamm, 90 miles northeast of Aachen.

Gen. Eisenhower broadcast a warning to Netherlands residents of islands in the Schelde Estuary to evacuate before the bombers start work there.

Cologne, fifth city of Greater Germany with 768,000 people, is 30 miles east of Aachen, near where the United States 1st Army was attacking the Siegfried Line today. The Prussian city on the Rhine is one of Hitler's greatest arsenals and also is a nodal communication centre for supplying the northern end of the German front.

Kassel, a city of 217,000, is one of the most important German railroad centres in the west. It lies 150 miles beyond Aachen.

Some 500 fighters convoyed the heavy bombers to and from the German cities. The bombers attacked through clouds.

Medium and fighter bombers shook the ground around Aachen for miles around with blows at pillboxes, gun positions and troop concentrations, front reports said.

The Germans also reported formations over southwest and south Germany, suggesting a two-directional attack from the west and south. One report said some bombers in the north were approaching the enemy naval base of Emden.

Sir Wm. Mulock Dies At 101 Passes In Sleep

Though Sir William believed he was 100 years old, he actually had passed the century mark and would have celebrated his 102nd birthday next Janutry 19. His grandson, Col. W. P. Mulock, Postmaster-General of Canada, clarified Sir William's age by stating that "somewhere in his life he dropped a year and we didn't want to worry him so never mentioned it."

Former Chief Justice of Ontario, former Postmaster-General of Canada, creator of the Federal Department of Labor and its first Minister, and for more than 20 years Chancellor of the University of Toronto, Sir William "slipped quietly away" after several months of gradually increasing weakness. He had been confined to bed since May although he had not been ill.

Until his death, Sir William retained interest in things Canadian

British Army Crushes Two Counters

Corridor In Holland Widened Again Huns Resist Fiercely

By JAMES M. LONG,
Associated Press War Correspondent.

LONDON, Oct. 2 —(AP) — The U. S. 1st Army, striking one of the greatest offensive blows of the war in an effort to break a new hole in the Siegfried Line, drove a steel wedge two miles deep on a six-mile front north of Aachen to-day.

American infantry and tanks rushed forward toward Geilkenkirchen in Germany from the Netherlands village of Groenstraat, 10 miles north of Aachen, and splashed across the Little Wurm River coursing near the Dutch-German border in the first 45 minutes of the attack.

The assault, made across wooded and pasture land pitted with thousands of foxholes and mineshafts which had been converted into strongholds, was aimed at driving a fourth hole in Hitler's west wall. The Americans already held three breaches in the line near Aachen.

Using Mortars.

The attack still was going forward to-night in the face of heavy resistance from enemy pillboxes, and fire from artillery and six-barrelled mortars.

British troops meanwhile crushed two of the strongest counter-attacks in the western campaign and broadened their corridor in Holland.

Surging into the rubble of German defences almost before the debris had stopped flying from one of the greatest aerial and land bombardments, the Americans were reported pouring through a lane of ruin pointed at the Rhine between Cologne and Dusseldorf, side door to the Rhur and main highway to Berlin.

Aim at Rhine.

"I doubt if they will stop now until they have reached the Rhine," said one front line correspondent.

The United States 1st Army, ending a stalemate of almost two weeks, led off the assault with a tremendous massed artillery barrage in which 10-inch guns thundered salvoes into the enemy's fixed positions, and an hour-long aerial attack by hundreds of medium and fighter bombers.

Great towers of earth, stone and debris rose as the explosives tore great holes in the green German countryside and blew apart buildings.

Then the infantrymen leaped from their outposts with bayonets fixed to

Soldiers Welcome Ralston

5 Year Veterans Seeking Leave To Return To Canada

By DOUG HOW—Canadian Press War Correspondent

WITH THE CANADIAN CORPS IN ITALY, Oct. 2—(CP Cable).—Canada's Defence Minister, Col. J. L. Ralston, will leave Italy fully aware of the problems Dominion soldiers are thinking about and grousing about as they continue to fight what is already the toughest and most sustained action of more than a year of campaigning in Italy. The first encounter with the question barrage on his tour of fighting units and base units came at a forward reinforcement battalion.

After that experience, Col. Ralston adopted the tactics of telling the men he knew there were problems about this and that and asking if they had any others.

Generally the Minister found the troops' minds turning on subjects like these:

1. The Pacific war; will the troops get home leave? What will the Pacific force consist of? How will the men be picked?

Answer: There will be a government announcement following the disclosure of the Quebec conference decisions.

Who Will Be First.

2. Demobilization: Will troops called up for home defence who did not volunteer for overseas service be "de-mobbed" first? When will the troops get home? Will they return via England or straight to Canada?

Answer: The machinery for demobilization has been set up. Canada will get the men back as quickly as possible, but "I don't think any of us realize the great demands that are going to fall on shipping after the defeat of Germany." Mr. Ralston could not promise that the home troops would not be demobilized before overseas veterans.

He added if the transport problem made the return of veterans slow it might be just as well to get the home troops out of the way.

3. Home leave for troops who have

25 German Battalions Try To Stem Canadian Advance

By ROSS MUNRO—Canadian Press War Correspondent

WITH THE 1ST CANADIAN ARMY IN BELGIUM, Oct. 2—(CP Cable).—The Germans are making increasingly strong efforts to block the Canadian Army drive into Holland from the Antwerp-Turnhout area, and it is estimated today there are 25 enemy battalions facing the Canadians along this 30-mile sector of the front.

North of Turnhout the Canadians have reached the Netherlands frontier at two points but the Germans are resisting every advance both from there and from the bridgehead over the Antwerp-Turnhout Canal at St. Leonard.

The Germans have decided to delay both the British 2nd Army and the Canadian Army in Holland while defences are rushed up along the Rhine. The counter-attacks against the 2nd Army's powerful wedge into Holland and growing resistance along the Canadian Army front are part of this policy.

Cloudy weather threatened to restrict the tremendous Allied air arm's support for ground operations, and greatly aid the German plan, but it turned clear this morning and Allied bombers and fighters were out in strength over the battle areas.

The 25 enemy battalions facing the Canadians, equivalent in combat strength to nearly three German infantry divisions, are a mixed collection gathered hastily from troops which escaped over the Schelde from the strip of Holland just south of the estuary. They are not particularly well equipped but probably are able to put up some resistance in the country north of Antwerp and Turnhout where the terrain favors the defenders.

Five thousand Germans still holding the south side of the Schelde at the mouth of the river are expected to fight it out against the Canadians who have them hemmed in there.

3 More Nazis To Face Trial

LONDON, Oct. 2 —(CP) — Three prominent Germans—one of them editor of Hermann Goering's newspaper, National Zeitung— will be tried on charges of treason, according to information to-day from German border sources.

The editor, Count Schwerin, has been accused of complicity in the abortive bomb plot against Hitler. So has Dr. Gessler, a non-Nazi who once served as Minister of War in the Weimar Republic and who also is facing a Himmler trial.

The same sources, amplifying Foreign Secretary Eden's charges that Heinrich Himmler was forming a secret organization to keep Nazism alive, asserted the No. 2 Nazi had set-up three different "crews."

"Crew No. 1" was described as picked Gestapo men who had assumed in new localities the identity and papers of men killed in Allied air raids.

"Crew No. 2" was reported to be be made up of picked youths from the 12 "Ordenspurgen" Special Schools for Nazi Youngsters, who are now being trained at secret camps in all dodges of underground organization.

"Crew No. 3" is to be made up of boys and girls under 16 years of age who would be given special training for harassing occupation forces.

Chinese Forces In Stiff Battle

CHUNGKING, Oct. 2—(AP).—The Chinese command announced extremely severe fighting today near Kweilin, locating the battle four to 12 miles southeast of the rail town of Hingan, 31 miles from the Kwangsi provincial capital.

The American 14th Air Force has lost his advanced base at Tanchuk, the fourth abandoned in face of the Japanese offensive through Hunan and Kwangsi to split China in two.

The Chinese communique said street fighting intensified in Paoching yesterday with both sides suffering heavy losses. Chinese forces near Paoching counter-attacked and were said to have taken two Japanese strongpoints, one 12 miles west and the other six northwest of the city. The advance continued, the communique added.

Severe fighting continued near fallen Tanchuk on the west river and to the southwest and northwest of Pingnam, about 10 miles farther up the river.

Beaufighters Blast Many Air Fighters

CAIRO, Oct. 2 — (AP). — R.A.F. Beaufighters destroyed five more German aircraft over Aegean Islands during the night, bringing total enemy losses to 16 within the last six days, the Middle East Air Communique announced today.

The majority of the planes shot down were large personnel-carrying transports, indicating the Germans were attempting to evacuate key men from the Islands.

Reds Angry At Leniency

MOSCOW, Oct. 2 — (AP). — Pravda devoted three columns today to another angry attack by Ilya Ehrenburg on alleged signs of weakness among the Western Powers in exterminating "Hitlerism."

He castigated the French author, Andre Gide, for "mumbling 'Down with Hitler' but simultaneously preparing for the return of the brown fever."

The eminent Soviet writer added: "In Paris, Academicians persuade themselves that Petain is not a vulgar traitor.'

"In a German city captured by the Allies, an old Nazi is the new mayor. An American newspaper moans over the fate of arrested traitors in France."

Declaring there were no isolationists in Russia, he said, "We are not witnesses or customers, but one of the creators of European culture. We writers of the Soviet Union are waiting for words of truth and goodness from the writers of the West."

EXPENSIVE WAR.

WASHINGTON— The United States Army Air Forces have dropper their 1,000,000th ton of bombs since the U. S. entered the war, it was announced to-day. This total was reached on Sept. 22.

3 Greek Islands Captured

British Commandos Attacking Nazis

LONDON, Oct. 2—(CP).— The Germans were reported from Cairo to-day to have given up three islands of the southern tip of Greece in the face of British Commando attacks while other advices told of Allied forces driving into Greece from the northwest and of Partisans fighting in the vicinity of Athens.

The Paris radio said Allied troops had landed in northwestern Greece on the Albanian frontier and had made contact with Greek Patriots.

Meanwhile, the BBC broadcast a Cairo report that German forces, hopelessly isolated by the collapsing Balkans, have given up three islands between Crete and Greece to British Commando troops. One island, possibly Kapela, was said to be off the southern tip of Greece. The others were not located.

The official German news agency, D.N.B., asserted without confirmation that British airborne forces in Albania had been thrown back near the port of Valona and the coastal stronghold of Himara. The British 5th Airborne Division, 2nd Airborne Brigade and a Highland Infantry Regiment were said to be taking part in the fighting

Huns Still Have Strength To Launch Heavy Counters

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press War Analyst

The phenomenon of the heavy German counter-attacks throughout the length of the western front yesterday means the enemy is trying to throw the Allies off balance and thus delay the great offensive which is boiling up.

The chief significance of this general counter-move beyond the fact that it signals an Allied drive, is that the Germans still have the strength and the will to carry out such initiative. However, there's no reason for the surprise—which seems to be rather widespread—over the fact that the Germans are making a fight of it.

A lot of folk seem to have jumped to the conclusion that the war was over when they saw the Germans in headlong retreat from the battle of Normandy. There was no occasion for any such belief, because there was every indication that Hitler had the intention of making a stand on his own frontiers and would have the strength to do so—for a time.

Underestimated

Now those who underestimated the German ability to carry on are plunged into gloom by being reminded that there's a possibility the war may run into the new year. Of course that's possible. However, there's no cause for pessimism over the way things are going. While nobody can pin down the length of the war, and while it may indeed go into 1945, it also is possible that Gen. Eisenhower's hope of victory this year may be fulfilled.

We still have three months left in this year, and much can be achieved in that time if things go well. True, the weather is likely to be bad after this month, and military operations will be difficult in November and December. However, if Eisenhower is able to stage his grand offensive soon and the Allies are able to crack the German defences by a head-on assault, they should be able to go far even after winter sets in.

It's important to note that Hitler has in his defensive lines everything he possesses in the way of manpower. His communications, supply bases and war industries are being subjected to a merciless bombardment by the Allied air fleet. Germany is being ruled by the Gestapo —a thorough unhealthy situation. And don't forget the 12,000,000 foreign slaves in Germany. Eisenhower has called on them to revolt, and at the least they are bound to add to Hitler's difficulty in keeping his country in hand.

The Canadian capture of the Channel port of Calais may aid the Allies greatly. It was a magnificent piece of work on the part of Lt.-Gen. Crerar's men. It's no secret that lack of sufficient port facilities is one of the difficulties Eisenhower faces in mounting an all-out offensive in an effort to end the war quickly. Allied battle lines are a long way from the sea, and the problem of supplies is a tough one. If the Nazis haven't wrecked the port of Calais too badly, it should be a windfall for us, since it is only a score of miles from England and has good communications to the interior of France.

Indian Troops Outflank Japs

KANDY, Ceylon, Oct. 2 (CP)—Indian troops outflanking Japanese defences at the enemy's western Burma base of Tiddim are engaged in scattered fighting northeast and east of Tiddim, headquarters announced today.

These Indian units are threatening Jap communications between Tiddim and the Chindwin River, 40 miles to the east.

Meanwhile, the main body of the 5th Indian Division with fighter-bomber support was meeting stiffer resistance on the "Chocolate Staircase," the twisting road north of Tiddim. It was from Tiddim, now a main objective of the current Allied Chin Hills offensive, that the Japanese launched their unsuccessful Indian invasion last spring.

Finns Battle Nazis Near Swedish Border

STOCKHOLM, Oct. 2 — (AP). — The Finnish communique said today the Finns had been battling German troops in Tornea, in northwestern Finland at the Swedish border, since yesterday morning.

The communique also announced that Finnish troops had captured an island in the Gulf of Bothnia off Kemi, where the Germans were reported carrying out extensive demolitions. Kemi is several miles south of Tornea.

The Finns are seeking to disarm and intern Nazi forces in compliance with the Russian armistice terms.

Canadians Capture Calais Take 5,000 Hun Prisoners

By ALAN RANDAL—Canadian Press War Correspondent

WITH THE 1ST CANADIAN ARMY IN CALAIS, Oct. 2—(CP Cable).—With the capture of Calais, three out of four French coast ports which have been under siege by 1st Canadian Army forces were in Allied hands today, leaving only Dunkerque—scene of the British evacuation in 1940—to be subdued.

Calais was captured by Canadian forces late Saturday and the last resistance was eliminated yesterday. The garrison commander, Col. Schroeder, and some 5,000 prisoners were taken as the enemy capitulated without further fight in the wake of a three-hour bombardment.

Boulogne fell to Canadian troops Sept. 21 and Le Havre to British formations under Lt.-Gen. Crerar's command nine days earlier.

6-Day Assault

Cap Gris Nez and its batteries of big guns which for four years had shelled Dover and surrounding towns and given that sector of the Kent coast the nickname "Hell Fire Corner" were seized last Friday.

Calais, like Bouolgne, fell after a six-day assault co-ordinated with heavy aerial attacks by big bombers

Reds Gaining In Yugoslavia

By DANIEL DE LUCE
Associated Press War Correspondent

MOSCOW, Oct. 2—(AP)—Russian fighter-bombers swarmed over Yugoslavia in round-the-clock raids on Germans forces as Russian troops gained steadily today along a curving, mountainous front 70 to 100 miles southeast of Belgrade in a drive that is bottling up an estimated 200,000 Nazi troops in the lower Balkans.

The Germans were fiercely defending their Balkan life line southeast of the Yugoslav capital, but yesterday Red Army troops, with Marshal Tito's Yugoslav Partisans acting as advance scouts, dented Nazi defences another 23 miles to within 43 miles of the Belgrade-Nis railway, Moscow announced.

Soviet pilots today reported silencing 50 enemy batteries, destroying five military trains and knocking out scores of trucks and tanks along the vital escape hatch for the imperilled Nazis.

(Meanwhile, an unconfirmed Budapest dispatch from Turkey said other Soviet and Romanian troops had penetrated 22 miles into southeastern Hungary in an offensive aimed at Budapets, Maygar capital less than 100 miles distant. Russian gains in that sector were officially acknowledged by Hungary but the depth was not disclosed.)

Moscow was silent about the Hungarian drive and about the situation at Warsaw, which was described as "critical" by Polish patriots as Berlin said the Nazis were overwhelming the dwindling guerillas.

Soviet progress toward the Mareva Valley route of the Belgrade-Greece railway was the only important advance claimed today along the entire Eastern front.

Thames' Forts Repel Raiders

LONDON, Oct. 2 — (CP). — The government revealed today that seven forts bristling with guns, built on concrete stilts above the water in the Thames Estuary, have been guarding the strategic seaborne supply route to London since 1942.

From these forts German planes, attempting to sow mines in the Estuary in an effort to cut off London from seaborne supplies during the early blitz, met a terrific barrage of ack-ack fire.

The forts successfully fought off German planes planting mines and broke up E-boat attacks on assembling coastal convoys. Later they whipped up effective fire against the robot bombs and also were used as bases for sea rescue boats.

Fantastic Events Numerous

74 Huns Give Up, Fool Officer

By ALAN RANDAL
Canadian Press War Correspondent

WITH THE 1ST CANADIAN ARMY IN CALAIS, Oct. 2 (CP-Cable)—"Yes," said the Colonel of a famous Western Canada Regiment, "the most fantastic things have been happening."

Standing in Fort Neulay just west of Calais Saturday evening waiting for German prisoners to file out of the captured town, the Colonel, from Victoria, B.C., related this incident:

At dusk Friday night, during the 24-hour truce to permit evacuation of civilians, Canadian pickets saw a German non-commissioned officer goose-stepping down the road toward Fort Neulay. He saluted the Colonel and said there were 74 Germans at the main gate who wished to surrender. But, he said, "we cannot come until tonight, after our officer comes out from the town and gives us our night inspection."

The Canadians said [illegible] right and [illegible] German [illegible]

Centre Gains $3,416 Over Week-End

With the Victory Loan now only a matter of weeks in the offing, the financial campaign of the Memorial Community Centre must be concluded by Saturday, John E. Keyes, finance committee chairman, stated this morning.

Over the week-end the standing in the drive mounted from $154,939 to $158,355, an overall increase of $3,416, while the manufacturers canvass showed no change from Saturday's figures and the employees' canvass was up only a very small amount, the other two divisions—special names and retail and the general canvass—exhibited more satisfactory gains.

An addition of $1,004 to the general canvass, the largest sum by which it has been increased for any one reporting period, was particularly pleasing in view of the slow progress made in the opening fortnight of the campaign. Special and retail went up $2,120, though even now it will require $17,000 more to attain its objective.

"We are by no means discouraged at the results so far," Mr. Keyes stated emphatically this morning, asking that citizens do not jump at the conclusion that the campaign is already a failure because the total monies received don't come up to the mark expected of them yet. He explained that the committee set a policy at the beginning only to record actual returns received at the Water street office consisting of such cash and definite committments as were already in its hands; and that it has rigidly adhered to this policy throughout. "No inclusion of contributions we have been informed of is made in our published figures until the cash or the cheque is seen in the office," Mr. Keyes remarked.

Drives Unfinished.

A case in point is the employees canvass, whose actual standing could probably be increased by $3,000 because of the most recent donations, donations which are not yet officially reported to the finance office though their existence rests on more than hearsay or guesswork. This canvass, Mr. Keyes reported, "has not been what we expected; it has faltered during the past week; but it is not yet complete and as a matter of fact very few firms have finished their individual plant drives.

With regard to the manufacturers' canvass, now 94 per cent. of its $100,000 goal, the finance chairman indicated that six concerns remained to be heard from this week.

To increase the results of the special names and retail section, recanvassing is being undertaken, which it is hoped will produce a substantial addition to the contributions already received.

Special Effort.

"The general canvass," Mr. Keyes said, "has not covered its territory and it is in some measure due to this fact that the drive was continued into the present week. When it takes three weeks to put over a Victory Loan with the help of paid salesmen, I think it will be realized that the Community Centre campaign, whose canvassers operate in thier spare time on a voluntary basis, cannot hope to outdo a bond-selling drive."

He asked that canvassers make a special effort to have rounds in their respective divisions competed and every family contacted by Wednesday or Thursday at the latest.

Meanwhile it was said that the teams of which Bill Kinlin, Larry McCarthy and Walter Wright are team captains are at the top in collecting contributions for the Community Centre. Working with Mr. Kinlin are Bob McClellan and George Harran; with Mr. Wright, Eric Howard; and with Mr. McCarthy, Mrs. George Gillespie, Keith Mein and Frank Rothschild.

117 Boys Enrolled For Y.M.C.A. Work

The largest crowd of boys ever to appear for enrolment for the season at the Y. M. C. A. was registered Saturday morning when 117 became members of the Association. Forty membership teams had been organized the previous week and some of the workers took things seriously. The team led by Tom McEwen brought in the largest number of boys on Saturday.

Membership activities are now getting into full swing and it looks like a big year for the "Y" Boys Department. Don Duncan will be glad to meet any boys who are thinking of joining the association. Boys who cannot swim will be taken care of in a special class under the direction of Gordon Minty.

Pte. L. Basciano Badly Injured

Pte. Leonard Denis Bascino, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. Basciano, 317 Park Hill Road, has been seriously injured in an accident in Italy, according to word received by his parents. The soldier suffered injuries to his head and to his lower spine on September 23. He had been engaged in taking messages to the front.

An employee of Fitzgerald and Geraghty Markets before enlisting in the Canadian Active Army, Pte. Basciano was with the Prince of Wales Rangers, later transferring to the Loyal Edmonton Regiment, with which he was serving in Italy. He has been overseas for more than two years.

Another son of Mr. and Mrs. Basciano, Philip, is also in the Army, now stationed at Brantford.

and British and always held up the British judicial methods as the pattern for freedom.

From the outset of his career, which began with the practice of law in Toronto, he was known as a militant and often dogmatic leader in causes which he launched or adopted. Heading a youthful group of graduates of the University of Toronto, he battled for reform and saw the fulfillment of his prediction that the University would some day embody colleges of every sect and school of learning.

In paying tribute, Prime Minister King said he will be remembered "as one who throughout a long, vigorous and active life was at all times a friend of the oppressed, a lover of liberty, a champion of freedom, one who held high the standards of right and truth and justice."

Chief Justice T. Rinfret of the Supreme Court of Canada, said Sir William's death "will be felt as a personal blow by all Canadians."

President H. J. Cody of the University of Toronto said Canada had lost a great figure in the State, Judiciary and Educational worlds. Chief Justice R. S. Robertson of Ontario said that "while he had passed his 100th year, it is still somewhat of a shock to learn that such a useful citizen has left us."

Most Rev. J. C. McGuigan, Roman Catholic Archbishop of Toronto, said Sir William "was a model of the public spirited citizen and gave unstintingly of his service to every cause for the good of the community."

Premier Drew of Ontario said the famed jurist's death brings to an end "one of the most useful lives in Canadian history." He had been an outstanding example to coming generations of the real meaning of public service.

One Survivor

Sir William's death leaves Sir Allan Aylesworth, 89, of Toronto, the only surviving member of Sir Wilfrid's cabinets. Sir Allan said last night that Sir William's "unequalled success as Postmaster General and as Canada's first Minister of Labor gave him a parliamentary and administrative reputation in Canada never excelled and seldom rivalled anywhere."

Sir William was born in the village of Bondhead, Sincoe County, Ont., son of Thomas Homan Mulock, a young Irish physician and Mary Cawthre, daughter of English settlers. He attended school in Newmarket and in September, 1859, entered University of Toronto as a member of the first class to study in the present University College building.

Graduating in 1863, he was called to the bar in 1867.

In 1881 he became vice-chancellor of the University of Toronto, holding the office until 1900, when he retired owing to pressure of work with the Federal government.

He was elected to the Dominion Parliament in 1882 and re-elected later until his retirement in 1905. During his 14 years, he revamped the Post Office Department and was responsible for the adoption of penny postage. Imperial cable and organized the Department of Labor. He hired as his first assistant in the Labor Department, the present Prime Minister.

Sir William was knighted in 1902 for his service to Canada and attended the Coronation later of King Edward VII.

Army Musicians Visit Peterboro

Band and Songster week-end at the Salvation Army Temple, arranged by Bandmaster R. G. Routly and Songster Leader A. B. Smith, brought to Peterborough a group of leading Salvation Army musicians and composers. Lt.-Colonel James Merritt, Men's Social Service and Property Secretary was the guest speaker and band leader Percy Merritt, the guest soloist during the week-end. At the Saturday night musical festival, presided over by Lt.-Col. Merritt, a quarett of brillant pianists was heard in two numbrs, the personnel of the party being Mrs. Major Watt of Toronto, Mrs. S. Richardson of this city; Adjutant Cyril Everitt and Bandsman S. De'Ath of Toronto. "William Tell" overture and "Under Two Flags" were the numbers given in a manner which delighted the large audience. Mr. Percy Merritt was heard in a fine euphonium solo, "Intermezzo from Cavalleria Rusticana." The local xylophone party rendered "The Gondeliers," very deftly and sweetly. "The Lord's Prayer," was sung with warmth of expression by Mrs. Mendell Braund whilst Lt.-Col. Merritt and his brother played a euphonium and concertina duet that was greatly appreciated. The band gave two fine items. "Dovercourt Citadel" march, composed by band leader P. Merritt and "Rays of Sunshine." The songsters were heard to advantage in "Lead, Kindly Light" and "By Babylon's Wave". Major R. Watt of Toronto prayed and Major J. Wood introduced the chairman. Proceeds of this event were devoted to Christmas boxes for Temple servicemen and women.

Lt.-Col. Merritt, accompanied by the band, visited the County Jail on Sunday morning and led a service; this was followed by a Holiness meeting in the Temple, in which meeting Captain Doris Routly of Toronto took part. The aged folks of Anson House were delighted with a visit from the band in the afternoon. Another musical program was presented in the Temple at 3.00 p.m. "Repentance and Restoration" was the theme of the speaker's challenging address at night.

Mr. Harry Illingworth was commended for disposing of 280 tickets for the Saturday night event.

Answer: A strict eye is kept on compassionate leaves, the minister said. He had had men ask him why men whose wives and families are behaving should not go home as well as men who get compassionate leave because of domestic trouble. He would take the problem of home leave for the five-year veterans into further consideration but promised nothing.

4. The peacetime army: Answer: A pronouncement will be made in due course.

Beer Quota

5. Beer: He did not know the men were not getting their half-bottle per week, as arranged. The fact that the beer was sometimes British was due to pooling. He would investigate.

6. Why isn't the Canadian Corps equipped entirely with Canadian vehicles? Why are the Canadians sometimes using second-hand British trucks while British units are using new Canadian trucks?

Answer: Like beer, vehicles are pooled. There was a policy of the direct supply of Canadian vehicles to the Canadian Corps but it was always subject to "operational requirements."

7. Cigarets. Answer: Delivery in Italy will be speeded up by the use of vehicles instead of trains.

8. Mail: The system was not perfect and he would try to get more planes.

(Generally speaking, the mail situation in Italy had been good until it slipped slightly in the last few months. Air mail letters average about two weeks from Canada to the front. Parcels are slow in reaching here, but it has been pointed out that thousands go astray because of bad packing and poor or inaccurate addressing.)

To questions of rehabilitation, gratuities and loans the Minister gave the answers which have already been made known by Ottawa.

spear the enemy before he could rally from the shock and surprise.

First news of the attack came from front line correspodents. Late this afternoon Gen. Eisenhower's headquarters had given no word as to the exact location of the attack. But it cautioned correspondents not to count too immediately on a break-through.

While lighter bombers got in close for pinpoint attacks on the enemy's line, heavy bombers 1,200 strong, sailed over the pounded rail choke-points at Hamm, Kassel, Cologne through which the Germans could hurry reinforcements and supplies.

Only Dunkerque of the channel ports remain in German hands. Already British heavies had turned their attention to the historic port.

The U.S. 3rd Army slugged it out with strong German counter-attacks near Jallaucourt, 16 miles northeast of Nancy in a four-hour fight.

Then, almost over the same ground, the 3rd thrust forward one to three miles through the forest of Gremecy to the high ground around Fresnes en Saunois, a mile beyond Jallaucourt, and to hills overlooking Coutures, only a mile from Chateau Salins.

The 7th Army, to the south, still was digging into stiff German resistance through rugged, wooded, sniper-infested foothills of the Vosges mountains. But the Germans had given up their sharp counter-attacks and were back hammering away with artillery.

The historic old town, nearest port in France to the English coast, was filled with wreckage as the Canadian forces entered it Saturday. Some soldiers said the destruction was comparable to that in Caen in Normandy.

The final bombardment which brought about the surrender of the garrison came after a 24-hour truce arranged to permit the evacuation of some 20,000 civilians.

During the assault on Calais which began Sept. 25, the Canadian forces broke through powerful perimeter positions and crossed flooded flats outside the town, using Mae West jackets in places to traverse the water-covered fields.

The final phases of the attack were delivered by Western Canada troops and one Eastern Canada unit.

Nazis Expect Hitler To Run

By EDWIN SHANKE
Associated Press Staff Writer

STOCKHOLM, Oct. 2—(AP). — "Everywhere Germans are speculating on plans of Hitler and others to escape when the country collapses," a trained observer said here after a five-year residence in Germany.

Nazi leaders, he says, virtually are in eclipse, and "enjoy less and less respect from the people."

This is the situation as he tells it:

Hitler once was placed on a pedestal as the "man who could make no mistake." Now, when Hitler's name is mentioned at all, it most likely will be critically.

Before the July 20 putsch, the "Heil Hitler" greeting already had virtually disappeared. Now efforts are being made to reinstate it.

Soldiers seldom die "for the Fuehrer," as death announcements state generally at the start of the war. In newspapers little is written about Hitler. He rarely speaks officially.

The man whom Hitler designated as his successor should he die — Reichsmarshal Hermann Goering, chairman of the Council for Defence of the Reich—has disappeared entirely from the public eye. He is in his own headquarters at Karinhall Hunting Lodge, outside Berlin. All powers he once had now have been ceded to the three men who always had been his opponents —Paul Joseph Goebbels, Reichsplenipotentiary for the total war effort; Henrich Himmler, commander-in-chief of the home army, and Albert Speer, Minister of Munitions and Minister of Building.

The question being generally asked is: "How do Nazi leaders intend to save themselves when the war ends in Allied victory?"

"According to common conception in Germany," my informant said, "they all will flee abroad. People claim Hitler has his own U-boat in Gdynia, and with others intends to flee to Japan.

"Others are supposed to have prepared for flight to South America and men such as Goering to Sweden. Everyone believes only a few will dare commit suicide."

Unreality Is Subject Of Lesson Sermon

"UNREALITY" was the subject of the Lesson Sermon which was read in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, throughout the world, including First Church of Christ Scientist in Peterborough on Sunday. The Golden Text was: "The things which are seen are temporal; but the things which are not seen are eternal." (II Corinthians 4:18) Selections from the Bible included the following from Isaiah 55:2: "Wherefore do ye spend money for that which is not bread? and your labour for that which satisfieth not? hearken diligently unto me, and eat ye that which is good, and let your soul delight itself in fatness." Correlative citations from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy, included the following: "God's thoughts are perfect and eternal, are substance and Life. Material and temporal thoughts are human, involving error, and since God, Spirit, is the only cause, they lack a divine cause. The temporal and material are not then creations of Spirit. They are but counterfeits of the spiritual and eternal."

Greek Minister Brings Message

The first of a series of Evangelistic Services to be held in the Centre Theatre under the auspices of the Christian Business Men's Committee drew a capacity audience to the Centre Theatre on Sunday evening. The speaker, Rev. K. Paul Yphantis of Boston, one-time missionary and resident of Greece gave a stirring address telling the way in which God had spared him time and again to carry on the work of preaching the Gospel.

During Greece occupation by Nazis hehad two officers quartered in his home. His description of conditions in Greece and the way in which he was able to escape to America was wonderful tesimony to the saving power of the Saviour in whom he trusted. The words of the Psalm: "The Lord is my Shepherd I shall not want was proven over and over again in his experiences.

The Dayspring Male Quartet of Hamilton sang several numbers and were outstanding in the quality and appeal of their selections. The audience numbered more than 600.

The committee hopes that every Sunday evening a capacity audience will greet the speakers and soloists who will bring the Gospel Message. Next Sunday, Rev. Archie McGilvray of Ottawa will speak and the speaker and his wife will be the special soloists for the evening.

Brydson Wins Pro Golf Title

SEIGNIORY CLUB, Que., Oct. 2 — (CP). — Gordon Brydson of Toronto captured the Canadian Professional Golfers' Association championship, shooting a one-over-par 72 to whip Gerry Proulx of Montreal in an 18-hole play-off.

The two, who tied at the end of 72 holes of medal play yesterday, battled until the 16th, when Brydson came up with an eagle three on the 270-yard par-five hole, and followed that with a par on the 17th and a birdie on the 18th. Proulx did the 16th in par, but skidded on the next hole and wound up with a 77.

MISS THERESA PRIMEAU

The funeral of Theresa Primeau, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Primeau, 709 Elcome Crescent, took place Friday morning from the family residence to St. Peter's Cathedral where requiem mass was celebrated by Rev. V. J. McFadden of Downeyville. Pall bearers were two brothers William and Harry Primeau, three cousins, Paul and Edward Primeau of this city and Jack Primeau of Cobourg, and Fred Dunn. Interment was at St. Peter's cemetery.

PTE. PATRICK H. McMURRAY

A funeral mass will be held in Immaculate Conception church on Tuesday at 8 o'clock for Pte. Patrick H. McMurray, 28, who was killed in action September 17, in France.

Son of Mrs. Helen McMurray and the late Patrick McMurray, the young soldier enlisted with the Glengarry Highlanders in 1940 and went overseas in 1941. Entering France on D-Day, he was wounded at the battle of Caen on July 8th. A few weeks later he rejoined his unit and on September 17 died from wounds received the same day.

He leaves to mourn his loss, besides his sorrowing mother, four sisters and three brothers, Mrs Frank Driscoll, Mrs. Clifford Smith, Mrs. John Driscoll, all of Peterborough, and Mrs. Jerome Preister, of Detroit, Mich.; Signaller John McMurray, serving in Italy, Pte. Fred, R.C.O.C., at Kingston, and Gnr. Joe McMurray, who has returned from overseas after 2½ years' service.

Officer Alleges Money Wasted

VANCOUVER, Oct. 2—(CP)—Air Vice-Marshal F. V. Heakes, air officer commanding, Western Air Command, issued a prepared statement commenting on remarks made by Flt.-Lt. Frank Frederickson in a service club address at New Westminster, B.C.

Flt.-Lt. Frederickson, who expects his discharge from the Royal Canadian Air Force shortly, criticized the student training program and charged millions of dollars were being poured into projects of questionable value in British Columbia.

Air Vice-Marshal Heakes said the R.C.A.N. was in "the fortunate position" of having too many students and when the training scheme was reduced, "it was necessary to find profitable employment, both for the sake of their own morale, and for the sake of the services."

"The question of building airdromes in British Columbia and the spending of millions of dollars thereon, without justification as alleged by Flt.-Lt. Frederickson, again was a matter of high policy associated with the undoubted threat of Japanese attack on the west coast," the Air Vice-Marshal asserted.

Farm Hand Fined On Drunken Charge

Gilbert Jones who is employed on a farm in Cavan appeared in police court this morning and pleaded guilty to a charge of having been drunk on Saturday. He also admitted a previous conviction for the same offence within the year.

"I think I can get the money to pay the fine," said the accused.

"It's going to be rather expensive," said Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C. His Worship then proceeded to fine Jones $50 and $2.50 costs or a month in jail.

Four youths will appear in police court tomorrow morning as the result of the unexpected arrival of Constable Leo Murpry Sunday afternoon at the scene of what the police say was an open air crap game. The door way of a Hunter street east establishment was the locale of the alleged dice activities.

Break-In Staged At Stedman's

Thieves who broke into the Stedman store at 182 Charlotte street over the week-end, got away with a quantity of men's and women's wearing apparel, shoes and sox, valued at around $80.

The break-in was discovered this morning when the store staff came to work.

The Stedman store is built over the Jackson Park creek and police say that the thieves gained entrance by walking up the bed of the creek and getting through a small basement window. Most of the goods taken was from the stock upstairs but some articles were also stolen from the basement.

The loot had evidently been taken out the same little window and carried down the creek for police recovered a stolen slipper some distance down the stream.

The stolen goods included blouses, brassieres, underwear, sweaters, shoes, slippers, bill folds and other articles.

Major F. Lander Has Leg Wound

PLAINVILLE, Oct. 2 (ENS) — Major Fred Lander, of the Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry Highlanders, was wounded at Boulogne shortly before Canadians entered Calais, according to word received Saturday night by his mother, Mrs William Lander.

His wife, who lives at Brighton, received a letter from him before the official notification came. Major Lander enlisted four years ago and has been overseas more than three years. His injuries were received September 19, and he has consistently been mentioned in stories about the advances of his unit.

Report Polio Patient Making Good Progress

COBOURG, Oct. 2. — (ENS). — Paula Freeman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Reuben Freeman, of Cobourg, who is convalescing after an attack of polio, is recovering and apparently will suffer no ill effects from the disease. She was taken to the Sick Children's Hospital several weeks ago with polio which had infected her throat muscles.

Arrangements Made For New Ration Books

COBOURG, Oct. 2. — (ENS). — The distribution of the new number five ration books will take place on October 19, 20 and 21. Cobourg factories may be requested to supervise the distribution of the books to their employees, who may also secure them for their families. The army of volunteer workers who look after the distribution of the ration books each time, will have their duties lightened by the fact that there will be no tea and coffee coupons to worry about with the accompanying age classification. As customary, the county court room will be used as the distribution depot, and the attendants will be there from nine in the morning until six in the evening on the first two days and from nine to nine on Saturday, the final day.

Grows Big Dahlias

COBOURG, Oct. 2. — (ENS). — Louis Roberts, University avenue, has some dahlias of which he can well be proud. Of various hues, they grow at the north-west side of the house and measure up to 13 inches across. Mr. Roberts has one group of dahlias which are nine feet from the ground to the topmost bloom and he takes great pride in his plants.

Post-War Project

COBOURG, Oct. 2. — (ENS). — Work has been completed on the Arlington lots, which will be used as an entrance to Victoria Park as a post-war project. A bulldozer was engaged for the work and within a few days the uneven ground of tree trunks, hummocks and bits of masonry was cleaned up and transformed into an attractive tract of land.

WITH THE CANADIANS ON THE ADRIATIC COAST, Oct. 2. — (CP Cable).—After spending more than a day in Vatican City, during which he visited the Pope, Cardinal Villeneuve, Archbishop of Quebec, now is touring forward zones on the Italian front.

A Bumper Crop

ST. THOMAS, Ont., Sept. 30—(CP).—So heavy is the apple crop in the orchards of W. H. Mills, Liberal member of parliament for Elgin, that efforts are being made to double the picking force in order that 2,000 instead of 1,000 bushels can be harvested daily. Haste is needed if the 75,000-bushel crop is to be gathered before the frost sets in.

Guelph Constable Sent To Port Hope

GUELPH, Oct. 2.—(Special).—Announcement was made today by Chief Constable Harold Nash that Police Constable George E. Purdy of the local department has been appointed a sergeant of the Port Hope police force. A native of Bobcaygeon, Constable Purdy is 34.

Since Chief Nash became head of the Guelph department seven years ago, several local officers have become senior officials in other departments. These include Chief Clarence Bagnall, Chatham; Chief Alex Halbert, Tillsonburg; Chief Elmer Simmen, Hespeler; Chief John Derry, Oakville.

Woman Hit By Car

COBOURG, Oct. 2. — (ENS). — Mrs. William Blakely, of Gore's Landing, was taken to Cobourg Hospital on Saturday after being struck by a car on King street. The car was driven by Bertram Terry, of Cobourg, and according to police, Mrs. Blakely stepped in front of the Terry car from behind a parked car and was knocked down. At the time of the accident she was proceeding north across the street to the car in which her husband was waiting. Chief W. J. Carey investigated. No charge has been laid. Mrs. Blakely spent a fair night on Saturday and was reported improved on Sunday. Her injuries were confined to her head.

Brother, Sister Take Titles In Havelock School Field Day

HAVELOCK, Oct. 2 — (ENS). — The annual field day for Havelock High School students was held in the town park with keen competition throughout.

In the junior girls' events Meryl McMullen, winner of the junior girl's championship last year again obtained highest points, but according to rules a student cannot hold the championship for two successive years. Therefore she had to relinquish the title to the runner up Stella Wilkinson. In the junior boys' events John Wilkinson won the championship, so that the junior championships were won by a brother and sister, son and daughter of Rev. J. W. Wilkinson.

In the senior group the boys' championship went to Carleton Longmuir, who won by two points over his runner up Cecil Revoy. The senior girls' championship went to Laurena Wight of Trent River.

The following are the junior boys' events:

BUILDS CITIES

FROM country cow-paths have grown Canada's paved city streets, in whose high buildings thousands of people earn their living. Whence came the change?

The answer is individual enterprise. Some man, with foresight and courage, recognizes the possibilities of an undeveloped region, invests savings, buys property, starts building. Others follow his lead . . . a city is in the making.

For over a hundred years this Bank has been associated with Canadian building and development projects . . . has afforded essential banking services . . . sharing in the growth of a self-reliant people, a prosperous Canada.

HOW TO CONSERVE FUEL

SIX IMPORTANT RULES

1. Avoid overheating. Do not wait until house is thoroughly warm before checking fire.
2. Keep the ash pit clean.
3. Replace warped or burned-out grates.
4. Keep a fair depth of ashes above the grates. The fire will hold better and will be more readily controlled.
5. Learn how to control the heat with the draft doors and dampers in flues.

(The foregoing points apply in firing your furnace with every type of coal.)

6. When burning soft coal, furnace should be cleaned every week; for hard coal, every two weeks.

HERE is a saving that every householder can easily make. With coal in the bin, don't dig in and pile the furnace high. Remember—every shovelful brings the day closer when more coal will have to be ordered. Save coal—it is essential war material. Stretch each ton to the limit—Save One Shovelful out of every Five—to release much-needed fuel for war purposes, and so back up the efforts of Canada's fighting sons.

Another Churchill Report

Mr. Churchill's reports on the progress of the war always make splendid reading, for he has a magnificent gift for presenting a clear picture of what is in progress, however complex it may be in detail; his great optimism and great common sense are tonics also, and make us forget the groans of the intransigent pessimists, and the vapourings of the irredeemably muddle-headed. Now that the fighting is going well for the Allies his war reports do not often contain surprises; they always show us the old facts in a clearer light, however.

• • •

The point in Mr. Churchill's' report of last week which was seized upon by the press and the public, was his warning that the war might last into 1945. The Prime Minister made it clear that the Germans might not surrender at all; it may be necessary for the Allies to declare the official war at an end, and spend some months in cleaning out pockets of resistance through the country. The Germans, we know, are so thoroughly frightened by the vengeful rages of the Nazis that they dare not express any criticism of their present régime; who, then, is to surrender? Only Hitler can give the order for that step, and he may refuse to do so in the hope of preserving the legend that Germany was not beaten, but was betrayed or tricked into submission. But whenever Germany is beaten, Britain will then throw all her resources, including her fleet, into the war against Japan; it will be surprising if Japan can resist long against an undistracted Anglo-American attack.

• • •

The battle of Normandy, said Mr. Churchill, was "the greatest and most decisive single battle of the entire war"; from a historian and a student of battles these words carry weight. Speaking of the engagement at Arnhem, in which the British First Airborne Division suffered heavily, he made the noble declaration that "'Not in vain" may be the pride of those who survived and the epitaph of those who fell". Dealing in figures, Mr. Churchill told the world that the Allies landed 250,000 men on the Norman coast within a day, and increased the number to a million within twenty days; they have now between two and three millions in Europe, in Italy and the Balkans as well as in France and the Low Countries. They have cost the Germans a million dead and wounded, for American casualties of 145,000 and British casualties of 90,000. Britain, he said, had precisely as many troops in the field as the U.S., and he did not forget his customary tribute to Russia. And, as no Churchill speech would be complete without a memorable insult to Hitler, Mr. Churchill characterized him this time as "a squalid caucus-boss and butcher".

• • •

The Allied military success has been great. Our political success has been less brilliant. Russia, Britain and the U.S.A. are all friends, but they are friends who do not discuss certain touchy matters. It is absolutely necessary that the end of the war in Europe should find them in close agreement on every vital point; if there is any wrangling to be done, let it be done at once. Mr. Churchill was most pressing in his insistence that there should be a conference before Christmas at which he and Marshal Stalin and President Roosevelt should discuss the points of disagreement among them, and arrive at the best possible solution. War has brought the Big Three very close together; peace must not find them ready to drift apart.

In the U.S.A. National Dog Week will shortly be celebrated. They're getting very broad-minded over there; first thing you know we shall hear of National Negro Week.

Foolish Publicity

Many people hold the belief that everybody connected with the movies is crazy, and although we think that this is an extreme view, we admit that there is much evidence to support it. Consider the case of that beautiful and able actress, Joan Fontaine, who is the wife of Brian Ahearne: apparently the couple are thinking of a divorce, and when Miss Fontaine was interviewed recently by a New York paper, this is what she said about it:

"Brian just sent me a lovely cable from Italy. He's the most perfect man. We decided with our infinitesimal minds that we liked each other too much to be married. There's got to be antagonism in marriage. Brian was never irritable and I couldn't be rude to him. Why, fighting's fascinating and divine! I call up my sister Olivia de Haviland to fight with her. But Brian denied me the right to fight. He was too sweet. We liked each other too much to fight".

What muck! We believe firmly in the necessity for divorce courts to deal with marriages which have failed conspicuously, but Hollywood's abuse of divorce is as nauseating as its abuse of marriage, patriotism and most of the other emotions and institutions of civilized life.

And is this sort of publicity supposed to make Joan Fontaine attractive to the public? It marks her as a ninny, and lowers her in public esteem.

Mob Rule In Canada

During the past week two stories of attempted rule by mobs in Canada have appeared in the press. In the town of Ingersoll a mob of two or three hundred men tried to force their way into the living-quarters of some Japanese employees of a local industry; fortunately the police dispersed the mob before it did any harm. And we read that in Vancouver bands of vigilantes have been visiting men who are suspected—mark that word, suspected—of molesting women, and have warned them to get out of town; the Vancouver police, who do not appear to know what is good for them, say that they appreciate this assistance, so long as there is no violence.

Since when was a Canadian ordered to leave his place of residence by a mob which suspected him of wrong-doing? We have an excellent police system in this country, and admirable courts, quite capable of handling all cases of this kind without the aid of self-righteous and self-appointed vigilance squads. And since when have enemy aliens in this country become fit playthings for mob sport and fascist terrorism?

Mobs are invariably composed of individual cowards and bullies; running in a herd they dare to do all the nasty things which they merely dream about when they are alone. We want no mob rule in Canada. Terrorist tactics stink of Fascism, and the seeds of Fascism are in the soil of Canada, as in every country, and need only favourable climate to spring up as ugly weeds. Strict adherence to our excellent system of justice will keep the weeds down.

A Memoir Of J. F. B. Livesay

We have received a small book commemorating the late J. F. B. Livesay, for many years General Manager of the Canadian Press, written by I. Norman Smith of the Ottawa Journal. Mr. Smith was for a time one of J.F.B.'s 'young men' and his book is written in a spirit of frank hero-worship. It is an excellent thing for a man to have a hero, if the hero is worthy of devotion, and a hero-worshipper notices all those details and nuances of character which make good biographical description. In this small compass of fifty pages Mr. Smith has put his own strong feeling for Livesay, and has achieved the very considerable feat of making Livesay live for readers who did not have the good fortune to know him. We met Mr. Livesay only once, and he was not at that time in his most characteristic vein; nevertheless this memoir of him brings back his voice and his look, and enlarges a chance meeting almost to the proportions of acquaintanceship. Like all men of marked individuality of purpose and forthright character, J. F. B. Livesay leaves something of his spirit in his pupils, and the affection with which they recall him ensures that his standard of workmanship will endure, and will be passed on by them to coming generations of Canadian journalists.

NOTE AND COMMENT

"Nazi Prisoners Spit In Guards' Faces" says a headline. Don't get that stuff in a cut, boys; rabies is hard to cure.

The British Army now allows its men to wear collars and ties with battle dress, and Canadian authorities are investigating the matter. But, says the Ottawa Journal, "it's no use; neither collar, tie nor anything else can smarten up the most hopelessly ugly garment ever devised by mankind". For, we may add, the most hopelessly ugly use.

Farming News and Views

By
HON. DUNCAN MARSHALL

I HAVE learned that Denmark has maintained its marketing organization for the marketing of bacon in Britain, practically intact, all through the war and will be prepared to put forth a real effort, once their country is relieved of German control, to again place Danish bacon on the British market. As Denmark has been our chief competitor in this product, it is well for us to anticipate what may happen.

We have as yet no positive information as to what has been done to the breeding pigs in Denmark, but it was pretty well understood that the Danish farmers were breeding large numbers of pigs throughout the war. They had only one customer for their bacon, which was Germany. Knowing, as we do, the unfair and dishonest way in which the Germans were treating all the countries from which they made any purchases, we have no doubt that the Danes got the worst of it at every turn, and we do know that the currency, with which Germany paid for anything that she didn't steal, was at a very heavy discount. We understand, however, that pig production was kept up as well as it could be with the scarcity of feeding stuff. It was in the interests of the greedy Germans to get all the food for troops out of Denmark that was possible, and the Danish farmers, I have no doubt, had faith that the armies of liberation would sooner or later triumph, and so when honour and decency again prevailed, they wanted to pursue their farming as they had done for generations.

In such circumstances, it would be natural for these Danes to save as far as possible a fair part of their breeding stock. They knew that they had attained a standard of excellence in this particular well worth preserving as upon it they had already established their high reputation. As soon as Denmark is liberated the multiplication of these breeding pigs will be carried on and with two litters per year this stock can be increased at a very rapid rate. It is, therefore, within the realm of possibility that a year and a half, or two years, could put Danish bacon back on the British market in substantial quantities.

These pigs have to be fed, of course, and pig feed will be a rather extravagant price for some time, so we need not fear any price competition, but bacon is something the Britisher won't quibble on price about if you can satisfy his taste. Canadian bacon has been kept to a fair condition considering increased production, but there was always some parties calling for heavier hogs here, thinking there was a little more money in the added fat which was a foolish mistake, and our bacon will now have to be definitely improved when we again have Danish competition.

DENMARK is a small country so it can be well organized for bacon production. The people raise the pigs and own the factories and so make their own grading and can be severe in their rules and conditions. The result is that it is practically compulsory in Denmark to produce pigs of the very first quality if they are to be made into bacon. They don't grow pigs for any pork trade but that of bacon and they turn them out practically to proper specifications. Canada is a large country, crossing the whole continent. Many of our farmers are new at the business and our difficulties are multiplied and it will take time, and a good deal of it to make the necessary progress. We have made very substantial progress and it must be kept in mind that if we are to hold our own in the only large bacon market in the world, that of Britain, against competition from Denmark, we will have to hold it on the merits of the product we have to offer the purchasers.

◇ ◇ ◇

ONE of the most remarkable things I have read of happened not long ago on an Alberta farm. The farmer was crossing a pasture when the bull, running with the herd, attacked him. It was the same old story of the "quiet harmless" bull attempting to kill his owner. This bull was in a fair way to do this when fortunately the farmer thought of his saddle horse pasturing in the same field. He called to the horse and, as was its custom, it came galloping. The bull never had a chance then. The horse sensed there was trouble and struck out at the enemy, as the farmer was a friend. The horse finished the duel by carrying his master off to safety. This saddle horse was a great favorite and pet of its master, but now is held in even higher esteem.

◇ ◇ ◇

THE showers of rain through the first twenty days of September would bring on fall wheat very nicely and the few days of high temperatures came at an aprpopriate time as both wheat and grass would benefit greatly. I visited Lindsay Fair and the work on farms seemed to be quite well in hand. The Lindsay Fall Show has kept well to the fore for a number of years and people came to it from considerable distances, some by motor car, some with quite good road horses, and not a few boys struck across the fields and walked. It has been a good time to sprout weed seeds if a cultivator or one way disc was run over the stubble to cover the seeds.

FALL ploughing is getting under way now and just how to treat a field is a matter which the condition of the soil must determine. It is a fair guide to say that if a field is to be ploughed deep, it should be done in the Fall. If your land is fairly stiff clay and is a trifle dry, it is well to have plenty of power on the draw bar and turn it up in lumps to give the frost a chance to pulverize and put it in a good condition of tilth for next Spring. If clay land is ploughed the same depth for a few years you are apt to get too firm a layer of soil under the sole plate of your plough, which is likely to become a water level far too near the surface. For good results, land needs to be surface packed, but it is different to get a smooth hard surface a few inches down. Stiff clay being finer in its particles than silt, will firm like a rock and should be broken up either by deep ploughing or with a sub-soiler following the plough. I saw a picture recently, in a Farm Journal of a strong duck foot cultivator with two sharp cultivating teeth, attached to the plough and following it closely, digging up about four inches of the solid bottom of clay which had formed at plough depth. In these days of tractor power, such a ploughing arrangement could be pulled, and the breaking of this tightly packed sub-soil would be broken, adding to the reservoir for holding soil moisture in the land. Such an implement should be used only in Fall ploughing or the cultivation of a Summer fallow.

If you have a good depth of top soil, it is a good plan to turn up some new land occasionally in Fall ploughing, and in some rich soils deep ploughing is done every Fall, resulting in the full use of quite a depth of land. There are several things to consider, such as burying long lived weed seeds deeply and destroying couch. I find a good many farmers who tell me they can bury couch grass to its utter destruction by smothering it completely.

MYSTERIOUS PAWS —By Goldberg

Men or Machines?

(By DR. NICHOLAS MURRAY BUTLER)

(An address at the opening of the 191st academic year of Columbus University, Sept. 27.)

THE widespread discussion of the educational process which is now going on throughout the nation gives evidence of much understanding and confused thinking. The truly educational process in any form is and must be one and the same in respect to its ideals and the guidance which it offers toward achieving them. It may, of course, be multiform in respect to its methods and to its content.

Liberal education takes precedence over every other form of instruction. It must always be dominant. Vocational training or instruction, which is something quite distinct from educaton, should be subordinate to them. If, on the other hand, liberal education be even crippled, much less abandoned, then no matter how successful vocational training may be, its products will not be men but machines.

No more reactionary influence has come into education than that which is oddly described as progressive education. This plan of action or rather non-action would, in its extreme form, first of all deprive the child of his intellectual, social and spiritual inheritance and put him back in the Garden of Eden to begin all over again the life of a civilized man. He must be asked to do nothing which he does not like to do. He must be taught nothing which he does not choose to learn. He must not be subject to discipline in good manners and sound morals.

In other words, he must be let alone to do what he likes in this amazing twentieth century world in order that what has been called his individuality may grow naturally and without guidance or discipline. It is just such fantastic doctrines as these which explain so much of that which goes on day by day and which both shocks and alarms truly civilized human beings.

We are unfortunately brought face to face almost daily with convincing evidence that skillful training in some specific vocation is often assumed to be an acceptable substitute for liberal education. Nothing could be farther from the fact. In the Middle Ages the constructive thought of Europe chose the Trivium—grammar, logic and rhetoric—and the Quadrivium—arithmetic, geometry, music and astronomy—to be the instruments with which to lay the foundations of liberal education as it was then understood. Centuries later these subjects were superseded by the study of languages and literatures, of history and of philosophy.

Afterwards the fundamental principles of natural science were added as well as the world's economic organization and life. It is not only, however, the subject matter of instruction which constitutes liberal education, it is still more the spirit in which this subject matter is presented and the lessons which are drawn from that interpretation. Of outstanding excellence in presenting the foundation of a liberal education are the three courses offered for years past by the Faculty of Columbia College—Contemporary Civilization, Humanities, and Science, the like of which should be offered in substance, at least, to every college student in the land.

The rise of democracy has greatly increased the problems of liberal education as well as the difficulty of making sure that its point of view and underlying principles are at least the basis and guidance of vocational training. No matter how skillful in his calling a vocationally trained human being may be, he will remain merely a machine unless there is added to his skill some conception of what civilization means, and of the part played in the world's intellectual life by the liberal arts and sciences as well as by the subject matter of his own occupation.

It is customary to focus all educational discussion upon the problems presented by the school, the college and the university, but this is not enough. Full account must also be taken of the influence of the circumstances under which life is carried on, of the conditions of gaining a livelihood and of the opportunities which are offered by personal growth and development in the social and economic order of our time. It remains perfectly true, as has often been said, that the liberally educated human being will look forward for understanding and guidance and not merely for purposes of imitation.

The power of science is producing day by day amazingly perfect machines which appear almost able to take the place of human intelligence. Of this the recently completed "automatic sequence-controlled calculator" is an outstanding example. It is of vital importance to remember that machines however excellent are only machines, and that the human being who copies them or endeavors to imitate them in any guise is preparing for a machine-made life. The man who is not a machine will read and reflect. He will reason and ask questions. He will turn to the world's wisdom in order to get help for the elevation of the plane on which his own life is to be passed.

If a practical plan can be worked out by which all training shall rest on liberal education even though limited, as a foundation, then we shall be opening the door toward progress in the world such as we have never yet been able to achieve. We must not turn from the education of men to the making of machines. Assurance must be given that our educational system will do all that is possible to make liberal education in some form, however limited in time, the foundation as well as the ideal of all training of any kind. This will reduce to a minimum the number of skilled human machines who have never risen to be really men. Our constant aim must be men and no machines.

The Cardinal's Constructive Words

(MONTREAL GAZETTE)

PREACHING in London's Westminster Cathedral, before a congregation of men from the three Canadian services, Cardinal Villeneuve spoke of the meaning of the war, of the heroic immensity of the part played by the British people, and of the honourable right-thinking that has brought Canadians into the struggle.

Speaking as a man whose heart had been stirred by what he had just seen, he pointed to the torn and shattered streets of London as evidence, objectively and silently eloquent, of what Britons had faced and endured. "One has to see with one's own eyes to believe and to measure," he said, "the dreadful effects of the war and also to appreciate the moral fortitude of incomparable endurance which the English people have displayed."

And he made plain his conviction that something far deeper than the instinct for self-survival has motivated and justified so costly a struggle. The British people, he declared, have been fighting not only for their lives and for their country's freedom, but are fighting "alongside other nations to save civilization as well as a Christian world order." To England he paid this tribute: "Hail to England for her perseverance in combat soon to be crowned, we pray, with victory."

Then speaking more directly to the uniformed Canadians in the Cathedral, he connected their services with the same wide cause for which the people of Britain have given so much. He stressed that the people of Britain and of Canada fight the one fight, for the one transcendent cause. By their contribution to this fight, the servicemen of Canada have brought credit to their country, made themselves a bulwark of its freedom, and have shown themselves "worthy of past history of Canada, our brave young nation."

With such words Cardinal Villeneuve has performed and can perform a unique function. As Cardinal of Quebec, he has brought from this country to London a testimony of admiration and a message of encouragement. So when he returns to Canada, with the authority of an eyewitness added to that of his high office, he may strengthen the people of Canada in this same consciousness of firm comradeship in a struggle of incomparable significance.

A Bible Message

Then Jesus went thence, and departed into the coasts of Tyre and Sidon. And behold, a woman of Canaan came out of the same coasts, and cried unto him, saying, Have mercy on me, O Lord, thou son of David; my daughter is grievously vexed with a devil. But he answered her not a word ....

Then came she and worshipped him, saying, Lord, help me. But he answered and said, It is not meet to take the children's bread, and to cast it to dogs. And she said, Truth, Lord: yet the dogs eat of the crumbs which fall from their masters' table.

Then Jesus answered and said unto her, O woman, great is thy faith: be it unto thee even as thou wilt. And her daughter was made whole from the very hour.

And Jesus departed from thence and came nigh unto the sea of Galilee; and went up into a mountain, and sat down there. And great multitudes came unto him, having with them those that were lame, blind, dumb, maimed, and many others, and cast them down at Jesus' feet; and he healed them: insomuch that the multitude wondered, when they saw the dumb to speak, the maimed to be whole, the lame to walk, and the blind to see: and they glorified the God of Israel. (Matt. 15: 21-[illegible], 25-31.)

Spoke Too Soon

I am sorry to say that the siege of southern England is not yet completely finished. These flying bombs are something like the last lingering guest at a party who, when he has gone, comes back for his hat and later on for his umbrella.

There is something grotesque about the mighty, military power of Germany contriving by some desperate means to send a robot bomb roaring toward southern England, and then not to be able to repeat the experiment for several hours.

Duncan Sandys, the Prime Minister's son-in-law and Minister in charge of Anti-Robot Defences, did a magnificent job, but made the mistake of announcing that the Battle of London was over and done with. Evacuees who had left the metropolis began to return in such numbers that trains are dangerously congested and railway platforms littered with abandoned perambulators, bicycles and parcels.

So now, unfortunate Duncan Sandys is being denounced as heartily as he was praised. —Adelphi, from London in the Financial Post.

Tax on Interest

The new Saskatchewan Government appears to be seeking a safer position on the subject of taxation of interest payments "exported" from the province. Among the more moderate elements of the party there has all along been considerable questioning of both the wisdom and the constitutional possibility of this tax; Premier Douglas has now admitted that the tax will not be imposed if a reasonable adjustment of governmental burdens can be arrived at in the projected Dominion-provincial conference.

Why the unfortunate recipients of interest who happen to live outside of Saskatchewan should be penalized because of a possible unreasonableness on the part of other governments (which may not even be the governments under which they live) is not very clear. But what is fairly clear is that Mr. Douglas and his advisers intend to have an "out" ready prepared for them on this taxation-of-interest question, and that their chief concern is that they should be able to assure their more extreme followers that they have won a great victory over the "have" provinces in favour of the "have not" provinces by taking a firm stand on this matter and telling the money-lenders to go to the devil.

Lenders outside of the province have naturally been very anxious to get their money away from Saskatchewan as soon as possible and thus avoid any danger of being subjected to a most annoying and unjust sort of double taxation. There are stories of mortgages being settled for ninety and even eighty-five per cent of their face value; and even the province's own acquisition of the Regina office building of an eastern finance company at a very low valuation has been ascribed to fear of the projected tax—or by the more ardent Socialists to a financial conspiracy of the moneyed interests to terrorize Saskatchewan into abandoning the tax.

One point which appears to have been completely overlooked is that the tax can only be effective (as against the outside creditors) on obligations existing at the moment when it is imposed; once it is in force nothing can prevent the lender from adding the amount of the tax to the interest rate which he asks from the borrower, unless the borrower can get all the loans that he requires from sources within the province.—Toronto Saturday Night.

Service Hostel Opened On Saturday

Another big step has been taken towards the entertainment and comfort of service men and women off duty, in the opening of the new Red Shield Recreation Centre, on Charlotte street, in the former Robinson block, at 3 o'clock Saturday afternoon. A vital part of every city's war effort, the new recreation hall will help largely to keep up the morale among not only Peterborough fighting men, but of those far from home and the pleasures of home life. A place has been provided in this worthy centre for soldiers to visit at any time, and where a warm welcome will be always waiting.

After a brief opening ceremony, Col. William Dray, secretary of the World Wide Salvation Army Canadian War Services, presented the key to the centre to Lt.-Col. James Turnbull, officer commanding the Training Centre. The key, gaily beribboned with red, white and blue, was presented on a small cushion of corresponding hues, and after thanking Col. Dray, Lt.-Col. Turnbull turned the key in the lock and handed it over to Adjutant Velma Graham, in charge of the recreation centre.

In accepting the key, Adjutant Graham told the audience that it is the sincere desire of the Recreation Centre workers to render a real service to the men of the armed forces, that will both cheer and comfort them.

"To the men who visit Peterborough and to the men in Peterborough, whether they be in the navy, army or air forces, a warm welcome is extended at all times to them," she said. "I now declare the Recreation Centre to be open."

Greetings from the citizens of Peterborough were brought to the services by Mayor James Hamilton. His Worship told the gathering the people of Peterborough will be happy and proud of this latest accomplishment for the aid of our soldiers. And, the mayor advised, the new centre will be a great effort to entertain and help soldiers from far away places, that find themselves in need of somewhere to go.

Mayor Speaks.

"On behalf the citizens of Peterborugh, I would like to thank the Salvation Army for this worthy work here, and also thank them not only for the things they have done in the past, but for everything that will be done in the future," he said.

Under the direction of Gerald Routly, the Peterborough Temple Silver Band played a stirring arrangement of the World War 1 favorite march, "Under Two Flags."

Col. G. Walter Peacock, introduced by Supervisor E. "Ernie" Irwin of the Training Centre, was the master of ceremonies for the afternoon services. Col. Peacock is the Chief Secretary of the Salvation Army for Canada, Bermuda, Newfoundland and Alaska. After the introduction, he led the crowd in the singing of "Onward Christian Soldiers."

Scheduued to give the dedicatory prayer, Col. R. Spooner, Divisional Commander, was unable to attend because of unexpected circumstances, and Capt. W. I. D. Smith, Padre of the Training Centre, offered the prayer. Earlier in the services, a prayer was offered by Harold Wellman, Inspector of Salvation War Services, (Canada).

Mrs. Col. W. Dray read briefly from the scriptures, choosing the 46th Psalm. Col. Dray, in a short address to the service club opening gathering, thanked all the volunteer workers who had helped so much to complete the work of the centre. To the city and citizens of Peterborough, he also expressed his heartfelt thanks, for the "fine co-operation" received in every undertakng. Col. Dray said the new centre could be under no more competent direction than that of Adjutant Graham. In his address of thankfulness for co-operation and help, Lt. Turnbull, Supervisor Irwin, Capt. Smith and many others were mentioned.

An open house was declared after the building had been formally opened, and the Mayor was ushered in as the first guest. After a few minutes, the recreation room was filled with visitors and servicemen alike, and tea and refreshments were served. At the register book, Phyllis Marshall, one of the centre workers, looked after hundreds of guests who were requested to sign the visitors' record book.

Adjutant Graham announced that Sunday afternoon and evening would be "open house," and invited everyone to "drop around" and look at the attractively-designed building that would help chase many weary hours for lonely servicemen. The Silver Band took its place on the stage inside, and Miss Marie Kearns sang "Bless This House."

Decorated in cream and green, with a white ceiling, the interior of the new place of recreation for the services is delightfully cool and pleasing to the eyes. Flags of the Empire nation, and flowers augment the decorations, and a balcony is furnished with tables and chairs.

The building was formerly a wine store but will be remembered by older people as the site of the Empire Theatre.

MAIL IT EARLY—"Wrap it well and mail it early," is the advice of the Fleet Mail Office to Canadians sending Christmas parcels to men and women serving in the Royal Canadian Navy at home stations, at sea or abroad. Last year more than half a million Christmas parcels were handled. One of the chief headaches is poorly wrapped parcels which collapse before they reach their destination. Here Donald Giles, 15-year-old Sea Cadet, employed as a messenger at the Fleet Mail Office in Halifax, checks out a bundle of re-wrapped parcels with Wren Lillian Paxton, of Port Arthur. The Fleet Mail Office advises the use of tough wrapping paper and strong string and warns against mailing anything packed in glass, such as peanut butter or preserves.

20,000 Attend Catholic Prayer Service

TORONTO, Oct. 2. — More than 20,000 people filled Maple Leaf Stadium yesterday afternoon to attend a Holy Hour service of thanksgiving for Allied victories and intercession for the safety and speedy homecoming of men and women in the armed forces. The service was under the auspices of the Holy Name Society.

At the south end of the stadium a great outdoor altar of exposition was erected, surmounted by flags and a towering dome. Here Most Rev. John R. MacDonald, Bishop of Peterborough, was celebrant at the benediction, assisted by Rev. Dr. L. Barnett as deacon and Rev. R. Dobell as subdeacon. Several hundred clergy and seminarians proceeded to the altar through an "aisle of honor" provided by members of the armed services, while uniformed members of the Fourth Degree, Knights of Columbus, acted as guard of honor for Bishop MacDonald.

Bishop's Admonition

"A Christian life, actively lived, is the only hope of a world long since loosed from its moorings and drifting from one crisis to another, because it ignores the true sources of life and peace and progress," said Bishop MacDonald in his address. "The world yearns," he said, "for a new social order based on justice and fellowship. Having paid the heavy price exacted by a social order based on selfishness, all mankind would welcome a new order of human society in which the strong would help the weak, in which those who have would share with the less fortunate, and would use their strength and abundance to relieve and help their neighbor in his needs. This would be a social order based on the two great commandments of the Christian law, love of God and love of neighbor. This is your program and mine.

"The times are grave. The future hurries toward us laden with tremendous problems, but offering also inspiring possibilities. Let us go to meet the future 'having our loins girt about with truth and having on the breastplate of justice and our feet shod with the preparation of the gospel of peace, in all things taking the shield of faith and the helmet of salvation and the sword of the spirit which is the word of God'."

New Minister Arriving

Announcement of change in Spirits Ration

EFFECTIVE OCTOBER 2nd, 1944

COMMENCING October 2nd, 1944, and until further notice, every individual permit holder will be permitted to purchase monthly one bottle of spirits (25 or 26 ounces) or two half bottles as available.

As a result of the restrictions imposed by the Dominion Government under the Wartime Alcoholic Beverages Order P.C.11374, it was necessary to reduce the monthly ration of spirits to 13 ounces to assure adequate supplies of spirits until the end of the year. In increasing the ration it should be explained to the public that unless the restrictions imposed by the Dominion Government are removed a similar restriction will be necessary again next year, although the Board, except for the Dominion Restriction, would be able to make available for distribution stocks of spirits in excess of the present ration.

In any event, however, the ration becoming effective on October 2nd can be maintained throughout the winter months, so it is hoped that the public will co-operate by not buying in excess of actual requirements.

TORONTO, Oct. 2 — (CP). — They're warming up the sport pages these brisk autumn days with talk about —you guessed it—rules. A London Free Press sportscribe, who writes under the nom de plume Beejay, roasts the CRU for showing lack of broad-mindedness.

Monsieur Beejay goes so far as to suggest his fair city take the initiative and form a "new union with a new code." Claiming nothing is as thrilling as the runbacks of punts and kick-offs of the American brand of football, he lauds the Montreal Interscholastic Athletic Union for their introduction of U.S. rules.

Of the new High School rules in Montreal, Dink (Montreal Gazette) Carroll comments that most of the foot has been taken out of football. The teams are not punting for they found that under the new code they can make sustained downfield marches. Anyway, says Dink, our High Schools are now playing the American game......where do they go from here?

Those were the days:

A statement of expenses for an out-of-town game played by the Waterloo Senior Hockey Club back in 1900 was unearthed a few days ago. It showed that a five-dollar bill took care of the needs of eight players on the squad. That includes staying overnight, with a little party thrown in.

Eight suppers totalled just two dollars and beds for the night came to $1.25 with the bill for breakfast amounting to the same. The last item on the statement indicated the boys had a little pick-me-up after the game. It's listed as "one flask whisky," presumably for internal use, and the cost was — 50 cents.

Then again, at that price it was probably cheaper than liniment and might have been used to rub on aches and bruises.

Travelling costs? The team went to Preston by horse and sleigh, for Henry Ford was still a-dreamin' of his horseless carriage, and the cost was $4.25. Those were the days.

Things and such:

The dizzy pace at which Detroit Tigers are travelling seems to be infectious, for Tiger coach Aloysius J. (Wish) Egan was fined for speeding the other day....With Bill Durnan unavailable to Canadiens, the gossip-shoppers are whispering the name of little Jerry McNeil, Montreal's Senior Royals goalie last season. And a snappy puckstopper the lad is....An Edmonton journal scribe is certain that University of Alberta Professor W. G. Hardy, who is prexy of the International Ice Hockey Association, will one day be N.H.L. boss....Johnny Mitchell will be around again this winter with enticing offers to young Canadian pucksters, but not for Providence of the A.H.L. Johnny's with Pittsburg Hornets now....History repeats for Hamilton Wildcats. In the O.R.F.U. opener a week ago Cats trounced Toronto Indians 35-0, the identical score they won by over the same club in the 1943 opener. The Felines think the omen is good'

Westclox Loses Ontario Title To Stratford In Close Game

STRATFORD, Oct. 2 — Spotting Peterborough Westclox five runs, gained in the first and third innings Stratford Kroehlers came from behind here Saturday afternoon in the second game of the finals in the Provincial Women's Softball Union series to win the contest 6 to 5 and the championship for the second consecutive year. Stratford won the first game at Peterborough a week ago 3-2.

It was as thrilling a final series as could have been, one run being the difference between the two teams in each game. Though Stratford won the championship, the Westclox girls are as gallant a band of girl softball players as ever seen on a Stratford diamond.

Outstanding player in the game was Isobelle Bullock, Westclox hurler, who chalked up 10 strikeouts and who really deserved a much better fate than to lose out in the ninth innings, largely due to two bases on balls she gave the first two batters in that inning. Aggie Anderson, Beryl Dobbin and Nona Whetung also turned in fine performances for the visitors.

A Good Lead

Things looked bad for Kroehlers in the first inning. Aggie Anderson, lead-off batter for Westclox, drew a base on balls. This was followed by an error at shorstop which found Viola McLean safe at first and Aggie Anderson pulled up at second. Nona Whetung came through with a single filling the bases. Marjorie Hawthorne was out on a foul fly. Isobelle Bullock flied out to right field but Aggie Anderson and Viola McLean scored on the play, Nona Whetung going to second. Beryl Dobbin single, driving the base runner to third, and on first pitch to Barbara Rome, Beryl Dobbin was thrown out by Eileen Heinbuch to Evelyn Easson in an attempted steal to second base.

Stratford did not respond in their part of the first and both teams went scoreless in the second, but in the third Westclox pushed over three more, to go five up and make things look black for the locals.

Stratford came through with one run in the third and added two each in the sixth and seventh, to tie the score. There was no more scoring until Stratford's half of the ninth when Gladys Heinbuch crossed the plate with the all important championship run.

Aggie Anderson, Westclox, was the leading hitter of the game, with three out of four times at bat, one a triple. Nona Whetung had three hits in five trips to the plate.

EXPECT WATSON TO STOP DAVIS

Peterborough wrestling fans are looking forward to tomorrow night's big card at Brock St. Arena, hoping to see the fast moving and clever Billy Watson outsmart and outwrestle the Texas Tornado, Karl Krippler Davis. The big bad man from south of the border does not share their ideas. "All that fancy stuff is all right in its way," Davis growls. 'But it takes a lot of it to equal a good punch to the jaw. I'll make it too hot for the Whipper to show any of those spectacular holds of his." As usual Watson is not saying anything. When told of the Davis' threats he merely smiled and let it go at that. There will be two other good bouts on the card.

Quinte Team Enters Ontario Finals

Don Boyle, ace young Belleville box artist pitched and batted his Columbian Squires team to a 6 to 3 overtime victory over Toronto Carlton Parks at Riverside Park, Saturday afternoon. The win gave the Quinte youngsters the series two games to one and qualified them to play Windsor in the Ontario finals.

Boyle, a smooth-working pitcher, with a world of stuff including a very effective change of pace held the Toronto kids to six hits and three runs that were tainted. In addition he drove in the tying run in the Belleville rally in the seventh and also the winning counter in the tenth after the batter ahead of him had been purposely passed.

Walter Yurkiewich, started by the Carlton Park team in place of Joe Chinkaluk who had pitched the first two games was a puzzle to the Belleville youngsters in the early stages and when his team mates picked up three rather soft runs in the first five innings it looked as if the Toronto pitching choice was sound.

However, Yurkiewich weakened in the eighth after blanking Belleville up to that stage and a walk and three hits, with a couple of wide throws chased in three runs and tied up the ball game.

In spite of that explosion Yurkiewich was left in there, and although he got by the ninth Belleville staged another rally in the tenth to score three times and win 6 to 3.

Smart Youngsters.

Fans were impressed by the work of the pitchers and the smart fielding of some of the youngsters. Particularly impressive defensively was Culkin, the red-headed Belleville centre fielder who covered acres of ground in the garden to make five smart catches. Best fielding play of the day, however, was a sparkling grab by Walker, the Toronto second baseman who ran far out along the right field foul line to take a popper while dashing at full speed.

Carlton Park took the lead in the first inning. McBride walked. Walker flied to right but Pogorelski rolled to Rollins and McBride was safe at second on the second-sacker's wide throw. The error was costly for Chinkaluk immediately doubled to left to score Rollins.

R. Stramba rolled out, Yurkieswich drew a walk but Tenesi flied to Culkin in centre.

The Toronto youngsters got another soft one in the fourth. Tenesi opened with a single to centre and advanced on a passed ball. J. Stramba flied to Culkin and Chomyshn fanned. McBride drew his second walk of the game. Walker flied to right but Donovan dropped the ball, Tenesi scoring on the break.

Once again in the fifth Carlton Park got a break. Chankaluk opened with a double to left, his second of the game. R. Stramba sacrificed him to third and he scored when the Belleville shortstop and left fielder got their signals crossed, letting Yurkiewich's easy fly drop untouched for a double. Boyle put on the breaks then, got the side out with no more scoring and held the Toronto kids to one blow, a single by R. Stramba, for the rest of the game.

Belleville wasted a triple by Rollins with two out in the first and singles by Bunton and Culkin in the second. For the next five innings, Yurkiewich had them under control but they finally broke loose in the eighth to sew up the game.

Tie Up On Game.

Rollins opened with a walk and stole second, Moher flied to J. Stramba in right. Fitzgerald singled to centre, Rollins going to third. Fitzpatrick stole second and scored with Rollins when Bunton doubled to right. The batter took third on a wide throw home. Boyle singled to centre, scoring Bunton but was out trying to go to third on a bad throw to the plate. Culkin rolled out.

The Belleville crew came through like champions in the tenth. With one out Moher singled to centre. Fitzpatrick flied to centre for the second out. Bunton was purposely walked to get Boyle, Yurkiewich rolling four balls along the ground to pass the batter. The strategy miscued, for Boyle slapped a single to left, scoring Moher and when Chomyshn threw high to third Bunton also scored. Culkin tripled to centre, scoring Boyle. Adams flied to centre.

Toronto youngsters made a gesture in their half of the tenth when J. Stramba walked and Chomyshn was safe on Moher's fumble. This came with one out and Boyle took care of the situation by striking out McBride and getting Walker on a bunt.

SPORTS-Day by Day

By FRED D. CRAIG

It seems to be a case of always the bridesmaid and never the bride so far as the Westclox team is concerned. For the third year in succession the Big Bens have bowed out of the picture in the final round. The fortunes of war have thrown them into competition with Western Ontario teams in seven games in the last three seasons and the Peterborough girls are still looking for their first victory. In 1941 they were bumped off by Preston Rivulettes who won here, held Westclox to a tie in the second game at Preston in 11 innings and then won the replay of that draw. Last year Stratford Kroehlers won in two straight games, 3 to 1 and 5 to 3 and this season have repeated their victory by winning 3 to 2 here and 6 to 5 in the Saturday afternoon game at Stratford. Two one-run defeats after a series of close games in other seasons was as close as the Westclox could get without actually winning, and this year as last a break or two might have meant the difference between victory and defeat. The Big Bens have worthily represented their home city, they have played good ball and made a fine impression wherever they have played and while once more they have been nosed out they have earned a hand from local fans for a gallant fight that might quite easily have succeeded and for a lot of good entertainment during the summer months.

Another Peterborough ball team passed off the scene over the week-end when the Military Training Centre club after making a gallant bid for the championship of Military District No. 3 and eliminating two strong soldier teams were beaten in two straight games by Ottawa Canadian Postal Corps team. That was the final round for the title. The team from the nation's capital looked a bit stronger than the local crew but at that the Military Training Cenre were unlucky in not at least forcing the series into three games. They had to be very bad in the later stages of Saturday's game to lose out for more than half way home they were riding out in front with a 7 to 1 lead. However the Peterborough Soldiers' defence fell apart and the battling Postal Corps tied up the game in the ninth and finally won it 8 to 7 with a run in the 12th. Sunday's game saw Ottawa go ahead with a 6-run rally in the second and they were never in much danger of be overhauled after that. The Postal Corps team showed a good pitcher in Harry Bradshaw and a smart infield, sparked by first baseman Doug McKenzie, a London boy who caught the eye of the fans by his smooth work around the initial sack. Shortstop Latham was another defensive star. The Peterborough team has had a good season and its attempt to bring a military championship here was a real effort because they had to knock off two good clubs to get to the finals.

The Peterborough junior football club have arranged an exhibition game for Thanksgiving Day, a week from today, that should bring out a real crowd of rugby enthusiasts. The Petes have booked the strong Toronto Westside juniors for a battle here on Thanksgiving afternoon with the kickoff at 2 o'clock. The Toronto outfit has been operating a junior club for a number of seasons and will have a strong and well-coached team of youngsters but the Peterborough kids who have been practicing faithfully and are rounding into good shape hope to make a real showing against the Queen City outfit. The announcement of a rugby game for the holiday will be good news to a lot of fans who will be on hand to encourage the youngsters. If senior rugby is to come back in Peterborough—and everybody is hoping that it will—it will be necessary to build up the material in the junior ranks. That is the aim of the Peterborough junior organization and their effort should have general support.

The exhibition of softball staged here by the Belleville and Toronto junior teams, in a battle between the Belleville Irish and a team of young Ukrainians from the Toronto playgrounds, impressed the fans with the class shown by many of the young players. Belleville has nothing to worry about in the matter of material for future senior outfits if they can keep on developing pitchers like this Don Boyle, or outfielders like Red Culkin or infielders like a couple of the other boys on the line up. The Quinte team, down 3 to 0 deserve credit for their gallant fight in coming from behind and finally winning out in the tenth and while the Toronto kids were eventually beaten, their sportsmanship was a pleasing feature. As soon as the game ended the Queen City players rushed over to shake hands with the victorious Belleville outfit, wishing them luck in the finals. The two teams staged a real ball game and the fans who went home after the Soldier battle missed a nice argument. We heard one enthusiast say that the Belleville kids could have taken either of the Soldier outfits. That would be asking a lot of a junior team but at that the Quinte kids would make quite a showing on the form they revealed here Saturday.

Well it's an all-St. Louis world series after all. St. Louis Browns who apparently had tossed away their opportunity after leading the American League most of the season, fought back with so much determination that the last day of the season saw them win the pennant from the Detroit Tigers by one game, thanks to their own fighting spirit in downing the Yanks four games in a row while the Bengals were losing two out of four to the lowly Washington Senators. The climax came yesterday when with the two teams tied the Brownies walloped the Yanks while the Senators were knocking the Tigers right out of the race. The credit for the Brownies' great stand can be given to the fighting qualities of the whole club and especially to the superb work of the St. Louis pitching staff in the clutch. Potter, Kramer, Muncrief, Galehouse and Jacuki have all performed magnificently at a time when the Brownies needed them most. A game down and with four games in a row against the New York Yanks, the new American League champs got such fine hurling that the New Yorkers were held to three runs in the four games. Potter and Galehouse pitched shutouts, Jack Kramer allowed only one run and Sig Jacucki with the pennant depending upon him yesterday held the Yanks to two runs and Chet Laabs did the rest with two two-run homers. Meanwhile the over-worked Dizzy Trout, one half of the Tiger pitching staff faltered badly in his last two starts and his failure to come through was fatal to the Bengals' chances.

And now for the big series with the Brownies, delirious over their only pennant in 43 years facing the powerful St. Louis Cards, with all the games of course staged in St. Louis. The question that is interesting the baseball world is whether the Browns can carry the momentum of their final drive for the American League honors into the series as did the driving Boston Braves in one memorable season and coupled with that is speculation as to whether Manager Billy Southworth of the Cards can get his powerful squad clicking. The National League leaders have had a month of losing baseball and it may be tough work to get them rolling again. On paper the Cards should breeze through the annual classic but a club with the fighting spirit that has been shown by the Brownies and with the effective pitching it has been getting cannot be lightly set aside. The first game, played Wednesday, should throw a lot of light on the situation.

Ottawa Soldiers Take Title From Peterboro

Ottawa Canadian Postal Corps cleaned up the softball championship of No. 3 Military District here over the week-end, when they defeated the local Military Training Centre team in two straight games in the final series.

The Ottawa team had to come from behind a 7 to 1 deficit in the first game, played at Riverside Park Saturday, and eventually won out 8 to 7 in twelve innings. Sunday's game at the Military Training Centre diamond was an easier affair.

The Postal team broke out in front with six runs in a big second inning, were leading 10 to 1 at the close of the sixth and were never seriously threatened although the Peterborough Soldiers fought hard in the later stages to get back into the ball game, and succeeded in carving the gap somewhat. The final count, however, saw the visitors in front 11 to 6.

Harry Bradshaw, who pitched Saturday's game for Ottawa, was sent back at the Peterborough Soldiers Sunday and he kept the local team in check in the early stages, holding them to one unearned run until the seventh. They broke through then for four runs, but Ottawa had such a lead at that stage that the Postal pitcher was able to coast home. He held the losers to ten hits, four of them crowded into the seventh.

Earl Revoir was again on the hilltop for the Soldiers and was the victim of a six-hit assault in the second inning that gave the Ottawa team a margin that they never relinquished. Revoir was hit hard in spots and his suppport was shaky at critical moments.

The fielding of Latham at short, Kirkland at third and D. McKenzie at first, along with a fine running catch of a foul by leftfielder A. McKenzie stood out for the visitors, while Doug. Mortimer had a busy day in centre field for Military Training Centre. Lang, Quinn and Caron with two hits each, led the winners' attack while Junkin with thre blows was leading hitter for the homesters. One of his raps was a clean homer but he was called out for not touching second and only got a single out of the long drive.

A Big Inning

Ottawa nearly blasted the Peterborough team out of the park in the second. Latham singled past third, Bradshaw lined to left for a single and Lang bunted safely to fill the bases. Quinn doubled to centre, scoring Latham and Bradshaw. Caron singled over second, Lang scoring. Kirkland rapped a single to left scoring Quinn and Caron. Cotey was safe on an error on his sacrifice bunt, and Doug. McKenzie got a life on an error by Anderson. Art McKenzie fouled to Kavanagh and Kirkland was out at the plate when he tried to score after the catch, Morgan covering. Procyk muffed Latham's fly to left, Cotey scoring. Bradshaw was thrown out by Junkin.

Soldiers got their first run off Bradshaw in the fourth after nine

St. Kitts Lead Senior Finals

ST. CATHARINES, Oct. 2.—(CP). —St. Catharines Athletics assumed the lead in the O.L.A. senior finals with a 16-10 win over Mimico Mountaineers Saturday night in the fifth game of the series.

Sixth game will be played at Mimico Monday night. If a seventh game is needed it will be played Wednesday at Maple Leaf Gardens.

Saints were in control from the beginning Saturday. The game carried more sustained speed, action and memories of former Ontario finals than other contests of the best-in-seven series.

Masters and Hayes, Mimico sparkplugs, were held scoreless. Doyle and Dixon scored three each. Sandford notched two. Mackie topped Saints with four goals, while Morton fired three.

Seven Junior A Hockey Teams Ready To Start

TORONTO, Oct. 2.—(CP).—Ontario Hockey Association officials announced today that seven junior "A" clubs will start the 1944-45 season during the week of Nov. 13. The statement said there also is a possibility of Port Colborne returning to the series to round out a two-group, eight-team circuit.

Plans were drawn up at a meeting with the sub-committee of the O.H.A. here.

Stratford and Brantford of last year's set-up have withdrawn from junior "A" competition for this season. With eight clubs operating the groups will be as follows: Eastern—Oshawa Generals, St. Michael's College, Marlboros and Young Rangers of Toronto; western group—Hamilton, St. Catharines, Port Colborne and Galt. Should Port Colborne decline the issue, they have until Oct. 9 for a definite decision, seven teams will operate as one group with the first six qualifying for play-offs.

If two groups are in operation, play-offs will be the same as last season. Top teams playing in a best four out of seven with seconds and thirds meeting in a best two out of three games. Semi-finals between seconds and third winners to be best two out of three with the ultimate winner meeting the victor in the top series in a best four out of seven games for the junior "A" O. H. A. championship.

Junior "A" clubs agree to continue their group insurance pool of 7½ per cent. of all gates. One referee and a linesman will be in charge of league games. W. A. Hewitt, secretary, was authorized to prepare a schedule for adoption at a later meeting.

Hamilton Beats Ottawa As Krol Stars

By The Canadian Press

Sensational scoring performances by veteran players highlighted the four game Ontario senior football program Saturday from which Toronto Navy Bulldogs emerged as undisputed leaders of the Ontario Armed Services League race and their hold on top position in the Hamilton Wildcats strengthened Ontario Rugby Union standing.

Leading Seaman Annis Stukus continued his 12-point-a-game scoring clip to lead Bulldogs to their second consecutive win in the Services League with a 12-10 triumph at Hamilton over the Hagersville R.C.A.F. Bombers. Sgt. Fred Kijek personally accounted for 11 points as Camp Borden R.C.A.F. Hurricanes mauled the St. Thomas R.C.A.F. team 33-0 at London. Camp Borden now is tied for second place in the league wtih Hagersville, with one win apiece, while the St. Thomas team is in last place with two losses.

Joe Krol accounted for all six points as Hamilton won its second O.R.F.U. game from Ottawa Trojans, 6-1. Earl Selkirk registered nine points as Toronto Balmy Beach won its first O.R.F.U. game of the season from Toronto Indians, 19-1. Beaches now are in second place behind Wildcats. Trojans with one loss in one start and Indians with two in two starts bring up the rear.

The scoring outbreak by Stukus at Hamilton was the day's most brilliant individual performance. After Hagersville went into an early lead with a touchdown by LAC. Mickey McGee and a convert by FO. Pete Wright in the first quarter, Stukus kicked field goals from placement in the third and fourth quarters to tie the score. Hagersville went ahead again on a single and a field goal by Wright, but Stukus came right back with a touchdown and a convert to give the sailors their win.

Kijek started Hurricanes on the victory trail at London with a touchdown and a convert early in the first quarter and also kicked one single and converted four touchdowns.

At Ottawa Krol converted his own touchdown, while the single Ottawa point came in the third quarter when Mel Lawson was rouged on veteran Arnie McWatters' punt.

Sam Sward and rookie Boris Tipoff shared scoring honors with Selkirk in the Beach victory at Toronto. Sward scored a first-quarter touchdown, while Tipoff dashed 44 yards for a major score in the third. Selkirk collected four other points on three converts and a single.

St. Louis Browns Capture Pennant Detroit Out, Loses To Senators

By JOE REICHLER
Associated Press Sport Writer

The third wartime baseball season in the major leagues ended yesterday (Sunday) with St. Louis Browns winning their first pennant in the tightest race in American League history, a race not decided until the last out on the last day.

A 5-2 victory over New York Yankees coupled with a Detroit defeat by Washington, 4-1, gave the flag to the Browns by one game, breaking a tie that had existenced since Friday.

Most fans were pulling for the Browns, not only because they had never won a pennant but also because of their thrilling comeback. Three weeks ago they had skidded to third place after having led nearly all season.

With Sigmund (Jack) Jakucki hurling a six-hitter before 37,815 fans, the largest St. Louis crowd of the season, the Browns swept a four-game series from the Yankees, to climax a great stretch drive in which they won 11 out of 12.

Two Homers

Two homers by Chet Laabs and a third by Vern Stephens accounted for the Browns' runs but pitching was their chief weapon all season. Nelson Potter, Jack Kramer, Denny Galehouse, Bob Moncrief and Jakucki hurled 10 complete games of the last 12, including four shutouts, and did not give up more than four runs in any of the last 11 games.

Emil (Dutch) Leonard, 34-year-old knuckleballer, who had not beaten the Tigers since Sept. 15, 1941, was the Tiger tamer, hurling a four-hitter before a crowd of 45,565. Stan Spence, whose hitting beat Detroit Friday to create a first-place tie, cracked his third homer in three days to put the crusher on the Bengals.

Paul (Dizzy) Trout made his second attempt in three days for his 28th victory, but suffered his 14th defeat instead.

The Browns, who finished as high as second only twice before — in 1902, their first season, and in 1922, when they missed the pennant by one game — won the right to meet St. Louis' National League representative, the Cardinals, in the World Series opening Wednesday.

Yanks Third

The Tigers made a game fight, sparked by the return of Dick Wakefield, whose big bat won a score of games for them, and the great pitching of Hal Newhouser and Trout. Newhouser's 29 victories tied George Mullins' mark of 1909 as the most wins turned in by a Tiger hurler. Among the League's left-handers, only Bob Grove of the 1931 Athletics won more games with 31.

The Yankees failed in an attempt to win their fourth straight flag, dropping to third, the lowest in the Joe McCarthy regime.

Hit hard by the loss of such stars as Bill Dickey, Charlie Keller, Joe Gordon, Bill Johnson and Spud Chandler, the Yanks put up a game fight, but faded in the last week, ending with four straight losses to the Browns.

Boston Red Sox, a contender all season, fell back when their ace pitcher, Tex Hughson, winner of 18 games, and their ace hitter, Bobby Doerr, batting .325, were called into the service, a month before the close of the season. They finished with a .500 average in fourth place, 11 games off the pace. They ended the season splitting a twin-bill from the White Sox, winning 3-1 and losing 3-1.

The second division clubs were Cleveland and Philadelphia tied for fifth, Chicago seventh and Washington eighth. The Mackmen won both games from the Indians 5-2 and 5-0, to tie Cleveland, making their best finish since their placed fifth in 1934. The A's were responsible for the Yankee downfall, sweeping a crucial three-game set in mid-September to knock the Yanks out of first place.

Senators Last

For the Senators, it marked their first last-place finish under Clark Griffith since he took charge in 1912.

The Cards made a runaway of it winning their eighth flag and their third in succession by a 14½-game margin to become the first club in National League history to win more than 100 games for three successive years. They ended the season splitting a twin-bill with the Giants, losing 6-5 in 13 innings and winning 10-5.

Pittsburgh nosed out Cincinnati for the runner-up spot on the final day, splitting a twin-bill with Philadelphia, winning the opener 9-1 and losing the nightcap 7-1, while the Reds bowed to Brooklyn 6-5. Cincinnati finished third, 1½ games farther behind.

Chicago Cubs, after a bad start, rallied to snatch fourth place from the Giants, making it the first time since 1926 that all the western teams finished in the first division. Charlie Grimm replaced Jimmy Wilson as Cub manager in May.

The Giants led the scoring division followed by Boston, Brooklyn and Philadelphia.

Fort Erie Beats Sarnia Intermediates

SARNIA, Ont., Oct. 2—(CP)—Fort Erie softball team eliminated Sarnia from the Ontario Softball Association Intermediate A series Saturday with a 3-2 win in the deciding game of a best-of-three series. The game was the second of a doubleheader, Sarnia winning the first 5-4. Fort Erie had won 12-2 in the opening game of the series at Fort Erie.

The winners now meet the Belleville team in the semi-final and the victors in that series meet Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., in the provincial final.

Yesterday's Stars

By The Associated Press

Chet Laabs, Browns—Hit two homers, each with one on to help give the Browns a 5-2 victory over the Yanks and the American League pennant.

Dutch Leonard, Senators—Held the Tigers scoreless for eight innings to ruin Detroit's flag hopes with a 4-1 four-hit victory.

Rip Sewell, Pirates—Clinched second place for Pirates by winning 21st over the Phillies 9-1, in opener of twin bill.

Joe Berry, Athletics — Received credit for both victories over Indians in relief, which enabled Philadelphia to tie Cleveland for fifth place.

Bears, Orioles Tied Again; Each Have Two

BALTIMORE, Oct. 2 — (AP)— Newark Bears and Baltimore Orioles their series tied for the second time, will clash here tonight in the fifth game of the International League's final play-offs to determine which team faces Louisville in the Little World Series.

Orioles, after losing 6-4 in Newark Saturday night, found their home luck held good yesterday as they staged a six-run rally in a wild eighth inning to triumph 7-3 and even the best-of-seven series at two-all.

Manager Alphonse (Tommy) Thomas named Sam Lowry to face the Bears tonight, while Frank Hiller was due to take the mound for the visitors.

Yesterday's crowd of 29,667 went wild when the Orioles, after trailing 3-1, tallied six times in the eighth as the Bear infield fell apart. Joe Page had previously held Baltimore to two hits, one a home run by Howie Moss.

Baltimore got only two more hits in the eighth, but Newark contributed four errors and Page allowed four bases on balls. Eleven Orioles went to the plate.

Ambrose (Bobo) Palica started on the mound for the Birds and after giving up seven hits and three runs, retired for a pinch nitter in the eighth. Johnny Podgajny finished.

Owen Sound Wins Juvenile Lacrosse

TORONTO, Oct. 2.—(CP).—Owen Sound Juveniles won the Ontario Juvenile Lacrosse championship for the second year in succession when they defeated Toronto Lakeshores 7-3 here Saturday to take the round, 18-6.

Lumley starred for the winners and Frank King was best man on the Toronto squad.

Brampton defeated St. Catharines 9-8 Saturday in the first game of the Midget two-game goals-to-count final round at Brampton.

In the first game of the Bantam finals, St. Catharines C.Y.O. (Catholic Youth Organization) trounced St. John's Training School, 17-5.

Second games of the Midget and Bantam finals will be played at St. Catharines tomorrow night.

Tigers Miss 7th Flag By One Game

By FRANK KENESSON
Associated Press Sport Writer

DETROIT, Oct. 2—(AP).—It was a sad band of Detroit Tigers that gathered at Briggs Stadium today to determine the split of their second-place world series share, only a fraction of the contender's purse they lost yesterday in the hottest pennant finish the American League has ever seen.

The Bengals were booted out of a league lead they had held continuously since September 17 when the last-place Washington Senators arose to smack them, 4-1, on the last day of the season, while St. Louis Browns were pasting New York Yankees for the fourth straight game, 5-2.

By splitting their last four-game series with a Washington club they had beaten 15 times this season in 18 starts, the Tigers missed their seventh flag by a single game. The Browns clinched the pennant on a pair of homers by Chet Laabs, who once wore a Detroit uniform.

To make it worse for the Tigers, they lost yesterday's super-crucial verdict to old-timer Emil (Dutch) Leonard, who had lost eight straight games to Detroit and hadn't beaten the Bengals since 1941.

Paul (Dizzy) Trout, making his third start in six days and trying for his 28th win for the Tigers, went all the way but was pegged for eight hits, one of them Stan Spence's 18th home run, with Joe Kuhel on base in the fourth inning.

Manager Steve O'Neill had nothing but praise for the Detroit players who climbed from the second division as late as August 1 to make their stretch fight.

O'Neill said he was especially indebted to Trout (27-14) and Hal Newhouser (29-9), the major leagues' two top pitchers, who "worked their hearts out for me, the club and the fans."

Here and There in Sport

By The Canadian Press

Annis Stukus and Joe Krol covered themselves with glory at Hamilton and Ottawa, respectively, over the week-end, with Stukus scoring all points for the Navy team as it edged out Hagersville R.C.A.F. 12-10 in the Armed Service League fixture, and Krol performing a like service for Hamilton Wildcats, who beat Ottawa Trojans 6-1 in an O.R.F.U. game.

The question whether St. Louis Flyers of the American Hockey Association will have to lay aside their hockey sticks for work in lakehead elevators has been put up to Munitions Minister Howe in a telegram sent by Mayor C. W. Cox of Port Arthur, where the team is training. A. A. Heaps, Dominion grain controller, has appealed to the players to work in the elevators.

Welland Atlas emerged Saturday with a 2-1 victory over London Majors, champions of the Intercounty Baseball League, in the first of a best-of-five series for what the two clubs—and their leagues—contend is the "real championship of Ontario."

Hamilton Farrar's captured the O.A.S.A. senior B Southern Ontario softball title at Oshawa Saturday, defeating Oshawa G.M. Colts 3-0 to win the right to meet Sudbury in the all-Ontario finals. It was the second consecutive shutout in as many days for Hamilton.

U.S. Upsets

Football forecasters got dumped for a 60-yard loss Saturday as a wave of upsets swept United States college gridirons from coast to coast. Most striking of the surprises was Navy's 12-14 tumble before North Carolina pre-flight at Annapolis. Duke's Southern Conference champions were supposed to make mincemeat of Pennsylvania in Philadelphia, but the Quakers scored a touchdown in the first 18 seconds and went on to an 18-7 triumph.

Unbeaten Pavot picked up the $54,000 first-place money at New York Saturday in the 55th running of the $76,310 Belmont Futurity—the richest juvenile stake of the year—before 35,386 at the spacious Long Island track.

Formation of a 10-team Pacific Coast Semi-Professional Hockey League was announced Saturday at Portland, Ore., by Harry Shipstad, manager of the Portland ice arena. The loop will consist of a northern division — Portland, Vanport City, Seattle and Vancouver, B.C.; a southern division—San Diego, Hollywood, Los Angeles and Pasadena; and San Francisco and Oakland, which will divide their schedule between the two divisions.

F.D.R. Applauds Free Press

NEW YORK, Oct. 2 —(AP)—In a statement on the observation of National Newspaper Week, Oct. 1-8, President Roosevelt says the free press of America" is the forefront of democracy's battle for survival" and "will help to win the peace."

The President said in a message appearing in Editor and Publisher, newspaper trade journal:

"The free press of America is a living symbol of democracy, and as such, it is in the forefront of democracy's battle for survival.

"The press of America has upheld the hand of the soldier at the front and the worker on the production line. By providing the people with honest news, it has enlightened the minds of the people and strengthened their will. It has loyally shared in the sacrifices imposed by the need to ration essential materials. It has gladly and voluntarily abided by a code of censorship."

Russians Use U.S. Naval Base

SEATTLE, Oct. 2 — (AP) — Operation by the Soviet government of a naval base on United States soil and its use as a rendezvous port for trans-shipment of cargoes and refueling of Russian armed vessels was reported last night in a copyright article in the Seattle Post-Intelligencer.

The article by a staff reporter, said the revelation that Russian armed vessels were being based at and operated out of "an American port" under Russian command was made to the paper by Representative Warren G. Magnuson (Dem.-Wash.)

Port facilities, Magnuson, ranking Pacific coast member of the House Naval Affairs Committee, said, are under lease from an American Company and payment is being made by an American agency directly to that firm, although the Russians have full use of the harbor as an operational base under lend-lease terms.

U.S. Controls 9 Palau Isles

PEARL HARBOR, Oct. 2 — (AP).—Taking three more strides along the stepping stones that lead westward to the Philippines, United States forces to-day controlled nine islands of the strategic Palau group, and a new airfield.

Admiral Nimitz announced last night that Kongauru, Ngesbus with its 4,800-foot fighter strip, and an unnamed island "have been made secure."

U. S. forces thus increased the usefulness of the captured airdrome on Peleliu, which the Japanese expended almost 9,000 men to defend. This field, and others in the Palaus, are little more than 500 miles east of the Philippines.

Course On Quilts Given To Institute

NORWOOD, Oct. 2 —(ENS) — Miss E. Hopkins was leader of a course in quilts and quilt making held in the Norwood town hall on Thursday and Friday under the auspices of the Women's Institute. The course comprised a study of quilts from the early days until now. Colors and quilt patterns were studied and a block for a community quilt made by each of the members. A quilt was put in the frames and designs were studied for quilting.

A short note of appreciation was read to Miss Katie Edwards for her splendid help given the branch, by Mrs. W. Golloher and Mrs. G. Ointment presented Miss Edwards with a quilt made by the members.

A vote of thanks was tendered Miss Hopkins for the splendid course, and Mrs. E. Birdsall, district president, was invited to address the women. She spoke of the oratorical contest being sponsored in the district and asked them to bring it up at their meeting to be held at Mrs. G. Walker's, Belmont Road, in October.

Mrs. Ointment read a letter she had received from Mrs. R. Fennell enclosing $5 to be used for Christmas gifts for the soldiers.

CANADA'S VETERANS

Their Post-War Opportunities

This is the first of a series of advertisements to inform the people of Canada of plans to re-establish men and women of the armed forces. To get the full details save and read every advertisement.

The Future After Discharge —

A MESSAGE TO RELATIVES OF THOSE IN THE ARMED FORCES

When your boys and your girls come home, when they lay aside the uniform, when they go out into the world as normal peace-loving Canadians, what lies ahead? Can they pick up their lives as civilians, where they laid them down, months or long years ago? Are there plans to help them do the things they wanted to do before the war? Will they have security? Can they continue education, or receive needed training? Will they be assisted in home owning, or to establish their own business, and will they be enabled to pick up their family life once again?

These are questions which concern all those Canadians who have loved ones in the services. They are questions which this series of advertisements is designed to answer.

OPPORTUNITY IS THE OBJECTIVE

Canada has been making plans for your boy's and your girl's return to civilian life since early in 1940. These plans are in effect and operating now. The aim is that every person who has served shall have opportunity. Thousands, already back in civilian life, have benefitted by training, by maintenance grants, by advice of departmental officials, and by the social security provisions. There is ample help for those men and women who want to help themselves.

ASSISTANCE ON DISCHARGE

When your boys and girls are discharged from the services, they will be given:

1. A clothing allowance of $100.00 (if discharged after August 1, 1944).
2. Their pay to date of discharge.
3. One month's additional pay, if they have 183 days' continuous service, as a rehabilitation grant.
4. A railway warrant home or to the place of enlistment.

Dependents will receive:

1. Their normal dependents' allowance to date of discharge, with assigned pay.
2. An additional month's dependents' allowance, with assigned pay, if there has been 183 days' continuous service.

Your boy or girl will be allowed to retain certain items of uniform. They will be given a complete medical and dental examination and will be eligible for free needed treatment for a year after discharge. Those discharged not physically fit, in need of continuing treatment and unable to work, will have their pay and allowances of rank continued for at least a year if necessary and, if the disability is pensionable, for as long as curative treatment is beneficial. All are interviewed by Veterans' Welfare Officers and told of the re-establishment programme.

WAR SERVICE GRATUITY

On discharge, those enlisted to serve outside Canada, or those who served in the Aleutian Islands, are eligible for a war service gratuity. It provides $7.50 for each thirty days' service in Canada and the Western Hemisphere and $15.00 for each thirty days' service overseas or in the Aleutian Islands. For those with overseas service or with service in the Aleutian Islands, there is an additional seven days' pay and allowances for each six months of such service. Payments will be made at the end of each month in the months following discharge. Complete details of the war service gratuity will be given in a later advertisement.

RE-ESTABLISHMENT CREDIT

In addition to the war service gratuity, there is a re-establishment credit of $7.50 for each thirty days' service in the Western Hemisphere and $15.00 for each thirty days' service overseas. This is for things such as the purchase or repair of a home, the buying of furniture, a business, or government life insurance, and for certain other purposes which will assist your boy or your girl in becoming re-established. This credit, which is reduced by grants given for training or education, or under the Veterans' Land Act, is primarily for those who do not wish assistance under these three plans.

RETURN TO FORMER JOBS

If your boy or girl held a civilian position before enlisting, and was not engaged to replace somebody already in the forces, and if the position still exists, and your boy or girl is capable of filling it, it is the employer's duty, under the law of Canada, to reinstate him or her in that position with seniority. Application for reinstatement must be made to the former employer within three months of discharge from the forces or from hospital.

Veterans' Welfare Officers are stationed in key centres throughout Canada. They are the friends of Ex-Service men and women. It is their duty to advise and assist all Ex-Service personnel with their re-establishment problems. If there is anything about the Rehabilitation programme which you do not understand, consult your nearest Veterans' Welfare Officer.

TRAINING AND EDUCATION

The surest way to permanent employment—the thing your boy or girl will want—is a skill to get and to hold a job. Canada's plans give opportunity to acquire needed skill either at university or in preparation for a business or industrial career. Fees are paid by the state, along with living allowances, while training or continuing education.

WHILE ILL OR UNEMPLOYED

There is protection against illness or unemployment by maintenance allowances which can be drawn against in the first eighteen months after discharge. There is also protection under the Unemployment Insurance Act for those who enter insured employment and remain in it fifteen weeks.

HOME OWNING AND FARMING

There is provision to assist city and other workers to have homes of their own, either on small acreages of land outside the high taxation area, or in town, under the National Housing Act. Full-time farmers can be given financial assistance in full-time farming, while commercial fishermen may secure financial help in getting their own homes, on small acreages of land, and in buying needed fishing equipment.

FREE TREATMENT

In the year following discharge, service men and women are eligible for free treatment, hospitalization and allowances for any condition, even if not the result of service. Pensioners are entitled to this for life for their pensioned disability.

THE POLICY ON PENSIONS

Canada's Pension Act is administered by an independent commission, all former members of the services. Any permanent disability suffered overseas, not a result of misconduct, is pensionable. Where service is in Canada only, the disability must be a result of service.

Memorial Centre Gives Citizens Share In Future

"Success of the Memorial Centre fund will be one of the most unselfish achievements to the credit of Peterborough in the longest memories," said George A. Macdonald, president of the Chamber of Commerce, to-day.

"Peterborough usually accomplishes what it sets out to do, and I feel certain that everybody is deeply concerned about the success of this effort.

"The amount already contributed, as reported at the week end, is most encouraging, and are all hoping that this week will bring the objective in sight. And these contributions are outright giving of money. They are not loans to come back to use with principal and interest.

"The money you give to the Memorial Centre is deposited in the bank to the credit of the Corporation of the City of Peterborough to be used for the special purpose of the Memorial Centre. And it is this element of giving to the community, for the community, and to be used by the community, that impresses me as an action in unselfishness that is bound to have a good effect on the sense of public spirit which we know does exist in this city.

Share in Future.

"If the Memorial Centre were an investment directly in the present, the unselfish aspect of the Fund might not be so apparent. But, for most of us, those beyond the war age, men and women, the returns will be comparatively few. We have passed the stage of building up health in playgrounds. That advantage is all for the children of to-day and to-morrow; and in that respect the Fund is a genrous subscription by the citizens of to-day for the benefit of the young folks who are to come after us.

"If the Memorial Fund were conceived only as a hockey arena, the planning committee would have been content with a financial objective which would have evidently been attained quite easily. But the purpose reaches well beyond that aim, and if we provide the money that is needed I have every confidence in Peterborough seeing to it that the money is well used and the investment capably managed.

"The Memorial Centre is to be placed in the hands of a commission, and the Commissions we have set up in this city have been conducted in a manner that leaves with us assurance that all the affairs of the Centre will be efficiently carried on.

Gradual Extension.

"In giving our contributions to the Memorial Centre we must not expect that it is all going to spring up in a short time. That is not my expectation. We feel that the Centre will show net earnings which will be available for the extension of playgrounds projects from time to time in future years, apart from any immediate planning, and that eventual features will be included in the returns to community as a whole that are not at present visualized.

"I am hoping that generations that come after us will look back on the citizens of to-day with gratefulness for having conceived the Centre as a Memorial and for having provided the money that will make it possible.

Surely we all agree that ten years ago, we would not have dreamed of setting out on a campaign such as this one for the Memorial Centre; and probably we are surprising ourselves that it has been going along so well.

We have undertaken it as a community in a splendid spirit of community interest, and all that remains now, and it is still a great challenge to Peterborough, is to make it a complete success.

It would be prefect, if we could raise all the Fund without having to ask the ratepayers for a dollar to be collected in the tax rate."

23 Soldiers Arrive Home

KINGSTON, Ont., Oct. 2 (Special) —Three officers and twenty-three other ranks, many of them veterans of fighting in Italy and France arrived in Kingston Sunday night from overseas. The returning men were accorded a thunderous welcome at District Depot 3-A Fort Frontenac by relatives, friends, civic officials and representatives of wartime welfare organizations.

The soldiers one of whom was a member of the Canadian Women's Army Corps were able to depart for their homes in various sections of M.D. 3 about three hours after their arrival here as a result of a speeded up procedure of feeding, paying, documentation and issuing of passes. The new accelerated system of clearing returned soldiers so that they may proceed to their homes brought enthusiastic praise from the men themselves.

Those who returned were Captain G. A. McCormick and Lieut. J. H. McQuaig, both of Ottawa, and Lieut. James S. Freeman of Cornwall.

Others in the group were RSM. F. Turner and Private H. J. Powell, both of Kingston; Cpl A. E. Morin, Pte. S. W. Clark, Pte. M. J. Stover, all of Peterborough; Gnr. G. T. Andres, Rockport; Pte. G. V. Brannigan, Colborne; Pte. L. J. Cooper, Stirling; Bdr. M. W. Free, Campbellford; Sgm. R. K. Gordon, Pte. L. Turgeon and Pte. J. C. Mallery, of Trenton; Cpl. L. Kirkey, Harold; Gnr. S. Oliver, Cobourg.

Lights Go On In Peterboro

For the first time in more than two years, the "lights went on again" in Peterborough Sunday evening, as the dim-out regulations, imposed in September, 1942, because of an acute shortage of electricity, were lifted officially by an announcement from Ottawa made earlier.

Long accustomed to the necessary darkness, Peterborough on Sunday evening was a novel sight for everyone. Hesitatingly at first, then with an increasing vigor, the lights about town blinked on, one after another down the main streets, and off the beaten path, too. The presence of the lights proved to be a major attraction to people of the city, bringing hundreds into the business sections merely to see them.

Long before darkness was complete, the triangular Neon sign at the Canadian Tire Corporation was blazing away, on Water street. Hotels, like the King George and Queens, also were quick to light up, making the streets brighter and more crowded, too. Among the notable "first-to-be-lit" signs was the one in front of the Paris Cafe. Its Neon works, flashing delightfully from red to green, added a dash of color to George street, and like every other sign lit, fitted into a gay pattern of the Peterborough main stem.

Some people reported the lights off the main streets, and along the residential sections, to be even more numerous than those of the business districts. Porch lights blossomed out, and signs in front of independent stores throughout the city took advantage of the date and sparkled.

Two Peterborough men, taking advantage of the opportunity, gathered a small fortune during the past week or so, doing work on the tubing of Neon signs, for harrassed store owners, unable to find regular electricians. It was a gold mine for anyone in the business, and for several days the two were kept busy repairing the lights in time for Sunday evening.

Although many store owners undoubtably left the stores Saturday evening believing their signs to be functioning according to the last word in efficiency, some signs were noticed Sunday night blinking feebly, each time, apparently becoming weaker. Some were only half-lit, with one part of the word bright, and the vital half invisible. Nobody cared, however, the mere fact the lights were lit was cause enough for many silent sighs of satisfaction, and many more outward signs of joy. To most it was simply another stepping stone on the long road back to pre-war life.

SURPRISE VISIT — Leading Stoker John William Naylor, son of Mr. and Mrs. N. Naylor, Marmora, arrived home from overseas unexpectedly Sunday. He took part in invasion operations.

War—4 Years Ago

Blood Donors Urgently Needed

The amount of blood serum on hand was never at a lower ebb, chiefly due to two factors. So much serum has been used to help the wounded withstand the shock of being moved to hospitals in England, and robot bombing has caused so many casualties.

Red Cross Headquarters has asked all Canadian Red Cross Blood Donor Clinics to do everything in their power, not only to maintain the number of blood donations at their present level, but to increase the quantity to the maximum.

According to statistics, 91% of Canadian casualties recover, largely due to the use of blood serum. Peterborough citizens were not slow to answer the call of their country for overseas service. Hundreds of them are overseas, many of them have paid the supreme sacrifice and numbers of them are wounded and suffering in hospitals in order that those at home may live safely.

"They ask very little of us, and what they do ask costs us very little effort, yet we hesitate to give it," a Red Cross worker said today.

"Are we afraid to risk a little blood, the loss of which does us no harm, or are we too indifferent to care? It is not strangers we are asked to help. It is our own Peterborough citizens who need our blood.

"The war is not over as many wish to think. It is not over until it is won, and our men and women are safely home again. Are we going to make a supreme effort to bring them home, or are we going to leave them to die for need of the help that it costs us so little to give."

Nature Club Outing At Buckley's Lake

Supper by campfire at Lakefield Park Saturday evening brought to a conclusion the Peterborough Nature Club's fall outing to Buckley's Lake, where members enjoyed hikes through the woods and explorations of marl cavities.

Once the property of the Canada Cement Company, the land is now frequently by many birds, and the marl excavations are like a series of canals, long, and filled with water at the present. The present owners of this property have converted it into a bird sanctuary, chiefly for water birds. All members of the club enjoyed a pleasant outing.

Cpl. W. Campbell Reported Missing

A passenger on a plane that failed to arrive at its destination, Cpl. William H. Campbell, R. C. A. F., son of Mrs. J. A. Campbell, 710 George street, has been reported missing, according to word reaching his mother recently.

Overseas since March of 1943, he had written shortly before that he was leaving on a special mission, and that his destination was unknown. No further word has been received, other than the information indicating the airman is missing.

Prior to enlisting in 1940, Cpl. Campbell was employed in the toolroom at Westclox. Before going overseas, he was stationed on both the East and West coasts.

Ration Board Issues 1268 Hunters' Permits

From the office of City Clerk Outram, secretary of the local rationing board, 1,268 hunters' permits for small arms ammunition were issued between August 15 and September 30.

This total includes 835 licenses for shells for shot guns, and 434 permits for rim fire bullets of the small .22 and .25 calibre. The shot gun permits are each for fifty shells which may be obtained at any time from stores selling ammunition. The permit period ended Saturday.

GLENGARRIAN OFFICER WOUNDED—Major Fred Lander, son of Mrs. William Lander, Plainville, is reported to have been wounded September 19 at Boulogne. His wife lives at Brighton.

Canadian Legion Total $2,330 For War Victims

In army circles in the zone of active hostilities, one sometimes hears of strategic reserves, upon whom when necessity arises, often may depend the carrying through to a real success, the operations at that time being conducted against the enemy, and as such they play quite an important part in the general plans as a whole.

Right here in Peterborough, another army group known as Branch 52, Canadian Legion, and situated far from the ccene of military operations, may be said to be playing a similar role in regard to another worthy war assist, by giving a portion of the proceeds from their bingo games conducted on behalf of their own welfare work each Wednesday evening, on a monthly basis, which may be said to be at the same call for assistance as strategic reserves are, when the management of the Peterborough and District War Victims Fund is in need of such to keep things going on a daily basis.

Their pledge to give this assistance through G. Gimblett their president, the very first day this fund commenced operations, was one of the things that offered so much encouragement at the very outset, and as time has proceeded since then has been infinitely more so, for on many occasions the fund management has made a call on them, and the response was spontaneous and forthcoming on short notice.

They Give Another $69

Just to demonstrate how this has been so, it should be related how the secretary of the fund 'phoned Garfield Torrance their secretary-treasurer Friday evening, and on entering the headquarters office early on Saturday morning, there was a cheque for the amount of $69.16 from them safely reposing on his desk, recalling to mind the adage "They who give quickly, give twice," and from the encouragement angle of such action on their part, there lays much truth in this apt expression.

This same measure of support has been much in evidence all along the line during the close to four years that the fund has been in operation, and needless to say that this would undoubtedly roll up a splendid total to their credit, which this latest gift assists to bring to an amount of $2,330.82, the third largest from any one single source in all the fund records. It could really be said that the boys of the old brigade are playing a splendid part in this field of endeavour on behalf of this war, as they played in the sphere of active participation in World War No. 1.

Personal Gifts Thursday

This coming Thursday will see the lucky 13th list of Personal gifts to appear since July 11, there being seven of them on hand, which it is hoped will be further enlarged by that time, to assist the cause the fund stands for.

Previously acknowledged	$81,819.79
Branch 52, Canadian Legion, per G. Gimblett and G. G. Torrance	69.16
Total to-date	$81,888.95

MISSING IN PLANE — A member of the R.C.A.F. since 1940, Cpl. William H. (Bill) Campbell, son of Mrs. J. A. Campbell, 710 George street, has been reported missing after a plane in which he was travelling failed to reach its destination.

Sgt. David Low Is Wounded

An infantry instructor at the Training Centre for two years before going overseas, Sgt. John David Low, whose wife and daughter Margo live at Keene, has been reported wounded in action in France, according to word received here recently. No other details were given.

The son of John Low, 623 Lock street, and the late Mrs. Low, the 22-year-old soldier enlisted in September 1940, with the Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry Highlanders. Besides his work at the camp in Peterborough, he trained in St. Hyacinthe, Quebec and Cornwall, before arriving overseas on Christmas Eve in 1943.

Formerly employed at the Brinton Carpet Company, Sgt. Low is one of four members of the family who are serving or have served in the Canadian armed forces in this war. His father served in the Canadian active army, until his discharge this year. Two brothers, Harry, in the navy and stationed on the East Coast, and Terry, wounded in Italy last March, are also serving.

Increase Reported In Building Permits

Building permits to the end of September totalled $280,299 as against $203,670 for the first nine months of last year.

Seventy-six permits were issued last month: 7 garages $715; 4 dwellings $14,100; 65 miscellaneous $15,204. Total $30,019.

And in September last year, 40 permits: 6 garages $615; 5 dwellings $18,800; 29 miscellaneous $7,230. Total $26,645.

LOANS FOR MEN AND WOMEN WHO WORK

Here's a quick, private way to borrow up to $500— No endorsers required—Repay in monthly instalments that fit your own budget

SHORT of cash? Need $100, $200 or more? Here's a loan plan that can help you solve your problem. You may borrow quickly and privately—and repay on the monthly schedule that suits you best. To apply for the amount you need you merely give us a few facts about yourself and your work. No endorsers or guarantors are ever required. We lend—to men and to women—largely on character and earning ability.

Payments to fit your budget

Notice in the table below that you may repay your loan in 2 to 15 monthly instalments. It's wise to repay as rapidly as your income and expenses permit. The sooner you repay the less your loan costs. A $100 loan repaid in twelve monthly instalments of $9.46 each—a total of $113.52—costs $13.52. If repaid in six monthly instalments of $17.85 each a $100 loan costs only $7.10. You are also welcome to repay your loan ahead of schedule at any time to reduce the cost. Payments shown in the table repay principal and charges. Garden Brigade Party

HAVELOCK, Oct. 2—(ENS). — Miss Thelma Ashby entertained the members of the Girls' Garden Brigade and their friends at her home in Belmont township recently in honor of the leader, Miss Marie Dafoe, who was the recipient of many beautiful gifts on the occasion of her 20th birthday. The evening was spent in playing crokinole, Chinese checkers and other games. A lunch was served by the hostess, the table being centred with a large birthday cake.

LAC D. Macdonald Entertained Prior To Posting

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Bert. Paget, 404 Edison avenue, was the setting for a gala evening recently, when friends gathered for a farewell party in honor of LAC. Don. Macdonald, who is leaving for a new posting with the R.C.A.F. On behalf of his friends, Jimmy Duffus presented LAC Macdonald with a purse of money, as a token of remembrance, and Pete Collins read the address. The evening was spent in playing euchre, and Mr. Duffus won the men's prize, while Mrs. Duffus won the women's prize.

At the close of the evening, refreshments were served. LAC. Macdonald, is the son of Mrs. Mary Macdonald, Harvey street, and his wife lives at 104 Aylmer street. Before enlisting in June, 1941, he worked with Canada Packers, and has been stationed at Jarvis.

Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. Pete Collins, Mr. and Mrs. W. Miller, Mr. and Mrs. Stan Jackson, Mr. and Mrs. A. McIntyre, LAC. and Mrs. Don. Macdonald, Mr. and Mrs. Jim Duffus, Mr. and Mrs. A. Phillips, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Phillips, Mr. and Mrs. F. Sanders, Mr. and Mrs. B. Paget, Mrs. Patterson, Mrs. Mary Macdonald, Mrs. Marquith, Mrs. A. Hughes of Fenelon Falls, and Charles Paget. Those who contributed toward the gift, but were unable to be present, were Mr. and Mrs. W. Logan, Mr. and Mrs. G. Tweedie, Mr. and Mrs. E. Brumwell, and Miss Geraldine Dunford.

Ivena F. Reid Wed At Army Temple

The Salvation Army Temple, banked with ferns and yellow gladioli, was the setting for a pretty wedding Saturday, when Ivena Frances Reid, daughter of Mrs. Bartley Reid, and the late Bartley Reid, 469 Cambridge street, became the bride of Stanton W. Weber, son of Mr. and Mrs. Colin Weber, of Kitchener. Major John Wood officiated. Mrs. R. G. Routley played the wedding music, and accompanied the soloist, Miss Ruth Smith, when she sang, "I Love You Truly" during the signing of the register.

Given in marriage by Mr. Ralph Rutherford, the bride was charming in floor-length white sheer over taffeta, with lace inserts, the fitted bodice finished at the back with self-covered buttons, long sleeves coming to a point over either wrist, and a full skirt. Her veil of French tulle was caught to her head with white velvet violets, and she carried a shower bouquet of red roses, bouvardia and adiantum fern.

She was attended by Mrs. Alice Weber, sister of the groom, and Miss Shirley Barringer, as bridesmaid. They were dressed alike in pink and blue sheer gowns with Sweetheart necklines, and full skirts gathered to fitted waistlines, and trimmed with ruffles of the same material. Each wore a wreath of velvet violets and matching shoulder-length veil, and carried a Colonial bouquet of Bettertime roses. Miss Sandra Meagher was a charming little flower girl in floor-length yellow taffeta, with Sweetheart neckline, and matching ruffles. She carried a Colonial bouquet of Talisman roses.

Walter Harrison was best man, and J. Dean Reid, brother of the bride, and Albert Bush were ushers.

At the reception, in the Green Room of the Y.W.C.A., the bride's mother received the guests in a French blue crepe ensemble, with navy blue felt hat, blue accessories, and a corsage of Talisman roses. The groom's mother, also receiving, wore a gown of Aquamarine crepe, navy felt hat, navy accessories, and a corsage of pink Supreme roses.

For a wedding trip to Toronto and Oshawa, the bride donned a tailored suit, gold crepe blouse, and brown accessories. On their return, Mr. and Mrs. Weber will live at 593 Aylmer street.

Service Centre Holds Open House

"Open House" was observed by the new Red Shield Service Centre on Charlotte street on Sunday, to mark its opening, and hundreds of interested citizens, as well as a great number of soldiers from the Training Centre, were present during the afternoon and evening, to see the new buildings, and enjoy the programs. There were about 80 hostesses in attendance on this first day of the fall season's activities, and cookies and coffee were served. Miss Helen Lytle was in charge of the hostesses. Miss Ruth Rody was in charge of the registration of guests.

Taking part in a short musical program in the afternon was Mrs. E. Irwin, wife of Supervisor Irwin, who sang two selection, "The Last Chord," and "Hold Thou My Hand," accompanied at the piano by Mrs. George Coleman, Jr. Representing the camp personnel, Pte. Goerz sang "Danny Boy" and "When Irish Eyes Are Smiling," accompanied by Jimmy Abraham. Greetings were brought to the troops by Col. Wallace Bunton of Toronto and Major H. Wellman, War Services Inspector.

In the evening, the Peterborough Temple Songsters presented a program of music and song under the direction of Songster Leader Ben Smith. The program included the following selections by the songsters, "Soldiers' Chorus," "Deep River," "Lead Kindly Light," and "God Save the King." Col. James Merrett and Band Leader Percy Merrett, musicians and composers, played a concertina and euphonium duet, and Band Leader Merrett played a euphonium solo, "The Stranger of Galilee." A xylophone party, consisting of Mrs. Ben Smith, Miss Ruth Smith, Mrs. R. Routly and Mrs. K. Bolam, played "Gondoliers," and "Happy Glad and Free." Mrs. S. J. Richardson was at the piano. Supervisor E. Irwin introduced Col. James Merrett of Toronto, as M.C.

Adjutant V. Graham accepted gifts for the new centre from various individuals and friends and organizations, and expressed her sincere thanks to all. Major John Wood, commanding officer of the local Corps was also present, and in closing, Adjutant Graham and Supervisor Irwin thanked all who had contributed toward the successful opening of the new Red Shield Service Centre.

Following the official opening ceremonies Saturday afternoon, afternoon tea was served to guests by the hostesses. The tea table was tastefully decorated in yellow and white, centred with a bouquet of yellow and white 'mums in a silver bowl on a reflector, and flanked by silver candelabra set with yellow tapers. Mrs. A. W. Turner and Mrs R. C. Braund poured tea. The refreshments were under the supervision of Mrs. S. A. Deyman, with the following hostesses assisting: Misses Gloria Kidd, Jean Kerr, Jean Belch, Eleanor Craig, Jean Carew, Nan O'Toole, Ruth Smith, Betty Craig, Mary Lambert, Ida Taylor, Ann Cairns, Jean Whatley, Ruth Sedore, Gladys Bridcott, Frances Haines, Mary Stevenson, Gladys Bolton, Nola Smith, Peggy Parnell, Joan Pitchford, Jean Cranfield, Isabel Weaver, Muriel Miles, Helen Lytle, and Mesdames P. Sanders, K. Lavictoire, K. Bolam, E. Brown, L. Casey, A. Young, A. Meeks, H. Todd, K. W. Sloane, F. White.

Misses Phyllis Marshall and Helen Lytle were in charge of the registration of guests and hostesses. At the opening service, outside the new centre, the key yas presented to Col. William Dray by Mrs. Pearl Sanders, whose husband was killed in Italy.

The Stars Say . . .

For Tuesday, October 3

ALTHOUGH there are signs of delays, obstacles, postponements, perhaps sorrows and disappointments yet if these are met with determination, fortitude and well-organized plans and purposes, there should finally be some turn for the better, in which there may be a stabilizing and secure force to make the effort worthwhile. This may affect property, investments and securities.

Those whose birthday it is may have a year of worthwhile benefits and safety if they will but maintain composure, restraint and prudence under all forms of stress and strain. Indulgence in quarrels, or rash and tumultuous conduct might precipitate loss, danger, regrets, sorrows and possible estrangements, especially with relatives or elders. Sound judgment and well-developed ideas and plans should prove advantageous especially where property or investments are concerned. Work for the future and security. There might be some public recognition.

A child born on this day may possess some stable, and sterling qualities despite a propensity to certain reckless, immoderate and turbulent moods.

TO PRESENT FIRST CONCERT—Portia White, Canadian contralto, acclaimed by music critics in both Canada and the United States as the possessor of a wonderfully rich and well-placed voice who will be in Peterborough on Wednesday evening for the first concert in the 1944-45 concert series.

Last Call For Jams, Jellies As Seaon Is Getting Late

Late in the season though it is, a surprisingly large number of women are finding themselves shortly supplied with the jams and jellies they usually count on setting aside for winter use. For many of the best-liked early fruits were available only spottily, or in very limited amount. It will take most of us right up into the last of the season, to fill the gaps left in the jam cupboard by lack of those early fruits.

So this year more than ever, crabapples and sweet fall apples of many kinds are a good thought for the last of the summer-into-fall jelly making. And how fortunate it is, that apples make such fine jelly, and a kind adaptable for so many different uses!

Actually, the shortage of early fruits has its bright side. For it may serve to encourage the making of apple jelly in households where it is not now given the prominence it deserves. Delicate mildness of flavor . . . inimitable freshness . . . appealing color—these characteristics commend apple jelly for use not only in and with desserts, but main-courses as well. More than that, apple jelly offers a grand way to use up the fall apples that can't be stored through the winter!

The recipes below are tried and proven favorites. Notice that they all use commercial pectin . . . a grand aid in short-cutting the cooking time, at the same time as it assures a delicately set jelly, whatever the variety of apples used. Weights as well as measures are given in the recipes, in case you have a set of kitchen scales—cooks who are familiar with scales find the weighing of ingredients a most convenient and accurate method.

CRABAPPLE JELLY.

If you are one of those cooks who feel that Crabapple Jelly just isn't right without a faint flavor of rose geranium, add a leaf of the sweet scented plant to the cut-up apples before simmering with water. Just one word of warning— be very subtle about its use! In too-great amount, rose geranium can be overpowering!

5 cups (2½ pounds) prepared juice.
7½ cups (3¼ pounds) sugar.

To prepare juice, remove blossom and stem ends from about 3 pounds (2 quarts) fully ripe crabapples and cut fruit in small pieces. Do not peel or core. Add 4 cups water, cover and simmer for 10 minutes. Turn into jelly bag or double square of cheesecloth and squeeze out juice.

Measure sugar and juice into a large saucepan, and mix well. Bring to boil over strongest possible direct heat, stirring constantly, and at once stir in liquid pectin. Bring to a full rolling boil and boil hard for ½ minute. Remove from heat, skim, and pour quickly into hot sterilized jars. Cover at once with a film of hot paraffin, ⅛ inch thick. When cold, cover or tie down. Recipe makes about 12 glasses of jelly (6 fluid ounces each).

Sweet-Apple Jelly

Any of the fall apples is suitable for this recipe . . . though the brighter the red color of the skins the more attractive will be the finished jelly. If, however, you are using pale-skinned apples, a little red food coloring may be added . . . be sure it is a kind that fruit acids will not fade!

5 cups (2½ pounds) prepared juice.
Juice of 1 lemon.
7½ cups (3¼ pounds) sugar.

To prepare fruit, remove blossom and stem ends from about 3 pounds (2 quarts) fully ripe apples, and cut fruit in small pieces. Do not peel or core. Add 4 cups water, cover and simmer for 10 minutes. Crush well with a potato masher, cover, and simmer 5 minutes longer. Turn into jelly bag or double square of cheesecloth, and squeeze out juice.

Add lemon juice to apple juice; tint if desired. Measure juices and sugar into a large saucepan, and mix well. Bring to boil over strongest possible direct heat, and at once stir in liquid pectin. Bring to a full rolling boil and boil hard for ½ minute. Remove from heat and skim. Pour quickly into hot sterilized jars. Cover at once with a film of hot paraffin, ⅛ inch thick. When cold, cover or tie down, and store in a cool dry place. Recipe makes about 12 glasses of jelly (6 fluid ounces each).

L. A. Johnston Pledges Vows

A wedding of interest took place recently in Smiths Falls at Westminster Presbyterian manse when Sgt. Lawrence A. Johnston, stationed at Petawawa, son of Mrs. J. H. Johnston and the late J. H. Johnston, of Peterborough, took as his bride Grace Reta Fergus, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Fergus, of Smiths Falls. Rev. Lattimore officiated.

For the ceremony, the bride chose an Ontario blue ensemble, brown accessories, and a corsage of pink roses. Miss Nora May Fergus was her sister's bridesmaid in a rose pebble crepe dress with black accessories, and a corsage of red roses. Sgt. Russel Sexsmith, of Toronto, stationed at Petawawa, was best man.

The home of the bride's parents was decorated with asters and gladioli and pink and white streamers for the reception, held following the ceremony. The bride's mother, receiving the guests, wore a Queen's blue ensemble with black felt hat and a corsage of tea roses. The bride's table, centred with her wedding cake, was also decorated in pink and white.

Later the couple left for a wedding trip to Toronto and other points, the bride travelling in a rose flannel ensemble with brown accessories. On their return Sgt. Johnston will resume his duties at Petawawa and Mrs. Johnston will live at her home in Smiths Falls.

A large, enthusiastic crowd turned out to patronize the showing of motion pictures by G. K. Fraser, M.P., in Knox Sunday School hall on Reid street. The show was sponsored by the Knox Church Unit of the Red Cross to raise funds for Christmas boxes for soldiers. There were several reels of colored pictures depicting the scenic beauty of the Burleigh Falls district, as well as a number covering Mr. Fraser's visits to Arizona, Fort Churchill and Ottawa.

An added attraction were several delightful whistling numbers by Miss Mignon Mayneord, accompanied at the piano by Miss Phyllis Kidd. Rev. H. J. Mahoney acted as chairman.

...E, WORK and PLAY SAFELY

TWO MINDS WITH BUT A SINGLE AIM

They're going places, these two. Father and son, young man and growing boy, they each have the same objective—by their own efforts to hew a bigger log for their fireside, to carve out a better living for themselves and those they love, to wrest from Canada's free opportunities a rich, productive and contented life.

They don't want to be mollycoddled. They want no one to tell them where they shall work or what they shall eat or wear. All they expect of Canada is the freedom to exercise their own self-reliance and to work among their fellows with that mutual aid and profit that springs from the free interplay of initiative and enterprise spurred by fair competition.

That's a tradition with Canadians, just as it is a tradition with The Bank of Toronto to participate in the efforts of individuals to improve their lot. With friendly, experienced financial counsel, with loans to bridge the difficult periods, with a comprehensive banking service available at every branch, this Bank continues to assist all Canadians in attaining the common objective of a richer and fuller life.

FATHERS SHOULD GUIDE SONS

Men Need Advice on How to Be Good Husbands But Nobody Offers It

DEAR MISS DIX — We often read that every mother should teach her daughter how to be a good wife, but I cannot remember of ever having read anything about fathers teaching their sons how to be good husbands. Yet one is quite as important as the other. Is it not?

CONCERNED.

ANSWER — It certainly is, and there is no greater mystery than why girls should be deluged with advice before marriage on how to be good wives, while nobody bothers to hand out a single admonition to boys who are about to enter the holy estate, though, goodness knows, boys need advice on the subject more than girls do.

It is only a woman who knows what a wife needs to make her happy, so it is the boy's mother, not his father, who should take him aside before marriage and say to him: Son, first get acquainted with your wife. You are going to find out that she has peculiarities, whims, tastes and characteristics that you never dreamed she possessed. Don't try to correct these. You can't do it. They are a part of her. Study them and they will tell you how to get along with her without friction.

Don't order your wife about as if she were a slave. Propitiate her. It isn't what you say and do to a wife that counts. It is the way you you say and do it. Boast of her cooking and housekeeping, and she will work her fingers to the bone to keep you well fed and comfortable. Give her an allowance of her own and don't ask her what she does with it.

Don't criticize your wife. Never make fun of her new hat or dress unless you want to buy her new ones. Show your wife little attentions. Bring her flowers. Take her to places of amusement. Make a chum of her. Talk to her about the things you are interested in. Don't cut out the love-making and you will have a model wife.

And, above all, never forget that little things count more with women than big things, and that they put more stress on words than deeds.

Wife Must Snap Out of Crying Evil

DEAR DOROTHY DIX—I married three years ago. I was 17, my husband 16 years older. I loved him then and have grown to love him more every day since. Here is my trouble: He has a 14-year-old daughter by a previous marriage. She has recently come to live with us and I find that I am terribly jealous of her, and cry over it all the time.

I feel that I should leave my husband, but I can't think of leaving him without bursting into tears. Please try to help me.

MRS. H.

ANSWER—As long as you act like a cry-baby and deliberately work yourself up into a state of hysteria, no one can help you. You have to snap out of it yourself by using some common sense, if you have any, by realizing how silly you are acting and what a mean underhand advantage you are taking of your husband in trying to force him to turn his own child out of doors in order to gratify your desire to monopolize all of his attentions.

For, of course, that is the motive behind the waterworks. You have made up your mind to cry for what you want until you get it, just as a spoiled child does, and I only hope to goodness that your husband has backbone enough not to give in to you.

When you think of a world that is drenched in woe; of women who have lost their sons and brothers and husbands, every man who was near and dear to them, who are biting back their tears and carrying on with smiles on their faces; when you think of women who have had beautiful homes and all the luxuries that money buys who have had everything swept away from them, their houses bombed into piles of rubble, their money gone, who are living in shacks and eating food that once they would not have given to their dogs, but who have not put up one whimper; when you think of the sacrifices of their ease and comfort and way of living that millions of women are gladly making for their country, aren't you ashamed to look yourself in the face when you are howling over having to have your little stepdaughter come to live with you, and making your good husband miserable with your childish tantrums?

Junior Gym Rally Held At Y.W.C.A.

The Y.W.C.A. gymnasium and pool were crowded with happy youngsters Saturday morning, as a Junior gym and swim rally marked the opening of the fall activities. A program of dances and stunts, opening with a grand march, with everyone taking part, was presented, followed by a demonstration of life saving in the pool, and a series of races and stunts. Assisting Miss C. Littlefield were Miss Mary Gall, Girls' Work Secretary, and Mrs. J. H. Vernor, convener of the Health Education Department. Mrs. M. McBride and Mrs. W. Preston were at the piano.

The program was as follows: demonstration by tiny tots with nursery rhymes; reed skipping, by Monday cadets; Mexican hat dance, by junior ballet; Spanish dance, by Jean Millard, Marilyn Hollingsworth and Sunny Gray; an exhibition of double gymnastics by Mrs. Ethel Hopkins, Mrs. Lillian Woods and Mrs. Ruth Choate, senior gym members, and also flying ring work, which delighted the youngsters. A life saving demonstration by the junior life saving class was given in the pool, with Barbara Harris, Elsie Black, Lillian Broombridge, Patsy William, and [illegible]ny Arleigh and Donna Brotherstone, only five and six years of age, taking part.

Winners of races were as follows: 25 Yard dash, 4 years and under—Arline Payne, Sylvia Adams.

Five years—Susan Manley, Diana Cedars.

Six years — Patsy Camarella, Yvonne Grant.

Seven years — Dorothy Kitchen, Ann Merritt.

Eight years—Anne Maudsley, Nola Reid.

Nine years—Carol Ferguson, Diana Miller.

Skipping contest — Shirley Orde, Lona Martin.

THE TEA HOUR GOSSIP . . . .

Today we will give recipes for a variety of sauces that make food more attractive to the eye, and to the palate. They also stimulate appetite and digestion and improve nutrition. The Canadian method of making a roux for white sauce is to melt the fat, add the flour, and cook only until the mixture bubbles before adding the liquid. This saves time but at the expense of the flavor of the sauce. The French method is to melt the fat, add the flour and cook, with constant stirring, for five minutes, before adding any liquid. This removes all raw taste of the flour. Sauces thickened with cornstarch should be cooked at least 15 minutes. Standing over hot water in a double boiler for an hour or longer improves the flavor

Standard Recipe For White Sauce

Thin white sauce, for cream soups. 1 tablespoon butter or other fat, 1 tablespoon flour, 1 cup milk, ¼ teaspoon salt, ⅛ teaspoon pepper.

Medium white sauce for gravies, creamed and scalloped dishes. 2 tablespoons butter (or other fat), 2 tablespoons flour, 1 cup milk, ¼ teaspoon salt, ⅛ teaspoon pepper.

Thick white sauce for cutlets, croquettes and souffles. 4 tablespoons butter (or other fat), 4 tablespoons flour, 1 cup milk, ¼ teaspoon salt, ⅛ teaspoon pepper.

Methods 1 and 2 are used for making these sauces.

Method 1 — Melt butter and blend in flour until smooth. Add milk gradually, stirring constantly until boiling point is reached. Reduce heat and cook 3 minutes longer. Add seasonings and blend. Place over hot water to keep hot and cover tightly to prevent film from forming.

Method 2 — Heat milk. Blend butter or other fat and flour together and add to hot milk, stirring constantly until mixture thickens. Cook for 3 minutes or longer, add seasonings and blend.

Method 3 — When less butter than flour is used, heat ¾ of the milk. Mix remaining milk with flour to make a smooth paste, stir into hot milk, heat to the boiling point and cook until thickened, stirring constantly. Add butter (or other fat) and seasonings and cook for three minutes longer.

Maitre D'Hotel Sauce

2 cups drawn butter sauce, 1 tablespoon lemon juice, 1 tablespoon chopped parsley, 2 egg yolks, salt and pepper. Add the lemon juice and chopped parsley to the drawn butter sauce. Let it cool slightly, add the beaten egg yolks and season with salt and pepper. Do not permit the sauce to boil after the addition of the egg-yolk.

Caper Sauce

Follow the recipe for Maitre D'Hotel Sauce, omitting the parsley and adding three tablespoons capers. This is an excellent sauce to serve with fish.

Pettit Family Honored For Long Service

Three well-known members of Murray Street Baptist church, Mr. and Mrs. L. J. Pettit and Mrs. James Moulton, were honored by the congregation Sunday evening, prior to their departure from Peterborough, to take up residence in Grimsby.

Mr. Pettit has been a deacon for over 25 years, and both he and Mrs. Pettit have given more than thirty years' service to the church. Both have been teachers in the church school, and Mr. Pettit has served on various boards and committees, while Mrs. Pettit has been active in the women's organizations, and a leader in dramatics. Mrs. Moulton has also served with many women's societies.

On behalf of the Board of Trustees and Deacons and other elected officers of the church, Mr. and Mrs. Pettit were presented with a Duncan Phyfe walnut coffee table, with officers of the church in charge, and the Church Clerk, L. H. Ingram, making the presentation. The Women's Association presented Mrs. Moulton with a bouquet of bronze 'mums, with Miss Eileen Morgan, president of the Association, making the presentation.

Rev. J. H. Sutcliffe in his address of appreciation, said that Mr. Pettit's judgment and council had been invaluable through the years, and his loyalty to the church and fine and distinguished service would be sorely missed. Of Mrs. Pettit, Rev. Mr. Sutcliffe said that her keen sense of the spiritual had been an asset not only to the church, but its environs, and she had always been eager to help in any way. Mrs. Moulton's kindly spirit and loving attention had endeared her to everyone, he continued, and concluded by asking them to "carry Murray Street church ever upon your hearts, and be assured that a grateful people will carry you ever on their hearts."

Special Program.

A musical program was presented, opening with a duet, "Love Divine," by Mrs. Harry Northrop and Mrs. Stewart Mitchell, with Harry Northrop at the piano. Stanley Northrop, accompanied by Harry Northrop, played two violin selections, "Ave Maria," and "Schon Rosmarin." Mrs. Stewart Mitchell sang a solo, "Thanks be to God," accompanied by Harry Northrop.

The Sunday school was decorated with autumn flowers and leaves for the occasion, and following the musical program, refreshments were served by the Women's Association, with Mrs. Howard Frise as convener, and members of the Association assisting in serving. The tea table was centred with a bouquet of 'mums, and set with silver, with Mrs. S. Cottingham and Mrs. F. M. Somerville pouring tea. Rev. J. H. Sutcliffe was chairman.

IN MEMORIAM

McCLURE—In loving memory of a dear father, Thomas McClure, who passed away one year to-day, October 2, 1943.

One year has passed dear father,
Since you were called away;
How well do I remember
That sad and weary day.
You suffered much, you murmured not.
We watched you day by day;
We cried and prayed that your dear life
Would not be taken away.

—Sadly missed by daughter Nettie and sons, Arthur and Harold.

McCLURE—In loving memory of a dear husband, Thomas McClure, who passed away one year ago to-day, October 2, 1943.

He suffered much with patience bore,
Physicians were in vain,
Till God above, in His great love,
Released him of his pain.
He did not fail to do his best,
His heart was true and tender,
He worked hard for those he left,
That's something to remember.
He bade no one a last farewell,
He said good-bye to none.
The Heavenly Gates were opened wide,
A loving voice said "Come".

—Sadly missed by his wife, Emma.

Obituary

MRS. FRASER BOWEN

MARMORA, Oct. 2 (ENS) — The death occurred in Chicago on Thursday, September 28 of Mrs. Fraser Bowen, widow of the late Fraser Bowen.

The late Mrs. Bowen, whose maiden name was Eleanor Norrish, was born in Hamilton, and when two years of age moved with her parents to the United States, where most of her life was spent, and where she married the late Fraser Bowen, son of the late James Bowen of Marmora. With her husband, she returned to Marmora about twenty years ago and when in Marmora she took a deep interest in the Public Library and was in touch with the juvenile readers. Her husband passed away in 1938 and a son, Lawrence, was killed in the last war.

About two months ago, she left the residence of her hister-in-law, Mrs. H. R. Pearce and Mr. Pearce, with whom she had spent recent years, to rejoin her son, Llewellyn, at Chicago, Ill., at whose residence she passed away. Her son was her sole surviving relative. The funeral took place this afternoon at Jackson Mich.

Milkweed Harvest Collection Made

"Thanksgiving Day, Monday, October 9, should produce many hundreds of bags of milkweed pods," Major L. I. Johnson, district supervisor of this special war effort, for the federal Agricultural Supplies Board, suggested to the Examiner this morning.

It is both a hope and a reminder of the importance of such a harvest of milkweed down that will pile up a huge quantity of the substitute for kapok, now in Japanese control, and vitally required for airmen's fighting togs.

"The Examiner carried a news item from Cobourg the other day, announcing that Northumberland schools had taken 8,000 bags," said Major Johnson. "Actually Northumberland and Durham have received 23,000 emty bags to be filled with milkweed pods. Each county originally asked for 8,000 bags, but since then they have increased their undertaking, and we are certainly hoping that their accepted allotment of 23,000 bags will be returned full to the very last one."

A school at Ajax, wartime industry near Pickering, has already packed more than 500 bags and are on the way to 1,000. Every rural school in Carleton and Leeds counties have fences lined with bags already filled.

Major Johnson intends to spend several days this week in the Peterborough area to stimulate the work of the children of this county and district.

scoreless frames. Junkin led off with a dougle to left and scored after Morgan had flied to Quinn and the right-fielder's throw got away from Kirkland.

Ottawa added four more runs in the sixth. After Lang opened with a double Quinn was safe on Anderson's high throw to first. Caron rolled to Revoir. Kirkland doubled to left scoring Lang. Cotey's single past short and Doug. McKenzie's double to right sent in three more markers.

A Costly Omission

Peterborough Soldiers got four in the seventh and would have had more if Junkin hadn't forgotten to touch second. Revoir doubled to centre and Anderson was safe when Cotey juggled McKenzie's throw on a roller down the first base line. Mortimer was out on a fine stop by Latham of a hot shot, Revoir scoring. Herrick doubled to centre, scoring Anderson and Procyk's single sent Herrick home. Junkin hit one a mile down the left field foul line for what should have been an easy homer. Procyk scored on the rap but Junkin was out for missing second. Morgan flied to short.

The losers made it 10 to 6 in the eighth. Kavanagh bunted safely, Chambers dropped a single into left. Revoir was out when he ran into his own bunt. Anderson walked, filling the bases. Mortimer lined to Quinn in right, Kavanagh scoring after the catch, but Herrick flied to A. McKenzie in left.

Ottawa got the final run of the game in their half. Caron singled over second. Kirkland was safe on Junkin's throw to first. Cotey was hit by his own bunt and D. McKenzie popped to Morgan. A. McKenzie rolled to Junkin, but instead of stepping on the bag for a force the Soldier third baseman made a bad throw to first and Caron scored.

Saturday's Game

The latter stages of Saturday's game was a nightmare for local fans the they watched the Peterborough Soldiers toss away a 7 to 1 lead and eventually lose out in the 12th inning 8 to 7.

The Military Training Centre broke out in front with four runs in the first inning added another in the third, came back with two in the sixth after Ottawa Postal team had finally broke through for a run, and were in front 7 to 1 at the end of the sixth.

The Peterborough attack folded then with Pitcher Bradshaw blanking them for the next six frames. Meanwhile Ottawa, who had been held under control by Earl Revoir up to that stage, suddenly broke loose. They chased three runs in the seventh to make it 7 to 4 and came back with three more in the ninth to sew it up. Then after blowing a great chance in the 11th, when they filled the bases with nobody out and didn't score, the Ottawa gang finally pushed a run over in the 12th to grab off the game.

Bradshaw, after a bad start, finished strong, allowing the Military Training Centre only two hits and no runs in the last six innings. On the other hand Revoir who had begun like a sure winner weakened, and so did his defence, with the result that a game that looked surely in the bag was kicked away.

Kirkland, D. McKenzie, A. McKenzie, Quinn and Lang each had two hits for the winners while Doug. Mortimer led the Military Training Centre team with a double and two singles.

The losers had two double-plays that helped keep the score down.

Get Good Start

Peterborough Soldiers scored four in the opening frame on Anderson's single to left, D. McKenzie's error on Mortimer's sacrifice bunt, an infield hit by Herrick, Procyk's double to right and a wild pitch.

Junkin's double to left, followed by Morgan's single to centre paved the way for a fifth Peterborough counter in the third.

Ottawa Postal did not break into the run column until the fourth when after Kirkland had singled and D. McKenzie had doubled, Morgan juggled a throw to first with two out long enough to lose the batter and Kirkland registered.

Peterborough Soldiers came back with two to go in front 7 to 1. Anderson walked, advanced on a wild pitch and scored on Mortimer's double through short. Mortimer scored on Junkin's hit to left.

That ended the scoring for the homesters, but Ottawa came through with three in the seventh to get back into the ball game. Lang and Quinn bunted safely, Caron singled to centre filling the bases. Kirkland rolled to Revoir but with an easy force at the plate the Peterborough pitcher tossed to first, Lang scoring. Cotey singled to right, scoring Quinn and Caron.

Tied In Ninth

Ottawa bounced back with three more in the ninth to tie it up.

With one away Anderson ran into close to the box and missed Cotey's high fly, the batter reaching second on the miscue. D. McKenzie singled past first, scoring Cotey. Bradshaw popped to Kavanagh, but singles by Latham and A McKenzie sewed up the ball game.

The visitors lost a great chance in the tenth when they filled the bases with nobody out on two errors and a hit. Cotey however popped to Morgan and D. McKenzie lined to Chambers for a double play.

They finally won out in the twelfth. Lang opened with a single and Quinn was walked. Caron forced Quinn at second, Lang going to third. Caron stole second. Kirkland's long fly to centre scored Lang with the winning run. Cotey was safe on an error but D. McKenzie rolled out.

Revoir and Mortimer drew passes in the Peterborough half but the necessary hit was not forthcoming, Bradshaw striking out Herrick to retire the side and end the game.

Mickey Rooney In New Romance

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Oct. 2—(AP)—Mickey Rooney, the motion-picture actor now a private in the United States Army, and Miss Betty Jane Rase, the Miss Birmingham of 1944, were married here Saturday after a whirlwind courtship of less than a week.

Miss Rase, a tall, 17-year-old blond, was introduced to Rooney, who is stationed at Camp Sibert, Ala., last Sunday at a movie preview here by Lily May Caldwell, Birmingham News reporter who accompanied Miss Rase to the recent Atlantic City beauty pageant, where she was fifth in the Miss America contest.

Rumors of the wedding had been current here for two days. Miss Rase wore a diamond engagement ring when she returned from a visit to Gadsden, Ala., near Camp Sibert, in mid-week.

The diminutive and ebullient Mickey, one of the highest salaried players in the film industry, was inducted into the army last June 14 after earlier having been rejected on physical grounds.

He is the divorced husband of Actress Ava Gardner, whom he married at Ballard, Cal., January 10, 1942.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

HIS ENTRY TOO EARLY

IF THE declarer has an almost solid suit in dummy, which probably requires a side entry to bring it in, the defenders may well study the trump holding there. Especially if there is no other probable side entry in the dummy, and it looks as if he may be able to win the third round of trumps in that hand, the whole fate of the contract may depend on just that factor. Making the dummy ruff some other suit, removing one of its trumps, may turn that trump entry into a second-round one, too early to be of telling value to him.

South	West	North	East
1 ♥	Pass	2 ♦	Pass
4 ♥

West opened his spade 2. East won with the Q, also scored the K and then switched to the heart 2, in the hope of keeping the declarer from ruffing any spades in the dummy. South won this with the A, laid down the heart K, scored dummy's diamond A and K, led a third diamond, which he ruffed with the heart Q, led to the heart J and used the diamond 8 and 7 for discards of the spade 9 and club 9. He then gave up a club, breezing home with his contract.

If East had sensed the real danger of the hand, the diamond suit, he would not have switched to a trump on the third trick—just what the declarer wanted him to do—but would have led a third spade. If declarer refused to ruff that in the dummy, the club A could have set him at once. If he ruffed it, he would have turned the heart J into a second-round instead of a third round trick. That would have made it impossible for him to reach the dummy to run diamonds after the trumps were out and the suit established. As a consequence, he would have had to lose two club tricks.

Fliers Serving In Indian Theatre Lament Lack Of Entertainment

Ingenuity is the keynote at R.A.F stations in India, where the airmen see no girls and have no entertainment, and depend upon their own inventions for amusement and comfort, according to Flying Officer Donald Hill, who has just returned home after 1½ years in the Far East.

The climate, where the average temperature is between 110 and 115 degrees, 10½ months in the year, is the governing factor in everything that is done. For those who don't like slaving at a job from 7 to 5 o'clock, but like to work a few hours and rest, India sounds like an ideal place.

During the warm weather, the ground crew and maintenance men are on the job at 6 o'clock in the morning, and they finish at 10. From then until four in the afternoon they enjoy a siesta period, which consists of finding a cool place to flop and relaxing. Then their second work shift is from 4 until 7 p.m. Native boys are at hand to provide, cool drinks, shine shoes and other jobs.

The words siesta and gramophone are almost synonymous, according to F.O. Hill. When he and his crew left Northern Ireland, foreseeing a barren future ahead of them, they picked up a gramophone and some records. The men on the station treasure the machine as they would the crown jewels and since there is a large victrola company in Calcutta, it has been fairly easy to augment the record stocks.

Have Shower Too

The men live in bamboo huts with thatched roofs, four rooms to a hut and two men to a room. Washing facilities were something which had been rather neglected and in F.O. Hill's hut, the men fixed up their own rude shower. An old four-gallon gasoline drum, with holes punctured in the bottom had been hung up, and the airmen had their "boys" fill the drum with water as they stood underneath. It was quite a satisfactory shower too.

This young airman, who is the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. Hill, 472 Monaghan road, claims he has found the war rather uneventful. He spent six months in Great Britain, when the country was undergoing some of its heaviest raids. In all that time he never was bombed, always landing in London and other points, when the bombers were elsewhere.

Some time after he reached the Far East, he was visiting a village near the border of Burma. Before he finished his job the drone of engines was heard in the distance and his companions made for the air raid shelters. Fifteen Japanese bombers winged their way unhurriedly toward the village, but their luck was out that day. Fighter planes and ack-ack crews accounted for 50 per cent of the attacking force. This was his first raid.

The air raid shelters, or what pass for them, aren't exactly good for morale, according to this airman. They consist of a hole in the sand, and a roof covered with sand bags. Everyone crowds into these small shelters, and by the time they come out they are rather grubby. He pointed out that these bombing raids upset the natives as they are very excitable. Although there are not enough shelters for the thousands of natives, they are not needed, because it is impossible to herd the people into them. They rush outside into the streets because they would rather see what is going on.

Accident In Jeep

About the accident, which brought about his return to Canada, F.O. Hill was vague. At the time he was doing inspection work on airdromes and he and a fellow officer were driving home in a jeep at dusk, after their day's work. When he woke up he was in hospital.

"I surmise we ran off the road, which was very narrow, and in that way got knocked around. I spent seven months in hospital, and then I was invalided back to Canada. When my furlough is up, I report to Headquarters and they will decide what I will do."

A large bamboo hut on the Squadron grounds was used as a cinema, he said. The pictures were run off by a native, and although they were old, they served the purpose. Some of the men hunted up a "wreck of a piano" and there were several boys who could play, so the crowd enjoyed a lot of community singing.

"Because of shipping conditions, canteens are not kept at stations. If supplies had been shipped to a canteen from a large city, they would have been stolen before the train had been gone more than a few moments. They are the equals of the thieves of Baghdad. The Salvation Army had a Headquarters in Bombay and whenever any of the men from the squadron went up there they called in and were given as much in the way of supplies as they wanted. That was the best that could be done."

Splendid Care

Hospitals and their staffs received the highest praise from their late patient, who declared he had been given the best of care. Although there are a few R.A.F. and Indian hospitals, most of them are British Army hospitals and it was in the latter that F.O. Hill was a patient.

"The entire hospital staff was cheerful and did their best to help make us forget we were so far from home. I was a patient there last Christmas and believe it or not we had a real Christmas dinner with all the trimmings There was turkey and even plum pudding. I don't know where they got it, but I wasn't asking any questions. The doctors came around and served it and the Indian Red Cross distributed oranges, candies and a little leather bill fold with the words 'from the Indian Red Cross, Bengal, 1943' to each man.

"After I was able to do things, I found I couldn't put in all the time reading so the Diversional Therapy organization took me in tow. The women of the organization came around regularly and brought things for the patients to work on. Mine was tapestry. It was fitted on a frame which could be fitted to my bed table. It took me three months to work it, and I am very proud of it," he exclaimed, pointing to the place it graced in his mother's living room. The purpose of this work is to gradually give exercise to limbs that have been injured and to build up a patient's morale."

Since he was in an Army hospital, F.O. Hill's fellow patients were often the men who had slugged it out with the Japs in Burma. Outside of mentioning that they had done a fine job, he said he preferred not to discuss them since many of them were "gruesome" casualties.

Bombed Burma

Three other Canadians, a South American and a Welshman made up F.O. Hill's crew, he being the pilot. Before he took on the airdrome work, they made several bombing runs over Burma, which he said were without incident.

The fighter pilots are the ones who see the action. We in the bombers are just truck drivers. Our crew made several sorties over Burma and we had no difficulty finding our way. Except for the monsoons the weather is always sunny and clear and landmarks easy to find. There is only one way to be cool in India, and that was to get up in a plane. We also did some patrol work looking for enemy craft and it was very monotonous."

It is difficult to decide which of the Hill family is the most delighted—the parent's at their son's return, or the airman's pleasure in getting back. He said it will be a long time before the novelty wears off, and more than ever he appreciates his home town.

Polish Patriots Surrender To Germans In Warsaw Many Join Russian Forces

City Presents Scene Of Great Desolation
Battered Like Stalingrad
Underground Fought For 63 Days

By ALEX. H. SINGLETON—Associated Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Oct. 3—(AP).—Polish patriots gave up their 63-day battle to wrest battered and besieged Warsaw from the Germans last night, and an escaped Polish officer told Moscow newspapers that thousands of insurgents had crossed the Vistula to Russian lines, defying surrender orders. "Warsaw is as greatly destroyed as Stalingrad," the officer was quoted as saying. "There is no longer any resistance in any part of Warsaw."

Polish Army Headquarters in London confirmed earlier Moscow and Berlin dispatches that Lt.-Gen. Tadeusz (Bor) Komorowski, new exiled Polish commander in chief, had given up the fight.

A terse communique from Gen. Tadeusz (Bor) Komorowski, new Polish commander in chief, said: "Warsaw has fallen."

This confirmed earlier reports from both Berlin and Moscow that fighting inside the capital has ended. Russian forces are in Praga, the industrial eastern suburb of Warsaw, separated from the main city by the broad and swift Vistula river.

Earlier, Polish sources in London insisted that only a "mercy truce" had been ordered to remove civilians from the city of 1,265,000.

A Polish military spokesman in London asserted that Gen. Tadeusz Komorowski, Poland's new commander-in-chief also known as Gen. Bor, was inside Warsaw with his troops "contrary to all other reports," and that he would resume the fight as soon as the evacuation was completed.

But, from Moscow, Associated Press War Correspondent Daniel De Luce wrote that an "official" Polish report—presumably from the Soviet-sponsored National Liberation Committee—had announced that Warsaw's resistance had collapsed.

That report said the capitulation had been arranged by Col. Monter, acting on behalf of Komorowski, and said those who repudiated the surrender were fighting to escape to the Soviet-held right bank of the Vistula.

Contradictory Reports

The confusion after two months of desperate street-by-street fighting was reflected by German radio reports which first announced that resistance had ceased and then later reported the fighting had been resumed.

While even Polish military men

1,700 Warplanes In Raids On Hun Plants

LONDON, Oct. 3 — (CP). — Hundreds of R.A.F. heavy bombers breached the seawall guarding the Netherlands Island of Walcheren with six-ton bombs today and sent the North Sea pouring over German installations denying the Allies use of the great Belgian port of Antwerp, 36 miles farther down the Schelde Estuary.

The British bombers struck after 1,700 United States planes attacked war industries and airfields at the south German cities of Nurnberg, Gaggenau and Giebelstadt.

The fire and water blow at the biggest of the Netherlands islands in the Schelde came less than a day after Gen. Eisenhower warned civilians to evacuate before heavy bombings. Walcheren is the westernmost of the islands barring the seaward approach to Antwerp and is known to mount heavy guns capable of raking the approaches to the undamaged Belgian port, which the swift British advance captured intact. Some of the guns may be able to shoot all the 35 miles to Antwerp.

The "earthquake" bombs of 12,000 pounds tore gaps in the dike near the village of West Capelle, on the southwestern tip of Walcheren. Crews of attacking Lancasters reported a great sheet of water was

Lots Of Liquor Held In Bond

OTTAWA, Oct. 3 — (CP). — Every province has large stocks of liquor in bond, it was disclosed here today by an official of the Federal Excise Department.

Commenting on a Vancouver dispatch that the British Columbia Liquor Control Board owns 100,000 gallons of Demarara rum which is unavailable because of Federal restrictions, the official said that every province is in "a similar situation."

He referred to the order-in-council which restricted the release of imported spirits held in bond to 70 per cent of the amount released in the 12 months ended Oct. 31, 1942. When the restriction was imposed a large quantity of liquor was being held in bond and in the period since publication of the order-in-council stocks have accumulated.

"All the provinces have quite a big stock of liquor on hand — perhaps enough to slightly increase their monthly rations — but there is no indication that the order will be lifted in the near future," the official added.

Says C.C.F. Program Aiding Communism

KELOWNA, B.C., Oct. 3—(CP).—Hon. Holon Low, National Leader of the Social Credit Association of Canada, told an audience here last night "that the drive for Socialism over the world has now been pretty well established as the basic cause of Fascism."

"Socialism by undermining faith in democracy, paves the way for dictatorship from other sources. They (Socialists) create the political atmosphere or climate in which demagogues can rise to power."

Mr. Low said the C.C.F. in Canada was undermining the people's faith in democracy while the "true Communism is sitting back biding the time when the next step towards totalitarianism can be taken by him."

British Expert Lashes Out At Russians

LONDON, Oct. 3. — (AP).—The semi-official Polish newspaper Dziennik Polski has accused the Soviet-sponsored Polish National Committee of Liberation not only of failing to help the underground fight in Warsaw but of standing in the way of assistance.

An editorial replying to-day to attacks made by the Liberation committee on Gen. Tadeusz Komorowski (Gen. Bor), recently named by the Polish government in London as military commander-in-chief, recalled that committee officials declared Aug. 6 there was no fighting in Warsaw.

"Later, when the Soviet press admitted fighting was going on," the editorial added, "they (committee officials) began to make charges that the rising had begun permaturely, and they did despite the fact that they bore the responsibility for the communique issued by the Union of Patriots from Moscow on July 29, which called the population of Warsaw 'to arms'."

Meanwhile, Alastair Forbes, London Daily Mail parliamentary expert, bluntly criticized Russia's policy toward Poland and Britain's "acquiescent" attitude.

"The soldiers of Warsaw's heroic underground army are to-day being deported to Russia by the Red

Canucks Trap 5,000 Germans

By ROSS MUNRO
Canadian Press War Correspondent

WITH THE CANADIANS ON THE LEOPOLD CANAL, Belgium, Oct, 3 — (CP Cable). — North of Ghent and along the Leopold Canal Canadian infantry and tanks are holding a front whose principal features are its mysteries and its paradoxes.

They have cooped up at least 5,000 Germans in a pocket south of the mouth of the Schelde, but the Leopold Canal bounding this pocket is a big obstacle in the Canadians' path. Now as they face the enemy across this waterway strange things are happening inside the German lines.

The Canadians have seen long streaks of flame shoot high into the air from positions behind the German front. It looks as if some projectile is being fired, but nothing but ordinary shells and mortars from normal weapons has fallen in the Canadian area.

Capt. A. M. James of Brantford, Ont., said he saw six of these streaks of flame in two hours and said they "shot skyward like a meteor."

Treachery Within China Adds To War Crisis Situation Far More Serious Than Believed

KIRKLAND LAKE, Oct. 3 — (CP). — Treachery within China, lack of unity, lack of modern equipment and the activities of quislings and dishonest administrators are the major factors in the serious setbacks China is suffering today, Rt. Rev. W. C. McGrath, vicar-general of the Scarboro Foreign Mission Society, of Toronto, said last night.

Msgr. McGrath, who for 10 years was prefect apostolic of Lishui Chekiang in China, told a gathering here:

"The military situation in China is far more serious than people realize. It is nearer collapse than at any time during her seven years of war against Japan.

"The cause of her collapse is a lack of modern equipment, a lack of unity with which Chiang Kai Shek finds himself confronted, the pro-Japanese element among the upper classes and the very bad treatment of the common Chinese soldier.

"Coupled with this is the Chungking Communist impasse creating a grave situation. But the fault of China's collapse does not lie with the common soldier. It lies with the officers, traitors, quislings and dishonest administrators."

Canadians Stage Speedy Advance

WITH THE 1ST CANADIAN ARMY, Oct. 3.—(CP Cable.)—Faced with the threat of being trapped by the 1st Canadian Army, the Germans to-day were pulling out of their salient north of Antwerp, abandoning the port's northern suburb town of Merxem as Canadian infantry stormed through its outskirts.

According to civilian reports, the Germans also were withdrawing from areas farther north and may be falling back to a line running inside the Dutch frontier from Flushing Spit east to Tilburg, 15 miles from Eindhoven.

Northeast of Antwerp good progress was being made by Canadian infantry who were widening their bridgehead over the Antwerp-Turnhout canal near St. Leonard. These

Allies Probe Siegfried Line Looking For Weak Spots

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press War Analyst

The American 1st Army's heavy and thus far successful attack in the Aachen sector may well be a preliminary to the all-out offensive for the German frontier defences, but a tough task lies ahead of the Allies and we shall do well to note Gen. Eisenhower's caution to correspondents yesterday not to count too immediately on a break-through the Siegfried Line.

As a matter of fact it may not fall to the 1st Army to be the first to crash past Hitler's border defences. As pointed out in this column yesterday, one would expect Eisenhower to stage a series of big attasks along the entire 460-mile front, and it may be that the break will be made in some other sector.

The Westwall in th Aachen zone presents a formidable barrier, and the mighty Rhine may be even more difficult since this swiftly-moving river varies in width from a quarter to a third of a mile in the Cologne zone beyond Aachen. Should the Germans destroy the great bridges at Cologne and neighboring cities it would give the Allied engineers something to sweat over.

Hitler has massed much strength in this strategic sector in anticipation of the attack which now has been launched. If this were the only battle he had to fight in the coming offensive he might hope to stand off the enemy for a considerable time.

Hitler's troubles will multiply rapidly when the Allies launch big drives at other strategic points in the line, because he has no reserves to meet such commitments. If he weakens any point under attack by withdrawing troops for use elsewhere, then the Allies will hurl fresh strength against the weakened spot.

Fiumicino River Stalls, 8th Army Drive

By NOLAND NORGAARD
Associated Press Correspondent

ROME, Oct. 3 — (AP). — The British 8th Army's attack on the Adriatic sector was brought to a complete standstill by the flooded Fiumicino River behind which the Germans are strongly entrenched, it was announced to-day.

American infantry captured Monghidoro, an important road junction 18 miles due south of Bologna, as the Allied 5th Army plowed slowly northward yesterday through the Apennines, in a drive still handicapped by deep mud.

The Germans counter-attacked Americans on the dominant heights of Monte Battaglia and Monte Caphella which command a road joining the important Bologna-Rimini highway at Imola, 11 miles away.

On the road to Mimola itself enemy resistance remained strong. The farthest point of advance was Carseggio, roughly a mile behind the strongholds on the two peaks.

In addition to capturing Monghidoro, toward Bologna along highway 65 (the Florence-Bologna Highway) 5th Army troops took Cedrecchia, three miles west of the highway and 18½ miles south of Bologna.

Finnish Troops Attacking Nazis

OULU, Finland, Oct. 3—(AP).—Finnish troops closed in from two directions on the German stronghold at Kemi at the head of the Gulf of Bothnia today as the Germans retreated along a front of approximately 120 miles in northern Finland.

The drive on Kemi came from Tornio (Tornea), captured by Finnish troops in a surprise landing from the Gulf of Bothnia Saturday and from Juivaniemi, which Finnish Arctic units have just reached.

Kemi is 20 miles southeast of Tornio on the Swedish border and approximately the same distance northwest of Kuivaniemi. The capture of Tornio trapped German elements on both sides of the Kemi River.

(Swedish newspaper reports said German troops were fleeing north of Tornio after Finnish troops had captured the enemy garrison in the town. One account estimated that 2,000 Germans were routed by the Finns there.)

German troops, for the most part, appeared to be hurrying to keep out of the way of the Finns.

Outer Crust Of West Wall Pierced In New Drive Aachen Almost Encircled

Main Highway North Of Aachen Severed
As Americans Widen Breach
Second Major Penetration Of Nazi Defences

By JAMES M. LONG—Associated Press War Correspondent

LONDON, Oct 3—(AP).—U.S. 1st Army troops have broken through the Siegfried Line north of Aachen, capturing Ubach and threatening Aachen with complete encirclement. Driving through a break in the first heavy crust of Westwall defences, the Americans by 11 a.m. had fought four miles forward from their jump-off point yesterday, a front dispatch said, and cut the main highway leading north of the Siegfried bastion city of Aachen.

The crash-through opened a second major break in Hitler's Westwall defences, AP Correspondent Don Whitehead said. The other breach has been carved out south of Aachen, which is astride a main highway to the Rhine and its rich war industries.

Dismal weather reduced activity on the British - Canadian - Polish front. Canadians pushed the Germans out of Merxem,a suburb one mile northeast of Antwerp. There were no enemy counter-attacks in the British Arnhem-Nijmegen sector but one at Overloon, 17 miles southeast of Nijmegen cost the Germans half the tanks and troops they threw into the drive.

To the north of the U. S. 1st Army wedge, Allied soldiers all along the Maas (Meuse) river line applied supporting pressure to keep the enemy from shifting reserves.

British 2nd Army forces drove eight miles from Deause to Neijel and flung the Germans from Overloon, their last strong Holland pocket west of the Meuse 17 miles southeast of Nijmegen.

Pour In More Troops.

All along that line and north along the Nijmegen-Arnhem corridor they were in close contact with strong German forces as the Nazis poured reserves across the Rhine to hold the Allied tide back from the vital Ruhr area.

On the western flank of the corridor, past 'S Hertogenbosch to the Dutch border North of Antwerp, no progress was reported.

The Germans' prepared line runs back as deep as three miles on the sector where American troops are attacking. Berlin asserted that "so far the Allies have nowhere pierced really deep into Germany."

American mobile artillery drummed out so heavily that in many places Germans fled their suicide pillboxes and centred their defence in thicker-walled concrete field forts.

Spotty clouds scudded low over battlefront, and there was no immediate indication whether Allied planes were able to continue Monday's pin-point smashing of enemy strongpoints.

The Germans tried to divert strength from the wedge into the Siegfried Line aimed between Cologne and Dusseldorf by counter-attacking in the forest west of Hurtgen, some 150 miles south.

The counter-attack was "contained with no ground lost," the communique said.

The U.S. 3rd Army drove to the outskirts of Grevenmacher on the Moselle River border 10 miles from the German town of Trier, and in the south cleared the last Germans from the forest of Gremecey almost 20 miles due east of Nancy.

The 7th Army liberated Ronchamp in its closest approach to the town of Belfort. Ronchamp is 10 miles west of Belfort at the entrance to the Belfort Gap to Germany.

A front dispatch said the American 1st Army's drive north of Aachen was not expected to result in a sudden grand sweep to the

Allied Forces Invade Island Of Crete

LONDON, Oct. 3—(CP).—Strong Allied forces have landed on the northwest part of Crete, the Morocco radio asserted today.

The brief announcement gave no details.

The German garrison at Crete, however, appeared in a hopeless position in view of the Allied occupation earlier of the Island of Kythera, between Crete and the mainland of Greece.

The Germans have been reported to be withdrawing their forces from islands ringing the southern tip of Greece, but there have been no indications that they had evacuated Crete—symbol of one of the Germans' greatest triumphs in this war.

Allied headquarters in Rome recently announced that Crete had been blockaded by Allied naval forces and reported continuing air attacks on Nazi installations on the island.

A dispatch last night said British Commandos landed unopposed on the Island of Kythera the night of September 15. A week before a garrison of 150 Germans had fled after destroying a wireless station they maintained there.

British and Canadian naval units carried the Commandos to the tiny island from Italy. Located 120 miles south of Athens and six miles from the southernmost tip of the Peleponnesus, it was the first Greek territory liberated by the British.

They were given a joyful welcome by the island's 9,000 inhabitants.

Glengarrians At Boulogne

By WILLIAM STEWART
Canadian Press War Correspondent

WITH THE 1ST CANADIAN ARMY, Oct. 3 — (CP. Cable). — The 3rd Canadian Division — veterans of the battle of Normandy — was the Canadian infantry forces which in the last two weeks of September assaulted and overcame the big German garrison at Boulogne, capturing the Channel supply port and taking 11,000 prisoners, it was permitted to disclose today.

The operation was remarkable for two things:

1. The manner in which infantrymen with strong air support and backed by specialized British armored formation sometimes called "zoos," fought their way through German defence belts with concrete backbones.

2. The smallness of the Canadian infantry force which carried out the operation.

Washington Warns Of Rift

Fears Allied War Effort May Be Weakened

WASHINGTON, Oct. 3.—(AP).—United States officials are becoming mildly apprehensive lest there should be a general weakening of Allied co-operation—particularly in relations between Britain and Russia—as the war against Germany concludes. The Polish situation is being studied in this light.

At the moment the highest aim of American diplomacy may be described as designed to preserve this unity during the critical period now beginning, in which post-war economic and political policies must be formed throughout Europe.

On the shaping of these policies, it is believed, depends the ultimate success of whatever world peace league may be set up.

The core of the diplomatic problem is regarded as being the mutual suspicions and misunderstandings which cloud the dealings between Russia and the rest of the world. Partly this is the expected result of conflict of interest between Russia and Britain in the Balkans; partly the result of ignorance about how people inside and outside Russia do things differently.

By far the most serious clash of Anglo-Russian interests is in the Balkans because of Russia's westward expansion of influence and Britain's concern over the Turkish-Dardanelles flank of the Empire life-line to India. Probably less vital but more spectacular is the conflict over Poland.

Chinese Press Protests

Claims Churchill Statement Wrong

CHUNGKING, Oct. 3—(AP)—Prime Minister Churchill's recent use of the term "lavish" to describe American help to China drew an editorial protest in the Chinese press today.

Ta Kung Pao, China's most influential newspaper, said the world should realize that Britain and the United States were not entirely free from responsibility, at least morally, for China's military weakness, and that American lend-lease help to China amounted only to one or two per cent of the total given the Allies.

For four years before the United States entered the war China fought singlehanded, receiving only "rather limited" help from Russia, America and Britain, the newspaper said. Meanwhile she suffered great hardships through closure of the Burma Road and "Japanese air bombings with American-made bombs and American-supplied gasoline."

When both the United States and Britain became her Allies China was entitled legitimately to ask assistance from them, the publication continued, adding that in the battle for Burma China sacrificed some 50,000 or 60,000 of her best troops, sustaining a loss much greater than that of Britain.

All Ontario Watching Peterboro Drive

The one satisfactory feature of the Memorial Community Centre drive, the contributions of the city's manufacturing concerns, today continued to provide the most pleasing news in the campaign by virtue of attaining its objective of an even $100,000. In the face of a lagging standing in the three other divisions of the canvass, two of which are slightly above the 50 per cent mark and the third still well short of the half-way point, the manufacturers touched the goal set for them, with a few firms remaining to be reported.

Total funds collected up-to-date, the finance committee stated this morning, are $165,821.35. For the employees canvass the figure is $37,688.50, for special names and retail merchants, $23,506.35; and for the general canvass, including outside communities, $4,626.50.

Some support has been received for the Centre outside of the city, support which the committee is most gratified to discover coming in and which it hopes will be followed by others in the remaining days of the campaign. As an example, J. G. Jopling of Bridgenorth, who took it on himself voluntarily to contact neighbours, has turned in eight subscriptions amounting to $91.

H. A. Shearer of Buckhorn has turned in two subscriptions totalling $20; Charlie Herkimer, Buckhorn, has sent in $5; a Keene resident has mailed in two subscriptions amounting to $20; and another resident of Keene left $5 as his donation at the office.

Regarding contributions made in person at the Water street office, John E. Keyes, finance chairman, said today that donations handed in in that way numbered 89 totalling $840. This was, he said, far in excess of the best performance of any one of the canvassing teams in the city, the most successful of which has obtained 68 subscriptions amounting to $526. It indicates, Mr. Keyes pointed out, that the city is not being canvassed by the canvassers and that there are a number of people who are anxious to give money to the Community Centre whether or not they are called on.

"If the canvassers of the general canvass will get out and make a real effort to contact citizens, we believe that their figure can be substantially increased," Mr. Keyes stated.

Meanwhile, widespread publicity of a very favorable nature has greeted the Memorial Centre in different cities of Ontario; and in a half-page editorial quoting liberally from the announcement of the Citizens Committee which inaugurated the project, the Toronto Star has looked upon the scheme and found it good. "Peterborough has set an admirable example," that journal says, advising by inference that much worse could be done by Toronto in its post-war plans.

Churchill Sees Election Coming

LONDON, Oct. 3—(CP-Reuter).—Prime Minister Churchill told the House of Commons today that while a British general election is not imminent it is impending.

"I cannot think an election is imminent," he said. "It is what you might call impending rather than imminent."

The Prime Minister's statement came during a discussion on voting by British forces overseas. He told the House he was more than anxious that every practical facility should be given the troops to understand the issues between the opposing parties and candidates and for recording their votes on the largest possible scale.

Congestion Bad On Toronto Market

TORONTO, Oct. 3—(CP)—Cattle congestion at the Toronto Livestock Market was becoming serious to-day and officials reported there was no possibility of moving many during the day. Unsold from yesterday were 5,200 head of cattle and this supply was augmented by fresh receipts totalling 280 head. Lambs were also piling up at the market with 3,200 unsold from yesterday and some fresh receipts today. Market officials said there was no possibility of clearing the lamb supply this week. In the calf section there was some trade during the morning on good to choice veal calves but plainer grades were not selling.

No Spending Spree

HAMILTON, Ont., Oct. 3—(CP)—Hon. Dane Porter, provincial minister of planning and development, said in a speech to the Local Council of Women yesterday that contrary to many expectations there will not be a "great spending spree of public money" by governments in the post-war era, due to the backlog or private building that is to be done.

Rectal Soreness and

PILE TORTURE

QUICKLY RELIEVED

If you are troubled with itching piles or rectal soreness, do not delay treatment and run the risk of letting this condition become chronic. Any itching or soreness or painful passage of stool is nature's warning and proper treatment should be secured at once.

For this purpose get a package of Hem-Roid from McDermid & Jury or any I.D.A. or other drug store and use as directed. This formula which is used internally is a small, easy to take tablet, will quickly relieve the itching and soreness and aid in healing the sore, tender spots. Hem-Roid is pleasant to use, is highly recommended, and it seems the height of folly for any one to risk a painful and chronic pile condition when such a fine remedy may be had at such a small cost.

If you try Hem-Roid, and are not entirely pleased with the results, your druggist will gladly return your money. —(Advt.)

QUEEN ALEXANDRA SCHOOL

J. E. R. Munro, principal of Queen Alexandra School, was speaker at the parents' and teachers' rally, under the auspices of Queen Alexandra Home and School Association, Monday evening. Mr. Munro paid tribute to the Board of Education for the decorating of the interior and exterior of the school, and providing new equipment in the classrooms. He discussed the new course in religious education, and said that there was no intention on the part of the department or teachers to give intimate religious instruction. It is simply a course of Bible study and moral training which the children find interesting, Mr. Munro said.

Speaking of the script writing, the principal explained that by continuing it up through the grades, the one visual impression should help spelling, since vivid reading was essential as a basis for all learning. In closing Mr. Munro defined modern education as a growth of knowledge, thinking, skill, and attitude, with the latter of greatest importance, because the school is an agency to concentrate education, and the ability of the child is governed by his desire to learn, and his attitude toward his work.

A short program was presented, including the following selections: two action duets, by Sandra and Sharon Shaw; a reading, "After Grace," and a piano solo, "Allegro" by Grace Ingram; and a vocal solo, "Brown Bird Singing" by Mrs. R. Kitchen, accompanied by Mrs. J. Hayward.

Mrs. C. McBride, who presided, read a poem "Starting to School." Mrs. R. Parnall read the creed, and gave the aims of home education. The roll call for mothers was won by Miss I. Connolly's room and two new teachers, C. Donald Munro and Miss B. Hart, were introduced by the principal. At the conclusion of the program, a vote of thanks to Mr. Munro, and those taking part in the program, was moved by Mrs. A. Bacon, and Mrs. C. Althouse and her committee served refreshments during the social half hour after the meeting.

QUEEN MARY

Citizenship— world, Empire, and Canadian—and the importance of teaching the children of to-day to be better citizens, was discussed by Senator Iva C. Fallis, addressing a rally meeting of the Queen Mary Home and School Association on Monday evening.

The speaker pointed out that citizenship was much before the public, and that a Home and School meeting was the logical place for a discussion on that topic, since the foundation for citizenship was laid in the home and in the school. She explained that good citizenship meant fulfilling in everyday life one's duty to neighbors and state, with the added responsibility in these days of world citizenship, to fulfill one's duty to all his neighbors.

"We hear talk of a better Canada, and we older people may plan and work for this, but the permanency of a better Canada depends upon the education and training of the youth of to-day," she continued. "If peace is to be lasting, we must achieve better world conditions, not just a better Canada."

As an example of the change in world relationships brought about by the war, Senator Fallis spoke of Russia. She said that before the war it seemed remote and far away to Canadians, but that air travel now makes them conscious that Russia, next to the United States, is their closest neighbor. Continuing, she said: "We need to educate ourselves to understand these new neighbors." Again stressing the youth of to-day she said that the children of to-day will be, in years to come, in still closer touch with these countries, and need to learn something vital and alive about their peoples, suggesting illustrated lectures as one method of accomplishing this end.

Speaking of Canadian citizenship, the speaker pointed out that to lay a foundation for good citizenship, children must be taught to form good habits in their youth. She said that the influence of the school and the home moulds the character and forms the habits of the child, and if parents take a healthy interest in their country, the child will develop this interest, by absorbing the atmosphere of the home.

Discuss Work.

The meeting convened after the parents and friends had visited the various classrooms, and discussed the children's work with the teachers. Reports were read by the representative to the Local Council of Women, who invited members to attend the Local Council tea on October 14, in the Y.W.C.A., and by the representative to the Home and School Council, and members were urged to attend the regional conference to be held the afternoon and evening of October 17.

When the roll call was taken, the attendance banner was won by the Kindergarten in the junior grades, and Miss E. Deyell's room in the senior grades. During the evening, community singing was enjoyed, with Mrs. H. V. Dobson at the piano. A musical program consisted of three piano selections by Miss Eleanor Taylor, and refreshments were served by Mrs. H. J. Bradburn and her committee.

Polish forces in the Canadian army now can be identified as operating east of the Canadian bridgehead at St. Leonard. The Poles are on the Netherlands frontier north of Merxplas and are meeting strong opposition from good German infantry and gunners.

spreading across the Lowlands when the bombers turned for home.

A thousand American heavy bombers struck south Germany and it was the seventh day in nine weeks that 1,000 or more of the heavy bombers had hammered the Reich.

Objectives included: The Nurnberg tank works; the Daimler-Benz truck factory at Gaggenau, 40 miles south of Karlsruhe; a big German air force base at Giebelstadt, 53 miles west of Nurnberg.

The Allied air offensive rolled on after R.A.F. Mosquitos last night carried out one of their best moonlight train-busting forays in Germany and Holland.

Heavy clouds again covered that section of Germany and most bombing was done by means of the mechanical eye.

It was the seventh time in nine days that 1,000 or more heavy bombers have bombed the Reich. Each time the great fleet split into three formations to attack different targets.

Front reports indicated French-based fighter-bombers were having another big day against enemy communications, which were messed up considerably during the night by the R.A.F.'s train-busting Mosquitos.

Besides shooting up 51 freight trains, nine barges and five motor transport the Mosquitos also ran a Nazi trawler ashore off the Dutch coast and bombed a small factory in western Germany. None of the fleet bombers was lost.

Other small forces of Mosquitos attacked Brunswick and Nazi airfields in western Germany, following up the daylight attack in which more than 2,500 Allied planes roamed the sky over the Reich virtually unchallenged.

Most of the train-smashing was in the Ruhr valley, through which the bulk of supplies is fed to the German Army at the front. Eight trains were caught on the main line between Emmerich and Gladbach, four north of Coblenz and seven near Osnabruch.

Ninth air force medium bombers and fighters, which staggered German defences along the Siegfried Line yesterday as a curtain-raiser to the 1st Army drive near Aachen, continued their close-support activities today.

Rhine because the Germans in that sector have prepared positions in depth for some 15,000 yards.

The indications are, the dispatch said, that the battle will be hard, bitter and bloody all the way, since the Germans are determined to protect the rich industrial region toward which the 1st Army is pointed.

Reserves Rushed In.

The bad weather which kept Allied planes grounded for the past two weeks and the pause by the Americans to build up supplies gave the enemy a chance to strengthen his positions and bring in fresh reserves.

Despite the known Allied power, field advices said, it is apparent the Supreme Command is preparing for a long winter campaign.

As one sign of this strategic bombers have been loading their bomb bays with winter overcoats and uniforms for shivering thousands of troops.

Because of the mud and slush many armored and motorized divisions now are confined to paved highways, which means that the gains now are being limited to the foot-slogging infantry.

The ground in France and Germany, unlike Russia, never freezes hard enough to allow tanks to operate in open country in the winter—an advantage to the Germans since the Allies have a vast superiority in armor.

Civic Gremlins Stalk Salary Report

"Where the dickens did the report of the salary committee go? That would have solved the whole thing," Alderman Glover wondered and commented in a discussion on the salary schedule for nurses of the Board of Health at Monday night's council meeting.

Alderman Dutton had protested to the council that the board had been restricted to salaries for a supervising nurse and graduate Public health nurses that were unattractive to prospective applicants, that the efficiency of the city's health department was thereby curtailed by being understaffed with five thousand North Monaghan residents incoming after annexation in January, and finally that members of the council apparently did not appreciate the importance of the department and the responsibility imposed on its members. And with that criticism, Alderman Dutton requested the council to accept his resignation as chairman of the board.

Alderman Sands turned the edge of the Dutton protest with his statement as a member of the salary schedule committee, with Aldermen Bradburn and Sullivan, that this special committee had recommended about six months ago maximum salaries of $2,100 a year for a supervising nurse and $1,610 for Public Health nurses.

"I am hearing this for the first time," said Alderman Dutton. "If we had known that it would have altered the whole situation."

Mayor Hamilton said his recollection was that the committee had reported the changes to council and that they had been adopted.

No Light.

"I don't know how it came about that the Board of Health did not know it," Alderman Sands stated, and apparently no one else could answer that rather baffling question.

"I believe I mentioned the increases in the schedule at the finance committee last week," Alderman Bradburn said.

"I have no recollection of it," Alderman Dutton replied.

Alderman Sands expressed the opinion that the salary committee's recommendation seemed quite adequate, and Alderman Dutton agreed that they were, and said it was regrettable that the information had not come to the attention of the Board of Health.

The salary changes recommended by the committee, Alderman Sands said, were $1,400 for qualified nurses and $1,800 for a supervisor, "with a leeway in each case of 15 per cent, for a period such as this," which would permit maximums of $2,100 for a supervisor and $1,610 for nurses.

The Sands statement somewhat disarmed Alderman Dutton, but still rankling in his memory as chairman of the board was the loss of Miss Geraldine Conley, supervisor, to Kingston at the beginning of the year. "And we could have kept her for an increase of only $100 a year." Alderman Dutton said he regarded Miss Conley as one of the most competent nurses Peterborough ever had, and that her departure was a serious loss to the health department.

That incident occurred prior to the meeting of the salary committee, which Alderman Sands said took place some time after Alderman Bradburn's return to the council on his recovery from an attack of pneumonia last winter. Since then the board advertised for nurses. Several applicants were interviewed, two here and another in Perth, "but that was the last we heard of them, because they were not interested in the salaries the board could offer them."

Missed Hearing Plan.

In the meantime, it transpired Monday night, the salary committee did discuss the nursing salaries and submitted their recommendations, but by some gremlins in the municipal service or methods, Alderman Dutton had not heard of the committee's action or of the council's approving action.

Said Alderman Glover: "I would like to look into the system to see how it works, and how this could have come about."

Mayor Hamilton to Alderman Sands: "I didn't realize that the salaries were what you have mentioned tonight. At the last meeting of the Board of Health we were talking about the seriousness of the situation facing the board."

Alderman Sands: "I think you could engage nursing help at the salaries we recommended."

Alderman Dutton: "There would be nothing to worry about with those salaries."

Alderman Bradburn said it was about the middle of March when he returned to the council, and it was in April or the first part of May when the salary committee dealt with the question of nurses' salaries. "The figure I had in mind the other night was that we agreed to pay $1,800 for a supervisor and $1,600 for assistant nurses, and I was under the impression that this latter sum was to include the cost of living bonus. I think the committee has done the best we can, and if the council feels we haven't attended to our business then the best thing the council can do is to get another salary committee."

Mayor Hamilton said he was going to take it upon himself to instruct the clerk to withhold the resignation of Alderman Dutton as chairman of the Board of Health, and that in the meantime the circumstances of the salary committee's recommendations, as disclosed by the discussion would be traced in the records.

Heads Disagree On Blame For Accidents

Hon. Charles Daley, Ontario's Minister of Labor and R. B. Morley, general manager of the Industrial Accident Prevention Association differed as to the responsibility for industrial accidents when they both addressed the Peterborough Rotary Club at Monday's luncheon which supplied the key note for Peterborough's Safety Week.

The Minister of Labor, who spoke briefly, said that he was satisfied that the blame for industrial accidents should be laid to the workers. "I would tell workers that" said Mr. Daley, adding that he was sure that management in Ontario was doing everything it could to make conditions safer and prevent accidents.

"I don't blame the worker" said Mr. Morley, who followed the Minister of Labor, "I put the responsibility squarely on the shoulders of the management. It has been placed there by an act of the Provincial Legislature, the Workmen's Compensation Act.

A large number of guests, most of them interested in accident prevention attended the luncheon. Introduced by Rotarian Ron McGrath they included G. K. Fraser, M.P., Mayor James Hamilton, Senator J. J. Duffus, T. A. Taylor, vice-chairman of the Lindsay-Peterborough division of the Industrial Accident Prevention Association, H. A. Cranfield, divisional chairman, Fred Brooks, Ontario Accident Prevention Association, Fred J. Overend, Peterborough Lumber Company, Thomts Lister, C.G.E., J. E. Girven, assistant works manager, C.G.E., Provincial Officer L. A. McClure, L. H. Ingram, Quaker Oats Company, D. G. H. Melton, Dominion Woollens and Worsteds, H. Wood, Outboard Marine, R. Wildman and A. Gillies, Peterborough Canoe Company, David Leether, Brinton's, and Stanley Payne, Westclox.

Support Campaign

Hon. Charles Daley expressed pleasure at the opportunity to visit Peterborough and see something of the city's industrial establishments and also to support the safety campaign. His department, he said, was very much interested in accident prevention work.

Mayor James Hamilton spoke briefly in welcome of Mr. Daley and in support of the safety week campaign. "I feel that the Industrial Accident Prevention Association is doing work that is decidedly worth while," said Mayor Hamilton. "It doesn't pay anybody to be hurt and off work."

Mr. Morley, chief speaker, introduced by T. A. Taylor, said that the primary object of safety week should be to make everybody safety conscious, or to put it the other way, danger conscious.

Suppose I ask some questions, said Mr. Morley. My first will be: Did someone do a lot of work to prepare for a successful safety week in Peterborough? And you will say "You know we did." Next question, What is the purpose of "Safety Week," and you can say: "To awaken people to the need for more intensive accident prevention work." Then, we come down to the industrial side of the matter and I have some questions for you to answer.

Have you, as an executive, accepted the responsibility for the safety of the people in your plant? If you cannot say "Yes" to this, the rest of the questions do not matter much.

Do you know of any process or piece of machinery which is not satisfactorily guarded in your plant? If so, what are you going to do about it?

Have plant superintendents and foremen assumed their fair share of responsibility for the plant accident experience and do they know the primary need for good training and for close supervision?

Do the men and women in your plant know that they each of them, have responsibilities to prevent accidents to themselves and others? Do they endorse your policies as fair and reasonable? Have they faith that you will do all you can to protect them in their daily undertakings?

What impressions do new workers get of your plant policies, particularly what impression do they get of the plant policy on accident prevention? How do you know what impressions they get and are you reasonably certain that the impression get is the one you want them to have?

Shakespeare Paraphrased

When you worked at a plant did it matter to you whether the boss cared for your safety or not? Here I paraphrase queries of Shylock's in The Merchant of Venice—

Hath not a worker eyes? Hath not a worker hands, organs, dimensions, senses, affections, passions? Fed with the same food, hurt with the same weapons, subject to the same diseases, healed by the same means, warmed and cooled by the same winter and summer as a manager is. If your prick us do we not bleed? If you tickle us do we not laugh? If you poison us do we not die?

What percentage of your people look at your safety bulletins and notices? Are bulletin boards located in spots where they can be seen readily? Are those boards well lit and kept clean?

Do you yourself or do you allow others to take the attitude: "Well, it's just too bad! I've told them to be careful, I've spoken about the guards, I've said they ought to wear goggles. What more can I do?" If you do, that is evidence of weak-mindedness and muddy thinking. No production manager ever talked that way about production.

Do you try to clear your own skirts of responsibility when an accident happens by doing what railway men call "blaming the dead engineer"?

Is a serious accident necessary to shock some men into action? Is their motto: "Tragedy First"?

How much good does a Safety Week do? And, I'll answer that one. It does as much good as the individual participants make it do.

A question a day keeps the accidents away, so if you don't prevent accidents, who will?

A vote of thanks to the speaker was proposed by Rotarian O. S. Cummer.

Plans Completed For Big Picnic

Plans are completed for the county day picnic for school children of the city and country schools Wednesday afternoon at Nicholls Oval, a half-holiday of fun and entertainment which is the reward of the students in purchasing enough War Savings stamps to make possible the gift of a Hurricane fighter to the Air Force.

The R.C.A.F. will be well represented at the Oval. Planes from the Trenton Air Station are scheduled to fly overhead, and presentation of the plaque in recognition of the school children's efforts will be made by Group Capt. Bell-Irving, commandant of that station. Also on hand will be the Trenton R.C.A.F. Band; and in addition the city's Air Cadet Squadron Band will also play. One Hurricane fighter will appear and it will be piloted by Ft.-Lieut. Terry Evans.

A luncheon will be served to the kiddies, and transportation has been arranged to get many children from the county districts in for the afternoon. They will be entertained by a ventriloquist, by Tom Hamilton, a comedian from Toronto; by the Y. W. C. A. girls under the direction of Miss Littlefield; and by the Bugle Band of the Prince of Wales Rangers. Quirt McKinney will lead in community singing and Inspector R. F. Downey will serve as master of ceremonies.

Nazi Claim

acknowledged the struggle in Warsaw could not continue much longer, the dispute between the London government and the Polish committee in Moscow over internal affairs increased in intensity.

The Moscow group, which has been denouncing Komorowski and some members of the London government as "criminals," declared that those responsible for the Warsaw uprising began it "without any co-ordination with the command of the Polish Army or the Red Army, considering only their own selfish interests."

The official Russian communique meanwhile reported that no noteworthy action took place yesterday anywhere on the eastern front, but Berlin declared this morning that Red Army troops had landed on the Island of Dago off the coast of Estonia.

The message from Gen. Komorowski, said a London Polish spokesman, gave no clue to the length of the truce, but said that fighting would be resumed "until the last man is killed."

But there was no tendency on the part of the London Poles to lighten this dark hour for their country with optimism that the tiny force inside the city can hold on for more than a few days.

As Polish military headquarters pictured the situation, the people of long-suffering Warsaw have been living in cellars, beneath piles of rubble, while the battle roared around the centre of the city.

There, in Warsaw's concentration of office and government buildings, stand the remnants of the resisting forces, probably not more than three divisions at most, they said.

Polish headquarters have acknowledged that resistance in Zoliborg, northern section of the city, ended yesterday while fighting in Mokotow, in the southern area, ceased on Friday.

Remnants of the division in these sectors pulled back to join the division in the centre. The size of the underground division was estimated originally by the Poles at 10,000.

Conditions necessitating evacuation of the civilian population—in normal times approximately 1,250,000—were described as desperate, with starvation a reality and dysentery, typhoid and scarlet fever sweeping the city.

Claims Russia Will Extend Her Influence

British troops are attacking in Greece to become an army of occupation helping the Greeks to liberation, but also to prevent the Russians from extending their sphere of influence into this country. This was the claim advanced by Dr. Nathan Cohen Beskin, well known evangelist who addressed the Lions Club Monday evening.

Dr. Beskin, was a school-boy friend of Stalin, and in his discourse gave the Lions a new slant on the aims and ideals of the great Soviet Republic

"Poland will never have its complete independence," he said, but suggested that this country along with all the Balkan countries, with the possible exception of Greece will be practically a part of Russia. He added that the Russians would seek to take over Iran, and would demand colonies in Africa, particularly the kingdom of Ethiopia.

Referring to the Far East, Dr. Beskin was emphatic in his statement that Russia would fight Japan for possession of Manchuria which she considers is part of Russia.

In his description of Stalin (Man of Steel), the speaker pointed out that Stalin's dictatorship is absolute, and that he invariably countermands any independent statements made abroad by any of the official Russian delegates. Hence the reason, these delegates were so non-committal at the Dunbarton Oaks monetary conference.

Introduced by Frank Woolley, the speaker received a gracious vote of thanks from Lawrence McCarthy.

All those who assisted at the recent Lions Club Carnival were guests of the Lions at the dinner held in the Kawartha Club.

Court Admits Statement By Accused

Several "trials within trials" and the fact that the evidence had to be transferred into French slowed up proceedings in the hearing of a charge in police court this morning against Leopold Gingras, Montreal, of having stolen a car here in August, the property of W. E. Leonard.

Gingras was one of the three French-Canadians arrested in the vicinity of Bewdley in August. George Houde, another of the men, pleaded guilty to the charges of car theft and to stealing of clothing from Isadore Black, and was sentenced to the reformatory for 18 months.

Albert Marcoux, who also pleaded guilty to similar charges, is awaiting sentence.

Gingras pleaded not guilty and the hearing of his case commenced several weeks ago, and has been enlarged several times since.

Trial Within Trial

This morning there was a trial within a trial as to the admissibility of statements allegedly made by Gingras to Provincial Constable E. J. Soubliere, Belleville, in the police office at Port Hope on the morning of August 16.

Soubliere swore that he was alone with the accused and that the latter had been properly warned and that no threats had been made or inducements offered.

Gingras, called by the defence, testified that he had never been alone with the officer and that he had not been warned or told that he might be charged with car theft.

Magistrate O. A. Langley finally admitted the statement and Constable Soubliere testified that Gingras had stated that the car in which he had been driving was owned by one of his friends.

Had To Speed

"When asked why he had been driving at 85 miles an hour to avoid being arrested" Constable Soubliere stated "He said that one of his friends had had a revolver in his ribs and had pressed his foot down on the accelerator."

Constable Soubliere said that Gingras had said that he did not know anything about a stolen Buick car. He had a Quebec ownership license for the car he had been driving and also an Ontario driver's permit.

Followed another trial within a trial as to the admissibility of further statements said to have been made by the accused to Constable Soubliere two days after the first interview. This had not been completed when the court adjourned for luncheon.

Harvest Services Are Held At St. George's

Harvest services were held over the week-end in St. George's Anglican Church. The church was very attractively decorated with an abundance of flowers, fruit, vegetables, etc., this work being done by the Afternoon Guild. The special speaker on Thursday evening was the Venerable Archdeacon Simpson, B.A., archdeacon of this diocese. The rector, Rev. E. C. Moore, on behalf of the congregation, welcomed the speaker, who in his sermon reminded the people of their thanks for such a bounteous harvest, and how good God has been in making it such. Special music was rendered by the choir under the leadership of J. Bronson.

Continuing the harvest festivities on Sunday was the celebration of the holy communion at eight-thirty a.m., with the rector as celebrant, and children's service at ten o'clock. This was conducted by Mr. Moore, with the boys' choir taking part, and boys of the Sunday school assisting in the service. The eleven a.m. service was a choral communion service. At the evening service the special speaker was Capt. Smith, chaplain of the Training Centre.

DO YOU HATE TO GET UP in the MORNING?

Doesn't it feel swell to wake up in the morning clear-eyed, refreshed, full of pep? Yet so many, especially over 40, get up tired all over, with aching joints, never really feel their best.

The reason is often a common complaint—a system clogged with poisonous food waste. Like many people, you need help to clean out a sluggish system, get back pep and sparkle rightfully yours. The mild action of BILE BEANS is an effective aid thousands rely on.

Made from 10 pure vegetable extracts, Bile Beans are so gentle, yet effective, they are called "The Medicine That Wakes Up Nature". These small laxative liver pills tone up the system by stimulating flow of liver bile, so essential to good digestion and daily regularity.

Why not enjoy that "glad-to-be-alive" feeling every day? Try Bile Beans tonight—they work while you sleep. Over 7 million boxes used last year, convincing evidence of how greatly they are helping others. 16

Labor Minister Suggests More Industries

Peterborough should waste no time in attempting to draw interest to itself among some of the industries, which will be establishing branches in Canada after the war, was the advice of Hon. Charles Daly, Minister of Labor in the Ontario Government, who spoke briefly at a dinner meeting of the Industrial Accident Prevention Association, Central Ontario Division, held in the Empress Hotel Monday evening.

Mr. Daly, whose remarks preceded the formal address of E. O. Morgan, president of the Accident Prevention Association, laid particular stress on the merits of this city as an ideal place for many businesses to establish plants and offices; and in regard to the inspection of factories made by him Monday, said that he was deeply impressed by the measures for accident elimination which have been instituted here.

"The Department of Labor," he said, "is vitally interested in safety measures, in anything which tends to remove the hazards of working. Accidents cost millions, and the benefits of compensation are not sufficient from the individual's point of view."

Competition Is Essential

Hon Mr. Daly went on to say that "we in Canada are to a great extent dependent in making the kind of country we want for the boys who return upon export; that means we must remain competitive, which in turn involves the problem of labor costs; and the problem here is how high we can allow these costs to go and still remain competitive."

"No serviceman," he said, "will want something for nothing, but only a fair chance to make a decent living. The basis of all, regardless of social security and such plans as the baby bonus, is a job for a man and a reasonable opportunity for that man to become something better."

Seated at the head table were Thomas Taylor, production manager of Canadian Ventilating Shades Co., who served as chairman; Ian McRae; Mr. and Mrs. E. O. Morgan, Fred J. Overend, Fred Innis, T. A. Lister, H. A. Cranfield, Sen. J. J. Duffus, Robert Abbott, Alderman Sands, L. H. Ingram, E Girven.

Long Ways To Go

In urging that all the good that has been done in the way of accident prevention is still not good enough and that "what we call good is still bad," Mr. Morgan noted that provincial accidents reported average from 450 to 500 each day, with two or three fatalities among them. "There are over 400 persons who will not report to work tomorrow because of industrial mishaps," the speaker said.

Steps by which better results can be obtained including gaining the active interest of top management in plants, Mr. Morgan pointed out, with the ancillary purpose of making it clear to supervisors and to the workers themselves that management is desirous of improving the plant's record. "Prevention," the speaker stated, "should be recognized as an inseparable part of production and act as a sideshow."

He advocated also as an imperative need the setting up of a practical plan of prevention, which turned upon consideration of the two elements of unsafe acts in each factory. Periodic inspections on a comprehensive scale should be inaugurated to correct any hazardous conditions or methods of operation through carlessness or ignorance on the part of the workers.

"Our ultimate goal, perhaps unattainable but towards which we can work, is to have no accidents at all," Mr. Morgan concluded. "We will know we have achieved that goal when the Workmen's Compensation Board goes out of business."

Essential Need Of District Good Highways

That there is a need in Peterborough for an awareness of the importance of good highways and roads is the opinion of C. Alex Sollitt, who returned recently from a wartime conference of highway ministers, their deputies, engineers and department officers of the provincial governments, held under the auspices of the Canadian Good Roads Association at Kentville, Nova Scotia. Mr. Sollitt attended the conference as a representative of the Canadian Automobile Association, an organization operating in the interests of, and representative of, every Canadian motorist.

Although attendance at this meeting was somewhat restricted because of wartime conditions, the conference was marked with the same high degree of success, due in part to the nation-wide character, as has been coupled with meetings held in various parts of the Dominion every year, since the organization was founded in 1914.

This year, under the stress and strain of a nation at war, the members, including several guests, met to discuss among other points, the problems dealing with the greater development and utility of Canada's highways systems, and also to receive reports of committees appointed at previous meetings.

Transportation

At the first session, a highly interesting address was heard from W. G. Robertson, secretary-treasurer of the Canadian Automobile Association, which dealt chiefly with the "Highway Transportation in Canada After the War," a topic which tourist centres especially should be interested. Another interesting address was delivered by J. D. Millar, Deputy Minister of Highways for Ontario.

Ontario's first minister of the newly-created cabinet portfolio, planning and development, Hon. Dana Porter, addressed the meeting using as a theme, "The Scope, Functions and Advantages of a Provincial Planning and Development Department."

Among the reports from committees heard were: "Uniform Regulations Governing Advertising Signs and Improvements Adjacent to Provincial Highways," "Standardizing Weight Restrictions for Bridges and Highways for Interprovincial Bus and Truck Traffic," and "Uniform Traffic Regulations and Traffic Supervisions."

The delegates attending were treated to an inspection tour of parts of Nova Scotia, through the kindness of Hon. J. D. McKenzie, Minister of Highways and Public Works. Historic and scenic places such as Wolfville, Grand Pre, Bedford, Halifax and Windsor were included in the tour. Rear-Admiral L. W Murray made possible a special tour of Halifax Harbor for the delegates.

Since the C.G.R.A. was organized regular conferences have been held for the discussion and study of current problems connected with the three main interests of the association: the building of highways adapted to modern traffic conditions, and the demands of the immediate future . . . their maintenance at a high level of efficiency, and the regulations of their use to meet the ends of safety and economic value to the public.

Atherton Lauds Canadians' Broad Views

MONTREAL Oct. 3.—(CP).—The accomplishments of the North American people in creating, rather than merely inheriting, a spirit of true brotherhood gives hope for a new world spirit. Ray Atherton, United States ambassador to Canada, said to-day.

In an address prepared for delivery to a Montreal service (Rotary) club, Mr. Atherton reviewed his travels cross Canada during the past year and his contacts with the Canadian people.

"They (the Canadians) have taught me to look into the future with greater courage than ever before, because, if there can be this great North American brotherhood can there not ultimately be a world brotherhood?" he said.

"The difficulties in the way are immense, let us grant that. But we in North America did not inherit our brotherhood perfect and full blown. We built it, piece by piece, slowly and surely over the long decades and centuries. Along the border between Canada and the United States were scattered ruins of forts.

"The glory of North America is not that we never misunderstood each other, not that we never built forts against each other, but that the common people of Canada and the United States have torn these forts down, stone by stone, with their own hands. Those forts will never be built again. That is the glory.

"The world is torn by misunderstandings, but so was North America once. What we have done the world can do. It will be long and hard, the path to brotherhood, but North America has won through to the end of it, and the world can follow."

Woman Found Guilty On Vagrancy Charge

COBOURG, Oct. 3.—(ENS). — Mrs. Gertrude Downs of Cobourg, was found guilty in police court Monday on a vagrancy charge. Magistrate R. B. Baxter dated the term back to the time of her arrest in sentencing her to three weeks in jail and she was accordingly given her freedom.

Clinton Tobin, formerly of Peterborough, pleaded guilty to vagrancy in police court Monday and was given 30 days in jail dating back to the time of his arrest, September 1, Tobin being released after his appearance in court yesterday. Crown Attorney Harry Deyman informed the court that two doctors had given him a medical examination and as they could not agree on their findings there was no course other than to allow him to go.

Beer Ration Books Now Available

TORONTO, Oct. . — New beer ration coupon books to replace those which will expire at the end of this month, are available at all brewers' retail stores and brewers' outlets without charge, it was announced yesterday by the Ontario Liquor Board. The new book differs from the old books in that the coupons are not designated by months but are consecutively numbered from No. 1 upward. The board will announce the date on which coupons 1 to 4 become valid, and from time to time will announce the validation of specifically numbered coupons.

There is no change in the present monthly allotment of beer, the board statement said.

"My LUMBAGO has entirely gone!"

Only those who have suffered from lumbago know how exceedingly painful it can be. And when they discover a remedy for this complaint, they are anxious to pass on the good news to other sufferers. Let this man tell you how he got relief from Kruschen.

"I had a bad attack of Lumbago. When I got into bed I had to stay in one position — I could not move for pain. I didn't know what to take or what to do. I was advised to try Kruschen Salts and I am very grateful I did now. After taking a few doses I felt relief, and after taking one large bottle, I am glad to say that my lumbago has entirely gone, and I have not had the slightest trace of it coming back."—G. A. V.

Kruschen is a combination of natural mineral salts which stimulate your liver, kidneys and digestive tract to healthy, regular activity. Kruschen aids internal cleanliness and helps keep the blood-stream pure.

Kruschen Salts is obtainable of all Drug Stores. 25c and 75c.

Lt. L. Johnston Dies In Belgium

COBOURG, Oct. 3—(ENS)—Lieut. Lloyd Johnston of Grafton, well-known in the district, has been killed overseas, his wife has been advised. He was 36 years of age and was born in Vernonville and educated at Grafton, later attending the Collegiate in Cobourg. After graduating from Normal School he taught for a while in Cramahe and Haldimand townships, and later attended Queen's University, where he graduated in chemical engineering. At the time of his enlistment he was a chemist with C.I.L. in Hamilton.

He enlisted in October, 1942, in the active army with the Argyll and Sutherland Highlanders, and graduated from O.T.S. in January of 1943, going overseas in July of the same year.

He is survived by his mother, Mrs. Thomas Johnston of Grafton; his wife, who was Kathryn Dinning of Sherbrooke, Que.; two brothers, Alan of Ida, Quebec, and Douglas of Grafton, and two sisters, Marion on the Toronto General Hospital staff, and Mrs. Keith Hare of Grafton.

Lieut. Johnston's death occurred in Belgium, where he was buried.

Council Appoints R.McGregor Constable

CAMPBELLFORD, Oct. 3. — (ENS).—At the regular meeting of the town council, Robert McGregor, who has been supplying as night constable, was appointed to that position at a salary of $100 a month and uniform.

Permission was given to the Boy Scouts to hold their apple day on October 14 and the matter of financing and managing the present hospital until the completion of plans for the Memorial hospital are completed, was thoroughly discussed. Mayor Long explained in detail the steps that had been taken since the public meeting held last week decided unanimously that a new hospital would be built by public subscription. A meeting of the town council and the township of Seymour council will be held tonight, at which the management of the hospital will be settled and a statement of the obligations assumed by each municipality will be issued.

Report E. M. McDonnel Dies In Italy Action

COBOURG, Oct. 3—(ENS). — L.-Bdr. Edward Murray McDonnell, age 24, has been killed in Italy, his parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. McDonnell, have been advised. He was born in Cobourg and educated at St. Michael's Separate School and the Collegiate Institute. At the time of the outbreak of the war he was working in his father's garage. Enlisting in Cobourg he went overseas in September of 1942. Besides his parents he is survived by his wife, Gertrude Bates of Port Hope, whom he married a short time before going overseas; two brothers, Gerald and William of Cobourg, and a sister, Mrs. K. Hunter of Napanee.

United Church Holds Anniversary Services

GORE'S LANDING, Oct. 3 (ENS) —The anniversary services of the United Church were celebrated on Sunday with Rev. Mr. Honey of Baltimore United Church preaching at morning and evening services. The organist and male quartette from St. John's Church, Campbellford, assisted with the music.

Rev. Mr. Honey spoke from a text in the 33rd chapter of Deuteronomy. He said that today people are living fear-ridden lives. They want security because the world is so insecure. All desire economic security as it is so hard to make ends meet.

Others demand provision of things they need in life for every year, he declared. The speaker defined the dreams and ambitions which many people feel are essential to their success and they are fearful that life is not providing the necessary opportunities to develop their ideals. Mr. Honey emphasized that men and women must come to terms with life as it is and Faith in God is the answer to frustration of desires.

Invasion Casualty Back In Campbellford

CAMPBELLFORD, Oct 3—(ENS) —Bdr. Max Free, son of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Free, of Seymour West, arrived home unexpectedly Monday morning. His arrival was a pleasant surprise to his family and friends for the last word stated that he had been wounded in the battle of France.

He went there with the first invasion troops and beside losing a thumb he was terribly burned. He has been convalescing in England since. He went overseas with the third contingent R.C.A. and Signal Corps.

Slightly Wounded

COBOURG, Oct. 3—(ENS). — Pte. James F. Cowin of Cobourg was slightly wounded in France, his father, John Cowin of Cobourg, has been advised. Pte. Cowin was injured by a piece of shrapnel in his hand. Son of John Cowin and the late Mrs. Cowin, he joined the army in March of 1943, and went overseas in August of the same year, transferring to the Royal Regiment and going to France where he took part in the battle of Caen. He has a brother, Eric, in Italy.

Lakefield Boy Cassino Veteran

Coming from Kingston on his way to the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. Whitmore of Lakefield, one of the veteran fighters of the Hastings, Prince Edward Regiment who has been in the service of his country almost since the first day of war, Pte. Fred G. Whitmore, passed through Peterborough Monday afternoon. He was wounded in the fall of Rome.

Now only 23 years old, Pte. Whitmore, who enlisted in the Army on September 8, 1939, says that he put up the insignia of the famous regiment with which so many Peterborough and district men have served, a month after he joined up and has worn it ever since. The familiar badge of the Hasty-Pees, with the red square below it and the Crusader cross of the 8th Army above it, adorned his uniform when he arrived at the C.N.R. station Monday.

Joining his regiment in Italy at Ortona after spending months of service in the North African theatre, Pte. Whitmore was "knocked out," —to use his own expressive military lingo—by German machine-gun fire in one of the last of the many fierce encounters between Allied troops and the stubborn Hun at Cassino. Several bullets penetrated his left arm, which is now well again, although he finds the joints of his fingers still somewhat stiff.

Hospital Business

"What have I done since then?" I've spent time in Italian hospitals, in hospitals in England, and on hospital boats and hospital trains," Pte. Whitmore explained, with a smile that either concealed or belied the unpleasantness of his experience. He is on a 30-day leave at the present time; and when it is up the latter part of this month will return to Kingston to be reboarded and learn what further service, if any, the Army wants him to perform.

He enlisted underage, this eager volunteer of the Dominion's fighting forces; and when this fact was uncovered, he was ordered to Camp Borden to pass the time until the short interval was up before his attaining legal military age. Pte. Whitmore went overseas about two years ago; in the flurry and excitement of much greater things than keeping track of dates, he was not able to remember offhand exactly when he left Canada for the fighting fronts. Before the war he had taken a year's training at a trade, but the holacaust intervened and the young Lakefield boy wasted no time in deciding that soldiership was more important in the circumstances than apprenticeship.

Gestapo Touch

LETHBRIDGE, Alta., Oct. 3—(CP) The Lethbridge Herald said yesterday that "kangaroo court martials" have been held by the Gestapo in compounds of German prisoner of war camps in Canada. "In some instances, it is learned, the Gestapo ordered some of its victims to commit suicide," the paper said. "When they refused they were severely battered, pounded and kicked into helplessness by bullying agents of Hitler."

Blood Is What's Wanted

A great deal of blood is needed to replace what has been shed in the invasion of Europe and in the fighting which is going on there now: blood is needed to succour the victims of the robot bombs; when the showdown comes in Germany—which it might do any day now—blood will be wanted by the men who make the final great drive toward Berlin. And where is all the blood to come from? Have you any intention of taking responsibility for even a small quantity of it?

• • •

The local Blood Donors' Clinic needs more donors than it has at present. For several months the Clinic has been doing a splendid job, and has sent from Peterborough and its surrounding district all the blood which was needed, and which could reasonably be expected from this area. But in order that a certain scheme of reorganization might be put into effect in Toronto, the local Clinic was closed for two weeks this summer, and that brief period of suspension seems to have brought about a slackening of effort among local donors. The holiday season has also interrupted the routine of the Clinic, for people have missed a donation and have failed to make it up. And the number of common colds which are found in the city at present have prevented many people from making their regular donations.

• • •

As a result, the quantity of blood which the local Clinic has been able to ship to Toronto for conversion into plasma has fallen off seriously, and something must be done about it. Former donors must take up their responsibilities again, and new donors must be enrolled. There is no other way in which you can do so much for our armed forces with so little inconvenience to yourself. If you are a donor, and have not kept up your donations, please take up this most necessary work once again. If you are not a donor, and could be one, do not delay; phone the Clinic and arrange to begin as soon as you can. Blood is badly needed overseas, and it is up to us to see that the supply does not fail.

Sir William Mulock—R.I.P.

The death of Sir William Mulock at the age of 101 is not a matter for public regret; his career had been long and honourable, he was loved and admired by a whole nation, and rapidly waning strength made prolongation of his days neither probable nor desirable. He died as we might all wish to die, peacefully, while he slept. Let us rejoice that he lived, rather than grieve at his death.

Matters which are of historical interest for most of us were personal recollections to him. Many people live for a century, but few centenarians have passed their lives in the highest governmental and judicial circles, and few have at any time possessed unusual powers of intellect; consequently their recollections are not as brilliant or as significant as were those of Sir William. He had a phenomenal memory, and after he was ninety he used to pass the time on long motor rides by memorizing poetry; when he was nearing his hundredth birthday he could recite the whole of Gray's Elegy in a Country Churchyard—a considerable feat. He could, and did, recall every great figure in the history of Canada since Confederation, and as he had been on intimate terms with many of them his conversation was of the greatest interest. He was a scholarly man without being a pedant, and his comments on the changes which he had seen during his long life were informed with a genuine wisdom which was in strong contrast to the ponderousness which afflicts many aged persons. All his life he was a man of keen humour, and he loved a joke to the last. He was a man of genial, but not familiar temperament, an admirable host and companion, and a gentleman in the best sense of the word.

Few countries can boast of elder statesmen whose lives have been as long or as full as was that of Sir William Mulock. In recalling his career, Canada has nothing to regret: he gave the best that was in him to his country, and his country gave him great opportunities and high office, and, in his later years, affection and honour. He became a legend while he was still alive, and we cherish the legend still.

Retirement of Gen. McNaughton

Lt.-Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton is to retire from the Canadian Army with the rank of a full General; only one Canadian before him has been promoted in this way, and we do not think that anyone will say that the honour is undeserved. Gen. McNaughton has done great, though inconspicuous work for Canada, and other men will use the weapons which he has forged; it is fitting that Canada should know by whom the hardest work was done. "With the encouraging march of events abroad, I do not believe that any useful purpose will be served by my continuing to hold myself available for return to the army", wrote Gen. McNaughton, and hoped in this modest manner to bow himself out of the scene; the Canadian people will not allow him to escape without a generous round of applause.

Gen. McNaughton served Canada with distinction during the first Great War, and when it ended he held the rank of brigadier-general; he had shown himself a particularly ingenious and resourceful commander of artillery, and he was retained on the General Staff, and headed it for six years. But he was rather too active an Army man for a nation which had grown sluggish in peace, and in 1935 he was retired. He became head of the National Research Council, and did fine work there until he was recalled to active service at the outbreak of this war.

His job was to form a Canadian Army which could meet the Nazis and fight on equal terms. That meant a highly mechanized force, and McNaughton had always believed that guns were cheaper than lives. He set to work with a will and formed the Army which we have today: he took it to England, and kept it in fighting trim during the long months after Dunkerque, when it was virtually the sole land defence of the British Isles; he worked and planned for the eventual invasion of the continent. Such work demands its price, he fell ill, and he was permitted to return to Canada to rest. He has decided not to go back, and he is retiring from the Army.

But his career is not at an end. Such men have great resources. Where Gen. McNaughton will turn up again we cannot say, but there are many jobs which he could do with great satisfaction to himself and to Canada.

Up-To-Date Information

Looking through the Encyclopaedia Britannica the other day, in search of something quite different, we came across this entry under the heading PETERBOROUGH—"a city and port of entry of Ontario, Canada, and capital of Peterborough county, situated 70 m. N.E. of Toronto, on the Otonabee River and the Canadian National and Canadian Pacific railways. Pop. (1931) 22,327. The five falls of the Otonabee at this point, with a total descent of 50 ft., furnish power for a large and increasing number of manufacturing establishments, whilst its canalization as part of the Trent canal gives communication with Lake Ontario and Georgian Bay. Peterborough has an electric railway, and contains important manufactories of electrical machinery and supplies, iron and steel bridges, farm implements, saw, flour and woollen mills".

It seems odd that the Britannica, which was last revised in 1941, should not know that Peterborough has had no electric railway since the autumn of 1926. And we are told that iron and steel bridges have not been built here for at least fifty years. Perhaps the Council should instruct the City Clerk to send the Britannica a more up-to-date article on the city. Of course it is the encyclopaedia's job to gather its own information, but as it apparently does not know much about Peterborough we should instruct it. We could give them some recent 'Pop' figures, at any rate.

Canada At Dumbarton Oaks

By GRANT DEXTER

FAILURE of the Dumbarton Oaks Conference to reach agreement is regarded here as significant of the difficulties which beset the task of creating an effective world organization. These difficulties have been disclosed to be very real and no group in the world community of nations is more directly affected than the more powerful of the smaller powers — nations like Canada, The Netherlands, Brazil and so on.

With respect to Canada, the proceedings at Dumbarton Oaks were not remote. Every interest of this country was at stake.

Failure to reach an agreement is regarded as greatly to be regretted but it is hoped that public opinion will take account of such considerations as these:—

The Dumbarton Oaks conference was a conference not of governments, as such, but of officials. It was informal in the sense that the governments represented there were not committed in any way. It was the first international attempt to formulate plans for a world organization. Only three powers were represented, the United Kingdom, the United States and Russia. The representatives each brought a plan to the conference table and the business of the conference was to fit these plans together.

While the conference did not reach agreement, the difficulties for the first time were measured and faced. Hence the failure.

A SECOND conference, precisely the same in character, will now be held with China taking the place of Russia. Later on the governments of the United Kingdom, the United States and Russia will confer. This conference, because it will be formally between governments, will be much more important than the one just concluded. And the conference between the three leaders of the United Nations will be followed by a wider conference at which the smaller nations will be represented.

These events are recast in terms of the last peace, all that has happened to date is equivalent to less than occurred in 1918-19 in consultations between the chief of the Allied governments, before the peace conference opened at Paris.

Failure at Dumbarton Oaks, therefore, must be regarded in this sense. There has been no final failure. All that has happened is that representatives have got together and discussed post-war organization.

THE negotiations in every respect are still fluid. Nobody has taken a final or irrevocable position. Only the first phase of what may well be a long and laborious discussion is finished. Under their circumstances, full agreement was not to be expected and, certainly from the viewpoint of the small powers, such an agreement might easily have been regarded as a disaster.

There is no official date either on Dumbarton Oaks Conference proper or on the proposals advanced by the individual representatives. The facts in both respects, however, are known in a general way and it is not difficult to sketch in the background.

It is widely assumed in Canada that the proposals of the British delegate at Dumbarton Oaks were the result of the discussions at the Prime Minister's conference held at London in May. This appears not to be the case. What probably happened was that the British government took counsel with the United States and Russian governments, after the London meeting and that the British plan was modified in a way which could scarcely have been approved by the Dominions. In effect, the British government appears to have modified the position of May to achieve a greater degree of unity with the other two great powers.

This modification, it may be guessed, had to do with the part assigned in the world organization to the smaller powers. And far from suggesting criticism of the British government, it is quite clear at Ottawa that the British, among the three great powers, seems to be the only one which understands and sympathizes with the position of the smaller powers. In fact, the British government has been the advocate of the little powers at Dumbarton Oaks. But it is all a question of what is practical if it be considered that agreement between the great powers is essential to the creation of any worthwhile post-war organization.

POST-WAR organization appears only to have been discussed in a general way at London last May. It was agreed that the new organization must differ from the old league. The rule of unanimous consent must go and all members of the organization must be prepared to back the rule of law with power. The smaller powers must agree, at a minimum, to apply economic sanctions. The great powers must agree to apply force. But to what extent were the smaller powers to participate in the deliberations leading to the application of sanctions-economic or military?

It was generally known that the London discussions favored a league comprising an assembly and a council. The great powers would be permanent members of the council but, in addition, a number of smaller powers would be elected to the council from time to time. Should the vital decisions rest with the great powers — of which there were to be five (The U.K., the U.S., Russia, China and France)—or with the council or with the assembly? If with the council or the assembly should decision be by maojrity or two-thirds vote or what? These vital points appear not to have been decided at London, but the Dominions certainly assumed, and more than one prime minister said so, that the smaller powers would have a real part to play. It was not to be a case of—"me too."

It is in this regard that the original proposals of the British and the United States governments at Dumbarton Woods were unpalatable to the smaller powers — including the Dominions and particularly Canada.

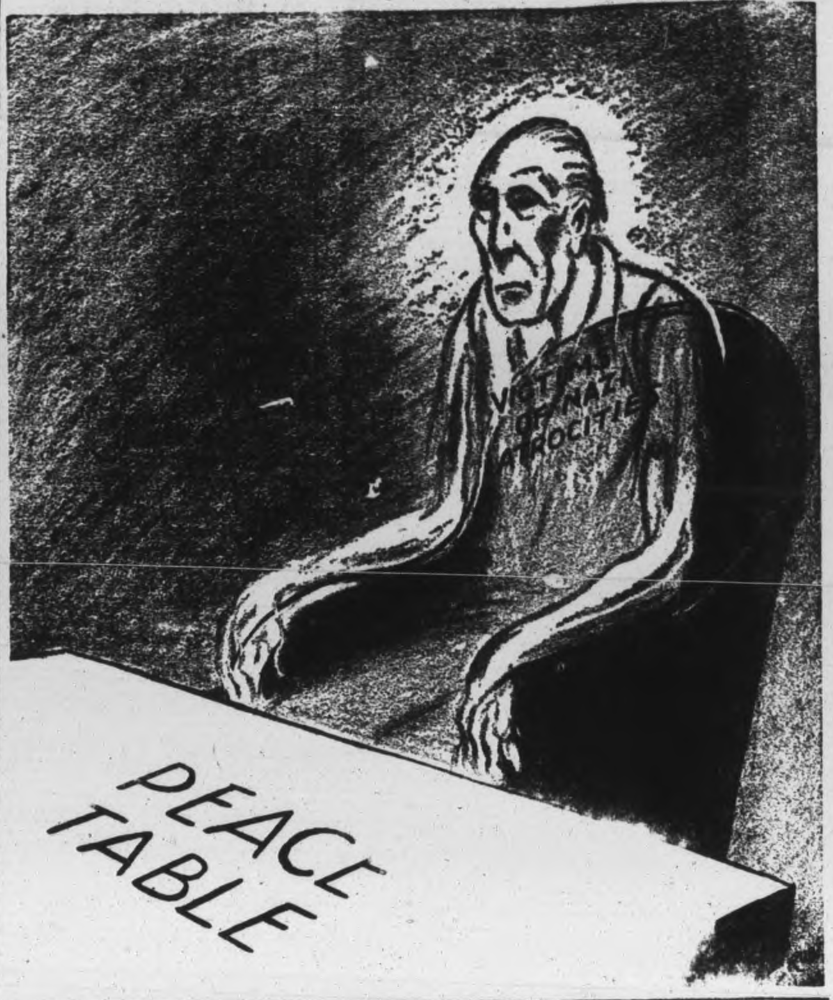
COMMUNITY PASTURES

Since 1936 nearly 100,000 acres of submarginal land in Manitoba have been turned into community pastures. This land, declared unfit for cultivation, was in part sown to crested wheat grass and offers grazing for thousands of horses and cattle. These figures were given by officials of the Prairie Farm Rehabilitation Act in Regina.

A nominal charge per animal makes these pastures practically self-supporting, the revenues almost cover the cost of maintenance.

Here is one good example of what foresight and planning can mean to the farmers of this province. Land which was practically worthless has been turned to community use and profit.—Winnipeg Tribune.

AMONG THOSE PRESENT . . .



Books Now And Later

(WINNIPEG FREE PRESS)

IN more ways than one, the war has made books scarce. This is particularly true of Europe but, for different reasons, this country has also been affected.

In Europe the war has caused the destruction of uncounted numbers of books and, even more regrettable, thousands of manuscripts, many of which would in due course have been published. The bombing of London, alone, reduced to ashes the closely built publishing area near St. Paul's Cathedral. Many original manuscripts as well as large stocks of printed volumes went up in flames. And the bombing of cities and towns generally has destroyed public and private libraries on an unprecedented scale. The same, no doubt, is true of Russia, Germany, Austria, Italy and other allied, enemy or occupied countries.

The result in the United Kingdom is a "crisis" in the book trade. It is more difficult, says the New Statesman, to obtain today a copy of Pride and Prejudice than to buy a bottle of gin. New books are as scarce as old. The Publishers' Association, in a statement issued a few weeks ago, reported that stocks are being rapidly used up. The number of books sold in the United Kingdom in 1943 exceeded by almost 50 per cent the number printed. A larger paper quota and priority for skilled workers in paper making, printing and binding are necessary if the situation is not to become worse.

Some authorities, like Sir Frederic Kenyon, are advocating restrictions on sale and international action to prevent inflated prices. A committee under Sir Ernest Barker has been appointed to collect books from the salvage dumps. The book dealers, however, are strenuously resisting control. They have promised to offer all valuable books in their possession to the British Museum, the Bodleian or other libraries before selling abroad.

Here in Canada the government, on August 23, placed exports of books under permit. The reason is related to the war, but not to any critical local shortage. The purpose is to prevent United States firms from printing in Canada for south of the border. This practice had reached the point where the domestic quota of paper was being depleted and Canadian publishing imperilled. The effect, indirectly, was to increase the U.S. quota of paper at the expense of Canadian book readers. There is no intention, Ottawa says, of interfering with the export of books by individuals.

There is little doubt that the publishing business everywhere will have much work to do after the war is over. Not only new books but all the standard works will have to be published. The term "rare" in the sense of particular editions will have a new meaning, although some years will elapse before the ravages of war are fully known.

A Genius In Bloomsbury

MEPHITIS
(New York Times)

IN reading Virginia Woolf at her very best—which includes Mrs. Dalloway, To the Lighthouse, The Waves and certain of her essays in her two Common Readers as well as in the present volume—it is necessary to dust off and repolish that tarnished, dented, much abused word that has become an article of kitchenware in criticism. The word is "genius." It is necessary, I believe, to say that genius, for better or for worse, means that the writer whose gifts have earned the once-coveted and shining title is the spirit of a particular time and place, a tutelar deity whose radiance sheds an unflickering, beneficient light within temple walls. Mrs. Woolf's gifts, however else we may define them, were of that quality; their residence was Bloomsbury in London and not too far from the dark and yet Alexandrian outlines of the British Museum; the moment which they suffused with pallid and clear illumination on library walls or in guest bedrooms of a country house on holidays or at eight o'clock dinner parties in the city was of the period that we now recall as existing precariously between two major wars. It was that time and place through which Mrs. Woolf's spirit moved and to which the spirit brought its endowments of sensibility and grace.

Mrs. Woolf's American publishers have thoughtfully issued E. M. Forster's tributary lecture on Virginia Woolf to accompany the posthumous collection of her essays, The Death of the Moth, a volume, by the way, which might well have been published as a third series of confidences to her Common Reader....

Whatever Mr. Forster says in his brief talk reflects the sensibility of an elder inhabitant of Virginia Woolf's world as well as one who travelled beyond its sphere; so far we may be assured of his wisdom and his poise, and he has said more within the hour and some thirty-seven small, wide-margined pages than many another solemn-eyed essayist could say in a hundred sheets of fine, closely printed type. But for my part, I find myself thinking less of Virginia Woolf as a "lady" and as a "woman," than as a daughter of Sir Leslie Stephen, the slightly ink-stained figure who in her youth was surrounded by gentlemen of late-Victorian celebrity; one thinks of Meredith, of Ruskin, of the American Ambassador, James Russell Lowell, of Robert Louis Stevenson, and, of course, Sir Edmund Gosse; one thinks of books lining the walls of a capacious library, and with them the names of writers who reappear in the pages of Mrs. Woolf's novels and essays: Sir Walter Scott, Keats, Shelley, Coleridge, Shakespeare, Horace Walpole, Edward Gibbon — but the list would grow tedious and seem inexhaustible....

In closing this third volume of Virginia Woolf's addresses to her Common Reader one is impelled to say that no reading of her best work can be called complete without a knowledge of it, without the delight of hearing her genius speak again.—From "The Shield of Achilles," by Horace Gregory.

Spy-Catcher Retires

The man who brought Hitler's spies in Britain to justice—16 have been executed so far—is retiring at the age of 66.

He is Sir Edward Hale Tindal Atkinson, Public Prosecutor for the last 11 years. During this war he has been one of the busiest men in Britain.

I asked Sir Edward whether he expected to continue in office long enough to be able to deal with the radio traitors, those British subjects who have broadcast for the enemy.

"No," he said. "That may be a job for my successor. I am going quite soon, on account of the age limit.

"My successor may also have a busy time over the war criminals, but I don't know what machinery will be set up for dealing with them.

"Do I regret going before the war criminals are brought to book? Yes, I think I do. They would certainly be most interesting cases." — London Daily Mail.

Thorny Problem

The end of the war brings with it a host of new problems, domestic and external, and none more important than the question of the future character of the link between the member nations of the British Commonwealth. At the next conference the representatives of this nation will sit down presumably with the representatives of Eire and it will be their interesting task to determine what in future are to be the obligations of belligerent commonwealth nations to a neutral commonwealth nation and vice versa.

We do not suppose it will ever become the rule that commonwealth nations must, of necessity, take part in any war in which ther commonwealth nations are engaged, but it does appear possible that each such nation may in future be expected to pledge its co-operation with the others in certain carefully defined contingencies, which may well be different in each individual case and it will be for the government and people of both Eire and Canada, as well as the other self-governing Dominions, to determine how far each must remain a source of uncertainty to its sisters until its parliament has decided.

In this matter both Eire and Canada have a special advantage. The territory of each must be protected by the respective neighbour of each for its own security, and it is quite possible for the protected nation to take advantage of that fact by refusing to enter into commitments for common defence and even by refusing to participate in the actual defence when the struggle is on. But it does not seem that either of these courses will, in future, be conducive to the dignity or self respect of the nation which indulges in it.—Toronto Saturday Night.

A Bible Message

Thou art worthy, O Lord, to receive glory and honour and power: for thou hast created all things, and for thy pleasure they are and were created. (Rev. 4: 11.)

◇ ◇ ◇

Now therefore hearken, O Israel, unto the statutes and unto the judgments, which I teach you, for to do them, that ye may live, and go in and possess the land which the Lord God of your fathers giveth you....

Did ever people hear the voice of God speaking out of the midst of the fire, as thou hast heard, and live?....

Unto thee it was shewed, that thou mightest know that the Lord he is God; there is none else beside him. (Deut. 4: 1, 33, 35.)

◇ ◇ ◇

Blessed be the Lord God, the God of Israel, who only doeth wondrous things. And blessed be his glorious name for ever: and let the whole earth be filled with his glory; Amen, and Amen. (Ps. 72: 18, 19.)

TWO METHODS

The mere suggestion that the British Government should employ trade associations as disposal agencies, instead of selling goods directly on a competitive basis, shows how far the British have gone in the way of organizing unit businesses into larger co-operating groups exercising valuable rights and privileges. Here in the United States the tendency at present appears to be in the opposite direction. For emphasis is being placed on the necessity of avoiding all methods of disposing of surpluses that would tend to promote restraint of trade or extension of monopoly. Indeed, so far has the pendulum swung that special provision is to be made to see that small businesses are afforded opportunity to acquire surpluses and protected against any discrimination in the disposal and use of Government property.—Washington Post.

VICTORY PAY-OFF

A few United States senators have the idea that they can get up a sort of collection agency at the peace table. In return for lend-lease they think that Great Britain should surrender its colonies in the West Indies, its possessions in the Pacific or anything else of value which might be within reach.

To them, it is a pure question of dollars and cents; the repayment for goods received. They have no conception of the intangibles. Not a mention is made of the suffering and slaughter of British civilians. There is no credit for the two years of precious time for the preparation of American defence which the British resistance permitted in the war's worst days.

If it is argued that the West Indies, for instance, are required as bases for U.S. security the claimants might as well go right down the line. The British Isles themselves were the finest bastion of defence at the start of the war.—Vancouver Sun.

COMPETITION AFTER MARRIAGE

It's Fiercest in Life For Wife, and Never Ends Until Husband Too Old to Attract Women.

WHENEVER we hear of a husband who has strayed off the premises, or who has been lost or stolen, or even temporarily mislaid, we blame his wife for it. How careless! we cry! Why didn't she keep him under lock and key? How did she expect to keep her property if she didn't take care of it?

Possibly these criticisms are just. But while we are lambasting the wife for not having kept as wary an eye on her husband as she did on her mink coat, we forget that there are extenuating circumstances for her seeming negligence. For when a girl marries she enters upon a career in which the competition is fiercer than it is anywhere else in the world, and which never ceases until her treasure is so old and shopworn that no other woman craves it.

If you will consider the competition that all wives have to buck, you will not wonder that some of them lose out. You will marvel that any of them manage to hold on to their husbands. To begin with, there is the Glamor Girl with whom all wives have to compete. Every wife knows that she gets old and fat and grizzled at her peril, for no man's eyes ever get so dim that he can't see a pretty little wolverine a mile off. It is conservatively estimated that it costs the 60-year-old wives eight million dollars a year to keep in the running with sweet sixteen.

Miss Pothooks Has Advantage Over Wife

Then there is the Office Wife. It takes some doing for the woman who has been up half the night walking a sick baby, and who has had to get breakfast and the children off to school and husband on his way to the office to present the spick-and-span appearance that little Miss Pothooks does, who has had a good night's sleep and plenty of time to comb her hair and put on her complexion. Also, it is much easier to yes-yes a man who pays you a salary for doing so and whose cantankerousness you don't have to stand but eight hours a day, than it is one whose disposition you have to live with all the time.

Then there is the husband's mother who every wife has to compete with from the altar to the grave and who, according to her son, made bread that was angel's food, ran a house without spending money, and who never had nerves, or tempers, or any opinions of her own.

Then there is the woman who always looks like a million dollars, but who tells every husband she meets that she spends absolutely nothing on her clothes. Every wife has to compete with her and have her own husband bawl her out because her bargain basement clothes shriek aloud where they came from.

Then every wife has to compete with the FBI as a detective who can put her hand in the dark on whatever it is her husband has lost, and who knows what he did with his fish hooks and where he left his hat.

And, above all, every wife has to compete with that invisible, deadly rival whom she can never hope to equal—the woman he didn't marry, the woman who never grew old, or lost her beauty, or was tired, or cross, or contradicted him, and who was a miracle-worker who could conjure good dinners out of the air.

So it is no wonder that with all of this competition that sometimes wives don't have time to watch their husbands and keep them from being kidnapped.

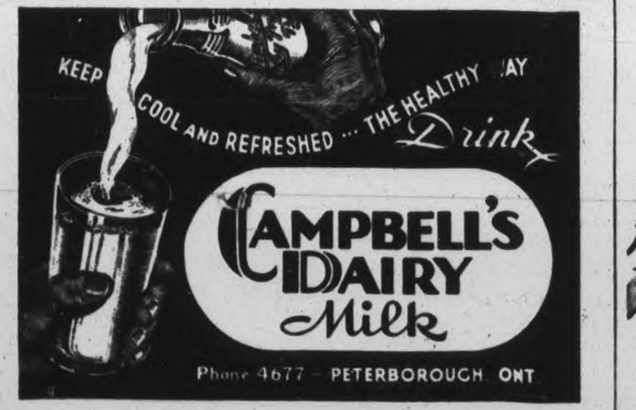
Shower Given For Newlyweds

Mrs. Stanley Johnston, 465 McDonnel street, recently entertained at a miscellaneous shower at her home in honor of Sgt. Lawrence Johnston and Mrs. Johnston, whose marriage took place recently in Smiths Falls. About 25 guests were present, and the happy couple were presented with a pink and white decorated basket, filled with gifts. During the evening, a mock wedding was performed, with Mrs. Howard Howe as the bride, and Stanley Johnston and R. Johnston as the groom and the minister. Miss Mabel Sexsmith played the wedding music.

Following an evening of fun, luncheon was served, with Mrs. Howard Hall pouring tea, and Mrs. George Duncan pouring coffee. The table, set with a lace cloth, was centred with the bride's three-tier cake, flanked by white tapers in silver holders.



Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Rye, River road, south, celebrated their 43rd wedding anniversary on Monday.

Wed In Omemee

OMEMEE, Oct. 3.—A quiet wedding took place in St. Paul's United Church, Montreal, recently, when Vivian Rose, C.W.A.C., daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. Rose, Montreal, became the bride of Craftsman William Sewers Deyell, R.C.E.M.E., son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Deyell of Omemee. Rev. R. C. Tate officiated. Both the bride and groom were in uniform. After a short honeymoon spent with the groom's parents in Omemee, the happy couple returned to Montreal to resume their duties.

Entertain Couple

Mrs. Keith Fairbairn, Patterson street, was hostess recently for a party in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Fairbairn of Port Huron, who were celebrating their forty-fifth wedding anniversary. The house was tastefully decorated with autumn flowers, and the guests enjoyed several games, and readings and speeches. During the evening, Mr. and Mrs. Fairbairn were presented with a handsome wool blanket, on behalf of their friends, and the hostess served dainty refreshments, with the bride of forty-five years ago cutting a decorated wedding cake.

Among those present were: Mr. and Mrs. George Fairbairn of Lakefield, Mr. and Mrs. Sydney Fairbairn and Miss Jean Fairbairn of Springville, and Mrs. E. Jory of Toronto.

Thompson—Tummon

A wedding of interest took place recently in the parsonage of St. James' United Church, when Marion Elizabeth Tummon, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Tummon, of Foxboro, became the bride of Flying Officer Francis (Teddy) Thompson, R. C. A. F., son of Mrs. Thompson and the late Mr. T. Thompson of Tweed. Rev. F. W. Craik officiated.

For the ceremony, the bride chose a lime green wool dress with brown accessories and a corsage of Talisman roses. Miss Marjorie Tummon was her sister's bridesmaid in gold wool crepe, with a corsage of pink roses. L. Cpl. Jack Tummon of Ottawa was groomsman.

Following a reception held at the home of the bride's cousin, Mrs. James Goldie, and Mr. Goldie, Albertus street, the couple left for Patricia Bay, B. C., where the groom is stationed as an instructor with the R. C. A. F.

Adams—Armstrong

A wedding of interest took place recently in St. Matthew's church, London, when Squadron Leader Robert Richard Theron Adams, R.C.A.F., son of Mrs. Adams, 31 Sussex street, Lindsay, and the late R. T. Adams, took as his bride Lottie Juanita Armstrong, daughter of Mr. Reginald J. Armstrong, London, and the late Mrs. Armstrong. The church was decorated with pink gladioli and white chrysanthemums for the ceremony, with Rev. Trumpen officiating, and Mrs. Gray at the organ.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a petal blue gown with side drape of Guipure lace, and a matching Juliet cap. She carried a Colonial bouquet of rose buds and gladioli. Mrs. Howard Pierce was her sister's matron of honor, frocked in gold crepe with sequin trimming, and a matching feather hat. She carried a Colonial bouquet in gold and white. Gordon H. Day, brother-in-law of the groom, was best man, and ushers were R. L. Thompson and C. C. Ostram.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the Hotel London, where the bride's aunt received, wearing a gown of purple crepe, with black accessories, and a corsage of deep red rosebuds. The groom's mother, also receiving, wore a brocaded blue sheer gown, with black velvet hat, and a corsage of gladioli and chrysanthemums.

For a wedding trip to Quebec, the bride donned a beige wool dress with brick shade coat and brown accessories.

Timlin—Elder

ROSENEATH, Oct. 3.—(ENS).—In St. Peter's Anglican church, Cobourg, the marriage was solemnized by Rev. H. R. Deering of Velma Mae Elder, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Elder, and Wilbur Leslie Timlin, only son of Mr. and Mrs. Earnest Timlin, all of Alnwick township.

The bride wore a floor-length gown of white silk georgette over white satin, with sweetheart neckline, bishop sleeves and a fingertip veil held in place with a bridal wreath. She wore a gold locket, the gift of the groom and carried a bouquet of American beauty roses and fern.

The bride was attended by Mrs. Henry Hayes of Cobourg, sister of the groom. Her gown was floor-length twilight blue crepe and she had a blue shoulder-length veil caught in a coronet with forget-me-nots. Her bouquet was yellow mums. Henry Haynes of Cobourg, attended the groom.

Following the ceremony a reception for immediate relatives was held at the home of the bride's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. John Elder, Alnwick township. Mrs. Elder wore black crepe and a corsage of mauve mums.

Dinner was served from tables decorated with pink and white streamers, and autumn flowers and candles. Serving were the bride's cousins, Mrs. Hilton Linton and Miss Lulu Linton.

For a motor trip to Montreal the bride wore a tailored suit of soldier blue wtih navy accessories and a corsage of red roses.

Mr. and Mrs. Timlin will take up residence on the groom's farm near Roseneath.

Marguerite Neals Tendered Shower

LIFFORD LINE, Oct. 3.— Mrs. Cephas Staples and Mrs. Lawrence Staples were joint hostesses at their home for a miscellaneous shower in honor of Miss Marguerite Neals, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Neals, whose marriage takes place on Saturday, October 7 to Donald Cathcart, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Cathcart of Springville.

When the guests were assembled, Mrs. Lawrence Staples read an address expressing appreciation for the activities of the bride-to-be. A daintily decorated basketful of gifts was presented by a miniature bride in bridal attire.

Miss Neals thanked the donors. Among the various gifts was linen, glassware, kitchenware, silver, pyrex and a generous sum of money. During the evening lunch was served by the hostesses and their assistants.

I.O.D.E. Plans November Sale

Preparations for the fall tea and sale of work to be held in the Y.W.C.A. on November 4, were discussed at the October meeting of the Jeanette Scott Chapter, I.O.D.E., Monday evening. During the meeting, a donation was voted to the Peterborough Memorial Community Centre, and volunteers were called to help pack the overseas Christmas boxes for the Army Auxiliary on October 3 and 4.

Miss Isabel Weddell, the regent, received the various reports of the committee conveners, and the names of those who could help at the Blood Donors' Clinic during the week of October 30 were recorded. Miss Mary Medd, Charlotte street, was hostess for the meeting.

Bethany People Honor Mary Neal

BETHANY, Oct. 3.—(ENS). —A large crowd gathered at the Orange Hall to do honor to a bride-elect of this week, Miss Marguerite Neal, who has officiated at the Bell Telephone office for 2½ years.

The hall was decorated for the occasion, and the major part of the party was a miscellaneous shower. The prospective bride entered the building to the strains of the wedding march, with Miss Muriel Arkles at the piano. Miss Neal was seated in a decorated chair before a table, Katherine Reynolds and little Gale Bristow placing a basket laden with gifts on the table.

Miss Neal was assisted in examing the parcels by Misses B. Morton and Velma Brown. An unwrapped gift was in the form of a trilight lamp.

Mrs. W. Neal of Lifford, mother of the prospective bride, was assisted by Mrs. H. Cathcart of Springville in pouring tea, and lunch was served.

Students Given Certificates At Central

Thirty-eight students received their graduation certificates at the annual graduation ceremonies at Central School, Monday evening, in connection with the regular meeting of the Central Home and School Association. O. M. Steer, principal of Queen Mary School, who taught at Central School at one time, was guest speaker.

He told the boys and girls that the eight years of hard work they had completed would be the biggest and lengthiest job they would ever have to do. "The word 'entrance' has a double significance," he continued, "since it means entering or beginning of a new life, either in industry, or the first step in a professional career." He urged them to have open minds, to be ready to seek advice, and profit by their own and others' mistakes, always seeking to step up and better themselves.

A short program was presented, including a vocal solo by John Biddle; a piano solo by Max Clarke; a piano solo by Grace Marshall; and a song by a quartette, Frances Cameron, Jean Delahaye, Audrey Bolton and Alice Bullied, with Mrs. D. Munro at the piano. Mrs. D. Rostocky moved the vote of thanks to the speaker and those taking part in the program Mrs. L. Groombridge presided. Following the adjourning of the meeting, refreshments were served to the pupils and the audience.

SPORTS-Day by Day

By FRED D. CRAIG

With no prospects of hockey in Peterborough again this winter some of the local puck chasers have decided to move on to foreign fields for the coming ice campaign. Among them is Johnnie Godfrey, star defence player of the Petes who is working out just now with the Detroit Red Wings at Windsor and will probably wind up for the season with the Wings' farm team, the Pittsburg Hornets. Johnnie played a lot of hockey for Peterborough in a comeback after illness had almost ended the sporting career of the former New York Rover. After playing one season here under difficulties that the fans knew nothing about he underwent another operation during the following summer in order to fit himself for hockey. There isn't a gamer athlete anywhere than the same Godfrey and few smarter defence men. Another local player who is also likely to be with the Pittsburg Hornets this season is Jack Jopling who leaves today to report to the Red Wings' farm team. Jopling before enlisting in the R.C.A.F. was one of the stars of the Peterborough team and he played fine hockey while with the Air Force in England. Back now to civilian life he should make a place for himself with the Hornets.

The Peterborough junior rugby club is working out hard this week in preparation for its first game of the season with the Toronto Westsides at Riverside Park on Thanksgiving afternoon, a battle that should bring rugby-hungry fans out in droves. The Toronto team will have the advantage of more experience than the local youngsters and will be formidable opposition but Coach Rich Jackson reports that the material here is good and some very promising boys have been working out regularly. Among those mentioned by the Petes' pilot are Ron Hodson, Dugan who is shaping up well at end, Padgett who is working out in the snap position and can also play outside wing and Harry Wilford and Red Outram on the half line. The latter will be remembered for his plunging last season against the Lindsay team. The final lineup has not yet been chosen for next Monday's game and Coach Jackson is emphatic in declaring that players who are not regular in their attendance at the club's workouts cannot expect to play. Next Monday's game should draw a real crowd to Riverside Park.

Bea McDowell Stars

Her many friends here will be interested in learning that Bea McDowell, Millbrook girl, who starred with the C.G.E. ball club in the local Girls' loop has been going great guns in Montreal Major loop. The Montreal Star tells about a recent triumph scored by the former C.G.E. player against Hazel Baynton who pitched for Stratford against the Westclox last season. Here is the paragraph: "Airwoman Bea McDowell, a former Peterborough star, put Royals out in front in the Major Ladies' Softball League championship. She blanked Paramounts 5-0 in yesterday's first game of the double bill. Royals pushed further ahead in their title defence by taking the second game 12-7. Irma Perkins pitched for the defenders and held the Mounties scoreless to the sixth. Her infield fell apart in this stanza and Paramounts got down to business with the bat, getting five hits and seven runs. Airwoman McDowell flew to the rescue and held the fort for the balance of the nine-inning battle. Hazel Baynton had the double task of pitching both games for paramounts—18 innings in one afternoon. The club is asking a lot of this young hurler and her battery mate, Jean Aiken. Notre Dame Stadium held 2,000 paid customers for this Major League series opener. The league gave permission to Royals to replace their injured pitcher, Dora Wimmer, by Doris McSorley Denman of Mansfields. They did not use her, however, as AW. McDowell was able to get leave of absence from her Ontario R.C.A.F. station to rejoin her team."

There are probably hundreds of citizens who have not been canvassed personally yet in behalf of the Memorial Health Centre. With the campaign extended a week an effort is being made to interview all possible subscribers but may this column suggest that citizens who have not yet made their donations to this most splendid clause should not wait to be called upon but drop in with or send their subscription to the fund headquarters in the Sun Life building. In street gossip we have heard some folk finding fault with some detail or other of the comprehensive program. That is not surprising. It would be a miracle if everybody thought alike as to the location of the centre, the size of the hockey arena and other features of the far-reaching plan. But for the love of commonsense let us keep our eyes on the ball. The main thing is to put this drive over the top. We can iron out the details later. Just now the job is to make sure that the campaign goes over the top. If we miss now we can say good-bye to the whole ambitious program. There will be no need to argue about where the arena should be built or how many seats it should have, for there won't be any arena.

The Big Series

Fans will hardly have time to acquaint themselves with the lineup of the St. Louis Browns before the world series will be in full blast. This column would venture the prediction that the average enthusiast, strangely enough, would find it difficult to name the infield and outfield of the new American League champs. Somehow or other, even although the Brownies led the race for most of the year, John Q. Public seemed to think that eventually they would drop back out of there and as a result Manager Luke Sewell's club attracted nothing like the attention it deserved. And yet we find Manager Billy Southworth of the Cards coming out with the statement that the Brownies are the best balanced club in the American League and that the new champs are without a weakness anywhere. Certainly George McQuinn and Vern Stephens are two infielders who would look good in any lineup and the pitching of the Browns has been uniformly excellent. The New York Yanks can testify to that for Potter, Kramer, Galehouse and Jakucki beat them four games in a row and held them to three runs in the final series.

* * * * * *

Chief interest in the series today centres in the choice of pitchers for the opening. It is generally supposed that the Brownies will lead off with their ace, the 19-game winner Nelson Potter and the best guess for the Cards was big Mort Cooper, winner of 22 National League games this season, although some experts hinted that Billy Southworth might choose to open with Ted Wilks who has had a great year for the champs. As for the rest of the lineups both clubs say that they will use their regular battle array. Walker Cooper will catch for the Cards and Red Hayworth for the Brownies. Cards are naturally betting favorites but so far as popular sentiment goes that seems to be riding with their American League fellow townsmen. The fine comeback staged by the Brownies has captured the imagination of ball fans everywhere and as they are the under dogs in the big series everybody is pulling for them to sail through baseball's annual classic.

Queen Alex. Wins Soccer Tilt

An opportune goal by Dracup, Queen Alexandra, took the decision over King George eleven in the Public School League, on Riverside Park, Monday afternoon. M. Courneyea, Queen Alexandra goalie being outstanding with his brilliant display in goal against an aggressive King George combination.

First Half.

Choice of goals went in favour of Queen Alexandra and selected the sun at their backs. Smart combination prevailed in the early stages wtih the outside wing men dominating the play thereby bringing out the abilities of the defense against an aggressive attack on both sides. Eventually the Northenders opened up the tactics on mid-field play. Wood frustrating Rome at the logical moment to send Dracup away up the centre who battled his way toward goal to register the only counter. Then King George came into the picture with smart combination play. Wyatt and Thompson had the opposition full backs guessing, but their parting shots was always into the custodians arms instead of a timely touch past him. They kept up the pressure until the interval. Queen Alexandra 1. King George 0.

Second Half.

Quickly King George, on resuming, hemmed the Queen Alexandra boys into their own territory where Noland and Zaharik nullified the progress of the attacking force with timely clearances up-field. Both custodians were called upon to save their charge, but M. Courneya had the most work to do as he cleared long range shots, and particularly was smart in his effort to clear as King George forwards closed in upon him in an endeavor to get the equalizer. The pace in the remainder of this half was terrific as the play run from end to end. Full time—QQueen Alexandra 1, King George Queen Alexandra 1, King George 0.

King George—J. Shearer, goal; J. Telford and T. Davis, full-backs; A. Beavis, B. Gandy and K. Manson, halves; N. Thompson, P. Ferguson, G. Rome, A. Nortcott and B. Wyatt, forwards.

Queen Alexandra—M. Courneya, goal; C. Nolan and B. Zaharik, full-backs; G. Wood, H. Anderson and H. Johnston, halves; J. Nicholls, G. Dracup, C. Simmonds, L. Gaskell, V. Rogers, forwards.

Referee—Stroyan Leith, Sr.

Canadian Birds

By G. H. RICHARDSON

One of the joys of bird-watching is that there is always something going on, no matter what the season. Some birds are only present in certain regions in winter, some only in the fall migration, and so on, so there are no dull moments.

Along the borders of large lakes and bays, flocks of small gulls flutter near the surface of the water. Some may have black heads, but most will have replaced the black with white for the winter. Whatever the plumage, we notice that their quickly beating wings have a white splash along the front edge. This mark proclaims them

Bonaparte's Gull
Above, Immature
Below, Winter Adult.

Bonaparte's gulls, gulls which nest in trees (so unlike most species of them) from Northern Ontario to the northern forests of Alberta.

Named by Famous Nephew.

This bird was named in honor of Charles Bonaparte, Prince of Musigñano, nephew of the famous Napoleon. Prince Bonaparte visited the United States for some time. He was a keen ornithologist and a number of our birds were first described and named by him.

It is a dainty bird, our smallest common gull, and in addition to its striking pattern, has beautiful bright red feet in the adult and orange in the young. The inside of the mouth corresponds in color to the feet. The great diversity of the color and pattern in the gape in different species rather suggests its use for the purpose of display. We can imagine a tender little female saying: "Oh, my dear, what a beautiful red mouth you have."

Of the various members of the blackbird family, the nearest to being a black bird is the rusty blackbird. In this species, in the spring, the male is black with green and blue iridescence, this gloss intensifying the black appearance. The bronzed grackle, commonly known as "blackbird" or "crow blackbird" appears black only at a distance, and if seen up close in good light, shows a rich bronze body and head and neck strongly iridescent with greens, blues and violet.

In the autumn, male rusty blackbirds acquire a plumage with rusty edges to the feathers. The immatures are almost entirely rust-colored. Their notes are harsh whistles and squeals which follow an ascending scale and end on a note which is almost invariably the same with each individual bird.

Frequent Wooded Areas.

Rusty blackbirds will be around for several weeks, frequenting the banks and streams in wooded areas. In general, they resemble grackles, having also a pale yellow eye, but they are smaller, with shorter tails and much slenderer bills.

Chipping Sparrow (immature).

Most young birds have changed from the juvenal plumage to that of the first winter. In the chipping sparrow they have come into one of subdued browns without any predominant mark to distinguish them. The whole bird has a rusty suffusion, merging the color scheme from the distinct brown back, clean grey breast and chestnut crown of the adult. The pattern remains the same, however, the light line over the eye (buffy instead of white) dark line through it (brown instead

IVAN RASPUTIN

Promoter Frank Tunney has built up a real supporting card for his wrestling rodeo at the Brock Street Arena tonight featuring the popular favorite, Whipper Billy Watson in the main bout with the tough Texan, Karl Krippler Davis. The Mad Russian, Ivan Rasputin will try to bear hug the Californian star Don Evans into submission in the semi-final and the smooth Irish Jack Kennedy meets Vernon Baxter, somewhat of a rowdy, in the preliminary. There should be a lot of action in those three tilts, with some of the best of the current crop of mat stars performing.

St. Catharines Lacrosse Champs

TORONTO, Oct. 3 (CP) — St. Catharines Athletics gained the Canadian Lacrosse final bracket last night by beating Mimico Mountaineers 9-8 to win their Ontario title series by four games to two.

The Athletics and Westminster Salmonbellies will open the series for the Mann Cup and the Dominion title at Maple Leaf Gardens here Saturday evening.

In taking the sixth game of the Ontario final at nearby Mimico last night the Athletics had to come from behind, Mimico leading 7-4 at one stage of the third quarter. The Garden City club, however, fought back into the lead and held it to the close.

Both goalies, Bill Whittaker of St. Catharines and Ray Mortimer of Mimico, starred in last night's fast, clean contest which saw only seven penalties, all minor, handed out.

Here and There in Sport

By The Canadian Press

After leading Detroit Tigers to within one game of the American League pennant, Steve O'Neill yesterday was signed to manage the team for a third year on a one-year contract, it was announced by General Manager Jack Zeller. O'Neill succeeded Del Baker as pilot at the close of the 1942 season.

Manager Jack Adams of Detroit Red Wings in the National Hockey League is giving a try-out to Leroy MacDonald, star player last season with the St. Francis Xaier College squad at Antigonish, N.S. MacDonald has already reported at Windsor, Ont.

Hard presed by Phonograph, Blue Boy of the Saunders Mills stable, Toledo, O., required four heats to capture yesterday's $3,000 Transylvania free-for-all trot in the Grand Circuit racing at Lexington, Ky. Prince Yakima accounted for the $1,000 pace in two straight heats.

The H. C. "Touch" Wood Memorial Trophy, donated by W. L. Houck of Niagara Falls for presentation to the outstanding Niagara Peninsula athlete each year, was awarded yesterday to Vince Upper, third baseman-coach of the Port Colborne-Victorias of the Niagara Senior Baseball League. The winner is selected by district sport writers.

Expect 35,000 At St. Louis For First Game

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sport Writer

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 3 (AP)—Twenty five hungry Browns who never cashed a World Series cheque and 22 Cardinals who've won three successive National League pennants today split this bulging city wide open on the eve of the first All-St. Louis World Series.

Street car operators, bell hops and bar-tenders chewed your ear with retakes of Chet Laabs' two pennant-winning homers and Sig Jakucki was boomed for "Mayor," but the boys who say it with cash made the National Leaguers 1-to-2 favorites for the four-of-seven series opening tomorrow at Sportsman's Park.

Rainy weather took away some of the enthusiasm yesterday as Billy Southworth and his boys came home for the first time since clinching the flag to be greeted only by their wives, children and ticket-hunting relatives. The town, however, buzzed with baseball talk and both clubs reported a complete sell-out of reserved seats. The Mayor issued a proclamation designating this as "Baseball Week."

At least 35,000 fans are expected to turn out for the opener tomorrow with the weatherman promising "fair and cooler."

Luke Sewell had his Brownies out for a short drill between rain drops yesterday and planning a lengthy dress rehearsal this morning with the National Leaguers taking the field in the afternoon.

Neither manager has named his first-game starter, but Mort Cooper (22-7) appears to be the natural for the Cardinals. Nelson Potter is the likely Brownie opener with his 19-7 record and his highly-trained screwball.

Consistently good pitching was the most important factor in the success of the Sewell crew all season and could be the turning point in this series which will be played on an every-day basis with the only off day between the sixth and seven games.

Lanier Doubtful

Southworth can call on Lefty Max Lanier, Harry Brecheen and Ted Wilks to back up Cooper, but Lanier is a doubtful factor because of recent arm trouble. He is said to be ready but only an actual start will give the answer.

Sewell can back up Potter with Jack Kramer, Denny Galehouse, Bob Muncrief and Jakucki, although Muncrief is also on the sore-arm list. The Browns' staff is in good physical condition despite the gruelling stretch drive.

The only ailing Cardinal is left fielder Danny Litwhiler, who is bothered by a right knee injury. He told Southworth he was ready, but it is possible the skipper might use Rookie Augie Bergamo in left to give the club more left-handed hitting power against the American Leaguers' right-handers. Sewell's only southpaws are Al Holtingsworth, who hasn't started since July 27, and Sam Zoldak, who has never started a game.

Despite talk about St. Louis attendance (the Browns were last and the Cards fifth in the regular season in unofficial figures) tickets are so hard to get that speculators are reported to be asking $60 to $75 for a three-game strip and $30 for a single Wednesday.

Probable Line-up

Browns—Gutteridge 2b, Kreevich cf, Laabs lf, Stephens ss, Moore rf, McQuinn 1b, Christman 3b, Hayworth c, Potter p.

The Sports Round-Up

By HUGH FULLERTON, Jr.
Associated Press Staff Writer

NEW YORK, Oct. 3.—(AP).—Although there are five two-club cities in the major leagues, St. Louis is only the third to stage a world series entirely within its confines....This series also will be the first since 1922 to be played all in one ball park....New York had two like that before the Yankees moved into the Stadium, but back in 1906 Chicago's Cubs and White Sox were virtual strangers from opposite ends of the town.

One-Minute Sports Page.

Heavyweight Lee Oma has a pet canary which he has trained to do all sorts of tricks. But you'd better not try to associate "canary" with any of the numerous fights Lee has lost....San Francisco is going in for amateur hockey this winter with the idea of losing money, if necessary, to get experience for big-time operation when a new rink is built there after the war.

Cheering Section.

The Atlantic City Country Club, which last spring set aside nine holes of its layout for the exclusive use of service men in that vicinity, now has established a $1,000 fund, which will be kept at that figure and used to buy prizes and stimulate interest in golf among convalescent wounded soldiers.

Newark Needs One More Win

NEWARK, N.J., Oct. 3 (CP) — Newark Bears are at home to Baltimore Orioles tonight in the sixth instalment of their best-of-seven series for the International League's Governor's Cup, and one more victory will send the Bears into the Little World Series against Louisville Colonels of the American Association.

Newark took the fifth game in Baltimore last night, 7-5, when first-baseman Roy Zimmerman slammed a triple in the 11th inning driving in one run, and came home himself on a long fly.

The visitors had to come from behind in the eighth when third baseman Mike Portner belted a three-run homer to erase a 5-2 Baltimore lead.

Johnny Podgajny, who relieved Sam Lowry in the eighth, suffered the loss. Frank Hiller pitched the last five innings for Newark and got credit for the victory. Holcombe and Marleau had appeared on the mound earlier.

Felix Mackiewicz and Howie Moss hit home runs for the Birds.

If the Orioles tie the series again by winning tonight, final game will be played in Baltimore Wednesday night.

Has 2 Teams In

BELLEVILLE, Oct. 3 — For the first time in the history of the O.A.S.A., Belleville will have two teams in the Provincial softball finals Strangely enough, the two local teams in the pay series advanced to the Provincial title round by the elimination of Toronto champions. The local teams are the Marines in the Intermediate "A" series and the Columbian Squires in the Junior O.A.S.A. group.

Central Now In Soccer Playoff Spot

Central now has made steady progress in the Public School Soccer League by winning their two scheduled games which puts them in a play-off position when they met a well-blanaced team from Queen Mary, on Monday afternoon on King Edward Park, to get the winning counter also two valuable points by score of 2-1. A Queen Mary player giving them the winning goal.

League Standing.

	P.	W.	L.	D.	Pts.
King Edward	3	2	0	1	5
Central	2	2	0	0	4
Prince of Wales	3	1	0	2	4
Queen Alexandra	4	2	2	0	4

Two points for a win; and one for a draw.

First Half.

Both elevens appeared over-cautious in the early stages and relied upon defensive measures to safeguard their citadel. Half-backs capitalized on the easy going method of attack by the forwards as they travelled from end to end. Queen Mary repeatedly broke through the defensive tactics of Central to test Brooks from all angles. While the Westenders were forcing the play at the other end, Whitnall and Dolan transferred the ball to the other area where the later in a clever passing play scored the only goal of this period. Half Time: Central 1. Queen Mary 0.

Second Half.

On resuming, smart plays were instituted by the forwards as they travelled from end to end. But Central were surprised when Grafstein registered the equaliser as he cleverly out-guessed Hutchison, the Central full back and beat Forbes, the Central goalie. Central now put on an intense offensive action which had Queen Mary defense in a quandry as they hovered around the goal area. However, the Central boys failed to capitialise on their positional play due to the excellent work of the Queen Mary goalie. However, Central finally scored when Brooks corner kick was diverted into goal by a Queen Mary player. Central 2, Queen Mary 1.

Central: — D. Brooks, goals; J. Forbes and J. Hutchison full backs; H. Wilson, W. Noble and T. Hum half backs; G. Chambers, H. Dolan, J. Whitnall, K. Delahaye and E. Patterson forwards.

Queen Mary:— H. Bradley, goal; D. Gray and R. Butcher full backs; S. Murphy, K. Gordon and R. Bransley halves; H. Grafstein, J. Nichols, R. Russel, L. Payne and B. Woodgate, forwards.

Referee—Rev. F. W. Craik.

Quaker Team Wins Title In Plant Loop

Quaker Oats became the Industrial League champions at Riverside Park on Monday evening as they sent Brinton Carpet down to a 5-3 defeat, breaking a 3-all deadlock in the seventh inning with the winning run. Brintons could make no headway in their half of the eighth, and the game was called on account of darkness with the Quakers taking the laurels.

Sid Craig, hurling for Brintons, pitched good ball. Fanning eight in seven innings of play, the big pitcher allowed only 8 hits and walked 3. On the other side, Quakers were without their regular tosser Horton, and had to rely on Fisher to fog them through a two-run victory. Although wild in spots, Fisher held Brintons to 6 blows, walked 3, and struck out 2.

Sometimes called "unlucky" breaks, several openings in the Brintons' effort allowed the Quakers to cash in on the two winning runs.

Brintons, who failed to take a game during the three-of-five series started the scoring in the fourth inning. With two away Jones drew a walk, Craig singled to left, and Weese walked to fill the bases. Kingdon shot one to shortstop Roote, and Jones scored when the Quaker player didn't make a play. The bases were still loaded, but Mel Byers ended the innings when his swift, low ball was intercepted by Fisher, and tossed to Ash at first base.

Quakers drove home three runs in the fifth inning to establish a 2-run edge at that time. After Pollock fanned, Tice shot a ball over Corbett's head and race around the bases to score, when Sullivan up, laced a hot two-baser into left field beyond left-fielder Kingdon. Roote walked, and Gunn singled to left centre field to bring home Sullivan, and Weaver's single over Phillips at second base scored Roote. Gunn attempted a dash for the plate, only to wind up between Corbett and Gyers, finally chased and touched out by Corbett. The next batter Fisher popped to Phillips.

Then, in the first half of the seventh, Brinton made a supreme bid for the tilt when one hit, one error and a sacrifice hit combined to score two batters to sew up the game 3-3. Jones was safe when Weaver fumbled his ball at third base. Craig hammered a blow into centre field to allow Jones home and Weese popped to Sullivan. Kingdon sacrificed to score Craig, Byers walked, and Phillips rolled one to Ash to end the frame.

Quakers went to bat in the 7th, determined to win the game and end the series. Sullivan started proceedings with a left-field single. Roote fell prey to Craig's rise-ball and fanned. Gunn drew a walk, and Weaver was safe and Sullivan scored on errors by Weese and Phillips. Gunn came home when Fisher flied to Kingdon in left field. Ash was safe on an error, and Willshaw was out at first to end the frame.

Two flies and a force play at second base in the eighth finished Brinton's chances for a win, and the championship.

For Brintons, Craig pounded two blows out of four trips to bat to lead the hitting for that team. Corbett, Brintons' ace hitter, shot four flies in four times at bat. Quakers' Sullivan with two hits out of four times at bat, headed the roll.

The teams:

Quaker Oats— Sullivan 2b, Roote ss, Gunn c, Weaver 3b, Fisher p, Ash 1b, Willshaw cf, Pollock rf, Tice lf.

Brintons — Corbett 3b, Rose rf, Jones cf, Craig p, Weese ss, Kingdon lf, Byers c, Phillips 1b, Dorrell 2b.

Score by inings:

Quakers	000030 2x—5	8	4
Brintons	000 102 00—3	6	5

Umpires — Paul Hillier at plate, D. Hillier at bases.

Miss Wilkinson was runner-up. John Wilkinson (Centre) won the junior boys' championship.

Canadian Sport Snapshots

TORONTO, Oct. 3 — (CP). — It was probably inevitable, the way wartime hockey has been deteriorating in most parts, but it still comes as quite a shock, podner, to hear that some people would actually rather see the hockeyists shovelling grain than scooping the rubber around the ice with their customary rare abandon.

Old-timers who have viewed the change from amateurism to the present-day model of more or less openly-paid sport will mutter in their beards and avow that nothing else could be expected under such circumstances. If the puck-chasers were going to take money for their endeavors, there would come a time by cracky when they would have to work for it, snort the greybeards.

Of course it hasn't come to such a sad state yet, and probably we won't live to see such drastic measures really taken in our day, but that "shovel or git" order to the youthful players in Port Arthur had the effect of a none too mild earth tremor.

The attitude of the Grain Controller there reportedly was that the husky young protegees of the St. Louis Flyers should be helping stow away the huge lots of grain at the Lakehead, rather than dashing about the ice lanes, while old men were working at the elevators.

Labor shortage or no labor shortage, however, it seems that most of the boys had the sanction and the blessing of Selective Service to study hockey ways, so the youngsters themselves can't be blamed. After all, hockey still is given more than passing recognition by the services and civilian authorities as a builder of that much talked about thing called morale.

But we have no doubt the hockey players will stick together mightily to prevent any such encroachment of their sovereign rights as would force them into digging and delving in the grain pits.

L.-Cpl. W. Kerr Dies Overseas

MILLBROOK, Oct. 3 —(ENS) — Word was received Sunday that L-Cpl. William Kerr died in hospital in England on September 21, from the effects of wounds received in action in France September 13.

As several days had passed since the message came that he was dangerously ill, and that an amputation of the right leg at the knee had been necessary, hope had revived that he would possibly recover.

He is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Kerr, and a brother, Cfn. Donald Kerr, in England.

L-Cpl. Kerr was a despatch rider and he was given mention recently in a news despatch when he and a pall from Cornwall brought in 1,600 German prisoners. He had attended Millbrook Continuation School and after four years in the service was still under 23 years of age.

A Tough Sailor

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 3 — (AP).—The Red Cross blood donor centre thanked Seaman Roy Jackson but told him two blood donations in the first two weeks out of hospital were too much. The sailor's first stop on leaving the Brooklyn navy yard hospital was to donate a pint of blood in New York.

You can have Softer, Smoother Skin in just 14 Days!

HELP YOUR SKIN RETAIN YOUTHFUL ELASTICITY!

How often a woman wishes . . that her face looked as young as her shoulders. You see, shoulders stay smooth, soft, elastic—while faces have pores clogged with make-up, unable to breathe for hours at a time. And when pores can't breathe, skin becomes wrinkled and prematurely aged. But this needn't happen to your complexion. Palmolive offers a proved way to help keep it young and lovely.

You can look younger in 14 days! Each time you wash, (use a face cloth) massage warm, rich, vitalizing Palmolive lather thoroughly into your skin for . . . one full minute. Now, a quick rinse and pat dry. Palmolive's 60-second Beauty Massage has been scientifically tested by 2,301 women and 36 doctors. Their reports prove conclusively that . . . in just 14 days, it brings lovelier complexions.

Norwood Calf Club Holds Achievement Day

NORWOOD, Oct. 3.—(ENS). — Seven of the eleven members who joined the Norwood Calf Club met at the Norwood Fair Grounds on Saturday for their Achievement Day. J. Davidson, manager of the Co-Op in Peterborough and F. C. Paterson, agricultural representative for Peterborough county, attended.

The members who had their calves in fine condition wrote on examinations on the care of cattle.

The club was taken to Ray Nevin's farm where they judged several of Mr. Nevin's herd, giving reasons for their placing. Mr. Davidson made the final decision, explaining the different points.

The group then journeyed back to the Fair Grounds where their calves were judged by Mr. Davidson, and the final judging was for showmanship.

The standing was as follows:

First prize, John David Barrie; second prize, Trevor Brown; third prize, Earl McMillan; fourth prize, Lloyd Starke; fifth prize, Leo Caughlin, Laurabel Barrie (tie); sixth prize, Harold Stinson.

Mr. Davidson, Mr. Patterson and G. A. Brethen, club leader, gave short talks, thanking the boys and girls for their work and the splendid attention paid during the day.

Terrific Bomb Damage

LONDON, Oct. 3 — (CP) — The ancient city of Bath suffered 1,272 casualties and 19,044 of its buildings were destroyed by German bombers in three nights from April 25 through April 27, 1942, British authorities compiling bomb damage data announced Saturday.

The assault were termed "Baedeker" raids by officials, saying the Germans had made a studied effort to wipe out England's famous cities listed in the guide books by Karl Baedeker.

Unwelcome Visitor

KANSAS CITY, Oct. 3 — (AP)—The Sidney I. Sammis family returned from a week-end trip and found their curtains torn up, the window sills chewed almost in two, stuffing removed from overstuffed furniture, and apples and spices either eaten or spilled. They called the fire department, which had trouble in catching the home-wrecker: a saucy, young red squirrel.

Girls' Class At Knox Has Crokinole Party

HAVELOCK, Oct. 3 — (ENS) — The Girls' Class of Knox Presbyterian Church, held a successful crokinole party recently, Mrs. Clifford Scott being the prize winner with a score of 1,310, the consolation award going to Miss Joan Graham. A short program was presented consisting of a reading entitled, "A Welsh Classic", by Mrs. Carman McMullen. A vocal duet, "A Starless Crown", by Ruth Wilkinson and Dora Ketchen. The president conducted a brief business period relating to future meetings, and a public speaking contest and a discussion followed, led by Mr. Martin concerning religious education, and special features of the science course.

Fewer Donations

TORONTO, Oct. 3—(CP)—Col. J. W. Langmuir, chairman of the Blood Donor committee of the Toronto branch of the Red Cross, said last night that news of Allied victories was having an "adverse effect" on blood donors' clinics which was proving "alarming" to the Red Cross. He said there was a definite necessity for the help of donors already registered and new donors.

Gift Of $100 Made To Centre

Presentation of a cheque for $100 to the Memorial Centre Fund through the City Council last night by Mrs. John Post, convener of the Social Committee of the Unemployed Workers' Association, which was organized during the early months of the depression of the thirties, was gratefully acknowledged by Mayor Hamilton and members of the Council.

"We wish to show our appreciation of what the Council and its Relief Committee did for the unemployed during the depression when times were so hard," Mrs. Post said. She was heard as a deputation of one from the Unemployed Workers' Association, and was given first place in the Council's business on Monday night. Quite obviously her mission of returning bread cast upon the waters was a pleasant surprise to the members, and especially to Mayor Hamilton, and Aldermen Dutton and Glover as members of the Relief Committee in many a session of distress and sometimes of tearful applicants.

"We wish to thank the Council on this occasion for all they have done for the members of the unemployed in this city," Mrs. Post continued. "We noticed during that time that while some other cities and towns had difficulties in the administration of relief, there was nothing like that in Peterborough, and we think that Peterborough did a splendid job, and we are glad to be able to make this contribution."

Committee Grateful.

Mayor Hamilton replied that the cheque for $100 would be turned over to the credit of the Memorial Centre, and that the Memorial Committee would be as grateful as the Council.

"As a member of the Memorial Centre Committee," said Alderman Bradburn, "I would like to thank the Unemployed Association for this generous and thoughtful offering for the success of the Memorial Centre Fund, and also to ask her to carry back to her association the fact of our appreciation of this gift."

"It seems to me," alderman Dutton said, "that this is an occasion when the Council should feel very happy. As a member of the Relief Committee during those years, I can recall that there was some trouble in the manner in which relief was given out in some municipalities, but we seemed to steer clear, for the most part, from difficulties that were reported in other places. I think there were two reasons why we got along comparatively well. One was that those we were trying to help realized that we had a difficult problem in our endeavor to meet the needs of so many people at that time.

The Council used to feel that it was a sort of hopeless situation, and after we had done everything we could within the limits of our authority there remained so much that we could not do. The members of the Council are fully aware of their responsibility, but many times we went more than the second mile, and in the administration of relief we wanted above all to leave no stigma on the people who had to be helped through those times. We used to look forward so hopefully to the day when people would be back to work, and personally I am happy that the Unemployed Association is able to make this contribution.

Alderman Glover added a further expression of appreciation of the Unemployed Association's gift. "This fine contribution by Mrs. Post representing the Association, backs up the opinion I have had all along of C. W. Holland and his organization that they would not apply to the city for anything they did not feel was coming to people who were unfortunately situated. This action shows that they have the interests of the community at heart. The books of the Unemployed Workers are audited by our auditor, and I feel that the association deserves our thanks for what they have done."

Pte. Arthur Pollock Suffers Leg Wound

HAVELOCK, Oct. 3 — (ENS). — Pte. Arthur Ray Pollock, serving with the Royal Canadian Regiment in Italy was wounded in action September 17, according to official word received by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Pollock of Belmont Township, the injury being described as a flesh wound above the knee of the right leg.

Pte. Pollock enlisted in October 1942, training in Ottawa, Nova Scotia and for a year in England in the L.A.A., transferring to the infantry in March 1944. He has been overseas for eighteen months, going to Italy the early part of May of this year where he participated in the Florence scrap.

Prior to joining the army Pte. Pollock was engaged in farming on his fathers farm five miles north of Havelock.

Norwood Baptists Hold Anniversary

NORWOOD, Oct. 3 — (ENS) — The Norwood Baptist Church celebrated its 58th anniversary of their church on Sunday. At the morning service the choir sang two anthems.

Rev. Hamer preached at both services. At the morning service he took as a text from John, "I looked and behold a door was opened." There are many doors of opportunity open to-day. Three and a half million men and women who have faced the perils of war are coming back to endeavour to re-establish themselves, do we have to wait until then to help, he asked.

In driving along the concessions, near Norwood he found thirty people who did not attend church at all.

Mr. Hamer stated 9,000 boys came down gently to earth in Holland and set up a fort which they held for hours a garrison has never been compared with it. After hours they withdreew under the cover of darkness. 7,000 never withdrew.

After the morning service a communion service was held.

Members of the other churches united with the Baptist church.

At the evening service, the choir rendered the anthem "Follow Your Lord." Misses Shirley and Audrey Bennett of Havelock sang "The City Four Square."

Rev. Hamar choose as his text for the evening service, "Straight is the Gate and Narrow is the Way".

Rev. E. E. Pugsley led in prayer.

Newspaper Boy Day Is Set For October 7

Newspaper carrier-delivery is taken so much for granted these modern days that people seldom stop to consider the dependence they place on the organizations who serve them in their homes.

Newspaper carriers, both boys and girls, during the years have grown from a force of a few hundred in the early years of this century to an army of approximately 25,000 Canadian boys and girls throughout the Dominion. The first Saturday in October is observed annually as Newspaper Boy Day throughout the North American continent and this year on Oct. 7 the daily newspapers of the Dominion will honor the carrier boys and girls who regularly deliver the news to the householders of this country.

During peacetime carrier-boy organizations were maintained at full strength with thousands of active young Canadians on waiting lists to take over routes as older boys and girls might give them up. During the years of war newspapers have found it increasingly difficult to maintain carrier service over abnormally large routes. Thousands of carriers enlisted in the armed services and tens of thousands more took positions in war industries and on the farm.

WI Plans Party For Hallowe'en

HAVELOCK, Oct. 3 — (ENS). — It was decided at the October meeting of the Havelock Women's Institute to give four prizes, at their Hallowe'en masquerade dance to be held on Friday, October 27.

Prizes will be given for the following: men's best fancy costume, men's best comic costume, women's best fancy costume and women's best comic costume. Mrs. H. Hoard and the president Mrs. R. Jones, were appointed to purchase the prizes and Mrs. R. J. McCutcheon and Mrs. W. Rice to take charge of the advertising.

The paper on agriculture to be given by the program convener, Mrs. W. Johnston, was read in her absence by the president. It dealt with farming from primitive times up to the modern methods of today.

Hymn History

Mrs. J. Hoffman read the history of the hymn, "The Church in the Wildwood", after which it was sung by Mrs. Sam Southward, accompanied by Mrs. W. M. Platt at the piano.

A humorous reading was given by Mrs. Fred Bennett entitled, "The Exhibition". Lunch was served, the hostesses being Miss E. Wright, Mrs. H. W. Roche and Mrs. W. Rice.

Surprise Package

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 3 — (AP).—Zoo Curator Roger Conant believed "eye before you buy" was a good policy until he opened a long wooden box that arrived here with a $27.50 delivery charge due. Out rolled a crocodile which threshed loose the rope binding its jaws and tore a chunk of rationed leather from Conant's shoe before it could be subdued. The delivery fee was paid, however. Conant said the crocodile is an almost extinct Cuban specimen, sent by the Havana Zoo.

Main Street Topics

LINDSAY BOY WOUNDED

Pte. Philo Owen, son of Mr. and Mrs. G. S. Owen, 48 Cambridge street, Lindsay, has been officially reported "slightly wounded" in action in Italy, September 24, and now confined to hospital, his parents have been informed. He has been in the army since the spring of 1943.

SOLDIER WOUNDED

Sgt. Patrick Lewis Burke, R.C.O.C., whose wife, Mrs. Bowena E. Burke, is listed as living in this city, has been wounded, according to the casualty list of the Department of National Defence. No information regarding the soldier's identity is available. He enlisted in M.D. 6, Nova Scotia.

ARMY CASUALTIES

Casualties contained in the day's report of the Canadian Army included Gnr. John William Wheldon, wounded, and L.-Spl. Blandford Colin Cresswell, injured. Gnr. Wheldon, R.C.A., is the brother of Albert M. Wheldon, 53 Wellington street, Lindsay; and L.-Cpl. Cresswell, who serves with the Canadian Provost Corps, is the son of Mrs. Ursula F. Cresswell, 137 Durham street west, Lindsay.

NO LIGHTS YET

Although the rest of Peterborough has "lit-up" due to the relaxation of electricity regulations, the lights around the big Quaker Oats tower may not sparkle for some time, according to plant officials. Reason for the dim-out, which blacked-out the tower long before the rest of the city went dark, is that there is still a shortage of power for the Quaker machines, and since they develop much of their own power, every means of conserving it must be brought into play.

CONTRIBUTE TO CENTRE

The spirit in which many servicemen regard the projected centre was given ample demonstration Monday with the receipt of two contributions of $10 each from two brothers in the armed forces. They are Flight Sgt. Mac Powell, serving with the R.C.A.F. overseas, and Stoker 1 Gerald Powell, R.C.N.V.R., who is stationed at Halifax. The are the sons of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Powell, 14 Cricket Place.

BLOOD DONATIONS DOWN

The number of blood donations made at the Clinic Monday showed a severe drop, with only 46 persons on hand to make their contributions. Of the factories, B. F. Ackerman's, Canada Packers, Westclox and the C.G.E.-Genelco, which sent 16, were represented. From out of town there were donors from Keene, Lakehurst, Young's Point, Norwood and Lakefield. Eleventh donations were made by LAC. John Harry Young, and Uzal Waterman; while Mrs. R. D. Taylor contributed her 10th donation.

MULTIPLE WOUNDS — Pte. Norman George Victor Field, word of whose wounding in battle was received last week, was struck by small bomb fragments in his left thigh, left shoulder and lip and he received multiple wounds, a telegram from the Department of National Defence informed his mother, Mrs. S. Field, 276 Lansdowne street, on Sunday. Pte. Field was wounded September 16.

$4,065 FIRE LOSS

Local fire loss in September amounted to $4,065, Chief Gimblett reported to the council Monday night. Loss on buildings was $2,250 and on contents $1,815.

CURB CHEERS.

The lights are up again on main street, a little late in the season for the curb parking cars and their occupants who idle many an evening hour looking out at the passing crowd.

ONE BUMP LESS.

That bump in the Hunter street pavement, immediately east of George street, looks like a traffic hazard to Alderman Bradburn, who suggested Monday night that the Board of Works iron it out.

SAVED $5,040.

The city saved $5,040 in its street lighting account during the two and a half years of bedimmed electric lamps, Alderman Sullivan, chairman of the fire and light committee, told the council Monday night.

SHRAPNEL WOUNDS

Major Fred Lander, son of Mrs. William Lander, Plainville, an officer of the S.D. and G. Highlanders, who was wounded at Bouolgne, is suffering from a shrapnel wound back of the knee which has severed the nerve of the leg.

WOUNDED OVERSEAS

Another Lindsay boy to be reported wounded in action is Cpl. Donald McFadyen, son of George McFadyen, and the late Mrs. McFadyen, 66 Elgin street, Lindsay. Serving in France, he has been overseas since May of this year.

SLIGHTLY INJURED

Cpl. Donald Ada, whose wife and baby live at 721 Water street, has been slightly wounded while serving in Italy with the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment. He went overseas in September, 1943, and has been in Italy since January. Cpl. Ada was wounded September 19.

TO THE WRECKER.

Outworn apparatus at the fire hall is being sold to Tom Hughes, wrecker, for $190. The pieces include the chassis of the former No. 1 pumper, chassis of an old combination truck, and four old truck doors, as mentioned in Alderman Sullivan's report. He was also authorized to have the Utilities Commission set up two 300-watt lamps at Inverlea Park and one opposite the fire hall.

TO INVESTIGATE TANKS.

"To investigate the oil and gasoline storage tanks of all oil companies operating in the city, and make a report of their findings," a special committee was appointed by the council Monday night on the recommendation of the finance committee, of which Alderman Ovens is acting chairman. The members of this committee are: Alderman Sullivan, Chief Constable Thompson, City Engineer Parsons and Fire Chief Gimblett.

STRANGE FLOWER

An unusual Columbian Ball cactus in the Chin cacti family with a lovely yellow flower, has been on display in the W. J. Welch barber shop. This is the fourth bloom this year for the plant and another bud can be seen. According to the cactus authorities, the plant will blossom eight times in 1945. The blossom itself is large with petals of soft yellow and bright yellow stamen. The cactus, about the size of a large orange, is deep green covered with russet-colored spines. The flower only opens fully during the period when the sun is shining on it in the afternoon.

Takes Camera Award

TORONTO, Oct. 3 — (CP). — Victor Crich, Toronto secondary school teacher and one of seven Canadians who is a fellow of the Royal Photographic Society, last night was presented with the Bertream Trophy by the Toronto Camera Club for the best print entered in its 1944 exhibition. His winning picture was one of a chickadee. Mr. Crich, who specializes in nature pictures, took his first photograph only six years ago but he has had 30 years of close acquaintance with birds.

C.G.E. Racing Weather On New Shop

Excavation machinery was assembled Monday on the north side of the Canadian General Electric Company, toward Park street, and this morning a big steam shovel was biting into the soil for the foundation of the new fractional motors building.

Anglin-Norcross (Ontario) Limited, Toronto contractors, have been moving rapidly toward operations since C.G.E. accepted their bid, probably in the intention of getting as far along with the work as possible before the sharp weather sets in.

The top soil is a convenient gift to the city. It is being hauled down Townsend street to the municipal property bought from the Allin Ice Company and extending toward George street.

"We should like to have the new building ready by January, but that is out of the question," Ian F. McRae, works manager, commented to the Examiner. "We need the extra space as soon as we can get it ready. That is one reason for speed in the present stage of work, and the other is the fact that pouring concrete in the cold weather is not a satisfactory operation."

Mr. McRae was asked why the large buildings on the west side of the property, the Genelco Limited group, would not serve the purpose of the company.

"Two reasons", he replied briefly. "One is we don't own them, and the other is that they are hardly the type of building we have in mind for fractional motors."

Great Changes

Continued expansion of the works of Canadian General Electric Company has completely changed the proportions of land and buildings in the big thirty acres that were originally acquired half a century ago, or thereabouts, for the Edison Company. The first buildings seemed almost lost in the estate of their setting, but gradually the plant has grown from decade to decade until the still unoccupied land has been reduced to a few vacant patches along the fringes.

And if the new plastics building had been erected at the Park street works, instead of at Stewart and Wolfe streets, another substantial block of space would have disappeared from the remnant grounds.

The top soil and other earth from the excavation for the new building is being added to the built up property that was once a frog pond between Rink and George streets. It will be levelled and graded when the Board of Works can spare the men for that job.

Harry Tudhope and Vert Reynolds called at the council meeting Monday night, and as representatives of the lacrosse club struggling to carry its former vitality over into the years after the war, they agreed to the council's plans. The lacrosse box will be taken apart to facilitate the unloading and grading of C.G.E. soil, and the lights and other equipment and whatever lumber is worth storing will be kept for future use. In the meantime the council will provide a practice box for the youngsters.

The lacrosse club, after the old crowd get together as promoters and monitors after the war, will still have its eye on the Townsend street property, although Mayor Hamilton said that the accommodation the new Memorial Centre would provide would be more attractive for the games.

Roll Film Quotas Reach 80 Per Cent

Although it may be some time before cameras for domestic use are back on the markets again, the supply of roll film for those who already have cameras has increased gradually since the time it was sold to retailers on the quota system, until now, when 80 per cent. of the amount required in 1941 is now being released for sale, according to Parks Studio.

When the retailers selling roll film for civilian use were first put on the quota system, only 50 per cent. of the film was released, the remainder being used for essential war purposes. The rationing system came into effect in November, 1942.

HOME IN TWO MONTHS—Pte. Murray Stover, son of Mr. and Mrs. L. J. Stover, 364 Simcoe street, has been invalided home after only 2½ months overseas.

RETIRES FROM C.P.R.—Joseph Hoffman of Havelock, who has been with the C.P.R. for 37 years, was retired Saturday afternoon in Peterborough. For most of that time he had been a locomotive engineer.

Engineer Retires After 37 Years

HAVELOCK, Oct. 3—(ENS)—At Peterborough Saturday afternoon Joseph Hoffman of Havelock was retired from the service of the C.P. Ry. Co. after 37 years of service, 32 years of which he was employed as locomotive engineer.

At the time of his retirement he was engineer on the Peterborough yard engine and when he came off duty at 3 o'clock on Saturday afternoon he was met by his family and fellow workers, the latter bidding him farewell.

In the evening, Mr. Hoffman was given another surprise when 30 of his friends and associates of the C.P.R. gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Logan, 569 Harvey street where the evening was spent in cards and dancing and a sing-song, after which a lunch was served by the hostess, assisted by friends, when toasts were proposed wishing the retired veteran a long and pleasant holiday.

Soldier's Stay Brief Overseas

Believed to have established a record for 'brief wars' of Peterborough fighting men, Pte. Murray Stover, 364 Simcoe street, arrived home Monday after being wonded in action in France, only two and a half months after leaving for overseas. He enlisted in February of this year, and as far as is known, has experienced the fastest war of anyone from this city.

An interesting highlight of the young soldier's experiences is that his brother, Sgt. Pilot Ray Stover left Canada for England exactly one week after he did, and though the two tried hard to meet, it just happened the other way. Sgt. Pilot Stover, his brother, was in a hospital in England, but Murray didn't know Ray had left Canada, because of not receiving his mail on time.

A former employee of the Wire Department of the C.G.E., Pte. Stover is the son of Mr. and Mrs. L. J. Stover, who moved to Peterborough from Campbellford four years ago. Both boys were born and educated in Campbellford.

Hit Near Caen.

As nearly as he can estimate, Pte. Stover received his wound.... a bullet wound in the above right arm, about 32 miles the other side of Caen, while fighting with the South Saskatchewn Regiment, in the face of stubborn Nazi resistance. The unfortunate mishap put an end to this soldier's war, and he was returned to England to a hospital. Subsequently, he returned home on leave.

After his leave of thirty-days is up, Pte. Stover has no idea what duties the army will wish him to do. It may be back overseas though, and if so, the 20-year-old soldier hopes to see more of the war than he did in his initial effort!

About buzz-bombs, he was fortunate enough not to meet any in a personal way while in England. "We heard dozens of them," he said.

England is a nice place, and there are few reasons for anyone not to like it, is the opinion of this soldier. However, the exigencies of war did not allow him to see much of the country, and about seven days after arriving in England, he left for France.

Coming across on the same boat with him, was Bdr. M. W. Free, of Campbellford, an old friend of the Stover family from their days in that town.

Ashburnham Drain Causing Difficulty

"Any day last week you could have caught a fish in the water running on Clifton street," was the hyperbole of Alderman Curtis at the council meeting Monday night in a plea for a storm drain.

"I guess we'll have to be satisfied for the present with filling up a hole or two with gravel, seeing there is a scarcity of labor, but the people over there are entitled to a storm drain," said the Ashburnham member with an eye to the interest of neighbors on a street which appears to have been overlooked. "There was six inches of water running down the north side of the street last week."

Draw For Syrup Gives Aid To Robot Victims

Year by year, the regular routine of the average farmer's life actually portrays the truth in the old saying, "That hope springs eternal in the human breast," for should disappointment come because of poor crops they usually go back at it again the next year with renewed vigor, hoping for a much better return from their labors, not many giving up the idea because their previous efforts had not turned out so well as they had wished.

Situated a few miles from Lakefield on R.R. No. 3, Mrs. George E. Parsons some time ago caught a vision of the assistance she could give to the sufferers from air raid attacks over Britain, and through a draw on a pair of towels climaxed by a dance, was able to raise a nice sum to aid them at that time. Later she again took up the work in the hope of doing still further good for the same cause, which showed that the appeal on behalf of these sufferers remained, and that she was not content to sit idly by and do nothing about it.

By making a luncheon at and donating a quart jar of syrup, Mrs. Parsons provided the means by which she could offer tickets for sale for a draw to raise further aid, and this was brought to a close on Saturday when the secretary of the Peterborough and District British War Virtims' Fund made the draw which gave the prizes to F. Leonard of Lakefield with ticket No. 213 and Mrs. H. L. McIlmoyle of R. R. 3, Lakefield, with ticket No. 96.

In spite of the little time that folks on the farm have to spare from their own immediate activities, she was able to raise $10.35, which is credited in her name today, and before leaving there was an intimation that still further work on behalf of the fund would be done in the near future.

The penny box at the Utilities office on Simcoe street has been making its silent appeal ever since they were first put into circulation to give aid to the fund, and has always been collected on a regular basis since that time. The latest contribution it has yielded amounts to $2.80, and this is also included in today's receipts.

Kaleidescopes For Sale.

Towards the Christmas season the Roy Powell family has for the past few years made and given a number of kaleidescopes to the fund management to sell on its behalf. They have already started on their good work.

Last year the demand was really more ample than the supply, for they make most desirable Christmas gifts, and during the course of this year, enquiries have come in for additional ones which unfortunately were not at the time available. The fund management would suggest that people particularly desirous of obtaining these should make a point of filling their needs as soon as possible because the supply can hardly be expected to be an unlimited one. The cost is only 25 cents each, and they can be procured on application at The Examiner office.

Pte. Stanley Clark Home From Overseas

Experiences of service in several different European theatres of war are behind Pte. Stanley Clark, son of Mr. F. D. Clark, 608 Centre street, who arrived home from overseas on Monday. Pte. Clark is home because of a drop in his medical category, and expects to be discharged soon.

In four and a half years of service in Canada's armed forces, he has been injured only once, when struck by fragments from a bomb overseas. He was in London through most of the great blitz of 1940-41, and helped at that time to evacute British civilians, and also give aid to bombed-out Londoners.

Pte. Clark was only home a day when he returned to Kingston.

REPORTED MISSING — Telegrams have been received by Mr. and Mrs. Reg. Palmer of Bethany, stating, first, that their eldest son, Pte. Jack Palmer, was wounded, and later, that he was officially reported missing in action in Italy.

Pte. Jack Palmer Reported Missing

BETHANY, Oct. 3—(ENS)—Pte. Jack Palmer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Reg. Palmer, has now been officially reported missing in action in Italy, after a telegram received previously stated him to be wounded September 29, while serving with the Irish Regiment of Canada. This is the second time the 23-year-old soldier has been wounded in action, being struck by shrapnel in the left hand once before. No additional information accompanied the second telegram.

He enlisted in July, 1940, at Port Hope, and went overseas in March, of last year. At first a member of the 1st Midland Regiment, Pte. Palmer transferred to the Irish unit after arriving overseas.

A brother, Pte. Charles, is now at Camp Borden, serving in the active army. Both boys are former Examiner carrier boys in Bethany.

The father, Reg. Palmer, was a member of the armed forces in the war for 13½ months, before poor health forced his discharge. He served overseas in World War I, and is now a guard at Genelco.

Lt. W. Thirnbeck Suffers Wound

Serving overseas on loan to the British Army, Lieutenant Woodie O. Thirnbeck, whose wife and 2½-year-old son, Peter, live at 418 Water street, has been officially reported wounded in action in Belgium September 22, according to word reaching his wife.

The son of John W. Thirnbeck, 525 McDonnel street, and the late Mrs. Thirnbeck, he was a member of the 4th (R) Battery in Peterborough for several years before the war, and when he enlisted in the active army in February, 1942, he went in as a lieutenant, going to Brockville to qualify. For some time after he was an instructor in artillery at Brandon, Manitoba, and he went overseas on loan to the British Army in June of 1944. Since then he has been in on the fighting in France, and Mrs. Thirnbeck believes he is serving with the British Second Army, now battling the Nazis in Belgium and Holland.

Although the telegram received did not indicate the nature or extent of his wound, Lieut. Thirnbeck is reported to be in a hospital.

Formerly an employee at Westclox, he has a brother, Signalman Robert Thirnbeck, with the Canadian Army in Italy, and a sister, Pte. Isobel Thirnbeck, serving with the C.W.A.C. and stationed in England.

No Reduction

OTTAWA, Oct. 3—(CP)—A Board spokesman said last night that the Prices Board has "no thoughts at the present time" of ordering restaurants to reduce the price of tea and coffee to five cents a cup. The Board's view is that circumstances existing when the increase was allowed still existed when rationing was lifted.

Halt Registry Of Wartime Housing Areas

Plans of two Wartime Housing subdivisions, the Hatton area and High street (race track) intended for legal registration were held up by the council Monday night as contrary to the understanding and agreement, as Mayor Hamilton recalled, "that they would not sell those temporary houses without the consent of the city."

"If consent were given to these plans being registered it would simplify the company's selling of that property," His Worship added.

The plans are like other drawings of property subdivisions.

"Where did they come from? How did they reach this council?" Alderman Bradburn enquired.

City Clerk Outram said they had come to his office from the township of North Monaghan whose council had given their approval to the registration.

City Solicitor Huycke reminded the council that subdivisions had to receive the assent of municipalities within seven miles of them.

Small Frontage

"Some of these lots are of less than forty feet frontage," Alderman Bradburn said, "and Wartime Housing is trying to get under the wire with this subdivision which they want to have registered."

It was said that Monaghan was about to lose the entire area, and it did not matter to the township whether the subdivisions were registered.

"Let's tell Wartime Housing we won't recognize any plans of their subdivisions," Alderman Curtis suggested; "and we can ask the company to withdraw them."

A motion by Aldermen Dutton and Swanston referred the plans to Mr Huycke for consideration and report, and he was also asked to enquire from Wartime Housing why they want the plans registered.

Mayor Hamilton told the council that the company had agreed at the outset that its wartime houses would not be sold without the assent of the city, and with that pledge in the background there did not seem to be point for the registration of the subdivision of the several properties.

Season Open On Black Squirrels

TORONTO, Oct. 3 —(CP) — An open season for taking English ring-necked cock pheasants was declared to-day by Minister of Game and Fisheries G. H. Dunbar in townships established as regulated game preserves in Counties of Prince Edward, Ontario, York, Peel, Halton, Wellington, Wentworth, Welland, Haldimand, Brant, Norfolk, Oxford, and Elgin on October 20 and 21.

In Lincoln County, the season is October 20, 21, and 25, and in Middlesex and Lambton Counties Oct 26 and 27. Hours of hunting are 8 a.m. to 5.30 p.m. each day, bag limit being three cock birds per day. Special township hunting licences are required in addition to regular hunting licenses.

An open season for English ring-necked cock pheasants, quail and Hungarian partridge in Essex, excluding Pelee Island and Kent Counties is declared for October 26, 27, and 28 with similar hours each day, bag limit three cock pheasants, four quail and two Hungarian partridge per day.

An open season for taking of black and gray squirrels in the area south of the French and Mattawa rivers and Lake Nipissing is declared for Nov. 2, 3, 4, bag limit being five squirrels per day.

SEVERELY INJURED — After volunteering to take special part in the invasion of Southern France, Pte. Joseph Morley, 506 Cross street, a veteran of the fighting in Italy, has been reported severely injured August 28. Mrs. Robert Merrett, a sister, has been advised.

Pte. J. Morley Severely Injured

Serving with the First American Special Service Force, after volunteering to take part in the parachute invasion of Southern France, Pte. Joseph (Bus) Morley, 506 Cross street, has been reported "severely injured" in action, according to information reaching Mrs. Robert Merrett here. The telegram revealed he was injured August 28, but no other details were given.

One of the first volunteers when the S.D. and G. Highlanders began recruiting in 1940, the 22-year-old soldier went overseas in 1940, and remained there until the spring of 1943, when he went to Italy. After fighting many weary months in heavy theatres of action in Italy, he was sent back for a rest period, and when he learned of a call for volunteers to invade by parachute the Southern parts of France, Pte. Morley immediatly enlisted his aid, was classed A1 for the expedition, and became attached to the Special American Force. Although primarily an American unit, there are many Canadians in it, and members wear both insignias of the Canadian and American forces.

He is a former employee of the Wire Department of the C.G.E.

Regina Rugby Team Disbands

REGINA, Oct. 3—(CP).—Regina Roughriders, winners of the Western Canada rugby football title eight times since 1921, have disbanded for the duration of the war, officials announced today.

Decision to withdraw from competition was reached at a meeting here last night. Inability to secure permission to use armed service personnel was the reason given.

The team had been practicing for some time under the direction of Al Rtchie, long-time mentor, and had hoped to challenge for the Dominion senior title this fall.

Last week the club lost the services of Dean Griffing, ace snap, now a member of Toronto Balmy Beach in the Ontario Rugby Football Union.

For Wednesday, October 4

JUDGING by the lunar transits there should be a surprising and quite unpredictable turn in events, which may be considered progressive, productive and inspiring, a generally expansive and happy culmination toward the goal of cherished desires, hopes and wishes. Such should be worked for with considered judgment, good sense and reason as well as a prudent use of the intuition or "hunches" in financial matters or investment. But adhere to rules and regulations when traveling or forging ahead. Sign papers cautiously and preserve the amenities in social, and domestic affairs.

Those whose birthday it is are promised a very surprising turn for the better, with progress, success and splendid achievement in the way of attaining cherished ideals, goals and objectives. This applies to work, finance, business as well as romantic, social or domestic ambitions and aspirations. Sound sense as well as intuitive leads may be safely utilized, especially in big deals, speculation, travel and change, but precaution must be exercised, to keep within the code and preserve harmony in personal contacts. Push for high goals.

Those whose birthday it is will be bounteously talented for success in business, finance, professions or arts, and should enjoy a happy life and possible inheritance.

Obituary

THOMAS CONNOLY.

High Mass for the repose of the soul of the late Thomas Connolly was sung on Friday morning at St. Peter's Cathedral by Rev. K. Malane, attended by a large crowd including the class mates of his two small children, Ruth and Ronny from St. Mary's and St. Peter's schools.

The late Mr. Connolly was held in high esteem by his many friends, neighbours and acquaintances which he made since he came to Peterborough from Galway, Ireland.

Casket bearers were Messrs. Gordon Pearson, Willam Logan, John Cavanaugh, John Doogan, William Dolan and Ross McNab.

SCOTT'S SCRAP BOOK

With The Armed Forces

The editor of this column will welcome extracts from letters from boys serving or any other information concerning them.

By JEAN STENTON

Many of the Germans fighting in Italy are just kids and ought to be at home instead of taking part in battles, writes Sgmn. Ted Jones, whose wife lives in Lindsay. He has been serving with the 8th Army in Italy for more than a year.

"We are back on the east side of Italy in the Gothic Line. We went up to Florence and Jerry thought we were still there. Then one night we stole over here and began pounding at this line. We did a lot of night travelling and ate a terrible amount of dust, and the heat has been terrific.

"Perhaps you can picture the roads we have gone over — nearly all through the mountains. We are not moving around so much now, so I have more time to myself. Hitler has always said that these lines could not be broken, but they have all been smashed and the Canadian Army has always done its job well. But we have paid dearly for it. I have seen enough dead Germans to last me a lifetime. They are good soldiers, only they are on the wrong side.

"I can see our gun flashes and also machine gun fire from where I sit, also the good old air force. You should see these fighter planes in action. They come straight down at Jerry's guns from about 2,000 feet through ack-ack and everything he has. They are afraid of nothing."

In Dramatics

A hit number in a regimental concert party in Italy is, "The Girl Who Broke The Sergeant-Major's Heart." Bdr. Stewart Loyst, son of W. A. Loyst, Lakefield, is the sergeant major. He is a member of the 1st Canadian Survey Regiment and the gunners rehearsed and presented it in their spare time.

His Luck Holds

Not content with dodging shells and bullets in Italy, Pte. Bill Holman, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. Holman, 176 Lock street, decided to try his skill at stealing honey from a hive of bees. What's more he didn't get into trouble.

The young soldier, 21, who is serving in Italy, was getting ready to go back into the line, when some of his buddies found a hive. They wanted someone to take out the honey and Pte. Holman volunteered to do the job. He took out three cans, enough to feed the platoon, and was only stung once. All this was done without a net or smoke.

Life for some weeks has been a series of being sent into the lines staying there several days, and coming out only for short rest periods.

Little Rest

"We were pulled out of the front today and are moving back tonight again. We were to be out for three or four days, but you know the Army. I have had some close shaves but am all right. I was supposed to go in P.H.O. but didn't like the job. They put another man in my place and he was wounded."

In a letter written September 3, Pte. Holman said they had been on the move for more than two weeks straight. A friend, who had been at the rest camp with him was killed and another one wounded, during that period. He commented on how expensive it was to do anything in Italy, as it cost between 500 and 600 lire ($6.50) to go out anywhere at nights.

Although he has been five months in Italy, and has seen some of the heaviest fighting, Pte. Holman has escaped serious injury. On September 15 he wrote that he had a few scratches from shrapnel, but was not a casualty. Prior to enlisting, he worked for Adamson and Dobbin.

Gets New Name

Home ship to many Canadian naval ratings now serving in other areas, the R.C.N. training establishment H.M.C.S. Stadacona II at Halifax, was yesterday re-christened H.M.C.S. Peregrine.

Known familiarly to Canadian tars as "Stad two", the shore training "ships" was commissioned in January 1944 under command of Cmdr. N. L. Pickersgill, V.D., R.C.N.V.R., Regina, who yesterday turned over command to Capt. C. R. Frayer, V.D., R.C.N.V.R., Winnipeg, following the impressive recommisssioning ceremonies.

Captures Pistol

An Italian Beretta automatic pistol is one of the souvenirs brought home by Pte. Pat Gahagan, son of Mrs. G. Gahagan, 494 Sherbrooke street, who arrived in Canada recently and is now undergoing medical treatment.

Captured from a German Army captain near Ortona, when this Peterborough man and six others captured 38 Nazis, the pistol is well made, somewhat of a "Bull-dog" type and possibly a .38 calibre. No explanation was offered as to why a German officer was carrying an Italian weapon, usually considered inferior to Nazi arms. Pte. Gahagan also brought a German wrist watch.

Pte. Gahagan expects to be sent to Christie St. Hospital for further operations. He and his chum, a Toronto man, served together in Italy, were wounded around the same time and were invalided home together. While in the Kingston military hospital, the two were in beds side by side and expected to be sent to the Toronto hospital together.

Impressed by Leaders

The Canadian troops in Italy were impressed by His Majesty King George and Winston Churchill during their inspection tour in Italy, writes Sgmn. William Hadlow, son of Mrs. W. Emery, 288 Westcott street, who got a close-up during the visit.

"I recently spent three days in Rome. They were perfect days and we saw almost everything. St. Peter's Cathedral just inside Vatican City, took 100 years to build and it is marvellous. I also saw the Pope while there. Three days is long enough as far as the cash goes.

"Everything is high priced and a meal in a restaurant there cost us $3 each, but it was the best I've had for many months and is well worth the cost.

"We are back to work again and raring to go and get the job done. The news these days really keeps you on your toes for you don't know what to expect next, and one of these mornings, we will wake up and find it all over."

Prior to enlisting two years ago, Sgmn. Hadlow was employed at DeHaviland in Toronto.

Stress Russian Threat

A propaganda pamphlet put out by the British, was taken from a German soldier in Belgium and sent home, by Pte. Norman Thomas, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. Thomas, 23 Braidwood avenue. He is serving with an anti-tank unit.

The leaflet stresses the angle of the utter futility of fighting on when the Russian juggernaught cannot possibly be halted for long. The heading "The Red Army Marches Against Germany" opens the theme.

"After five years of war, war has again returned to your homeland. From now on it is German ground which will be torn by guns and tanks. From now on German women and children become the inevitable sacrifice of battle.

"The German soldier must decide whether the war is to progress through each house in each village in Germany, through each street in every city, yes even if his own house and family shall be annihilated. Only the German soldier in the West can decide that. The German armies in the East are retreating and are at the end of their tether. End it. What has already been decided, cannot be undone."

In another section the pamphlet declares: "While the Russians fight in German cities and villages, you stand 1,500 kilometres away in a struggle against the might of England and America — on foreign soil in France. Any further struggle there cannot save your home. The Eastern line of defense has been breached and the Fatherland is a battle field. Think of this and ask yourself—"Is there any use fighting on in the West?"

Pte. Thomas who went overseas in the summer of 1941, was formerly a designer at the Brinton Carpet Company. A brother, L.-Cpl. Arthur Thomas, is in the same unit.

Wearing Star

Pte. Gerald Edward MacDonald, whose wife Mrs. Katherine MacDonald lives at 266 McDonnel street, is entitled to wear the 1939-43 star. He is a veteran of the Sicilian campaign and is now in Italy with a workshop of the Royal Canadian Electrical and Mechanical Engineers as a storeman.

The Tea Hour Gossip . . . .

Cheese has an important place in the kitchen, for it keeps well, it is a concentrated food and, ordinarily, an economical one, at least when compared with other animal foods. One pound of cheese represents the fat and protein of a gallon of milk. There is a cheese for every taste. The housekeeper should know the ways in which various kinds of cheese are used and choose the variety best suited to the need of the moment. Cheese will take the place of meat or eggs and is not used merely as an addition to a meal, already heavy with protein and fat. Below you will find a few recipes made with cheese.

Welsh Rarebit

1 tablespoon fat, 1 tablespoon flour, 1 cup milk, ½ teaspoon salt, few grains pepper, ¼ teaspoon mustard, ¼ to 1 pound of cheese (according to richness desired) shaved or cut fine, 6 slices buttered toast.

Make a white sauce in the top of a double boiler, of the first six ingredients, mixing the mustard with the other dry ingredients. Set the top part of the boiler over hot, but not boiling, water. Add the cheese, cook and stir until it is melted. Serve on hot toasted bread or on saltines. One-half cup chopped olives may be added. This dish may be varied by adding one or two slightly beaten eggs just after the cheese has melted and continuing the cooking until the egg has thickened the mixture.

Cheese Croquettes

½ cup soft cheese, 2 tablespoons fat, 2 tablespoons flour, ½ cup milk, 2 egg yolks, 1 egg white, ¼ teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon paprika, crumbs.

Make a white sauce, using the fat, flour and milk. Add the slightly beaten egg yolks, the cheese cut in small bits and the seasonings. Stir until the cheese is melted. Allow the mixture to cool, then shape, roll in crumbs, then in egg white (which has been diluted with one tablespoon of water) then in crumbs again and fry in deep fat (375 degrees-390 degrees F.).

Baked Rice and Cheese

3 cups cooked rice, 2 cups cheese, ½ teaspoon salt, cayenne, 1 cup milk, 2 tablespoons butter, crumbs. Put a layer of cooked rice in a greased baking dish, cover with a layer of grated cheese, season with salt and cayenne. Continue adding layers until the dish is almost full. Add enough milk to come half-way to the top of the rice. Cover with crumbs, dot with butter and bake in a moderate oven (350-400 degrees F.), 15 to 30 minutes. This makes a very delightful supper dish.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

IS THE OTHER STOPPED?

IF YOU and your partner have shown stoppers in two suits, and your partner then bids a third one, the chances are that he does not desire a No Trump contract unless you have some kind of stopper in the fourth. Proceeding to bid No Trumps at such a time entitles him to consider that you have shown such a stopper, and urges him to go on in No Trumps if he has adequate additional strength anywhere in his hand.

North: ♠ A J 3 ♥ 7 3 2 ♦ K 8 ♣ K J 7 3 2

West: ♠ 10 6 4 2 ♥ A K 8 ♦ A 9 7 2 ♣ Q 6

East: ♠ Q 8 ♥ Q J 10 5 4 ♦ 6 4 ♣ 10 9 8 5

South: ♠ K 9 7 5 ♥ 9 6 ♦ Q J 10 5 3 ♣ A 4

(Dealer: East. Neither side vulnerable.)

East	South	West	North
Pass	Pass	1 ♦	Dbl
Pass	1 NT	Pass	2 ♣
Pass	2 ♠	Pass	2 NT
Pass	3 NT

North made several mistakes in his bidding, and as a result paid by causing his side to be set a couple of tricks. West was a good competitive player, who does not depend merely on tables of leads shown in the standard books. He reasoned that his partner was pretty likely to have a fair heart holding, since the opponents had bid everything else. So he boldly led his heart K. Getting the 10 from East, he followed with the A and 8. Five tricks there, plus the diamond A, set the contract two.

North's first risky move was his thin double. After South very properly showed his diamond pluggers and his near-to-opener strength with 1-No Trumps, North indicated a very sound doubling hand when he voluntarily took the bid into the two level with his club call. Next he misread the clear meaning of South's 2-Spade bid, which showed at least four cards there, probing for a four-card fit, but probable inability to stop the remaining suit, hearts.

If North had held heart blockers, 2-No Trumps might have been sound enough, even though he had shaded his calls twice. But without them, and lacking four spades to fit South's bid, he probably would have done well to pass. When he bid 2-No Trumps, South had every right to consider he had the hearts stopped, and properly went to game. A 2-Spade contract would have been made by almost any botchy play.

Tomorrow's Problem

North: ♠ K 6 5 ♥ J 4 2 ♦ A Q 8 3 ♣ 10 9 7

West: ♠ 9 4 2 ♥ A 10 8 3 ♦ K J 7 ♣ Q 6 5

East: ♠ A J 8 3 ♥ Q 9 7 5 ♦ 10 6 2 ♣ K 4

South: ♠ Q 10 7 ♥ K 6 ♦ 9 5 4 ♣ A J 8 3 2

(Dealer: South. Neither side vulnerable.)

Why would East's hand offer a sound fourth-hand opening bid in match-point duplicate, but not in rubber bridge if the opponents had a part-score of 40?

Britisher Warns Trade Policy Not Satisfactory

LONDON, Oct. 3 — (CP) — The United States and British governments should co-operate to "restrain the policy of customer-grabbing under Lend-Lease," Lord Queenborough, president of the Royal Society of St. George, said today.

"Unless we can trade to our old, full measure with lands overseas, we must perish," Lord Queenborough states in the current issue of the society's publication, "Monthly Message."

Warning that "it is vital to continuing good relations that signs of this restraint be soon," Lord Queenborough adds "a successful fight for temporary markets might be bought at the cost of a crippled friendship which would eventually give entry to some third power who would impoverish both."

NOW MAJOR INDUSTRY

Iron has been smelted in Canada for more than 200 years, but only in the last 40 years has the making of iron and steel become a major industry in the Dominion.

Veteran Airman Helps Catch 20-Pound Lunge

HAVELOCK, Oct. 3 —(ENS) —A lifetime's fishing ambition was realized on Saturday by William Mattulke, Sr., of Hamburg, N.Y., when accompanied by his son, First Lieut. William Mattulke of the U.S.A.A., they landed a 20-pound lunge from the waters of Crowe river.

The fish measured 43 inches in length. They were using an eighteen pound tested line and live minnows bait on a June bug. At first they thought the line had become entangled in a log, as the fish did not break water until it was brought to the side of the boat. It took about twenty minutes for the landing process.

The Mattulke family have been visitors to this district over a period of fifteen years and this is their first big catch. Lieut. Mattulke claims that luck came their way on this occasion as he was wearing his lucky cap, which is full of holes from being hit with flak during operational flights over Germany.

Completed Tour.

Lieut. Mattulke, who is 20, has recently returned on furlough from overseas and has 31 missions over Germany to his credit. He served as navigator on B24 Liberator heavy bombers, operating from the Eighth Air Force Liberator bomber station in England.

The major part of his missions were carried out since D-day. He has participated in some of the heaviest raids over Germany and narrowly escaped being wounded several times by flak. On one occasion his ship was shot up so badly that the crew was forced to dump the bomb load in the North sea and seek an emergency landing field in England. The engines were damaged, break lines and controls cut, but the pilot brought the plane, which had thirty-one holes as evidence of the fight, down to safety

Wins D.F.C.

Lieut. Mattulke is the winner of the D.F.C., the Air Medal with Three Oak Leaf Clusters and the Campaign Bar with two bronze stars, one star for participating in the D-Day invasion and the other for the battle of Europe.

Old Friends Meet.

A happy surprise for Lieut. Mattulke occurred in Campbellford on Saturday evening when he unexpectedly met Ferry Pilot Jack Stevens of the R.C.A.F., whom he had met in Casablanca, North Africa, during the month he was stationed there en route to England. He had gone to Campbellford to visit Pilot Stevens' parents.

Lieut. Mattulke's father, William Mattulke, Sr., served in the American Navy in the First Great War.

WORRIES AHEAD?—Rumors persist that New York's Mayor Fiorello La Guardia was selected at the Quebec conference for the tough job of running Italy until Italian political confusion is settled after the war. To do this, La Guardia would get a brigadier-general's rating. In this photo, taken a few days ago at a Senate committee hearing in Washington, the mayor's expression indicates that he can foresee plenty of trouble ahead.

Garden Brigade Reviews Work

HAVELOCK, Oct. 3 (ENS)— The Girls' Garden Brigade, a group of twelve girls, residents of Belmont township within a few miles radius east of Havelock, who at their May meeting enlisted under the leadership of Lois Fraser and Marie Dafoe to study planning, planting and vegetable culture, reviewed the results of their endeavors at their September meeting which closed this sphere of study for 1944.

Eleven of the members succeeded in completing their record books and had excellent Victory Gardens. The second meeting of the season was held when their gardens were producing a crop and vegetables which were new to most of the girls such as broccoli, spinach and Swiss chard. They were properly cooked and served. The topic for study at this time was insect control.

The third meeting dealt with the canning of tomatoes, a demonstration being given by the leader Marie Dafoe and each girl was requested to can at least two quarts, but several members canned as high as twenty-five quarts. Plans were made for "Achievement Day" which was held in Peterborough, September 8, when their exhibits were judged by F. C. Paterson of the Ontario Department of Agriculture. During the summer their gardens had been judged by Miss Jean Scott of Peterborough, their coach in Home Economics.

The following girls received certificates for two years of club work namely: Reta Dafoe, Mildred King, Vivian Wood and Berniece Ellis.

Meetings for the clothing project "Cotton Accessories for the Bedroom" will commence in October.

Sailor Returns From Overseas For Hunting Season

MARMORA, Oct. 3 —(ENS)—His oft-repeated promise to come back to his parents for the coming hunting season was fulfilled as Leading Stoker John (William) Nayler phoned from Belleville Sunday afternoon for a car to bring him home.

"The car couldn't just travel fast enough," said his overjoyed mother. LS. Nayler, who has inherited his father's love for hunting and fishing, said he was going to spend his six weeks' furlough with a lot of that thrown in. It was seven weeks ago that Mrs. Harold Nayler, mother of this 20-year-old youth, last heard from him, and she confessed to being a little worried.

LS. Nayler found the Navy all he expected it to be, and does not regret joining it. He enlisted in Kingston August 10, 1942, and went overseas in March, 1943. He was on the first boat of his flotilla to land on one part of the beach on D-Day. Although eleven soldiers were killed on that venture, only one of his crew was wounded—being hit by a sniper. He had been with landing craft operations since last February.

Asked as to the Marmora boy he last saw, he replied "Ray Osborne." The latter, who is in the Engineers, has seen four years of overseas service. Speaking of German prisoners who were fellow passengers on the boat conveying him home, he said "They still think their country will win the war, and were much surprised to find cities on this continent still standing after the stories Hitler and his associates had been giving them."

THE BUDGETEERS INVITE YOU TO BUDGET YOUR SPENDING FOR VICTORY

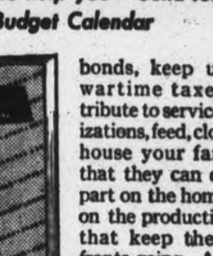
Here's a new budget plan to help you—Send for a free copy of the Budget Calendar



YOU can make your wartime dollars do more for your family and for your country if you budget your spending, believe the Budgeteers. They hold that budgeting is now the patriotic as well as the sensible thing for most families to do. Don't you want to join them in their campaign? Don't you want to help keep the home front strong by budgeting your spending for Victory?

A totally new way to budget

Budgeteers use the Budget Calendar—a new and simple budget method supplied by Household Finance without charge. The Calendar is based on a totally new approach to the problem of planning family spending. It doesn't ask you to fit your way of living into a fixed pattern that may or may not suit you. It doesn't ask you to set aside so much for this item and so much for that. It simply starts out with the expenses you now have and helps you to meet them with the money you have to spend. Maybe that's the reason so many users have called the Calendar a "budget plan that really works."

Helps to stretch your dollars

Think how much you are trying to do with your pay cheques these days! Pay for your share of war bonds, keep up with wartime taxes, contribute to service organizations, feed, clothe and house your family so that they can do their part on the home front, on the production lines that keep the battle fronts going. A budget can help you plan your spending to get the most out of every dollar.

Join the Budgeteers

We will gladly send you the Budget Calendar by return mail. You are also invited to join the Budgeteers. Budgeteers receive a new booklet or letter from time to time to encourage them in their efforts and may ask for individual help with their problems at any time. All Budgeteers who complete a full year of budgeting receive special recognition.

The Budget Calendar was published by Household Finance, Canada's oldest and largest Small Loans company, as a service to customers. Other families soon found it helpful in solving their wartime budgeting problems. So we decided to make the Calendar available to everyone who wishes to try this practical way to plan family spending. Why don't you send the coupon for a free copy? We will not annoy you with loan advertising of any kind.

HAD "NERVES!" COULDN'T SLEEP! TELLS HOW SYNTONA HELPED HER

Says She Felt Definitely Better After First Bottle; Wouldn't Be Without It Now; Condition Followed Long Period of Stomach Suffering, Constipation, Headaches and Dizzy Spells.

Nervousness and sleeplessness are among the most distressing symptoms of a rundown condition of the system. The causes are often so elusive that it is difficult to get any one to understand that there is any real cause for complaint. To make matters worse, the sufferer must often listen to much useless advice from others who were never really sick in their whole lives, while some will even suggest that the condition is just imagination. But those who have experienced this condition know that it is very real, indeed. Syntona has proved highly beneficial in many cases. Here for example, is the experience of Mrs. Thomas McKay, 28 Mayflower Avenue, Hamilton, as reported recently:

"For years I suffered with stomach troubles, biliousness and constipation, and then my nerves got so bad I couldn't sleep. Gas from my stomach crowded into my chest and caused palpitation and shortness of breath. After meals sour liquids would rise from my stomach and give me a burning feeling in my throat and chest.

MRS. THOMAS McKAY

When walking around, dizzy spells came over me, spots floated before my eyes and I would usually end up with a splitting headache.

"But I wasn't taking Syntona long before I could tell it was helping my stomach, and soon I got so I could digest hearty meals without all that gas, acidity and indigestion. Then my nerves became relaxed so I could get a good night's sleep. I arise mornings now feeling fully rested, whereas I used to feel fatigued and depressed right from the beginning of each day. I am free of dizzy spells and headaches, my complexion has improved, and I feel more healthy and happy in every way."

Go to Elliott's Drug Store, Peterborough, and find out how Syntona can help you, too.—(Advt.)

Allied Troops Near Cologne Assault Backstop Defences

Canadians Gaining In Antwerp

All-Out Assault To Start Soon, Against Dunkerque

By ROSS MUNRO
Canadian Press War Correspondent

WITH THE 1ST CANADIAN ARMY, Oct. 4—(CP Cable).—Guns were silent around the embattled port of Dunkerque today as civilians were evacuated from the last German-held city on the Channel coast under a truce which ends at 6 a.m. Friday, but on the western flank of the British 2nd Army front Polish and British troops of the 1st Canadian Army continued their advance.

Polish forces captured Baarle Nassau, three miles inside the Netherlands frontier and eight miles southwest of Tilburg, at 7 p.m. yesterday and British troops thrust into Poppel, four miles east of Baarle Nassau.

The Germans had been preparing defence lines between these two towns, but a Canadian army drive smashed through them.

German resistance has loosened considerably lately and there are growing indications the enemy may fall back to the mouth of the Meuse, eight miles north of Baarle Nassau.

There are an estimated 50,000 German troops in the area west of the 2nd Army wedge into Holland and south of the Rhine and Meuse estuary.

On the Antwerp sector, a small German force is holding out at Schooten, two miles east of Merxem, Antwerp's northern industrial suburb, which is in Canadian hands. Schoote, however, is entirely cut off by Canadians who have gone round it to the north.

At 6 p.m. yesterday the Dunkerque armistice went into force according to an agreement made between the German garrison commander and the commander of the British troops of the Canadian army besieging the port.

In his letter giving these truce terms the British commander said "During the whole period of the truce no hostile act will be committed by the Allies and no Allied aircraft will fly over Dunkerque for the purpose of taking offensive action or carrying out reconnaissance. No change in the Allies' disposition around Dunkerque will be made during the period of the truce.

Happy Warrior Al Smith Dies At Age 70

NEW YORK, Oct. 4 — (AP). — Alfred E. Smith, 70, native of New York City's East Side, four times governor of New York State and 1928 Democratic presidential candidate, died today.

Death came to the man who made the brown derby famous at 6:20 a.m. E.D.T. in Rockefeller Institute. Dr. Raymond P. Sullivan, his physician, said lung congestion and acute heart failure were the causes. He had been transferred to the Institute Sept. 23 from St. Vincent's Hospital where he had been treated for an intestinal and liver disturbance since Aug. 10.

Only last night a dozen red roses arrived at the hospital for him from President and Mrs. Roosevelt. It was Mr. Roosevelt who nicknamed Mr. Smith the "Happy Warrior" when he nominated him for the presidency in 1928.

Aided in Drives

The close political and personal friendship between Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Smith cooled, however, in 1936 when Mr. Smith took what he called "a walk" from Mr. Roosevelt and the Democratic party and supported Republican Alf Landon for the presidency. He again opposed the new deal in 1940, stumping for the Republican candidate, Wendell L. Willkie.

Mr. Smith had not taken an active part in politics in recent years, devoting himself to management of the Empire State Building and aiding in bond drives and other civic activities.

A prominent Roman Catholic, Mr. Smith knew he was dying "and was praying all the time," said Rev. John Healy, his pastor, who was present when death came. Father Healy said Smith "passed on peacefully." His death took place five months to the day from the death of his wife,

Drive On Belgrade With Partisans Acting As Guides

MOSCOW, Oct. 4 — (AP). — Russian machine-gunners with Yugoslav Partisans acting as guides, drove westward along the Danube less than 20 miles from Belgrade today. Nearly all Yugoslav territory east of the big elbow formed by the confluence of the Danube and Tisza Rivers was reported swept clean of German resistance by Red Army forces advancing like a flood from the foothills of the Transylvanian Alps more than 50 miles beyond the Danubian iron gate.

Scouts of Marshal Tito's Partisan army ferried across the Danube to meet the Russians on the northern bank and help lead them westward toward the Yugoslav capital, field dispatches said.

While still hammering at the frontiers of Hungary, Marshal Rodion Y. Malinovsky shifted a powerful armored task force from southwestern Romania with the assignment to free the Yugoslav capital.

The rich farming country of the Yugoslavia-Romania border fell in one swoop to the Russian push, which drove the disorganized Germans back as much as 30 miles in 24 hours.

If the present Russian pace is maintained the embattled Serbian population of Belgrade may see a Red Army victory parade before the week-end.

Malinovsky's main force was approaching from the northeast. A simultaneous thrust to the eastward was driving for the Greece-Belgrade railway, blocking of which apparently would isolate an estimate 50.000 Germans in the lower Balkans.

New Successes

Although liberation of the land of the South Slavs from three dark years of German rule took the spotlight, a Russian objective of even greater strategic importance was the drive to defeat Hungary—the gateway into sutheastern Germany. New successes were scored against enemy troops in Northern Transylvania.

Cluj, centuries-old Transylvanian capital, was reported resounding with the sound of Russian guns, now less than 12 miles southeast. Due eastward 43 miles Malinovsky's forces captured Reghin after crossing the Muresul river.

In the Hungarian-held Carpatho-Ukraine another Russian column reached the frontier of Lawochne.

Cleaning up the North Baltic, Marshal Leonid A. Govorov's Leningrad Army yesterday captured the Estonian Island of Hiiu (Dago), one of two major Island bastions commanding the approaches to the Gulf of Finland and the Gulf of Riga. A communique last night said a full German infantry division was routed in the capture of Hiiu.

Emergency Aid

NEW YORK, Oct. 4—(AP).—The Red Cross reported last night that it gave emergency care to 13,100 persons as a result of the hurricane that struck 10 Atlantic coastal states September 16-17. The report listed 29 persons dead and 101 injured in the disaster. It said 804 homes were destroyed and 8,260 damaged and 718 other buildings destroyed and 2,241 damaged.

3,000 Attend Funeral Of Sir Wm. Mulock

TORONTO, Oct. 4 —(CP) — The final chapter was written to-day in the mortal career of Sir William Mulock who devoted most of his 101 years of life to public service of the Dominion and his native Province of Ontario.

The body of the former Postmaster General of Canada and former Chief Justice of Ontario was buried at nearby Newmarket, not far from where he was born in 1843. A private funeral service was held at his home and a public service in St. Paul's Anglican Church where he worshipped.

Among the 3,000 persons who filled the church to overflowing were lead? ers in public life, including Prime Minister Mackenzie King, as well as many less well-known who had come to know Canada's grand old man as friend.

Mr. King and Justice Minister St. Laurent represented the Dominion Government and the Ontario Government was represented by Premier Drew.

The University of Toronto, which he served as Chancellor for more than 20 years before his death Sunday morning, was closed for the afternoon. So was Toronto City Hall. At Osgoode Hall, where he presided as chief justice for 13 years after serving as chief jusitce of the Exchequer division for 18, the courts did not sit.

The funeral procession which accompanied the body from the home on Jarvis Street to St. Paul's was one of the largest ever seen in Toronto. The service was conducted by Rev. F. H. Wilkinson, the rector, assisted by Rev. H. J. Cody, president of the University of Toronto and a long-time friend.

Bombs Wreck Germany's Rail Lines

Transportation Facilities Battered Anew

LONDON, Oct. 4 (CP) — Allied bombers kept up the pressure on Hitler's transportation system during the night as the Ruhr Valley, heart of Industrial Western Germany, lay paralyzed and cut off from many of the main rail and water connections with the rest of the Reich.

R.A.F. Mosquito bombers attacked 31 trains, 20 barges and 25 motor transports in Germany and Halland after more than 1,000 American daylight bombers, out for the seventh time in nine days, pasted important industrial targets in Southern Germany and R.A.F. heavies started the flooding of the Dutch Islands.

Last night's total brings to 116 the number of trains attacked by Mosquitos on three successive nights.

The Ruhr is reported to be completely isolated now by waterway, both from the North Sea and from Central and Eastern Germany, following the wrecking of the Dortmund-Ems canal by British bombers Sept. 23.

The Air Ministry called it the "most important air attack on German communications so far" and added that the economic and military effects would be far-reaching.

Reconnaissance photographs show long lines of barges lying helpless on the bottom of the canal. Some of the bombs shattered great safety gates and loosed flood waters over hundreds of acres deep in the rear of the Siegfried Line.

A more serious flood threat faced German troops on Walcheren Island, off the Dutch coast, where R.A.F. Lancasters yesterday blew out 120 yards of seawall.

A Monkey Hunt

MIAMI, Fla., Oct. 4—(AP).—A monkey with a penchant for nipping passing ankles sent Miami's police force on an impromptu safari all day yesterday. The monkey led police in patrol cars and on foot a merry chase through back yards, vacant lots and city streets. Salted peanuts, bananas and cajoling words failed to tempt him to surrender, but finally he fell victim to a dog catcher's net.

Allies In Italy Register Slight Gains

ROME, Oct. 4 (AP)—British and American infantry of the Allied 5th Army made slight gains yesterday on a 20-mile front through the stiffest kind of German resistance, the Allied command announced today.

In the Adriatic sector, the Fiumicino River, behind which the Germans are strongly entrenched, was in full flood and only a few British 8th Army patrols managed to cross it to probe enemy position.

Fighting was reported in Borghi at the inland end of the 8th Army front spanning the southeastern corner of the Po Valley. The town remained in British hands.

Near the coast, an official report said the Brazilian division with the 5th Army "continued to maintain pressure against the enemy along its entire front."

In the mountainous-central sector the most striking gains were made east of Highway 65, the main Florence-Bologna artery. American units reached the area just south of Boschi, 15 airline miles from Bologna, a city of 270,000.

EXTRA!

LONDON (CP) — The Algiers radio declared today that half of the German occupation forces on Crete had been killed, wounded or captured by invading Allied troops.

ROME (AP)—Strong forces of heavy bombers today assaulted the Munich railyards and railpoints on the Brenner and other lines leading into northeastern Italy.

Americans Now Two Miles Inside Germany Itself Head-on Assault Hits Metz

Resistance Crumbling In Holland As Poles And Canadians Move Up With British 2nd Army

By JAMES M. LONG—Associated Press War Correspondent

LONDON, Oct. 4—(AP).—American tanks rumbled today into a 2½-mile breach torn in Germany's Siegfried Line above Aachen and fanned out, bringing their guns and armor into support of an infantry drive against backstop defences guarding Cologne. The U.S. 1st Army smash had carried two miles into Germany itself, A.P. Correspondent Don Whitehead reported. Supreme Headquarters earlier declared the drive had carried three miles beyond Ubach, a mile inside the frontier, to one of the enemy's main escape roads above Aachen.

U.S. 3rd Army men 125 miles to the south fought as bitterly at Fort Driant, strongest of the ring of fortresses guarding Metz. Supreme Headquarters announced capture of the fort, but a later front dispatch said Americans were clinging to surface positions in the fort, which is honeycombed by tunnels, against increasingly furious enemy resistance.

Canadian, British and Polish troops under Lt.-Gen. Crerar fighting on the western flank of the British 2nd Army in Belgium and Holland continued to batter their way forward against slackening German resistance.

The U.S. 1st Army, battling hastily-gathered German reserves, had severed a main escape road north of Aachen, and was cutting off that ruined stronghold in developing the breach torn in the west wall defences.

Fort Driant, on the Moselle River's west bank, fell after a two-day battle. Infantry in the final hours burned out the last Germans by setting fire to crude oil sprayed into tunnels of the fortifications.

Seven miles north of Metz, other units seized Mazieres Les Metz, and high ground on the Moselle's west bank along the Luxembourg-German frontier.

Favored by clearing weather on the Vosges front, the American 7th Army liberated the villages of Grandvillers, Deyeimont and Lepanges northeast of Epinal and to the south edged farther into the valley entrance to the Belfort Gap.

Only fighting of note on the British 2nd Army front in Holland today came when Lt.-Gen. Dempsey's men beat off a light counterattack north of Nijemegen in a brief but fierce encounter.

Flood threat faced German troops on Walcheren Island, off the Dutch coast, where R.A.F. Lancasters yesterday blew out 120 yards of the sea wall protecting the island from the North Sea.

Gen. Eisenhower had warned civilians to evacuate all the islands off the southwest coast of Holland.

Have Big Guns

Several big guns capable of sweeping approaches to Antwerp harbor are located on Walcheren, westernmost one of the chain.

In their advance on the southwest sector of the British Netherlands salient, 1st Canadian Army troops took the important road junction of Withof, eight miles northeast of Antwerp, and cut the Antwerp-Breda road.

Bad weather over the front line curtailed yesterday's activities of French-based Allied aircraft but altogether more than 550 fighter-bomber sorties were flown in support of ground troops.

U.S. 1st Army troops struck on each of Ubach, taken in breaching the Siegfried Line. Its units fought along and across the main northeast road from Aachen to Gladbach. Aachen (Aix-la-Chapelle) already was flanked on the south by the first major breach in the westwall line.

A front dispatch said the 1st Army still was gaining on this third day of its offensive and the Germans were reforming stragglers into new battle groups. The battle was for German positions backstopping the Siegfried Line in this area.

Strike Affects 50,000 Workers

DETROIT, Oct. 4—(AP).—The huge war production program in the Detroit area was impaired to-day as maintenancce workers in more than a score of factorise began a strike which their union officers said earlier would be deferred pending a meeting with the War Labor Board.

Before noon 3,000 maintenance employees had left their jobs, 11 plants had been closed down, and more than 50,000 workers had been sent home. Maintenance workers in 10 other factories had left their jobs and additional closing affecting another 50,000 or more workers were said by company spokesmen as probable.

The strike grew out of a dispute between the maintenance, construction and power house workers' council of the United Automobile Workers (C.I.O.) and the War Labor Board over procedure for handling wage demands.

The Council represents 38,000 maintenance men in more than 300 plants in the Detroit area, including virtually every large and small automotive plant. Union officials have said that a strike of all the maintenance workers would directly and indirectly affect several hundred thousand workers in the Detroit area and paralyze the war production effort.

Most of the factories are engaged in various types of aircraft manufacture.

Allies Must Invade China To Bring Adequate Help

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press War Analyst

China's fiery rebuttal of Prime Minister Churchill's recent assertion that she had received lavish American military help is understandable, although the term "lavish" is relative and one could make out a fair case for both sides.

The cold truth is that, despite the Allies fine contribution, China hasn't enough military material of any sort.

The spokesman for the Chinese military council in Chungking didn't exaggerate when he declared that "determination has to be their substitute for fire-power, and in the defence of their provinces they have willingly accepted staggering losses."

The Chinese aren't afraid to die. But you can't win wars simply by dying.

That was the situation when I was in Chungking last year. It has been the situation ever since. And it will remain the situation until the Allies are able to invade China in a big way and open up a feasible supply route, continued American air transport from India, and a revival of the serpentine Burma Road through the primeval mountain wilds will be helpful, but they cannot carry more than an infinitesimal amount of the supplies which China must have if she is to wage real war.

Establishment of an adequate supply route into China will require a major operation. It might mean an Allied amphibious invasion of the south coast— a great undertaking. It might be achieved by invading the Malay peninsula from the Indian Ocean and driving across Siam and French Indo-China proper. Once a route is opened up, a great amount of shipping will have to be assigned to the task of transporting supplies from the other side of the world.

Japs Aware Of It.

20,000 People Flee Dunkerque

By BILL BONI
Associated Press War Correspondent

FIRST CANADIAN ARMY HEADQUARTERS, Oct. 4 — (AP). — After a 12-hour preliminary armistice in which the road leading south from Dunkerque was repaired, some 20,000 civilians began evacuation of that Channel port at 6 a.m. to-day.

The period for withdrawal of the town's population will extend until 6 p.m. to-morrow, following which there will be the traditional 12-hour truce during which the road will be re-dynamited and mined. At 6 a.m. Friday hostilities will be resumed.

The evacuation of the civilians through lines of British infantry under Lt.-General Crerar's command is in strange contrast to the British Army's bloody withdrawal under fire from the same port 4½ years ago.

The armistice terms were agreed to at a conference yesterday morning between representatives of the British and German commanders. It was believed here that there was a strong likelihood—as at Calais—that the enemy will be ready to surrender shortly after cessation of the armistice.

Finns Facing Bitter Fighting

By ROBERT N. STURDEVANT
Associated Press War Correspondent

ABOARD A FINNISH SHIP IN THE GULF OF BOTHNIA, Oct. 4—(AP)—Dive-bombing German planes and heavy gunfire testify to the increasing savagery of German resistance against their former allies, the Finns.

At the debarkation pier near Tornealy yesterday, when this small Finnish customs vessel prepared to depart with a party of Allied correspondents, German Stukas dive-bombed and machine-gunned the place. There were numerous casualties among hundreds of troops preparing to start for the front.

Finnish troops who landed in strength near Tornealy and cleared the German garrison from the town in 36 hours of hard fighting now are engaged about four miles southeast of Tornealy on the road to Kemi.

When I visited the front today, Finnish veterans of Karelia were pushing through deep woodlands at a point about 17 miles from Kemi, an important Nazi base at the head of the Gulf of Bothnia.

Desperate Effort Being Made To Slow Down Jap Advance

By PRESTON GROVER,
Associated Press War Correspondent

AN ADVANCED BASE IN EASTERN CHINA, Oct. 1 —(Delayed)—(AP) — A steady stream of bombers and fighters flew out from this last major American air base in Eastern China to-day in a desperate effort to slow down the Japanese drive in Kwangsi Province.

Combat units from a half-dozen or more fields already evacuted are crowded into this base.

For these elements of the U. S. 14th Air Force, this battle is one of the most bewildering and discouraging they have had.

Although the Americans have had complete air superiority during the entire period of the Japanese East China drive which began last May, they have had to abandon field after field as Chinese troops fell back.

Instead of having a string of bases in Eastern China the Americans now have the full use only of this base. It is being bombed almost every night.

The Japanese won't venture out by day because when they do they lose from one-third to two-thirds of their bombers to American fighters.

Thousands of Chinese refugees poured through here to-day, some of them hundreds of miles from home, fleeing the Japanese invasion.

It was the first major migration in nearly four years. Most of the refugees came from the Kweilin area by rail.

They were packed into, underneath and on top of box cars and passenger cars as only Chinese refugees can pack. Household equipment and bags of rice were stacked to the ceilings of the cars while men, women and children burrowed into nooks and crannies between chair legs, on top of boxes and astride the bags of grain.

The boiling sun made the cars hot as furnaces. Scores of cars were jammed into the rail yards waiting for engines.

Cases of cholera had appeared and laboratories were set up to provide inoculation but the supplies of serum were pitifully small.

7 Jap Rear Admirals On Casualty List

NEW YORK, Oct. 4. — (AP).—Death of seven more Japanese rear admirals was reported by Tokyo radio to-day in a broadcast recorded by Federal Communications Commission.

Within the last month Tokyo has reported the death of 19 admirals.

The latest seven were identified as Kanichi Hagihara, Sorokuro Morino, Tosaburo Ogura, Fuji Arimura, Shizuo Akasawa, Ryo More and Seiko Miyamoto. The broadcast gave no details of how they died.

2,200 Hun Planes Lost In Month

LONDON, Oct. 4 (CP)—The U.S. 8th and 15th Air Forces together destroyed more than 2,200 German planes and dropped approximately 60,000 tons of bombs on military and industrial targets in Europe last month, headquarters of the U.S. Strategic Air Forces announced today.

More than 35,000 tons of explosives were dropped on targets in Germany proper, the heaviest tonnage ever released on Germany in a single month by the American air forces.

Approximately 6,000 American aircraft and gliders took part in the airborne invasion of Holland, it was disclosed, with losses of less than three per cent.

Supplies and equipment carried to the American and British skytroops totalled almost 6,000,000 pounds, including ammunition, jeeps, artillery pieces and motorcycles.

Churchill Names Criminals

Answers Question On War List

LONDON, Oct. 4 —(CP-Reuter)—Prime Minister Churchill made it clear in the House of Commons today that Hitler, Goering, Goebbels and Himmler were on the British list of war criminals.

Geoffrey Mander, Liberal, had asked the prime minister whether the German leaders named were on the British and United Nations list of Axis war criminals.

"So far as the British list is concerned," said Mr. Churchill, "the parties mentioned are included. It should not be assumed that procedure of trial will be necessarily adopted (cheers). I am not in a position to make any statement about the United Nations list at the present time."

Samuel Silverman, Labor, asked if the prime minister was aware that under the war crimes commission terms of reference none of "these gentlemen" would be indictable for any act committed against German nationals.

Mr. Churchill replied:

"We have to consider a lot of countries and we are in touch with many countries. I was asked a question I was not particularly looking forward to because all this is very general at the present time. We have not completed our job yet and I am not able to give full answers respecting international bodies."

Windsor Man Is Held On Charge Of Murder

WINDSOR, Ont., Oct. 4—(CP) — John Shemko, 47, to-day was arraigned in magistrate's court on a charge of murder in the death of Frank Scibor, whose charred body was found last Thursday morning in his automobile, parked outside his home in nearby Balden township. Shemko was remanded a week at the request of the crown.

The murder charge came as a surprise here although it was known provincial police were investigating the death. Neighbors of Scibor had advanced the theory that his car was struck by lightning. The car was almost destroyed in the fire.

An inquest originally was schedulfor to-morrow night but now that a murder charge has been laid it may not be held.

Spain Gives Eden Promise

Won't Provide Asylum For Nazis

LONDON, Oct. 4 — (CP Reuter)—Spain has assured Great Britain that she will not provide asylum for war criminals, Foreign Secretary Eden told the House of Commons to-day. He said the British ambassador in Madrid had received assurances to this effect, as did the American ambassador.

Mr. Eden asked for time to reply to the question of whether similar assurances had been received from Portugal.

When Capt. Cunningham Reid, Independent, suggested the possibility of war criminals arriving in Spain under assumed names, the Foreign Secretary replied: "I think human ingenuity can deal with that."

Mr. Eden assured the House that the Government was opposed to the return of Italian colonies to Italy. Percy Baton, Labor, had sought assurance that the British Government would adhere strictly to their declaration that the Italian Empire in Afirca was irrevocably lost.

To another question Mr. Eden replied that the majority of Spanish internees in France had already been released and rapid examination of the files of the others was being made by the French authorities.

Smythe Renews Charges About Soldiers

TORONTO, Oct. 4 —(CP)—Maj. Connie Smythe of Toronto, who returned recently to Canada to recuperate from wounds suffered in France, last night reiterated his charges that Canadian reinforcements in France were untrained.

Maj. Smythe's statement follows:

To suggest there are political motives in my statement is untrue. My statement of Sept. 19 is correct.

To make up the pool of reinforcements prior to and after D-Day required for the infantry thousands of men were needed. These were practically all obtained from two sources:

(1) Large numbers of young lads just overseas who a few months ago were civilians and

(2) Thousands of men from other arms such as the artillery, armored corps, etc., with varying lengths of service.

Anyone anywhere in Canada checking the casualty lists and noting dates of enlistment can prove for themselves the truth of item 1. Col. Ralston (Defence Minister), by releasing the figures showing the numbers of other arms transferred to the infantry in the last few months will prove item 2.

The officers who stated to me that the reinforcements were untrained were all of a company commander level or lower—the officers who actually lead the men into battle. They came from the following battalions:

North Nova Scotias, 3rd Division; North Shore Regiment, N.B., 3rd Division; Regiment de Maisoneuve, Que., 2nd Division; Regiment de Chaudiere, Que., 3rd Division; Royal Regiment of Canada, Ontario, 3rd Division; Queen's Own Rifles, Ont., 3rd Division; Essex Scottish, Ont., 2nd Division; Royal Winnipeg Rifles, Manitoba, 3rd Division; South Saskatchewan Rifles, Sask., 2nd Division; Calgary Highlanders, Alberta, 2nd Division, and the Canadian Scottish B.C., 3rd Division.

Canadians Permit Dunkerque Truce

LONDON, Oct. 4 (CP) — A 48-hour truce in fighting for the besieged German-held port of Dunkerque started at 6 a.m. today Reuter News Agency reported in a frontline dispatch.

The dispatch, from the Allied 21st Army group headquarters, confirmed an earlier German radio report which said the truce had been arranged between the German garrison and the commander of the attacking Canadians to allow evacuation of civilians from the city.

A similar truce was arranged between the 1st Canadian Army and the German defenders of Calais last week-end, before the fall of that port.

Memorial Service Held For C. Weimer

BANCROFT, Oct. 4 — (ENS).— A memorial service was held in the Community Hall at Bancroft on Sunday afternoon in memory of Clifford Weimer, who was killed in Italy. The service was in charge of Mr. Harvey of the Pentecostal Church. Members of the local Reserve Battalion, A Company, Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, assisted with the service, by acting as ushers, guard of honor and escort for the mourners and draping of the altar. Mr. Harvey used for his text, "God is my refuge and strength, a very present help in time of trouble," and he and his wife sang a duet, "The City Foursquare," Mrs. Harvey acting as organist.

Clifford Weimer was the youngest son of the late Mr. H. Weimer and Mrs. Weimer. He was wounded September 13 and died of injuries received on September 14. There are three other brothers in the Armed Forces, Archie in Italy, Harvie in France, and Richard in Canada. His mother is now residing in Pembroke.

aware of the likelihood of some such moves. Their current invasion of Fukien Province on China's south-eastern coast, and their attempt to open up the Hankow-Canton railway through South Central China, are recognition of the position.

So that's China's situation of near-impotence— a highly dangerous one —but let's not leave the subject without a word on the "lavish" side of the United States contribution. The spokesman of the Chinese military council himself lauded the services rendered by the American transport fleet and by the U. S. 14th Air Force in China. His point was that, while these units have done yeoman's work, the help has been inadequate.

Day and night pilots have taken their transports from India into China across a field of towering mountains which form one of nature's most cruel traps for man.

I've been over the "hump" in a gale, and I take my hat off to them. Naturally the transport fleet hasn't been able to move vast quantities of material, but the daily quota of foodstuffs, medicines and war equipment has been a blood transfusion.

TORONTO, Oct. 4 —(CP) — Industrials and golds were down this afternoon on Toronto Exchange. Base metals were higher. Sales totalled 290,000.

Cochenour was a feature in the golds, rising steadily from the opening to 3.15 up 23. Kerr Addison at 10¾ was up ⅛, while gains of two to 5 cents were up for Louvicort, Heath and Madsen. On the downside Canadian Malartic slipped five and Preston and Bear three.

Base metals were quiet but firm, Falconbridge still up five at 4.85.

The Industrial Board was practically unchanged with liquor stocks the only feature. Walkers rose to a new high of 69½ up 3¾. Aluminum at 91 was up 5½.

Tirpitz Blasted By Direct Hit

LONDON, Oct. 4 — (CP). — Lancaster bombers of the R.A.F. recently scored a direct hit with a 12,000-pound bomb on the German battleship Tirpitz, it was disclosed to-night.

The attack was made without loss and the "earthquake" bomb was dropped after round-trip involving a flight of 5,000 miles from bases in Britain to an airdrome in Russia and then to the objective in Altn Fjord.

The 2,000-mile flight from Britain to Russia with the heavy bomb loads was made in 11 hours and that in itself was described as a great feat.

After refuelling in Russia, the heavies flew to Alan Fjord, returning to Russia to refuel for the homeward flight.

Most attacks against the Tirpitz have been made from the sea and the attack from the landward side was made in the hope of springing a surprise.

The pilots encountered neither flak nor fighters.

MORE ABOUT—

Al Smith

Catherine Dunn Smith.

Known for his brown derby, cigar and ever-present smile, Smith rose from humble surroundings on Manhattan's east side to a place where he never was out of the public eye.

He was defeated for the presidency in 1928 by Herbert Hoover. Although he carried only eight states he received 41.2 per cent of the total vote.

Born Dec. 30, 1873, the "happy warrior" — a nickname given him by Franklin D. Roosevelt when he nominated Smith at the 1928 Democratic National Convention — had little formal education.

He entered politics at the age of 22 as a clerk and subpoena server for the commissioner of jurors. In 1903 he was elected a state assemblyman. He served 12 years at Albany, N.Y., becoming Democratic leader of the assembly in 1911 and speaker in 1913.

Was Governor

After serving as sheriff in New York County, he became president of the board of aldermen.

Tammany Hall ran him for governor in 1918 and he won, defeating Gov. Charles S. Whitman. He suffered his first political defeat two years later when Nathan L. Miller was elected to the governorship, but Smith came back in 1922 and beat Whitman.

As the Democratic presidential nominee in 1928, he made his 21st and last campaign for public office. After his defeat he branched out into business life as a director on a dozen or more boards.

When Smith reached the apex of his political climb in 1928 he faced four personal issues — he was a devout Roman Catholic, a member of Tammany Hall, an anti-prohibitionist and a product of the east side. The campaign that year was one of the bitterest ever fought, largely because of the unspoken words that accompanied it.

He is survived by three sons, Capt. Alfred E. Smith, jr., now serving with the U.S. Army in the South Pacific; Arthur W. Smith and Walter Smith; two daughters, Mrs. John A. Warner and Mrs. Francis J. Quillinan; a sister, Mrs. Mary Glynn, and 14 grandchildren.

Raid Curtails Jap Gas Supply

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, New Guinea, Oct. 4 — (AP) — Four-engined bombers, in the longest mass raid ever made in the Southwest Pacific, have opened a drive to wipe out Japan's big source of aviation gasoline and lubricating oils at Balikpapan, on Borneo, it was disclosed to-day.

More than 60 bombers dealt a crippling blow on Saturday, battled 30 Zeros for more than an hour, weaved through skies filled with bursting ack-ack and all but three got back, some badly shot up, some with gas tanks almost empty.

But their 74 tons of bombs, carried from advance bases which made possible repeated raids, caused heavy destruction at what was described as "the most lucrative, strategic target in the Pacific."

Forty bomb hits were counted on the power plant and refraction towers of the 3,000,000-barrel capacity Pandansari Refinery.

An Allied communique pointed out that the destruction of Balikpapan would curtail "drastically and immediately the enemy's capacity to wage air and naval war and to move essential cargo."

Fliers Batter Bergen U-Boats

LONDON, Oct. 4 (CP Cable)—R.A.F. and R.C.A.F. heavy bombers bashed submarines in a base at Bergen, Norway, today on a 1,300-mile foray, one of the longest yet flown in daylight by the British four-engined heavies.

That the big fellows may have landed bombs on some U-boats caught flat-footed by the swift shift away from targets in Germany was indicated by the brief air ministry communique which said a concentrated attack was made "on submarines and submarine pens."

R.A.F. long-range fighters escorted the bombers, but no enemy aircraft intervened. The attack was said to have been made in good visibility and against moderate anti-aircraft fire.

One Canadian bomber failed to return, an R.C.A.F. communique added.

Wife Dies In China Word Reaches Waiter

The war in China has brought tragedy to still another of Peterborough's Chinese citizens, in the recent death of Mrs. S. S. Mac, whose husband, an employee of the Blue Bird Grill, received word this week. Mrs. Mac, it was indicated, had died of shock, when she fell seriously ill because of the close proximity of Japanese fighting.

As an example of the inflation that is rotting China's internal struggle against the Nipponese, the funeral of Mrs. Mac cost no less than $7,000, and even the brief letter telling of her death was covered with $28 worth of postage.

Two children, a boy 12, and a girl 15, are now left destitute by the death of this Peterborough man's wife. As far as can be learned, the children are still in Toyshan, where the death occurred. Toyshan is located about 80 miles north of Hong Kong.

After the war, Mr. Mac said today, he intends to return to China, try and find the children, and bring them back to Canada to live.

China Gets Supplies

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4 (AP) — Disclosing that 20,000 tons of supplies are being flown to China monthly, President Roosevelt said yesterday that United States airmen have performed an amazing feat in getting military equipment into that country.

CANADIANS IN FLYING BOMB AREA — Two Canadian soldiers are shown inspecting the wings of a flying bomb which they discovered on a captured launching site at Genevieve, south of Dieppe. During their advance into the flying bomb country Canadians have found much evidence that a large number of the buzz bombs launched against southern England failed to reach their target, crashing into the fields near the launching sites.

British troops repulsed a German attack in the Overloon area and freed Wamel and Dreumel, villages between the Maas and the Waal Rivers.

The U.S. 3rd Army seized high ground along the west bank of the Moselle on the Luxembourg-German border and captured Nazieres Les Metz, seven miles north of the fortress city.

A German counter-attack was broken up in the forest of Parrot east of Nancy and the Americans pushed on another mile.

Clearing weather at the southern end of the battlefront aided the 7th Army's drive northeast of Epinal where three villages were captured in the advance on the Belfort Gap where some progress was reported northwest of Belfort.

Air Conference To Start Soon

OTTAWA, Oct. 4. — (CP).— Plans for the establishment of air routes between countries of the British Commonwealth will be studied in Montreal this month when Commonwealth officials meet prior to going on to Washington for the International Air Conference there in November.

Prime Minister Mackenzie King announced last night that the Commonwealth officials will meet in Montreal beginning Oct. 23. He said they will discuss operational and technical problems connected with the establishment of the air routes.

Military air transport services operated during the war will be reviewed and "it is expected there will be discussions of possible operations during the remainder of the war as well as in the post-war period," Mr. King said.

Any recommendations made by the conference will be submitted to the Commonwealth governments for their approval. Decisions on matters of policy will not be made.

Mr. King said Commonwealth governments have intended for some time to hold conversations on aviation problems. It was decided that the most convenient methods of holding the talks would be to arrange a meeting in Canada which would be attended by delegations coming to this continent for the International Conference in Washington.

Flier In Italy Sends $10 Gift For Centre

Contributions to the Memorial Centre fund, that maketh the heart glad, include a cheque from Flying Officer Allan Marshall of the "City of Windsor" squadron of the R. C. A. F., whose name is entered in the list of subscribers for ten dollars.

Writing to his mother, Mrs. Fred Marshall, 285 Reid Street, from Somewhere in Italy, Flying Officer Marshall said he was interested in the outcome of the Memorial Centre campaign here in Peterborough, partly because in his R. C. A. F. training at Hamilton, Three Rivers, Quebec, and several other centres he had enjoyed swimming facilities which Peterborough lacked. His experience had convinced him of the advantages of broader athletic accommodation than Peterborough has provided in the past, and he asked his mother to pass on to the Memorial Centre executive his contribution for ten dollars.

If any folks at home are clipping their contributions or omitting them and there are bound to be some "holdouts" in best of communities, this ten dollars from a young Peterborough officer of the air in Italy might be a stimulus to generosity in all the atmosphere of peace and the absence of rubble in Peterborough.

Marshall was Dominion swimming champion, holding the 200 yard breast stroke title.

Millbrook Men Involved In Court Action

COBOURG, Oct. 4 — (ENS). — Two cases were on the docket of county court presided over by Judge J. C. M. German here. The J. R. Watkins Co. vs Stanley R. Carveth et al, was settled with judgment according to consent minutes. Fraser vs Hennessey was adjourned until November 15, due to the fact that defence counsel was not able to be present.

In the first case, the plaintiff was the J. R. Watkins Co. of Winona, Delaware, U.S.A., a company which sells various household articles through agents that sell from house to house. Defendants were Stanley Carveth of Grimsby, who had been an agent of the company and the guarantors of his contract, Percy Stinson, Fred McMahon and W. A. O'Brian of Millbrook. The amount of the claim was $341.73.

Affidavits of the guarantors stated that prior to May 1938, they had been guarantors for the agent, Carveth and that they had signed a renewal of the contract which was subject to renewal also being executed and guaranteed by George Carveth, brother of the defendant, Stanley Carveth. The guarantors pointed out in their affidavits that George Carveth had failed to sign the guarantee and that said agreement was accordingly void.

Mr. Stinson on June 3, 1937 and again on July 18, 1938, wrote the company asking them to notify him or the other guarantors, should Stanley Carveth default his contract with the company. It is alleged that the company failed to comply with this request. The writ was issued on Sept. 23, 1942 and as there was no appearance entered by Stanley Carveth, judgment for the full amount of the claim plus $32.80 costs was given.

Refused Copies

In the statement of claim the company said that when the contract was renewed on May 25, 1938 the indebtedness of Carveth at that time was $491.39. In consideration of the execution of the said agreement by the plaintiff and its promise to sell and the extension of time of Carveth's indebtedness, the defendants did thereby waive notice of acceptance of the agreement, notice of default or non payment and became sureties for Carveth who subsequently did not pay what he owed the company, the statement of claim alleged.

The defendants claimed that on October 20, 1936 a contract had been drawn up between the company and Carveth with the aforementioned guarantors. On June 3, 1937 Percy Stinson wrote the company asking to be notified if Carveth defaulted but no notice was ever sent to either him or the other guarantors. The new agreement was drawn up subject to George Carveth signing also and it was not until after the writ was issued that the guarantors learned that George Carveth was not a guarantor also. Furthermore the company consistently refused to furnish copies of the agreements.

W. E. Bonneville was solicitor for plaintiff and Harry Deyman for defence.

In the other case the plaintiff was W. A. Fraser, M.P. of Trenton and the defendant was Hugh Hennessey, Murray township farmer. Plaintiff claimed that in January of 1943 his agent, Clifford Cochrane, purchased 248 tons of manure from the defendant at a price of 60 cents per ton. When Hennessey presented his bill, Cochrane by error certified the bill which was at the rate of $1.25 a ton. Plaintiff claimed that he accordingly overpaid Hennessey by the amount of $161.20.

The defendant claimed that the agreement had been to buy the manure at $1.25 a ton and that he had sold 248 tons on that basis and that the agent had approved the account and paid it.

Harry Deyman is solicitor for plaintiff and Charles Payne for defendant.

Red Cross Members Pack Overseas Boxes

MOUNT JULIAN, Oct. 4 —(ENS) —The first Red Cross meeting of the autumn season was held at the home of Mrs. Theodore Wilson, where eleven overseas Christmas parcels were packed for mailing.

Youngest Group Sweeps the Field

A successful jamboree was held at the Scout grounds on Saturday, although the attendance was considerably smaller than any previous years. One thing was noticeable, that of the absence of parents and visitors. It is thought that the cool weather held them back.

Both the Cub and Scout events were run off simultaneously, the Cubs to the south end of the field, the Scouts to the north. In the Cub events some close finishes were witnessed in many of the events. It formed into a race between St. Luke's, Park Hill and George Street to see which would really top the list, while the once famous St. John's pack could only make good runners-up.

Apparently in the Scout events the same results were showing. List of winners: Cubs—Knot relay, 1st Park Hill, 2nd St. John's, 3rd St. Luke's.

The annual event of the Beal trophy was run off immediately before supper with only two troops taking part. It was a close fought event with the holders of the cup losing to the better team. The Park Hill community team made real showing, but would have had a harder fight if St. James' could have replaced their weak link.

At the camp-fire program Commissioner Wolff thanked both officers and men for their support and showing of the real Scout spirit. The commissioner also asked for the same spirit on apple day that will be held just two weeks' time, Saturday, Oct. 14.

Akela Groombridge relinquished the Bill Coleman Memorial trophy to Assistant Commissioner Hope, who presented it to Akela Hallihan of the Park Hill community pack as winners of highest points on the field for the day. The Beal trophy went to the Park Hill community troop, being accepted by Scouter Perks.

Cub Events

Leap frog—1st George Street, 2nd Park Hill, 3rd St. Luke's. Hopping—1st St. Luke's, 2nd Park Hill, 3rd George Street. Obstacle race—1st St. Luke's, 2nd Park Hill, 3rd George Street. Book balancing—1st St John's, 2nd George Street, 3rd Park Hill. Caterpillar race—1st St. Luke's, 2nd St. John's, 3rd George Street. Skin the snake—1st Park Hill, 2nd George Street, 3rd St. Luke's.

Scout Events

Three-cornered tug-of-war — 1st Sacred Heart, 2nd St. James', 3rd Murray Street. Skin the snake—1st Sacred Heart, 2nd Park Hill, 3rd St. James'. Pillow fight—1st St. Luke's, 2nd Murray Street, 3rd St. James'. Message relay—1st St. James', 2nd Sacred Heart, 3rd Murray Street. Obstacle race—1st Park Hill, 2nd St. Luke's, 3rd St. James'. Tub tilting—1st Park Hill, 2nd Murray Street, 3rd Sacred Heart. Tent-pitching—1st Park Hill, 2nd St. James' Fire lighting—1st St. Luke's, 2nd Park Hill, 3rd St. John's.

St. John's 1st Peterborough

This week's program was taken up with the preparations for the Jamboree events. The Pack is preparing to appoint several new Sixers and has 6 new chums to prepare for investiture. In the Troop, plans were made for a week-end Camp. The Troop attended the Jamboree and then camped overnight, returning home about 7.30 p.m. Sunday evening.

St. Luke's 2nd Peterborough

The Pack. Malcolm Sadler had the honor of leading the opening Grand Howl. One new Chum was accepted into the Pack, Bobby Allen. Raksha took the inspection. The chart shows that the Red Six are ahead with points for the last month. Douglas Britnell lead the closing Grand Howl.

All Saints

The Cubs:—The opening Grand Howl was led by Walter Best as the Cubs gathered around the Council Rock, and when the announcements of the standings were given the Yellow and Brown Sixes were even at seven points each. A ceremony was held at which Don Leach and Marvin Buchan were made Sixers and presented with their badges of office, at the same time Bob Elliott received his Seconder's Stripe.

Scout Norman Johns was welcomed into the Pack as one of the assistants and was given the name of Kim. Instructions were given to the new Cub chums by Akela in the Cub Laws and Promise.

The St. John's Mother's Auxiliary are holding their annual tea at the home of the President, Mrs. G. Groombridge, 296 Rogers street on Wednesday afternoon at 3 p.m. Breaking away on the occasion from the Chin Up Fund, the proceeds will go to the purchase of Christmas boxes to former members of the Scout Group who are now serving in the Army, Navy and Air Force. All Scout and Cub mothers are invited to attend.

Scout Apple Day

Are you getting your boys prepared for the Scout Apple day that is to be held on Saturday, October 14? Have you got your district yet? If not please get in touch with the Commissioner where apples are to be placed. The aim this year is top the 1,000 mark, and get that pump placed out on the Scout Grounds.

Annual Meetings

There are two annual meetings taking place this month. One the Scouters Club, the other the Local Association. The last two years, the annual meeting of the Scouters Club has been held in the Y.M.C.A. No news has come as to the place and time for this year's meeting. The Annual meeting of the Local Association will be held on Wednesday, October 25, place not yet known.

Lt. H. C. Phillips Killed In France

Cobourg, Oct. 4 — (ENS). — Word has been received here of the death in France of Lieut. Harold Cameron Phillips of Cobourg, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Phillips. He was 23 years of age and at the time of his enlistment was in his third year at Western University.

He was born in Pittsburgh but resided in Cobourg from the time he was a small boy, attending Cobourg Collegiate Institute, from which he graduated in 1940, going from there to Western University where he enrolled in a business administration course. He enlisted in February of 1943 and went to O.T.S. at Brockville, receiving his commission in June of 1943 and going overseas in January of last year. He arrived in France in July. While attending the local collegiate he was an outstanding athlete. He is survived by his parents and one sister, Evelyn.

New Rubber Plant

VANCOUVER, Oct. 4 — (CP) — Nick Boldt, Netherlands research scientist, said yesterday that experiments conducted in the last six years in suburban Vancouver have culminated in developing of a rubber plant with a potential annual yield per acre of 600 pounds of rubber or almost double the average yield from standard rubber plantations.

More Cattle

OTTAWA, Oct. 4 (CP) — The Dominion Bureau of Statistics said yesterday a new high record of numbers of cattle on farms was established at June 1, with the total of 10,346,000 head representing an increase of seven per cent over June 1, 1943.

They Want Children

LONDON, Oct. 4 (CP)—Applications for home leaves by British soldiers serving in the Middle East so they can start families before their wives get too old have reached an "unmanageable number," War Minister Sir James Grigg told the Commons yesterday.

Are You Supporting The Memorial Centre?

The campaign to collect funds for the Memorial Centre is almost over, and so far the response has not been up to expectations. Local industry has supported the campaign generously, and so have many employees. But the public and many businesses of Peterborough have shown insufficient interest in the campaign and they are the ones who are letting it down.

* * *

When we look at the matter realistically it is clear that the Memorial Centre will be able to attract a great many people to Peterborough who will have money to spend; that money will go directly to the merchants, restaurant keepers and hotel proprietors of Peterborough. If for no other reason, these should support the Memorial Centre as a matter of intelligent self-interest; they might be expected to give generously, for there will be only one campaign for the Centre, but the benefits from it will be spread over a period of half a century. Any man who has made a success of a business knows that in order to make money it is necessary to spend money. A retail merchant may reasonably be expected to give more to the campaign than a wage-earner—ten times more to name a conservative figure. And this is only if he looks at the Centre in a cold-blooded, dollars-and-cents spirit.

* * *

The Centre is not primarily a dollars-and-cents project, however. It is to be a Memorial to the men of this district who give their lives in the present war. We do not want it to be a shabby or inadequate Memorial; we want it to be as fine as anything of its kind in the country. The men of Peterborough who went to the war were sportsmen, in the broad if not in the precise sense of the word, and we are putting up a Memorial which will reflect their spirit and foster it in Peterborough's coming generations. That is the spirit in which we should approach the job of building it.

* * *

But it cannot be built without money. Whose money is it to be? Is it to be the money of every citizen of Peterborough, and every industry and business house in Peterborough, contributed according to what each can afford, or is it to be the money of a few big industries? There are people in the city now who say that the big industries have given most of the money needed to build the Centre, and that therefore the big industries will control it and run it to suit themselves: that is a lie—nothing more. The big industries are contributing according to their means, but they have no wish to control the Centre, and they most certainly will not do so if every citizen insists on making his contribution and taking his place in this community effort.

* * *

If the people of Peterborough want to be slack and lackadaisical about the campaign, giving nothing, or a tenth part of what might reasonably be expected of them, they must not be surprised if the people who build the Centre look upon it as their own. If workers in industry are content to let the bosses put up all the money, they mustn't complain if the Centre is not as much a community centre as they hoped. The only way to make the Memorial Centre what you want it to be is to put some of your money into it; then you will be in a position to air your views about it. Peterborough, which has been spoon-fed so often—given a hospital, parks and a city hall—must choose between a Memorial Centre which is a symbol of real community spirit, or another gift. All eyes of Ontario are on Peterborough, and we must not fail. There is still time to make your contribution.

Municipal Flight Strips

Records show that at the close of the war, of some 580 cities, towns and villages in Canada with a population in excess of 1,000 only 100 communities will have suitable landing fields. These may accommodate the large airmail and passenger services, but will fall far short of providing for the light aircraft owner or the small operator of feeder lines. Peterborough is one of these centres which has neither an airport nor a 'flight strip' and hence is vitally interested in what will be best for this community in years to come as relating to airplane travel. Attempts have been made to secure an airport, but wiser counsel has pointed out that the day of big airports near every city has not yet arrived and the general course of events is turning to "flight strips" or narrow landing fields situated conveniently to highways.

In this city a special committee is already investigating the possibility of these strips and has had one location approved by department engineers. These narrow landing fields are some 500 feet wide and are from 2,000 to 4,000 feet in length and seem to be the solution for the community with limited finances. Started on this basis, they can later be enlarged as the aircraft industry develops. Such airfields are very similar to a short section of a modern highway. In Ontario we are building on 300-foot right-of-ways with 100 feet of pavement and shoulder sides capable of carrying traffic. Flight strip construction, therefore, simply means a modified highway design.

Growth of Canada's transport system has been far from tranquil. No captain of a sailing boat was ever convinced that the stagecoach and the steamboat were other than inventions of Old Nick himself; no locomotive engineer would ever admit that the motor vehicle and the airplane were other than annoying young upstarts in the field of transportation. Thus we have had costly competition in Canada, with overlapping of services, but in spite of all this, astonishing progress has been made. Transportation has outgrown its adolescence and today it is recognized that each form has its useful part to play and there is room for all. Be it whatever kind, the business will fall to the transport agency best suited to handle it.

Possibilities of postwar aviation are tremendous and great strides in civil aviation will follow the war. Canada stands to gain and Canadian youth has shown that it is admirably adapted to the air age. Mass production methods in the airplane industry will no doubt follow the pattern of the automobile industry after the last war. Recognized authorities are convinced that the plane of the future will be as safe in the hands of the average pilot as a motor car on a crowded highway is in the hands of the average driver today.

The Department of Highways, according to the Minister, is now studying the possibility of landing strips and these may provide the answer to the question of towns and cities as to how they can finance an airport.

Current Fiction In Brief

By
SAMUEL MARCHBANKS

THE REBELLION OF LEO MCGUIRE, by Clyde Davis (Oxford). Written in the first person, this novel is an account of the life of a burglar who finally decided that it was wiser to conform with convention and live the life of a property-respecting bourgeois. Leo McGuire, during his days as a burglar, looked upon the institution of private property as a laughable myth, and saw nothing essentially dishonest about lifting anything he wanted; disloyalty, meanness and cowardice he despised, but he considered larency a comparatively honest pursuit, and there are times when he makes the reader share his view. As well as being an unusually good story, this book is informative about modern methods of burglary, and when you have done reading it you will probably feel that there is no real sense in locking your doors at night; any house with a window in it is wide open to a burglar who knows his trade. You may also be left with a more critical attitude toward the lawyer or insurance broke[r] [w]ho has an inventory of your household poss[essio]ns. Recommended for entertainment of the better sort.

MOUNTAIN CLOUD, by Marius Barbeau (Macmillan). Here is a novel by the man who probably knows more about the folklore and legend of this country than anyone else. The story tells of Pierre Cadieux, an agent of the Hudson's Bay Company during the middle of the last century, who marries an Indian woman and does what he can to 'civilize' her; but in the end he finds that he is nearer to being an Indian than his wife is to the housewifely ideal of French Canada. The particular value and flavour of this book comes from Marius Barbeau's deep insight into Indian character. To most of us the Indian is a mystery; we have no conception of him as a poetic and imaginative character, living in a world unknown to us. If we think him 'colourful' it is in the Wild West sense; invariably we make the red man play second fiddle to the white man. Out of the depths of his unique understanding of a mysterious people, Marius Barbeau has written an excellent novel which should reverse many of our hasty and ignorant judgments.

GRANDMOTHER AND THE COMET, by Victoria Lincoln (Oxford). This is a book of thirty-one pieces—stories, essays and verses—by a writer who has a public so enthusiastic and so critical that if I use the word 'slight' in this brief notice I shall doubtless be made to suffer for it. Nevertheless Victoria Lincoln herself describes her book as 'an insubstantial pageant,' which suggests that she regards it as of less than Kantian profundity. The short stories are in the most modern manner: that is to say, they are very short indeed, and they strive to create a mood or to capture a moment, rather than to beguile the time with a pleasant tale. I confess to a prejudice in favour of the pleasant tale. Reading Victoria Lincoln's fresh and charming pages I regret that she has fiddled about with so many bits and pieces, instead of writing a few stories with meat on their bones. Probably this marks me as a crass ass. Well, well, we can't be right all of the time, and I am content to be a loutish minority of one in the matter of Victoria Lincoln's charming sketches for the stories she is unwilling to write.

THE RED COCK CROWS, by Frances Gaither (Macmillan). Since the great success of 'Gone With The Wind' there have been rather too many novels about the Old South, and the reviewer is apt to approach another with a prejudiced mind. This one, however, survives the prejudices, and I am happy to recommend it to you as an unusually good piece of story-telling. The South was undoubtedly romantic in its slave days; most communities which have an unlimited supply of cheap labour manage to evolve a delightful and gracious mode of living, for it is a melancholy fact that it takes six servants to maintain one fine gentleman; if the servants want to be gentlemen too, you will very shortly have seven unemployed men, none of them conspicuously gentle. This novel tells of the rebellions and aspirations of the slaves, who were not so childlike and bland as sentimentalists like to think.

THE BONFIRE, by Cecilio J. Carneiro (Oxford). To most of us South America is more strange and distant than any of the European countries; it is time that we knew more about our sister continent, and we can gain our information in a very pleasant manner by reading the novels of South American writers. Here is an excellent novel about Brazil, in which a Syrian immigrant faces the problems of a new country, makes a coffee empire for himself, and then loses it. As the author himself is of Syrian parentage but of Brazilian nationality, we may assume that he knows what he is talking about. Dr. Carneiro—he is a physician, like many men of letters—attacks his story vigorously, and tells it with a fine sweep; there is no niggling or half-heartedness about his book. Unless you are irretrievably committed to stories about the kind of life which you know—or think you know—I suggest that you put this excellent South American work on your reading list for the autumn.

Era of Synthetics

The prospect of a synthetic rubber era stretching onward through time offers no snap to the professional prognosticator.

Will golf balls be wound with synthetic rubber? If so, will scores seem more or less synthetic than they do now when bragged about at the country club? Will the length of a drive from the first tee be as elastic as the length of the fish that got away?

With the synthesis of a motorist's remarks be more or less evident as he discovers a synthetic flat tire? And will a synthetic eraser be more or less useful to the stenographer who can't spell "synthetic" correctly the first time?

But perhaps since there are so many new uses for the synthetic products, these usual functions will be left to old-style, natural rubber. For example, it's hard to think of the time when wives will call after their husbands as they leave home on rain mornings, "Just a minute, dear, you've forgotten your synthetics."—Christian Science Monitor.

HE'S DEAD, BUT HE CAN'T LIE DOWN

Couldn't Hamper Paris Styles

From "TIME" MAGAZINE

TO the few women coming to liberated Paris from buzz-bombed London, Paris fashions, 1944, were a revelation. Wrote Time's Correspondent Mary Welsh: "You would never believe it possible for a woman to achieve elegance on a bicycle unless you could see Parisiennes cycling in the Rue Cambon, Avenue Matignon, or among the hordes of cyclists constantly passing in the Place de la Concorde. But Paris women manage to look perfectly wonderful while pedaling, balancing hats at least a foot high and mostly bucket-shaped, with skirts billowing backwards enticingly but not boldly.

"The most remarkable cyclist yet seen was a girl wearing a platinum fox short jacket, a huge washtub felt hat and accordion-pleated skirt, who somehow managed to make the bicycle look part of the ensemble. But shopgirls in printed frocks, bright sweaters, and the tri-colour in their hair, as well as elegant women, make the G.I.'s realize how much they have been missing in unimaginatively dressed Britain and the damp fields of Normandy".

Not even wartime shortages of materials under the Nazis could hamper Paris style. Hats grew huge, vast, fantastic as imagination ran riot and millinery grew scarce. Now a common sight in Paris streets [a]re poke bonnets of brilliantly-coloured straws, some 18 inches tall, and veil-draped hats reminiscent of the voluminous headgear worn by turn-of-the-century motorists. Earrings are enormous and unorthodox. Some, as big as oranges, dangle from ear to shoulder. Shoes, because leather was scarce, are wooden-soled with wedge heels three inches high.

The couture never left Paris, although Berlin tried hard to seduce it. Lucien Lelong, pre-war president of the Couturiers' Association, finally argued the Germans into letting the couture stay in Paris on the ground that postwar German Europe would not otherwise be able to compete successfully against U.S. designers. Thus 60 Paris dressmakers, employing directly 15,000 midinettes and indirectly a million makers of dress materials, were allowed to fashion style in full freedom.

Last week heads of Paris dress houses were consulting ebulliently with their designers about their victory collections. Said Lelong: "Until now we have had no desire to create. Now we will do the greatest collections in history. They will be wonderful, but not crazy. Our jubilation will be sober".

The Imprisoned King of Belgium

From NEW YORK TIMES

CHARLES, Count of Flanders, younger brother of King Leopold III. of Belgium, before the war a major in the air service, has come back from active service in the underground forces to take the office of Regent. The Government-in-Exile, a strictly constitutional body, has thus complied with a constitutional provision. Four years in office, it can now report to the representative of the King and go out of or be continued in office as Parliament wishes. M. Pierlot's Government has more than once declared its determination to restore democratic institutions and the monarchy as the symbol of harmony.

The Nazis have tried in vain to induce Leopold to accept some sort of collaboration. Soon after the Allies landed in Normandy he was taken from Lacken Castle to an unknown destination in Germany. Wherever he is, it seems clear that he will be followed by the loyalty of his people. His fortune was hard at first. After his surrender of the Belgian Army on May 28, 1940, he was accused furiously. Reynaud, perhaps to divert attention from his own weakness, led the chorus. Even Prime Minister Pierlot denounced the capitulation as "illegal and unconstitutional."

The truth came out in the libel suit brought by Admiral of the Fleet, Sir Roger Keyes, British liaison officer in Belgium, against the Daily Mirror in 1941. The fighting on the Belgian front had been incessant for four days. By May 27 the Belgians were running out of food and ammunition. At least eight German divisions, including armored units, and a multitude of dive-bombers were attacking the Belgians. At 5 p.m. the King told the British and French that at midnight he would ask an armistice to save further destruction of his forces. London and Paris got the message. He had yielded to necessity. Admiral Keyes praised his conduct warmly. Lt.-Col. Robert Brown, our military attache in Belgium, said that capitulation was the King's "only solution."

Those who said the contrary had seen neither the battle nor German aviation. Colonel Brown saw both. General Lord Gort, commander of the British troops in Belgium, wrote that the obstinate resistance of the Belgian Army enabled his men to retreat to Dunkerque.

Such was the judgment of expert witnesses speaking from first-hand knowledge. Time has vindicated the King. Walloon and Fleming alike honour him for his constancy and his failure to yield to the pressure of his Nazi captors.

Post-War Projects

From THE PRINTED WORD

REMOVAL of rationing restrictions on the use of tea and coffee will be welcomed by thousands of Canadian homes, but it is doubtful whether any benefit will accrue to the travelling public. Even before the war, when there was an unrationed supply of the raw materials, only a few of the better hotels and restaurants betrayed any knowledge of how to brew these beverages. Wartime restrictions have certainly not improved their average quality, but neither have they made it noticeably worse.

Experienced travellers in Canada usually order tea rather than coffee in a strange eating-place. The possible range in quality for a cup of tea seems to be from passable to bad, whereas with coffee the range is from bad to terrible. In the United States, coffee is the safer choice.

One would have more confdience in the visions of our post-war planners, if, instead of drawing up detailed and elaborate schemes for handling every phase of Canadian life, they would set to work on the relatively simple project of improving the Canadian cuisine. Provincial and even Federal Ministries of Cooking might well be established, with the purpose of making Canadian meals, in both public and private dining-rooms, the best in the world.

There are dangers to be avoided in setting up the proposed ministries. In the first place, nutrition experts, while perhaps useful in an advisory capacity, should not be allowed to assume control. Deputy ministers should be robust, well-fed men, strong-willed enough to resist pressure groups among their feminine assistants, whose tastes have been vitiated by salads served at old tea shoppes. It should be agreed that members of the permanent staffs could be removable only for serious cause. It would be too bad for national morale if menus became a matter of politics, and a carnivorous Liberal or Progressive Conservative minister or a vegetarian C.C.F.-er could impose his personal preferences on the electorate.

Much basic education work will have to be done before the new ministries can achieve anything spectacular. Raising the standard of Canadian tea and coffee will be no small task in itself. It may also take some time to demonstrate to Canadian cooks that there is an intermediate shade for toast between white and black, that rare beef does not simply mean unburned, that the difference between a hard-boiled and soft-boiled egg is not entirely a matter of chance. One can foresee innumerable disappointments as the effort is made to succeed where generations of domestic science teachers have failed. Yet the rewards of success are tempting enough to repay the years of effort necessary. Returns from increased tourist trade alone should be sufficient to compensate for the trouble and expense.

Fewer Controls

A popular election cry after the war will be, "Away with controls!"

Those who would shoot all the administrators and liquidate the whole Civil Service would likewise get a hearing. The fact is there are controls that hurt, and because we think of them and not of the war regulations that have been both sensible and beneficial, we are inclined to join in the popular clamor and follow the chap who presumes to lead us, not for our own good, but in order that he may reach the place he desires to go.

By and large, the fewer controls we have the better, but it should be remembered that in any organized society there must be controls and regulations in order that people may live together in peace and security. These controls may be imposed by a dictator or they may be suggested and sanctioned by a free people expressing themselves through representative government. The latter is Canada's way, and thousands are now risking and giving their lives to defend that privilege.—Farmer's Advocate.

A Bible Message

And the children of Israel did evil in the sight of the Lord, and forgat the Lord their God, and served Baalim and the groves....

And the children of Israel did evil again in the sight of the Lord, and served Baalim, and Ashtaroth, and the gods of Syria, and the gods of Zidon, and the gods of Moab, and the gods of the children of Ammon, and the gods of the Philistines, and forsook the Lord, and served not him....

And the children of Israel cried unto the Lord, saying, We have sinned against thee, both because we have forsaken our God, and also served Baalim. And the Lord said unto the children of Israel, Did not I deliver you from the Egyptians, and from the Amorites, from the children of Ammon, and from the Philistines?.... Go and cry unto the gods which ye have chosen; let them deliver you in the time of your tribulation.

And the children of Israel said unto the Lord, We have sinned: do thou unto us whatsoever seemeth good unto thee; deliver us only, we pray thee, this day. And they put away the strange gods from among them, and served the Lord. (Judg. 3: 7; 10: 6, 10, 11, 14-16.)

No-Run Stockings

There is a new inducement to hasten the end of the war in the announcement that chemical treatment of fibres, developed in recent months for war uses, has already attained such a state of perfection that women can be assured their silk stockings will be run-proof when the new process is applied to hosiery. It is all due, the explanation goes, to a deposit of submicroscopic grains of sand or silica which prevents the fibres from slipping-out of the positions into which they are knitted. For the men, the same process means suits that won't wrinkle or wilt, that will never pick up a shine and will always retain their creases.—Boston Post.

Time Out to Gasp

It is never wise for foreigners to meddle in the domestic politics of friendly nations but one may be permitted, perhaps, a brief gasp of amasement at a recent statement by Mr. Dewey. He said in a press conference:

"The tragedy of the present situation is that we have an Administration seeking re-election now which was eight years in office while these tremendous forces were rising toward the war, which did absolutely nothing to prepare the American people for the war, and at the end of those eight years in office the Administration still had a limping, unproductive economy, with ten million unemployed and absolutely no military preparation for the events it now claims it foresaw. As a matter of fact, we had an Army of 75,000."

This from the leader of the party which produced isolationism in the first place, which refused to combine with other peaceful nations to preserve peace, which rejected over and over again the President's demands for larger prewar armaments, which denounced his Chicago "quarantine" speech, which largely opposed the repeal of the Neutrality Act, which largely voted against lend-lease (Mr. Dewey personally attacked it most bitterly), and which finally voted to dissolve the draft army a few months before Pearl Harbor, a motion which fortunately failed by one vote in Congress.

At the sheer and dazzling boldness of Mr. Dewey's present attack on the government for failure to prepare for the war, the outside world surely will be permitted a moment of quiet to recover its breath, and then another moment to pause and congratulate Mr. Dewey on what we believe is his sincere change of view.—Winnipeg Free Press.

Laborite Party Grows Strong Across Britain

By DOUGLAS AMARON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Oct. 4 —(CP Cable) — Britain's political parties are shaping plans for the next general election, currently expected to be held some time next year and expected to involve Conservative, Labor and Liberal candidates whose parties since 1940 have been joined in a National government.

The present parliament enters its 10th year next month and most members in it hopes it will be its last. Public opinion also is demanding a fresh and younger House of Commons and if half the present members retain their seats it will be surprising. Indeed, some 200 members in the 615-member House have announced they will not seek re-election.

Indications are that the election will be fought on party lines. The Labor party, whose strength among the public has grown during the war years, has decided through its executive to fight the election as an independent political force and the decision almost certainly will be confirmed at the party conference in December.

Odd Situation.

Of particular interest in the decision, not yet taken, as to the part Labor's government ministers will play during the period between the dissolution of parliament and the election. The government still governs during such a period and the position arises where ministers criticizing one another from campaign platforms may still be co-operating around the Cabinet Council table.

Despite the Labor party's decision to contest the election as an independent body, its participation in a coalition even after the voting is not ruled out. The election results would decide this with a coalition likely only if Labor members were not returned in sufficient strength to give them a solid working majority.

The Liberal party's place in the future is of increasing interest for although its membership in the house is not large it has been most active in recent years and a Liberal "revival" is predicted in some quarters. The party gained prestige by the acquisition of the popular Sir William Beveridge, author of the Beveridge Social Security Plan.

Personalities are beginning to come into the election picture with predictions — authoritative guesswork—being made about prospective party leaders. Anthony Eden, Foreign Secretary, seems to have a clear field as successor to Prime Minister Churchill when the present Prime Minister and Conservative leader retires, but there is nothing so certain as far as the other parties are concerned.

Service Held For H. Russell

APSLEY, Oct. 4 — (ENS) — A memorial service for Pte. Harold Russell Dingman, who died of wounds on July 7, was held in Grace United Church on Sunday. Veterans of the last war and the present one marched to the church in a body, headed by T. Post as sergeant in charge. Veterans of the First Great War included John Coones, George Carr, Richard Watson, James Rosebush, James Downing, J. Rayment, Edgar Parks, W. Parks, Clarence Post, Floyd Post, Theo Post, Robert Scott, Walter Yeomans, Harry Washburn, O. Montgomery, and S. Keetch.

Members of the armed forces of the present war: Robert Smith, Herbert Lehigh, D. MacDonald, Peter Post, Ronald Woodbee, Russell Young, Harold Hall. Of this number Theo Post, Robert Scott, Harry Washburn, and Walter Yeoman have been members of the Active Forces in two wars and Harry Washburn has seen service overseas in both wars. O. Montgomery is a veteran of the South African War and World War I.

The veterans headed the procession into the church, followed by friends and the congregation.

The altar was banked with flowers, and on it was a picture of Pte. Dingman and a wreath from his family, wreath from Ollie Vera and Gerald McAuley, spray from the Y.P.S. of Grace United Church, and a wreath from Doris, June and Flora Dafoe.

The guard of honor included Ptes. Robert Scott, Walter Yeomans, Harold Hall, Harry Washburn, Harry Zelaney, Peter Post, J. Rayment and Russell Young. Music was supplied by the choir under the leadership of Mrs. J. Reynolds. Mrs. J. Reynolds and Mrs. George Bullied sang a duet.

Mr. Robb, who conducted the service, said that they were gathered together to honor the memory of one of the boys who had died of wounds in Normandy on July 7, and he felt that the large gathering of friends was a splendid tribute. "While we are sitting here in this sacred edifice some of our loved ones are fighting at Albert Canal, Italy, and in the Balkans, for in these places is a bit of Canada, and a little bit of Lasswade. This is twice in a short space of time that we have met for this purpose. We paid tribute to the memory of Cpl. Cecil Bullied at Easter. These gallant, brave boys gave their lives that the world might be a better place to live in."

After a short prayer, a period of silence was observed in memory of fallen heroes. This was followed by prayers for the bereaved, for peace, for the King and for the Dominion of Canada.

Friends were present from Coe Hill, Glen Alda, Peterborough and Apsley.

Personals.

Pte. Russell Young and Pte. Harry Zelany of Camp Borden spent the week-end with his sister, Mrs. Eric Whitmore.

Mrs. Merton Scott of Brandon, Man., is visiting relatives here.

Mrs. C. McColl has returned from visiting her mother, Mrs. P. Smith, in Peterborough.

Mrs. W. Lean has returned from a week spent at Huntsville, where she was judge of the Home Department at several agricultural fairs.

Dr. V. and Mrs. Onorato of Buffalo are at their summer home at Jack's Lake.

Wellie Reynolds, who is attending Collegiate in Peterborough, spent the week-end at his home.

Friends of Mrs. Morley Macdonald, a former resident of Apsley, will be glad to learn that she is making satisfactory recovery after a serious operation in a Peterborough hospital.

News was received here of the sudden death in Belleville on Sunday of Mrs. Charles Rusaw of Glen Alda.

Welland Combines now lead London Majors 2-0 in their series for what they call "The Real Senior Basball Championship of Ontario." In the second game at London last night, the Combines won 4-2, largely aided by eight errors on the part of the Majors.

The series is being played in defiance of the O. B. A. which last week ruled out the London-Windsor semi-final play-off and ordered those two teams to replay the series for the right to meet Welland in the finals.

Four of the Major's errors last night came in the fifth inning when Welland scored two runs on no hits.

San Francisco defeated Los Angeles 4-2 last night to win the final play-off in the Pacific Coast League four games to three. Frisco scored three runs in the seventh after Stan Gray, Los Angeles third baseman, fell down and allowed a fielder's throw on a bunt to go to the far corner of the field. Ben Quintini, who laid down the bunt, scored on the freak play.

Four hockey players left Niagara Falls yesterday for the Providence Reds' training camp. The contingent included Frank and Pete Long and Mickey Phillips, last season's high-scoring line for St. Catharines Falcons, and Boy Roy, who played juvenile hockey for Niagara Falls. Buster Pugliano, another Falls juvenile, was also sought by the American Hockey League team, but being of draft age was prevented by local Selective Service officials from making the trip.

Irish Wrestler Interrupts Strangling Act

Irish Jack Knnedy, fast-moving grappler from down Georgia way, grabbed off the hero role in the Tunney wrestling show at the Brock St. arena Tuesday night when he led a one-man relief expedition to the assistance of Whipper Billy Watson, after the British Empire champion had been nearly strangled by a piece of electric cord in the hands of Karl Krippler Davis.

Kennedy had appeared in the preliminary bout and had won by flooring Vernon Baxter. But the applause he got then was a mere whisper to the roar of approval he received from the record crowd after his summary treatment of the big Texan in the last round of the main bout. Angered by the cord episode, Kennedy climbed through the ropes, rushed at Davis and bowled him over with a couple of hefty punches. Then he gave the Krippler a dose of his own medicine by wrapping the cord around the Texan's neck and almost choking him.

It was a wild windup to a tumultuous bout. The Whipper had taken the first fall after 17 minutes hard battling using his famous unconscious commando hold to turn the trick after a series of flying mares. Davis protested vigorously that he had been the victim of a stranglehold.

Referee Maxwell paid little attention to the complaint and the Texan was in an ugly mood when he came back for the second round. He tried to tear Watson's leg off with his step over toehold, used a series of head locks, mixing in a few kidney punches and made things decidedly hot for the people's favorite. Watson finally shook himself loose and electrified the crowd by catching Davis flat-footed with a couple of accurately aimed flying tackles that bounced the Texan around like a cork.

Whipper Too Eager.

It looked like the end but Watson's eagerness to finish the round in a hurry proved costly.

He flung himself off the ropes with a third flying tackle and this time Davis refused to be the target. He met the British Empire champion in mid air with a mule kick and Watson went down with a thud that made Phil Lawson, his coach, wince.

There was worse to come, however. The angry Davis, still hot over the first fall, grabbed Watson, carried him across the ring and banged him head-first against the ring post. The Whipper fell to the mat, almost out. Once again the Krippler picked him up and tossed him against the ring post in the opposite corner. The champion was ready for the cleaners then but Davis took no chances. He softened him up still more with a series of punches to the jaw and by that time the mildest of the Milquetoast family could have rolled the Whipper over and pinned his shoulders to the mat.

Watson was in a bad shape after that fall and when the rest period was over he was slow in answering the bell. Davis angrily demanded that the Whipper should be counted out for not appearing on time but Referee Maxwell turned a deaf ear to his complaints and eventually Watson reached the ring, obviously still a little the worse for wear.

A Secret Weapon.

Davis, scenting a win, carried the battle to the British Empire champ, using head locks and punches to wear him down and resorting to his successful tactics of the second round, tossed the Whipper head-first against a ring post. Then he applied a headlock and the next moment there was a roar of anger from the huge crowd as the Texan was seen to wind a section of cord around Watson's neck. As the tornado from the south of the border put on the pressure Watson was almost unconscious and it looked for a moment as if the fans were going into the ring in a body.

While they hesitated, however, Irish Jack Kennedy, who was watching the battle from the ringside moved quickly. Not waiting to take off his overcoat, the grappler from Georgia hurried through the ropes and dropped Davis to the mat with a right swing to the jaw. Then he got hold of the Texan's secret weapon, the section of cord, and the next moment Davis found himself being strangled in the same manner as he had been choking the Whipper.

Terry Reardon Wounded

TORONTO, Oct. 4.—(CP).—Lieut. Terence (Terry) Reardon, 25, former star forward for Boston Bruins and Montreal Canadiens of the National Hockey League, has been wounded in action in France, according to word received by friends here last night.

He was serving with a Quebec regiment. No details of the action in which he was injured were known.

Rugby Player Killed

TORONTO, Oct. 4 (CP)—Franklyn (Bud) Bishop, 18, died in hospital last night of head injuries he suffered Monday in a High School football game. Playing left inside wing for Northern Vocational, Bishop appeared to be injured in a scrimmage. He was carried from the playing field unconscious and was removed to hospital. Coroner W. E. Brown is investigating and an autopsy was to be performed today.

Big Offer Made

An official of Montreal Canadiens of the N.H.L. said last night that Toronto Maple Leafs had made a "big cash offer" for Goalie Paul Bibeault, but that Canadiens rejected it because they want players, not cash. Bibeault, property of Canadiens, played with the Leafs last season.

SPORTS-Day by Day

By FRED D. CRAIG

Both of the Peterborough Collegiate and Vocational School football squads made their debut for the season this afternoon when senior and junior teams were in action in Port Hope against twelves from the Trinity College School. Coach Goulding's senior squad was billed to play first in an exhibition game against the T.C.S. Little Big Four team, to be followed by a Cossa junior game between Trinity College School and P.C.V.S. juniors, the latter tutored by Coach McNabb. Both seniors and juniors have been practicing for several weeks and have been showing good form in their workouts but today will afford the first chance to see how the youngsters shape up against opposition. T.C.S. teams are usually strong and well-coached so that today's double-header at Port Hope should afford a good opportunity for the coaches to get a real line on their players and iron out any weaknesses that may show up. The P.C.V.S. senior squad is billed to open its season this Saturday when they will travel to Lindsay for the opening game in the interscholastic schedule.

* * * * * *

There are four teams in the senior division and the schedule has been arranged as follows: October 7—Peterborough at Lindsay and Oshawa at Bowmanville; October 14—Bowmanville at Peterborough and Lindsay at Oshawa; October 21—Peterborough at Oshawa and Lindsay at Bowmanville; October 28—Lindsay at Peterborough and Bowmanville at Oshawa; November 4—Peterborough at Bowmanville and Oshawa at Lindsay; November 11—Oshawa at Peterborough and Bowmanville at Lindsay. When the junior schedule is drawn up the arrangement will be to play home junior games on the same dates as the senior fixture. In other words there will be a series of double-headers.

A Surprise Choice

By the time this column is read fans will have a good idea which club has broken in front in the world series. The outstanding feature of the pre-game dope was the announcement yesterday that Manager Sewell of the Brownies had decided to use his big right-handed veteran Denny Galehouse as his starting pitcher. Just why the Browns' pilot selected the 33-year-old, 6 ft.-one inch, 200-pounder in place of Nels Potter, his leading winner of the season is not quite clear unless Sewell was merely playing percentage as is often done during the regular season in the choosing of pitchers. One manager announces that he is starting his best heaver in the opening game of a series. Pilot No. 2 realizes that his own ace might have difficulty in beating the No. 1 man of the other club but that he would be a sure fire winner against the second choice of the opposition. The result is that instead of wasting his best pitcher in a game he has only a fighting chance to win, he saves him for a sure victory in the second game and starts somebody else against the other fellow's ace. This column may be all wet in supposing that was Sewell's reasoning; he may have pinned his faith in Galehouse because he feels that the veteran's stuff might prove tough for the Cards and because he was sure that Galehouse would stand up under fire. But we do know that managers often figure along the lines we have suggested in mapping out their campaign for any particular series.

* * * * * *

That is why we say that Galehouse might have been named because it was understood that Cooper was starting for the Cards and it was figured that the odds favored a victory for the 22-game-winner. Therefore it might be good judgment to save Potter to face Wilks or Lanier in the second game. Galehouse has not had a bad year but he has been kicking around the big show for a long time and his life-time average shows that up to this season he had not been successful in winning half his games. As a matter of fact while he did break even in 1943 with 11 wins and a similar number of losses, his big league all-time record up to the end of last season showed that he had won 72 games and had lost 77, scarcely an impressive record for the opening choice in a world series. But Sewell has shown great judgment in selecting pitchers and today's proceedings may prove that he knew what he was doing when he nominated the big veteran to face the somewhat battered but still formidable Cards in the first game of what may prove quite a series.

Keen Competition

The defeat of the Westclox girls in the softball finals Saturday was evidently carried over into Monday night's Ladies' Five Pin League bowling for the Big Ben quintette only managed to win one game in three from the Five V's in spite of the fact that in total pinnage they outscored their opposition 2825 to 2501. This is accounted for by the fact that the Westclockers ran up a total of 1087 in the middle game as against 744 for the Five V's. The latter however took the first game by four pins and the third by 11, despite a 675 effort by Aggie Anderson and 608 by Marg Hawthorne. Outboard Marines five down on the total pinnage took two out of three from the Corvettes in a high-scoring game, featured by Marion Timms 687 which was a high three for the night. Brintons with M. Sanderson setting the pace with 682 were the only team to take three games, reeling off three in a row from the Beavers. On the whole the rolling was good and there is every indication that the Ladies' Loop is to see plenty of action during the season. The fact that last year's champs, the Westclox, have already lost a match in this year's campaign shows that the competition is keen. It is a long time since the Big Bens have failed to win at least two games in a night.

* * * * * *

Says Ken Colling in his Belleville sport column: "It has been proposed the 1944 Junior O.A.S.A. finals, between Belleville Columbian Squires and the Windsor Mic-Macs be played at a place mid-way between the two cities concerned, presumably Hamilton. However, if the Mic-Macs could be persuaded to play the first game of the Junior Provincial Softball finals in Belleville on a Wednesday afternoon there would be a full grandstand welcome the clubs at the Exhibition Park here. The Mic-Macs advanced to the junior finals by eliminating Hamilton Aikens in a third and final game played at London last week, winning 3-1. Apparently in Western Ontario they play a strong type of defensive ball, as the opposing pitchers allowed but five hits each. Hamilton booted the ball for two costly errors, both of which entered into the Windsor scoring column. There has never been a junior O.A.S.A. provincial softball title won east of Oshawa, but if the local Squires play the calibre of softball they are capable, maybe 1944 will see a precedent established. All the locals have to do is remember the mistake they made in the second game against Toronto and realise no team is in the provincial finals without being good."

* * * * * *

Sporting Chili Con Carne: The Peterborough Golf and Counrty Club evidently believes in preparedness. The club has already elected officers and completed its organization for the 1945 season....Augie Gergamo, a rookie may see service in the Cards' outfield during the big series if Danny Litwhiler's injured knee fails to stand up....The retirement of Regina from football until after the war will be a loss to the game in the West... Regina has long been a rugby stronghold....Lieut. "Terry" Reardon, one of the few N.H.L. players to get anywhere near the firing line has been wounded in France....Reardon showed a lot of fighting spirit with Boston and the Canadiens.....Cards were 11 to 20 to take the first game of the world series today if Mort Cooper drew the starting assignment for the National Leaguers....Peterborough Collegiate senior football squad open their home season a week from Saturday....They play every other Saturday at home....Police have recovered the ball stolen from the Peterborough juniors....An early hockey announcement is the intimation that Joe Primeau is to coach this year's St. Michael's College junior A team.

Rugged Mexican Never Beaten In Ring Career

TORONTO, Oct. 4.—(CP).—Joey Peralta, the Mexican who tangles with Canadian welter and lightweight champion Dave Castilloux in Maple Leaf Gardens on Friday night, has yet to take a count in the ring—all of which dispels any doubts as to the ruggedness of the scrapper from south of the border.

A fast-hook artist, Peralta comes in swinging left and high hooks that are not the easiest to stop. It is the opinion of most of the gymnasium-goers that Peralta has the style suited to overcome Castilloux's clever boxing.

Each of Dave's four ring losses have been to fighters who kept him from setting his own pace by boring in and bullying the Canadian champ.

Meanwhile Ontario Athletic Commission Chairman Lionel Conacher has ruled that promoter-manager Jack Allen must either give up managing Castilloux or give up fight promotion. Conacher's ruling has brought word from Allen that he will keep Castilloux as his fighter and break all promotional connection with the Toronto Boxing Club, which is financing Friday's fight.

Both Peralta and Castilloux are natural 135-pounders and neither has been down for the 10-count. Each has been boxing professionally for 10 years and each has lost four bouts in the last seven years.

St. Catharines Wins Another Lacrosse Title

ST. CATHARINES, Oct. 4 (CP)—St. Catharines won and lost Ontario Lacrosse Association championships last night. The C.Y.O. won the Bantam title by defeating St. John's Industrial School in Toronto 18-6 to win the two-game goals-to-count series 35-11. The Tecumsehs lost the Midget title to Brampton Maroons, the latter team winning last night's game 7-6 to take the home-and-home series 16-14.

The C.Y.O. win gives this city championships in two of the four O.A.L.A. series The Athletics won the Senior title and enter the Mann Cup finals The Juvenile title was won by Owen Sound

EXTRA VALUES

Are more important NOW than ever before

Firestone tires have always been noted for their extra values and consistent high quality that mean longer wear, more safety and greater value.

And, just as you would expect, it is Firestone that today is the pacemaker and pioneer in developing new materials, new methods and new machines that have resulted in tremendous advancement in tire design, construction and performance.

With new tires so hard to get it is more important than ever to get the best tire that money can buy with your tire ration certificate . . . and that means Firestone . . . because Firestone tires stay safer, longer.

Orioles-Bears Tied Up Again Final Tonight

BALTIMORE, Oct. 4. — (CP). — Baltimore Orioles and Newark Bears are back here again with their best-of-seven International League Governor's Cup series all snarled up at three victories each and the deciding battle carded for tonight.

Winner will advance into the Little World Series against Louisville Colonels of the American Association.

The series became knotted again when Baltimore whipped Newark 5-3 by virtue of fifth-inning home runs by Stan Benjamin and Howie Moss. Red Embree was the winner over Elmer Singleton.

Stan West will go to the mound for the Birds tonight, opposed by Newark's 17-year-old sensation, Don Johnson.

To Coach St Mikes

TORONTO, Oct. 4 (CP) — Joe Primeau, former star Toronto Maple Leaf centre in the National Hockey League, will coach St. Michael's College team in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series this winter, it was announced last night. Since retiring from professional hockey, Primeau has coached both Junior and Senior teams in Toronto. In taking over the St. Michael's entry he returns to guide the team with which he got his own start in hockey about 20 years ago. He succeeds Paul McNamara who has retired from coaching activity under doctor's orders.

HE'S READY FOR THE SERIES—For the 17th year, or so he says, Art "Happy" Felsch, 42-year-old Minneapolis upholsterer, is first in line for a ticket to the world series in St. Louis, opening there today. Felsch arrived at the pavilion gate at Sportsman's Park, Wednesday, September 27.

TORONTO, Oct. 4 — (CP). — Duffers of the golf course aren't going to be happy when they hear the suggestion that cups should be made smaller, with the avowed object of cutting down on the number of "gift" putts sunk by lucky players. Somebody is always taking the joy out of life.

The Vancouver Province golf expert, Bill Forst, advances the idea because he thinks it would help the careful player and cut down on the careless individual who bangs his shots any old way, just as he lands on the green in par strokes with a chance to loop a long putt into the present large-size cup.

The element of luck would be reduced and golf would become the science of skill itself, the Western strategist adds. He really has something there, but it certainly would be painful for the garden variety of divot-digger, who would be lucky to break 100 then.

Sports hash:

Former Olympic sprint star Percy Williams of Vancouver says that track and field sports won't get anywhere in Canada until indoor tracks are built and some effort is made to interest the public more than the present day version does. Something should be done to speed up the programs too. If there were no betting at the race tracks, people would not exert themselves overmuch to see the gee-gees run, and track events are reeled off at a slower clip, if anything. Not that we are suggesting betting, but a bit of glamor should be inserted some other way.....William Cook, executive director of the Y.M.C.A. Sports College, announces that membership in the college is free on application, without "cost or box tops." What we can't understand is how the boys can grow up big and strong if they don't eat their toastie-oaties and such..... Believing it is far, far better to give than to receive, FO. Jake Milford of Kenora, Ont., spent his birthday carrying presents to Adolf as bomb aimer with the R.C.A.F. Lion Squadron. Jake, after a tour of England as journeyman hockeyist before the war, later played with Cleveland Barons of the International League.

Galehouse Will Pitch For The Browns

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sport Writer

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 4 (AP) — Luke Sewell's St. Louis Browns, the boys from the other side of the tracks, dared to match Mort Cooper, the Cardinals' ace, with Denny Galehouse, a veteran curve ball artist who didn't win his first game until July 20, in today's opener of the first All-St. Louis World Series.

Despite the record books and the season averages which gave the National Leaguers the "paper" edge, the pendulum of popular support appeared to be swinging toward the underdog Brownies who have been picking up such fancy titles as "the team of destiny" and "the Cinderella Kids."

The odds-makers, however, still followed the figures for the price on today's game was 1 to 2 and on the series 2 to 5 with the Redbirds favored.

Expected Potter

Selection of Galehouse upset the dopesters who had expected Sewell to lead with Nels Potter, but the skipper said, 'Galehouse is my man" and offered no explanation after he watched Potter warm up with Coach Zack Taylor for 20 minutes yesterday. It was a certainty the Cards would see plenty of low-breaking stuff backed up by excellent control and cunning pitching equipment.

Cloudy skies and a continual threat of rain hovered over the final dress rehearsals at Sportsmans Park but the weather man promised improved conditions for today's event. Bleacher fans started a line before noon yesterday and club officials, with all reserves sold, counted on 35,000 for the first game, scheduled for 3 p.m. E.D.T.

Arguments raged on the intriguing question of whether the Browns "hot" streak would lift them past Billy Southworth's gang or whether the Cardinals would be able to regain the edge they lost in late season

Both Sewell and Southworth said they would stick with their regular lineups, although the Browns' boss reserved the right to change his mind in right field where he has named Gene Moore over Milt Byrnes. Billy the Kid said he would insert Augie Bergamo in left if Danny Litwhiler wasn't ready.

Big Mort Ready

Pitching plans past today were strictly a jumble. An infected tooth forced Sig Jakucki to miss the final tuneup and may alter turns on the Brownie staff.

Cooper hasn't pitched since Sept. 24 but worked in hitting practice on the road and was reported ready. Big Mort, who won 22 and lost seven, was no surprise choice as he had been a standout all season after finally breaking the American League jinx and winning an inter-league tilt in the 1943 series. As usual, Brother Walker will do the catching.

Galehouse almost didn't play this year but the peculiar twists of a wartime season combined to give him his first chance in the fall classic when it was least expected.

Deciding to stay at his war plant job in Cleveland in the spring Denny finally caught the "fever" and told the Browns he would join them Sundays only. The experiment was not successful as he lost three in a row and was being pointed out as the horrible example of how baseball is a full time job.

The righthander became a full-time performer Juy 20 and celebrated with the first of a five-game victory march. Although his season's record tells a deceiving 9-10 table, Galehouse twice shut out New York Yankees, the last time Saturday afternoon in the heat of the closing drive. Myron (Red) Hayworth was named by Sewell as his opening catcher.

Peoples Lose 2

HAMILTON, Oct. 4 — (CP). — Hamilton players made it two straight over Toronto Peoples in the final series for the Ontario senior softball crown here last night when they handed the Queen City champions a 14-3 trouncing. Russell Johnson, hurling for Beavers, allowed only six hits and was never in trouble after the second frame. In addition he fanned an even dozen, disposing of three straight men via the strikeout route in two frames.

The Sports Round-Up

By HUGH FULLERTON, Jr.
Associated Press Staff Writer

NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—(AP). — Columbia's Lou Little explains that he adopted the "T" formation this year because he has a light backfield and no good blockers....He also maintains that lateral passing never can become an integral part of American football because it seldom is possible to work the ball downfield into the open where laterals do some good....Andy Kerr of Colgate, long a staunch upholder of the double-wing system, now is using what he calls a "T-Z" formation, which mixes up several styles....All of which is just further evidence to show that grid coaches in these wartime seasons are doing a lot of experimenting and may come up with some fancy new doings for the post-war "boom" times.

Shorts and Shells

Local sock experts claim that Sailor Tommy Altieri, a New Englang heavyweight who is stationed here, is about the best looking prospect they've seen in a long time.... Reason the Trans-America Pro Football League passed up Omaha was that Nebraska alumni howled that the pros might take the edge off the university's football....One of pro hockey's big name guys is ready to take over the Baltimore amateur club. Look for an announcement soon....The Browns have invited Pete Gray, the one-armed outfielder they recently bought, to see the world series "on the club."

Kootenay Chief Won't Talk Canadian Press Reporter Learns

By FRANK LOWE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

A SOUTH COAST PORT, ENGLAND, Oct. 4 — (CP) —(Advance) — Hanging on the bulkhead of the wardrobe of H.M.C.S. Kootenay is a brass medal in the shape of the German Iron Cross with a two-shilling bit as a centre piece — it is presented to the officer caught "shooting the biggest line." So getting the story of what Kootenay and her sister destroyers do in the English Channel was a bit difficult, but here's what could be gleaned.

Kootenay — and they tell this part willingly because it doesn't concern them — was formerly the R. N. destroyer Decoy which led an adventurous life in the Mediterranean. There she rescued from Crete, King George of Greece and the ship's log laconically notes, "The King appeared to enjoy the trip as well as could be expected under the circumstances."

Such information was easy to get. But when it came to finding out what the destroyer as H.M.C.S. Kootenay had done the skipper, Lt.-Cmdr. W. H. Wilson of Calgary would change the subject with, "have another drink — have two drinks. You can't ask questions then."

But the first officer, Lieut. A. H. McDonald of Saint John, N.B., gave a brief history.

Taken over from the R. N. in April 1943, Kootenay immediately went on the North Atlantic convoy run and in an entire year missed only one run and never lost a ship.

Kootenay was rushed over for the D-Day show and in company with Canadian destroyers Ottawa, Chaudiere, St. Laurent and Gatineau — making up one of the two 100 per cent destroyer flotillas in the Channel — went on anti-submarine patrols out of here.

Volunteers Search For 60-Year-Old Man

LINDSAY, Oct. 4 — (ENS). — Volunteer search parties are still combing the district south of Lindsay for 60-year-old Walter Parkin who has been missing from home since Friday morning. Lindsay police and firemen have volunteered their services in the search being conducted by Provincial Constable Taylor

It is feared that Parkin, who was in a despondent state of mind resulting from a nervous breakdown, might have become lost in wandering through the bush, or that he might possibly be drowned in the nearby Scugog River.

Freedom Of World Press May Be Utopian Dream

LONDON, Oct. 4 —(CP)—A proposal for an international agreement on world-wide press freedom was described as Utopian by the Yorkshire Post today. The comment was made on an address Saturday by William Redfern, president of the Institute of Journalists, who recommended, the Post said, "a convention guaranteeing the freedom of the press throughout the world, with free access to news and freedom to circulate it at rates fair to all."

"Such a safeguard," said the Post editorial, "belongs rather to a planner's Utopia than to early peacemaking practicalities.

"Newspapers are a part of the fabric of their national life, and will be more likely to resent than to seek on their behalf outside interference. Politicians in office are even more nationalistic, and unlike most journalists they value highly the power of reticence. How would Argentine statesmen respond to a demand by Brazil journalists for access to full information when relations between their countries were strained? Would protestations from a bureau in Europe make any difference? What would the Soviet Government in Moscow say to a demand from the Polish press for information the Bolsheviks were keeping quiet?"

Declaring "you cannot make governments frank by a Geneva convention," the Post concluded:

"For the present we believe the cause of press freedom will be served best by the example of a press using its freedom with the utmost public spirit. If we vie with each other in that respect Britain and the United States will set an example to the world that will be more effective than reliance upon any scheme of international machinery, however neatly and idealistically planned."

Asdic And Radar To Be Used In Peace Time

By FRANK LOWE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Oct. 4 — (CP) — The instruments that helped the men of the Allied navies win the ocean war will help men of the Allied merchant fleets win the ocean peace.

When peace comes U-boats will disappear from the sea lanes — but that doesn't mean danger has left the ocean routes. Seamen, both in war and peace, are continually in peril, and gadgets evolved under the pressure of wartime necessity will probably be put to good use in lessening this ever-present danger.

Probably the greatest single source of help will be that little known instrument which now is called Asdic. That is the ear of the fighting ship, the miraculous invention that gropes deep under the waves to locate lurking U-boats.

When the U-boat disappears it will have an even bigger job. Groping in widening circles about a ship, Asdic will be able to detect rocks, wrecks and other dangerous obstructions.

Some naval experts even foresee the time when Asdic will be used extensively by fishing fleets—the beam that can pick up a U-boat pack is able also of picking up a shoal of fish miles away.

Also of great assistance in the days of peacetime sailing should be Radar, another miracle instrument that during war years has been a name only. Now used to detect enemy surface ships in the darkest nights, Radar on freighters should materially cut down on the frequency of the most dreaded of marine accidents—collision.

LET'S ALL DO MORE TO WIN THE WAR

Postwar Land of Opportunity

WHERE

Electricity

PLUS VAST NATURAL RESOURCES CAN HELP PROVIDE MAXIMUM EMPLOYMENT

Canada, with its wide territories, favourable location, vast natural resources, and mighty reserves of hydro-electric power, can easily be developed into "a great postwar land of opportunity."

Fortunately, Canada is already electrically-conscious. Nowhere is so much electricity used per person. Today more than seven times as much electric energy is being produced in the Dominion as at the end of the last war. In 1943 our aluminum industry alone consumed enough electricity to supply all the electrified homes in Canada for 3 years.

Yet only one-fifth of Canada's water power resources has been harnessed. This power, increasingly applied to homes, factories, farms and mines, can raise the entire nation's standard of living.

But such development can only be achieved by PLANNING—today! While there must be no slackening of our war effort, we can still prepare ourselves for future action which will create markets and help ensure maximum employment. Planning will establish a firm, sound foundation for Canada's after-Victory prosperity.

For over 52 years it has been the privilege of Canadian General Electric to contribute much to home and industrial electrification. Today the Company's ten thousand skilled workers are devoting all their energies, all their enthusiasm, to war. Tomorrow they will resume their peacetime job of helping improve Canada's civilian economy—through electricity.

Maximum prices have been set for all types of used bicycles, according to a Prices' Board Used Goods Administration announcement Tuesday evening.

EXPECT THE WORST

Although a number of Christmas parcels for overseas are being shipped through the Post Office every day, the staff is preparing for a hectic last-minute rush. One thing for which they are thankful is that the majority of parcels, up to the present, have been correctly wrapped and addressed.

WANTON DESTRUCTION.

The platform erected for use in connection with the school picnic at Nicholls Oval this afternoon was badly damaged through the night by some person who broke off most of the supporting boards, leaving the structure ready to collapse. Whether the destruction was done by youngsters or by some older person with a warped mind the police have not yet determined.

SAFETY DISPLAY.

Large numbers of safety-conscious Peterborough people are pausing to look at the large assortment of safety items used in industrial plants, as exhibited in the window of Neill's Shoe Store. First-aid kits, safety-clothing, gas-masks, and many other things used to help people in factories to avoid danger, are being shown. This display is in connection with the present "Safety Week."

Thanksgiving Service To Be At All Saints'

The October meeting of the Ministerial Association was held Monday in the Y.M.C.A. The following members were present:—Reverend W. A. Filer, chairman; doctors E. W. Young, Nathan Cohen Beskin, J. R. R. Cooper, Major John Wood and Reverend T. W. Craik, C. Kidd, J. F. Everson, A. J. Arthur, E. C. Moore, E. J. Whan, J. H. Sutcliffe, E. W. Rowland, Hon. Capt. W. I. D. Smith and Rev. H. J. Mahoney.

Rev. Fred Craik conducted a brief devotional exercise. The secretary was instructed to write letters of sympathy and good wishes to Dr. G. S. Easton and Rev. H. L. Roberts. Rev. J. H. Sutcliffe introduced a new member, Dr. J. R. R. Cooper, present incumbent of George St. United Church. As Rev. B. E. Dawson has been transferred to Toronto it was decided to send him a letter and a book expressing our appreciation of his co-operation and fellowship with the association.

A public Thanksgiving service will be held under the auspices of the Ministerial Association on Monday, October 9 at 10.30 a.m. in All Saints Anglican Church. Hon. Capt. W. I. D. Smith, chaplain of No. 32, C.A.-B.T.C., will be the guest speaker. It was also announced that Dr. John R. Mott, world famous missionary, will visit Peterborough Monday, November 13.

Rev. Clayton Kidd introduced the speaker, Dr. Nathan Cohen Beskin, graduate of the University of Berlin. He preached a sermon on the seven evils recorded in St. Luke 16. 1. Wrong church relations, 2. Wrong social relations, 3. Wrong functional relations, 4. Wrong domestic relations, 5. Wrong industrial relations, 6. Wrong personal relations, 7. Wrong fraternal relations. There is a remedy for every wrong in the church.

A vote of thanks was tendered Dr. Beskin by Rev. L. W. Craik and Rev. E. W Rowland.

250 People Attend Legion Social Evening

Branch 52, Canadian Legion, B.E.S.L., held their first social evening of the season for members and their wives in the hall Tuesday. Two hundred and fifty were in attendance and enjoyed the moving pictures shown by Ronnie Ward.

Following the movies a three-piece orchestra entertained and luncheon was served, provided by the Women's Auxiliary of the branch.

These social evenings will be continued throughout the winter on the first Tuesday of the month, and a variety of entertainment will be provided for the series.

Soldier Cards Show Market Clock

Significant of Peterborough's remembrance of its son and daughters in the armed forces is the Christmas greeting card prepared by the city council for delivery to the zones of action prior to the Yule season of 1944.

The city's card last year featured photographs of some of Peterborough's leading industries and familiar public buildings, scenes to remind the absent youth of the old home town. Following the same graphic idea for this Christmas, they are using a picture of Peterborough's homely market clock, in color, which will probably arouse nostalgic yearnings in the hearts of all the boys and girls who receive the greetings from the council and the citizens this Christmas time.

The cards are expected from the printers by October 15, and will be available to all groups sending Christmas parcels, a card to be included in each parcel. However, if the parcels have been closed and mailed by the time the folder cards are off the press, they still may be obtained with envelopes and postage at the city hall to be forwarded to the Peterborough men and women who are being remembered by each group.

Information regarding these Christmas card from the city council on behalf of the citizens may be obtained at the office of City Clerk Outram.

Black Watch Soldier Nazi War Prisoner

Pte. Edward (Ted) Austin, Port Hope, who was reported missing when the Black Watch Regiment was wiped out, is now a prisoner of war, according to word reaching his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Austin, Jr., R.R. 1, Port Hope.

A letter dated September 3 told them he was receiving Red Cross parcels in the Stalag and how much appreciated they were. He wrote that he spent most of his time reading, and the camp had a fine library.

At the time he was captured, he was serving with the medical section of the unit. He enlisted in Peterborough in December 1942 and went overseas in July 1943.

To Build Centre

KINGSTON, Oct. 4 — (CP). — Alderman G. Curtiss, representing City Council, and W. F. Nickle, K.C., of Kingston Community Memorial Recreation Centre Committee have been asked to draft a by-law calling for expenditure of $100,000 for a recreation centre to be erected on the Fair Grounds here. It likely will be submitted to the ratepayers at the next municipal election.

Memorial Fund Reaches $170,403 Total

The Memorial Centre Fund moved appreciably onward in this morning's reported total of $170,403.85, and with only three days remaining in the campaign the pressure of time was sharpening effort to make the canvass as complete as possible.

Divisional figures comprising the aggregate today were as follows:

Employees' canvass	$ 39,780.50
Manufacturers	100,000.00
Special names and retail merchants	25,561.35
General canvass	5,062.00
Total	$170,403.85

The committee today was enlisting special help for the extension of the general canvass. With more than $170,000 in the Fund, the directors were altering their phrasing from word "challenge" at the inception of the campaign to "opportunity" as subscriptions gradually creep up on the objective.

When you look at that $170,000 and its components, you are bound to notice the fact that the city's manufacturers have contributed the major part of it. If the rest of the canvass could be brought up to a level mark with the subscriptions from Peterborough's manufacturers, the campaigning committee would feel more secure about the final amount than they were this morning when the various canvassing teams counted slightly more than $70,000, but, at that, $30,000 less than has been received to date from the heads of industry.

Others Interested

Peterborough has actually aroused emulative plans in other Ontario cities who are at present organizing for similar Memorial Centre plans.

Guelph, for example, has already appointed a committee of forty citizens who are holding their inaugural meeting Thursday night. Their chairman did not wait to write for information, but telephoned this week to J. J. Dorris of the Chamber of Commerce for detailed information of how Peterborough has gone about its project.

Kitchener is working along the same line of organization, and Kingston has been enquiring about local methods and results of the appeal here. The latter city is suggesting a contribution from the municipality of $100,000.

Far Reaching Effects

Peterborough's enterprise for the future good of its people, especially its youth, has caught the attention of the province, and the success of the campaign is going to be regarded as a reflection of public spirit in this community. That is a result which was not contemplated when the Memorial Centre was conceived and undertaken by Peterborough citizens, but there it is, and it is going to be turned into a form of Peterborough propaganda even though that was thought and purpose was beyond the original intentions.

And Peterborough means every last citizen. Impressions are going to beformed abroad when th eresults of the local effort are finally totalled and announced, and piling up that Memorial Centre would receive wide publicity throughout the country.

The very fact that heads of Peterborough industries have examined the details of the project and so generously given their support to it, should answer any doubt as to its soundness and also as to its community worth in fulfilling the aims of a Memorial.

Finally, the money is credited to the Corporation of the City, and the eventual properties will become the possession of the people as a whole....Hence, the fact of a great opportunity in providing amply for features of the Peterborough of tomorrow which the older generations did not know in their day.

Colonies Lost

LONDON, Oct. 4 — (CP). — Foreign Secretary Eden told the House of Commons to-day the British Government is opposed to the return of colonies to Italy, and declared the Government would stick to its declaration that Italy's Empire in Africa is irrevocably lost.

STATIONED AT DEBERT—Pte. Carl Wallace Graham, 392 Brock street, is now stationed at Debert, Nova Scotia, after enlisting in the Tank Corps early in March. The son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Graham, the young soldier was employed in the F. and G. Stores before enlisting. His father served in the First World War. He is a grandson of Robert Graham, Lakefield, and J. J. Armstrong, Indian River.

Sgt. Alice Morin Arrives Home From England

KINGSTON, Oct. 4—Among the large group of repatriated Army personnel who arrived here this week from overseas were two members of the Canadian Women's Army Corps. One of these was Sgt. Alice E. Morin, daughter of Mrs. E. Pruner, 476 Aylmer street, who was married over a year ago to Sgt. B. L. Morin of the Royal Canadian Army Service Corps while they were both serving in England. The other girl was Pte. Katherine Smith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. D. Smith of Cornwall. Both girls are now on leave at their homes.

Both girls were attached to Canadian Military Headquarters in London, but lived in separate barracks about a half hour's walk from their work. So accustomed did they become of the robombs that they seldom moved from their desks when one was heard approaching.

Highlight of Sgt. Morin's two years in England was a leave she spent studying Shakespearean drama at the famous Stratford-on-Avon Theatre. She attended lectures and watched performances of a number of Shakespeare's plays done by the Playhouse cast. Another leave she spent with relations in Glasgow and Newcastle, and managed also to visit Torquay in Devon. On long week-ends, she said, everyone tried if possible to get out of London into the quiet countryside.

Prior to enlisting she was employed at the Western Clock Company. One brother, Jack Pruner, is serving overseas, and another, Pte. Earl Pruner, was killed in Italy a year ago.

C.W.A.C. BACK FROM OVERSEAS—Sgt. Alice E. Morin (nee Alice Pruner), who has been serving overseas, arrived home this week. She is the daughter of Mrs. E. Pruner, 478 Aylmer street.

Peterborough's Industries Show Genuine Interest In Community

"This is the latest proof of the genuine interest of our industries in the affairs of Peterborough," said Alderman Bradburn today in commendation of the manufacturers in attaining their objective of $100,000 in the Memorial Centre campaign.

And they may yet wrap up their aggregate subscription in the cellophane and festive ribbons of an amount in five figures more than they aimed at.

"I am sure we are all delighted at this very substantial contribution of our manufacturers to Peterborough's Memorial Centre," said Alderman Bradburn, who is chairman of the manufacturers committee of the council and is a member of the Memorial Centre's founding committee.

"I don't think anything similar to this contribution to a local undertaking ever happened here before. There were outright contributions to the Patriotic Fund in the last war, but that was for an entirely different purpose than our present campaign. The heads of our Peterborough industries feel the way the rest of us do that this is an investment in the community of tomorrow, in the health of the young people who will be growing up when the features of the Memorial Centre are in effect and operation. It shows that industrial management is influenced by the ideals and projects of the community, and it seems to me a good sign for future relations when our industries participate with the citizens generally in such a community effort as this."

Alderman Bradburn has been keenly interested in the success of the Municipal Centre since his visit to St. Catharines as a member of the council's deputation to observe what that city had accomplished in a somewhat similar endeavor.

"It has been my experience as chairman of the manufacturers committee, and of those before me, that our industrial leaders have always taken an active part in anything to advance Peterborough. That co-operative spirit has been acknowledged from time to time, and I hope that it will continue to flourish in good relations between the city and its industrial leaders."

A Grand Record

Establishing of Collegiate Cadet Corps Is Recommended To Board Of Education

At a meeting of the cadet committee of the Board of Education held with representatives of the two outside corps of the city on Tuesday night it was decided to recommend to the board the establishment of a cadet corps at the Collegiate and Vocational School.

Department regulations make a course in physical fitness and cadet training compulsory in the school and the meeting with the representatives of the Sea Cadets and Air Force cadets was to plan how the three organizations could co-operate.

Cadet training, in the Collegiate is compulsory for Grades X, XI and XII, and optional in Grades IX and XIII. The general course of training, it was agreed, will be given to all boys during the fall and winter season whether they are attached to the Collegiate Corps or the two outside corps. In the spring when the foot and rifle drill commences it will be given only to boys of the Collegiate Corps. Drill for the Collegiate Corps under the regulations must be held within school hours.

The committee also recommended that the Collegiate Corps be attached to the Army.

Those in attendance were M. G. Hardill and T. T. Rodger, representing the Sea Cadets; A. Ward Smith, the Air Cadets; Lt.-Col. M. H. Park, C. S. Browne and W. Wilson Craw, the cadet committee of the P.C.V.S., and Major Eastwood of the Peterborough Rangers.

Sentence Man To 15 Months

Albert Marcoux, Gaspe, Que., was sentenced by Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., in police court Tuesday afternoon to 15 months' definite and six months indeterminate in the Ontario Reformatory on two charges of stealing automobiles here and on a third charge of stealing clothing from Isadore Black was given a term of four months definite and two months indeterminate.

The three sentences are to run concurrently and all three are to date from August 30.

Marcoux, arrested by provincial police in August had pleaded guilty to all three charges but sentence was deferred because the accused was required as a witness in the hearing of similar charges against Leopold Gingras.

Before sentence was passed Tuesday Marcoux asked the court, through Interpreter Alex Letellier, for leniency in behalf of his wife and children.

Sorry For Action.

"I am sorry for what I did but it's too late now," said the French-Canadian, adding that he had over three years' service in the Canadian army.

The preliminary inquiry into three similar charges against Leopold Gingras, Montreal, was enlarged for another week after the Crown's case had been concluded. The defence did not state whether or not any evidence would be called.

Provincial Constable E. J. Soubliere of Belleville, was in the witness box nearly all day, much of the time being taken up with trials within trial as to the admissibility of certain statements allegedly made by the accused.

The officer was finally allowed to put in one statement but a second one was refused by Magistrate Langley.

Constable Soubliere told of the chase carried on by provincial police on watch at Bewdley when two cars came down the Port Hope-Peterborough highway one morning in August. One of these cars, he said, proved to be an automobile stolen in Peterborough and it ran off the highway some distance past Bewdley.

Constable Soubliere identified a number of articles said to have been recovered in the Quebec license car in which Gingras was driving when arrested. These were put in as exhibits.

Magistrate Langley remanded Gingras until next Tuesday. In the meanwhile the defence will decide as to whether or not any evidence will be put in.

500 Lindsay Soldiers Face No-Job Prospect

LINDSAY, Oct. 4—After an employment survey of Lindsay industries, Dan McQuarrie, chairman of the Industrial Committee of the Lindsay Rehabilitation Council reported at the first October meeting of the municipal council recently that present figures show there will be approximately 500 men from Lindsay returning from the armed forces to no jobs. Mr. McQuarrie warned the council that unless some effort is made to have something ready for these men, the old depression will be 'right back with us again."

He pointed out that roughly 600 to 700 men from the Lindsay area had enlisted in the armed forces, and will be looking to the municipality to make good government promises of employment for all after the war.

Extend Wine Books

TORONTO, Oct. 4 — (CP). — Victor Goggin, chairman of the Ontario Liquor Control Board, announced last night that wine ration books, scheduled to expire on October 31, have been extended to cover the period ending October 31, 1945. Holders of the wine permit books may have them extended by getting them endorsed at wine or sales outlets or L.C.B. stores.

Five Young Boys Raise $26 For War Funds

Sometimes the expression, "Keen as mustard," can be very aptly applied, and it very well fits into the picture of five young lads at the south-end of Rubidge street who set out to beat a mark made by a similar group of girls on the previous week-end on behalf of the objects for which the Peterborough and District British War Victims' Fund operates.

Not every day does one come across a family of ten children, and it was from amidst such a group that two of these five boys came, another of the family (a young sister) being one of the five girls who had done a good job the previous week-end on behalf of the same fund, further enquiry also eliciting the fact that a brother, Pte. C. A. Bowes, was also serving in Italy and had been wounded in the service of his country, while another one, Carl G. Bowes, is serving in the Norwegian Merchant Marine.

They say that competition is the soul of business, and this added to an undoubted patriotic spirit led Wallace and Herbert Bowes, Jim Holbrook, Albert Buott (whose sister was also included in the previous week's group), and Kenneth Kemp to work very hard in order to surpass the girls' record (itself quite a good one) and they succeeded in just doubling it in the total amount raised.

From a stand on the lawn, at 127 Rubidge street, residence of the Bowes brothers, they sold a varied list of canned goods, pickles, apples and other articles which included home-made buns made by Mrs. Bowes, and this in conjunction with a collection among neighbors and friends raised the fine sum of $26.00, half of which was given for the special fund to give Christmas cheer to the children in Britain who have had to be evacuated from their homes, and the balance went for Christmas boxes for soldiers on active service through the Red Shield and Major Wood.

The penny box located in the Bell Telephone Co. Ltd. office on Hunter street is one of those which draws a more than average of good support, one sensing that a personal interest by the cashier, B. Conley, under whose watchful supervision it makes its appeal, has something to do with this feature of its success. Collected on a monthly basis, this box gets a credit of $4.05 today, which is about the nice average it has given for past recent months.

Horticultural Meeting

Of interest not only to all members, but also to all people who are interested and love the beautiful in nature, the Peterborough Horticultural Society has a special evening scheduled to take place in Murray Street Baptist Church hall this Friday evening, commencing at 8 o'clock. There will be the presentation of awards won in competitions sponsored by the society during the past season, besides the 1944 award of the Ontario Horticultural Society meritorious service diploma to Dr. J. A. Middleton.

A cordial invitation is extended to all to attend, and some entertainment will be offered by H. G. Lewis, ventriloquist and caricturist. A collection will be taken on behalf of the fund.

Camp Hospital Needs Playing Card Decks

Playing cards are needed at the local Training Centre hospital to while away lonely hours and to step-up that much talked-about thing called morale.

Playing cards is one of the favorite pastimes of every soldier, and a deck of cards, whether it be used or new, will be welcomed from anyone wishing to provide amusement for men stationed here. They may be left at Belleghem's Furniture Store, where they will be picked up and sent to the camp.

A young man is having "girl trouble," as a result of an automobile ride Wednesday evening, which ended abruptly with a flat tire. Seems the girls insists the flat tire was "fixed," in the same manner that "engine trouble" often develops when out for a joy ride. In exasperation, the man exploded that he would not and could not make a tire go suddenly flat, and as a matter of fact, he held more affection for his precious tires than he did for the girl friend. They're still not speaking!

WOUNDED IN BELGIUM—On loan to the British Army overseas, Lieut. W. O. Thirnbeck, whose wife and son live at 418 Water street, has been officially reported wounded in action in Belgium. Mrs. Thirnbeck believes he is serving with the British Second Army in Belgium and the Netherlands.

Radio Inspector Makes Check-up

Radio set-owners who have not taken out their 1944-45 licenses may be interested in knowing that Radio Inspector M. E. Leslie is now working in this district.

As a result of his inquiries so far a number of citizens in the Keene, Westwood, Young's Point and Apsley districts are being summoned to court to explain their failure to secure licenses, and there will probably be other cases before the inspector leaves this section of Ontario. The city itself will probably receive official attention during the visit of Inspector Leslie.

Council Authorizes Payroll Deductions

For the convenience of city employees who wished to make their contributions to the Memorial Centre Fund by the plan of payroll deductions, the Council Monday night, in a motion by Alderman Bradburn, seconded by Alderman Ovens, arranged with City Treasurer Shaver to make the necessary arrangement of collection details by that method.

Alderman Bradburn said that some of the city's employees had expressed a wish that the payroll deduction system might be provided for this campaign at the city hall. It has been generally adopted in industry, and is a convenience to the men and women who wish to cast their support behind the Memorial Centre.

The accommodation is extended to police and fire departments, board of works staff and others in the civic employ who feel interested enough in the public's Memorial Centre campaign to make some contribution to it.

Sgt. Bud White Dies Overseas From Wounds

Sincere tributes of sympathy and understanding from two men who have seen and tried to understand much tragedy in a world at war have been received by Mr. and Mrs. David White, whose son, Sgt. E. C. (Bud) White, B.E.M., died while fighting with the Royal Highlanders of Canada in France recently.

Well-known in athletic circles in Peterborough, Sgt. White's death was received here as a great shock to all his friends. Reported at first wounded in action, later revised to "severely wounded," the young winner of the British Empire Medal passed away in an English hospital September 14.

Chaplain of the Canadian Military Hospital at Basingstroke in England, Capt. W. D. C. Hollingworth, in a letter received Tuesday, wrote: "I know that words are of little comfort at such a time, but I did feel it might help you, to know something of the circumstances leading up to the death of your son."

Tried Operation

The letter continued, "Your son was wounded in the head late on August 21. He was taken to the Canadian Mobile Neurological Surgical Unit nearby, where two brilliant Canadian specialists operated upon him, in a great endeavor to save his life. To insure proper medical and nursing care, he was flown to this country and admitted at once to this hospital on August 25. Here he was attended by another Canadian brain surgeon, but in spite of the best of care he passed away peacefully early in the evening of September 14. I saw him a short time after admission and visited him daily thereafter, but he was never conscious. He was so deeply unconscious that it appeared as if he were in a deep sleep. There was no evidence of any suffering of any kind."

Capt. Hollingworth wrote: "His doctor informs me that the damage to the brain was so very extensive it is doubtful that had he recovered he would ever have been other than an invalid. While your loss is very great, I do trust this little information will be of some comfort to you and assure you of our earnest endeavors to bring about his return to health. May God comfort you and bless you and your family in this your sad bereavement."

Buried At Brookwood

As the nearest available United Church chaplain, Capt. Sam A. R. Delve conducted the funeral services at the graveside of the young soldier. In a letter Capt. Delve wrote that Sgt. White had been buried September 19, in Brookwood Cemetery, the most beautiful cemetery in all England, in plot 55, row B, grave 9, of the Canadian military extension section. There, Capt. Delve said, lie hundreds of Canadian and American soldiers who have made the supreme sacrifice.

"If you should visit this country," the letter continued, "it will be easy for you to find the grave, as the records are kept very carefully here. Six sergeants from your son's own regiment, the Royal Highlanders of Canada, acted as pallbearers, and two other sergeants were present also. Nearly all those who carried him to his final resting place knew your son very well. After the sermon the Last Post and Reveille were sounded.

"We have erected a white wooden cross above his grave, with his name, and other information on it. We will build a stone monument after the war."

Capt. Delve said: "Not only those who give their lives in the country's service, but also those who are left behind are called upon to make great sacrifices. May God be with you."

Magladery Raps Civil Service

NORTH BAY, Ont., Oct. 4 —The Civil Service Commission was criticized to-day for its appointment of civilians to permanent government positions during wartime by Capt. Tom Magladery, President of the Ontario Command of the Canadian Legion.

Speaking at the opening session of the three day convention of the Canadian Legion Ladies' Auxiliary of the Province here, Capt. Magladery said such appointments were unfair in that they "closed the positions" to men and women in uniform now.

He said that his criticism was not directed at the Dominion Government but at the commission which make such appointments. Lauding the work of the Ladies' Auxiliary, he asked that a resolution be drawn up by the convention asking that men and women in uniform shall have at least an equal chance of securing government positions.

Nixon Applauds Hepburn Attack

TORONTO, Oct' 4 — (CP). — Harry C. Nixon, Ontario Liberal Leader, said last night he was "very pleased" with the statement Mitchell F. Hepburn issued at St. Thomas yesterday criticizing Premier Drew's Progressive Conservative Government.

"I am in accord with what he said," Mr. Nixon told The Canadian Press in a telephone interview from his farm home at St. George, Ont., near Brantford.

"We've always been in agreement except on one isue—Canada's war effort," said Mr. Nixon. "Except for that we've seen eye to eye."

The Liberal Leader said he welcomed Mr. Hepburn's announcement that he would attend the caucus of Liberal members of the Legislature in Toronto next Tuesday, recalling that he Elgin member attended several conferences— "I don't know whether you would call them caususes or not"—which the Liberals held during the last session of the Legislature.

Mr. Nixon said he and Mrs. Nixon would be in Toronto to-day to attend the funeral of Sir William Mulock, former Chief Justice of Ontario, who died on Sunday.

Butter Scarce

SHERBROOKE, Que., Oct. 4 (CP) —H. I. Ross, administrator of rationing for Canada, said in an interview yesterday there was little or no prospect of any easing this winter in butter rationing.

Ontario Pasturage Shows Improvement

Pastures are fresh and green all the way across Eastern Ontario, and probably in the western section of the province, as reflected in the weekly report of the Ontario Department of Agriculture.

For instance, Renfrew is typical. "Extremely heavy rains have relieved any shortage of moisture in the county. The soil is well soaked and the creeks, which had been dried up, some of them for two months, are now running again."

Frontenac: "The land plows well." That's a neat and expressive agricultural phrase. "Yields of late potatoes are varying from 175 to 400 bushels to the acre. No blight is seen."

Hastings: "Recent rains have improved pastures and new seedings; flow of milk has increased; processing of corn and tomatoes is nearing completion; some factories have begun canning of pumpkins."

Northumberland: "Pastures are fresh and green, but cheese factories report only slight gain in milk flow."

Peterborough pastures are reported "very good." Potato yields are fair in Grenville. Fall plowing is under way in all sections.

"Niagara grapes are pretty well harvested," in Lincoln. Middlesex reports: "Sixty purebred Yorkshire sows were sent from London (Ont.) to Iowa, and several hundred Suffolks, rams and ewes, were 'shipped' from Ilderton to Texas."

KEY TO CANTERBURY

CANTERBURY, England — (CP). — The freedom of this city has been offered to Field Marshal Sir Bernard Montgomery.

TALL ENOUGH—Pte. J. W. Butler, Campbellton, N.B., Canadian army, likes the pockets of his prisoners high up, so that he doesn't have to stoop in search for arms. This Jerry from Dusseldorf, Germany, is 7 feet three inches tall.

Hepburn Breaks Long Silence Lashes Out At Drew Government

ST. THOMAS, Ont., Oct. 4. — (CP).—Mitchell F. Hepburn, Independent Liberal member of the Ontario Legislature for Elgin, yesterday broke an almost year-long political silence with a 600-word statement in which he attacked Premier Drew's Progressive Conservattive government and asserted his willingness "to take my place in the ranks of reform Liberalism, whether it be in the Provincial or Federal field."

The former Ontario Liberal Premier also said in an interview that next Tuesday he will attend his first caucus of Liberal members of the Legislature since the provincial election of August, 1943.

The statement was issued in reply to a request from the Liberal Association of Elgin that Mr. Hepburn consider nomination for the party in the Federal riding.

Text of the Statement

While I deeply appreciate the expression of confidence by my Liberal colleagues of many years' standing, I regret that my reply to this invitation to stand as a Federal candidate must be negative. After due consideration I have come to the conclusion that my main responsibility as a Liberal is to do battle against reactionary Toryism as it rears its ugly head in Ontario to-day.

While I have been for the most part politically inactive since resigning the Ontario premiership two years ago, nevertheless I have continued to take a keen interest in public questions and have given a great deal of thought to our turbulent Canadian political scene. Taking a carefully considered view of the situation, it is my opinion that at no time since Confederation have we been faced with such a serious political crisis in both our province and our dominion.

Evaded the Job.

For more than a year we have had a Tory government in office in Ontario—a government which has evaded its responsibilities by subterfuge in the form of a multiplicity of boards and commissions, with no responsibility to the Legislature and certainly no results for old man Ontario when the Legislature was in session last spring. I, as an Independent Liberal in common with other Opposition members, believed that every opportunity should be afforded the government to implement its 22 pre-election pledges and at all costs everything possible should be done to avert another wartime election.

From this perspective and in the light of its own record, the Government must be considered a failure. On that I am confident the vast majority of the people of Ontario, including those who voted for the Tory party, are in complete agreement. We must however also consider the record of the Drew government in relation to the effect of its policies on Canada as a whole. In this connection, we must turn our attention to the radio speech delivered by Col. Drew over a provincial hookup on August 19 last. The speech, in my opinion, was the most irresponsible utterance ever made by a Canadian public man within my memory.

Incitement To Hatred.

It was in the first place, a clear incitement to hatred against the people of a neighboring province, but worse than that it was an incitement to hatred against one-third of our own Ontario population. I shall have more to say about the other implication of that infamous speech at a later date.

Furthermore, without the authority of the Legislature, Premier Drew during his recent mission to Europe, made commitments clearly outside his jurisdiction, particularly in the field of immigration. At this point I should like to ask the Premier as to what extent he has involved the people of Ontario, in this matter of bringing in new immigrants before adequate provisions have been made for the re-employment of our own servicemen and present war workers.

The Premier's recent statement regarding the opening of an Ontario House in Paris has astounded me. Is this a forerunner of further such announcements of miniature duplications of services already being paid for out of Federal funds?

Does the Premier propose to Balkanize Canada and give the impression to other countries that they must deal with nine Canadian jurisdictions in the fields of trade, commerce and foreign affairs?

It begins to look as though Col. Drew aspires to become the President of a Separate Republic of Ontario. Just about 14 years ago I was given the signal honor of leading the forces which ultimately drove the Tory cabal from office in Ontario, while I no longer wear the mantle of the leadership, I am satisfied to take my place in the ranks of Reform Liberalism to rally the forward-looking people of Ontario against the new Tory menace, whether it be in the provincial or federal field.

Canada stands on the threshold of a great future. That future can only be realized if we are a strong and United nation.

Confederation Team Trims Queen Mary

In a junior Public School Soccer League game at Riverside Park on Tuesday afternoon Confederation School defeated Queen Mary by the narrowest possible margin, 1 to 0, on the strength of a successful penalty shot by Ben Jones. It was a tight battle all the way.

Queen Mary won the toss, chose the goals with the sun in their back. Confederation kicked off and kept the ball at Queen Mary goal, but could not score, due to the work of the full-backs. Just before half-time the full-back for Queen Mary caused a penalty. Ben Jones took the kick and scored on a fast, well-placed kick.

The second half was a repetition of the first, but Queen Mary were unsuccessful on several rushes. Both teams were tiring. Queen Mary drew another penalty, but on the kick Jones hit the goal-post.

Outstanding for Queen Mary were Myron Kellett, Roger Wilson, John Nisbett. For Confederation, Ben Jones, Ray Douglas and Gerald Sutherland.

The teams:

Queen Mary—Goal, B. Hoar; full-backs, B. Wagar, G. Morely; half-backs, M. Kellett, G. Cullen, R. Edwards; forwards, R. Wilson, J. Nisbett, D. Sloan, K. Reid, M. Grafstein; subs, K. Woodgate, G. White, D. Clarke.

Confederation—Goal, J. Doleman; full-backs, B. Morrison, Roy Hobson; half-backs, J. Bryan, G. Sutherland, Floyd; forwards, R. Douglas, K. McCarroll, B. Jones, B. Parry, J. Haslett; subs, J. Kimball, G. Crouter, C. Hamilton.

Referee—E. Hancock.

King Edward Wins

King Edward and Prince of Wales had a close battle in the Public School Junior Soccer League at Riverside Park when the former defeated Prince of Wales 2 to 1.

B. Robinson and Don Whatley were the scorers for the winners, while J. Johnston scored the only goal for Prince of Wales. The teams:

King Edward—Forwards, D. Whatley, B. Bately, G. Bryon, T. Downer, B. Young; half-backs, B. Serles, D. Brickford, D. Martin; full-backs, R. Harris, G. Bennett; goal, Bob Ferguson.

Prince of Wales — Forwards, E. Dun, R. Deck, J. Johnston, K. Deck, R. Fowler; half-backs, R. Carl, H. Cooper, H. Panter; full-backs, Moffatt, B. Chalmers; goal, W. Jones; subs, Wood, Mongraw.

Personals and Social

Mrs. G. W. Milne, of Toronto, is spending this week in Peterborough visiting friends.

Senator Iva C. Fallis is in Toronto for a few days, and is registered at the Royal York.

Able Seaman J. W. Byrnes, R.C. N.V.R., who has been on active service, is spending a furlough with his mother, Mrs Mary Byrnes, 177 Hazlitt street.

Don. Ramsay, formerly chief announcer of radio station CJIC, Sault Ste. Marie, has now joined the announcing staff of radio station CHEX, Peterborough.

Miss Agnes Deck, of the nursing staff of St. Joseph's Hospital, is accompanying Mrs. Frances Rickerby on a trip to Flint, Mich.

Agnes Logan Green was elected vice-president of the Ontario Music Teachers' Association at the annual meeting of that organization in Toronto on Monday.

Constable Gordon Smith, R. C. M. P., has returned to his duties in Montreal after spending two weeks' holiday with his mother, Mrs. Ellen Hope, Short street.

Mrs. Ethel Farrow of Port Hope has announced the engagement of her only daughter, Margaret Mary Farrow, to William George Minifie, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. Minifie, of Lakefield. The marriage will take place in Port Hope, October 28.

Mrs. R. Jones, president, and Mrs. M. A. Edwards, of the Peterborough St. David's Society, are in Toronto today, where they will attend a concert being given this evening by Thomas L. Thomas in Eaton's Auditorium, in aid of the Welsh War Victims' Fund.

Mrs. Bessie Allen, Mountain, Ontario, has announced the engagement of her youngest daughter, Doris Jean Allen, to Edward Thomas O'Brien, only son of Mr. and Mrs. T. O'Brien, of Peterborough. The marriage will take place October 16 at 9 a.m., in Immaculate Conception church.

Miss Constance Willis, who has been touring Eastern Canada for the past five weeks, is now returning to her home in Weyburn, Sask. She was the guest of Mrs. Ellen Hope, Short street, during her stay in this district.

An interesting feature of the afternoon tea the Local Council of Women is sponsoring on October 14, to raise funds for a donation for the Peterborough Memorial Community Centre, is the fact that gentlemen are invited. The tea will be held in the Y.W.C.A. on Saturday, October 14, from 3 to 6 p.m.

Mrs. Hannah Gardiner, formerly of Lakefield and now of Bethany, was recently honored by neighbors by a presentation at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Northey, Lakefield. During an enjoyable social evening, Mrs. Gardiner was presented with a dresser set as a remembrance from her many friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert MacArthur, of Campbellford, have announced the engagements of their daughters, Jean Arbuthnot MacArthur, Reg. N., and Marion Mary MacArthur. Miss Jean MacArthur will marry Wilfred George Campbell, son of Mr. and Mrs. William George Campbell, and Miss Marion MacArthur will marry Douglas David Hunter, son of Mrs. David Hunter and the late Mr. Hunter, in a double ceremony in Bonar Presbyterian Church, Toronto, on October 7, at 2 o'clock.

Conference Report

Reports given by Misses Mary Stewart and Mary Duncan, delegates to the Bay of Quinte Conference Young People's Convention, in Belleville last week-end, were presented to the regular meeting of the George Street Young People's Union. The accounts contained many new ideas and plans for the work of the Union during the coming season. The worship service was in charge of the Christian Mission group, with Miss Helen Edmison as convener, assisted by Dougall Brown, and Misses Jeanne Kerr, Mary Stewart and Mary Duncan. Miss Hazel Wilson led in the sing-song which opened the meeting, and the period of recreation and games enjoyed at the close.

Elizabeth Parker Auxiliary

The Elizabeth Parker Auxiliary of Trinity United Church met Monday evening in the Ladies' Parlor. Miss H. Parkinson, accompanied by Miss Mildred McIntyre, sang two solos "We Thank Thee," and "God, Who Madeth Earth and Heaven." Several of the members gave short readings dealing with the study book and refreshments were served.

Plan Thrift Sale

Plans for the annual Thrift Sale of the Junior Welfare League, to be held October 27, 28, 30 and 31, were discussed at the regular business meeting of the League, at the home of Mrs. K. Lech. Proceeds from the sale are used by the group for war work, and welfare work in the community. Members asked for donations, and said that they would be collected by calling 6631. A donation was voted to the Peterborough Memorial Community Centre, and plans were made to resume knitting comforts for the armed forces. In response to an appeal, it was decided to undertake the making of scrapbooks for the Navy League. Mrs. D. McaTavish presided.

Winslow—Holden

An airforce blue suit, with black accessories and a corsage of red roses, was chosen for her wedding ensemble by Lorna Jean Holden, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Holden, when she recently became the bride of Charles Lawrence Winslow, only son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Winslow, of Millbrook. Rev. A. L. Sisco officiated at the quiet ceremony, in the manse of Millbrook United Church.

Mrs. Donald Oke, cousin of the groom, was matron of honor, in a green dress, with black accessories and a corsage of pink roses. Donald Oke was best man. For their wedding trip, Mr. and Mrs. Winslow left by motor for Sudbury, where they will visit Dr. Les Hobb and Mrs. Hobb, formerly of Millbrook.

Victory Workers Donate Funds

An idea of the scope and excellence of the work of the Victory Workers was given at their regular meeting Tuesday afternoon in their rooms, when donations of $10 each from the group's treasury, were voted to the following: Christmas Cheer for British Children; Milk for Britain; Chinese Relief; Russian Relief; and Greek Relief. Members also decided to send a handkerchief and a Christmas card to boys and girls in the service whose mothers are connected with this sewing group. A new member, Mrs. A. Maynard, was welcomed by the president, Mrs. B. Fowler, and committee reports were given.

Weekly Visits Made To Soldiers

Four councillors, Mrs. N. Hamley, Mrs. G. Ham, Mrs. G. W. Fitzgerald and Miss M. Baird, were named to arrange for weekly visits to the Training Centre hospital, at the regular meeting of the Jeanette Scott Chapter, I.O.D.E. Chapter members are also asked to be hostesses at the new recreation centre during October.

Other items in the Chapter's war work included the announcement that eight personal bags had been donated by members to be sent to England for girls in the service, or civilians who had lost their homes in the bombings, and that magazines for the camp library are to be left at the home of Mrs. W. Bellegham.

Mrs. H. Steggles, war convener, reported that an evening sewing group to meet each Tuesday, has been formed, and that sweaters for four-year-old children were needed to complete the outfits. The Opportunity Chest, under Mrs. W. L. Hardwicke, has sold articles to the value of $154.90 it was announced, and Miss Doris Burgess, Welfare convener, said that gym suits and shoes had been provided, and two cases of honey sent to England.

Mrs. I. H. Keefer, Educational convener, described the visit made recently to the adopted school by six members, and it was decided that drinking cups, scrap books and scissors would be provided for the pupils. Twenty-five dollars was donated to the Memorial Community Centre, and the regent, Mrs. C. L. Upper, was named to place a wreath on the cenotaph on Armistice day. Announcements of future projects of the Chapter included a rummage sale, under the joint convenership of Mrs. J. Heffernan, Mrs. G. W. Fitzgerald and Mrs. C. L. Upper, to be held in October. Plans were also discussed for the Christmas tea, to be held on December 2, with Mrs. G. Ham and Mrs. K. Currie as general conveners.

Annual Supper Meeting Great Success

The annual supper meeting of the Helen Roger Auxiliary of Knox United Churh was held on Monday. Immediately following the supper the president, Mrs. E. Mesley, welcomed the members and their guests and Rev. H. J. Mahoney replied on behalf of the guests. Mrs. Mesley thanked Mrs. H. Clegg and her committee, Mrs. A. Sproats, Mrs. R. Goodfellow, Mrs. Dale and Mrs. G. Hutchison, for their work in preparing the supper.

During the business period the Christian Stewardship secretary, Mrs. I. Oesch, read a splendid article on "Stewardship" and the Temperance and Christian Citizenship secretary gave a brief resume of two articles from the United Church Observer dealing with the work of H.-Capt. V. E. R. Zufelt in Italy, when at a recent communion service over 450 soldiers joined the church. Mrs. E. Mesley read "A Psalm of Thanksgiving" and a special Thanksgiving was received. The next meeting was announced for Nov. 6 with Mrs. G. Hutchison in charge of the program. The place of meeting will be announced later. Mrs. H. Clegg gave a report of the recent Presbyterial Mission Circle Rally and of the W.M.S. Sectional Rally. Miss Mary Morton introduced the first chapter of the Study Book, "West of the Dateline" entitled, "The Church in the South Pacific". Sections of the chapter were reviewed by Mrs. J. T. Donaldson, Mrs. E. Mesley and Mrs. I. Oesch, describing the people of these islands, their origin, customs, and living conditions. The work of several missionaries was reviewed — James Chalmers, Bishop Patterson, John G. Paton, and John Geddie.

Miss M. Morton conducted the worship service assisted by Miss B. Sloan, Mrs. A. Sproats and Mrs. E. Mesley and closed with a prayer written by a Fijian Christian, followed by a hymn and the Lord's Prayer in unison.

Elect 8 Members To IODE Chapter

Miss Isobel Graham was hostess for the October meeting of the Major Bennett Chapter, I.O.D.E., when the following new members were elected: Mrs. Jack Patte, Mrs. James Henderson, Mrs. Donald Duncan, Mrs. William Turner, Mrs. Howard MacDonald, Miss Doris Preston, Miss June Allen and Miss Grace White. It was announced that the Chaper had decided to donate a wedding veil as part of the bridal outfits to be sent to service women in England and the Chapter's thanks was expressed to Miss Olga Haskill for procuring it.

A donation of $25 was voted to the Peterborough Memorial Community Centre, and members moved that the personnel of their adopted ship, the "Amber", be remembered with Christmas treats. The November meeting will be held at the home of Miss Wargaret Skitch.

Havelock Flier Wed Overseas

His many friends in Peterborough and district will be interested to learn that Flight Lieutenant John D. Cunningham, R.C.A.F., was recently married overseas to Madge Davies, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Davies, in the Church of England, Newport, Shropshire. For the ceremony, the bride wore a white wedding gown of crepe georgette, with bishop sleeves and round neckline trimmed with sequins. Her full-length veil was of embroidered net, and she carried dark red roses. She was given in marriage by her father.

The bride's sisters, Misses Gwen and Margaret Davies, were her bridesmaids, dressed alike in shell pink organdy muffs trimmed with rosebuds. Flying Officer Jack Leyland of Vancouver, B.C., was best man. After a reception, the couple left for Bognor Regis, on the south coast of England.

Flight Lieutenant Cunningham is the son of Mrs. R. Cunningham, 424 Jane street, Toronto. He is a grandson of Mr. and Mrs. William Preston, of Trent River road, Havelock, and a nephew of Mr. W. D. Hutchinson of Havelock. Enlisting in Toronto in May, 1941, he received his wings and commission in April, 1942, at Summerside, P.E.I. After taking a six months' course at Trenton, he was posted to St. Hubert, Quebec, as an instructor, and was made a Flying Officer before going overseas in August 1943. Stationed in England until September, 1944, he is now serving in Normandy with the R.C. A.F. His sister, Miss Gloria Cunningham, lives with her mother in Toronto.

Large Crowds Attend Paris Fashion Shows

By ADA DE KOFOED
Associated Press Staff Writer

PARIS, Oct. 4 (AP)—Four years of German occupation have changed little in Paris fashion shows.

Despite occupation restrictions, extremely hard working conditions, absence of electricty and scarcity of transport and material, the second day of Paris' first liberation style showings brought the same elegant crowds yesterday. Beautiful mannequins were—if possible—a trifle slimmer.

However, a wartime note crept into showings at the aristocratic House of Bruyere on Place Vendome. There were no evening dresses.

Keynote of the Madam Bruyere show was fluted skirts, frocks with narrow belting and swing coats. Her colors are autumn shades; dark red, gray, all brown shades and a few greens. Military influence is evident in a smart pleated green silk dress with cap to match, inspired by a Scottish uniform. There was a Russian note in the style of coats and trimmings of black Persian lamb.

Sporting costumes have three-quarter long swagger coats and pleated skirts just covering the knees —a trifle longer than summer skirts.

Afternoon gowns appeared very discreet in materials such as black velvet and crepe maroquain. Bruyere showed becomingly comfortable long tea gowns in soft warm materials.

Women Pack Hundreds Of Soldier Boxes

War plants haven't the monopoly on streamlined assembly lines, as anyone who happened to look into St. John's Parish Hall Tuesday afternoon would undoubtedly find out. For, with lightning swiftness, hundreds of boxes for a cheerier Christmas for boys in the Army overseas were skimming along long tables, being quickly filled by smiling mothers and wives, happy in the knowledge that they were doing something worthwhile to cheer the boys "over there."

As the boxes started on their journey, empty, the first article to be placed inside was a writing pad, followed quickly with a pencil with an eraser on the end, and a package of envelopes. Then in turn, they would be filled with a package of Oxo, a package of cigarettes, two chocolate bars, two powdered chocolate drinks, a package of peanuts, one half pound of Christmas cake, a pair of shoe laces, a package of soup mixture, a package of razor blades, two packages of gum and a roll of life savers, and a bar of soap. Final additions were the illustrated or novel sections from newspapers, a Christmas greeting card from the Army Auxiliary, and a waxed Maple Leaf, a symbol of the country and freedom the recipients are fighting for. Quick as wink, the completed boxes were filled with packing; tied with strong twine, and stacked, preparatory to being addressed and shipped.

It's surprising how much good cheer those little boxes contain, and the amount of planning necessary to carry through the project of packing approximately 1,500 parcels for men in Canada's army. The boxes seem so small that one would hardly believe that so many articles could be fitted into so little space. Since the packaging of the pieces of Christmas cake and soap were done beforehand, there was no delay in packing, and in less than two hours about 500 boxes were filled, packed and tied, ready to be addressed and sent to some Peterborough boy overseas.

About 60 volunteers reported for duty Tuesday morning and afternoon, and it is hoped that the remaining 1,000 boxes will be completed Wednesday morning. Members of the Active Army Auxiliary, who planned and carried through the buying, and the members of various women's organizations who turned out to help them with the tremendous job of packing, are to be congratulated for their industry and wonderful effort. The happy smiles and exclamations of men overseas when they receive their boxes will be felt, even if they cannot be seen or heard, in homes far away where women who helped still work and wait, and the letters of thanks which will pour in from grateful soldiers who were remembered by their home town, will give tangible proof of the appreciation they feel.

W.A. Hears Talk On Thanksgiving

Rev. Dr. J. R. R. Cooper, who chose as his subject, "Thanksgiving," was guest speaker at the October rally meeting of the Women's Association of George Street United Church Tuesday afternoon in the board room. Mrs. Allan Parker was guest soloist, and sang "Show Me My Task," accompanied on the piano by Mrs. C. Renaud. The devotional period was taken by Mrs. L. M. Richardson's group, with Mrs. H. W. Hamblin reading the Scripture and Mrs. J. Brown leading in prayer. Mrs. W. G. McLaren, who presided, gave a schort talk on "Thanksgiving," and the Association's thanks was expressed to Mrs. W. P. Hetherington and her assistants for the success of their canvass, to take the place of the annual fowl dinner. Mrs. R. Parnall and Mrs. W. K. McGee expressed the thanks of the members to the guests. Mrs. W K McGee and Mrs. W. H. Girven were in charge of refreshments served following the meeting.

Melva Dunbar Wed In Triple Sheer

George St. United church was the scene of a pretty wedding recently, when Melva Isobel Dunbar, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Dunbar, Smith township, became the bride of William Donald Dingman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Dingman, Campbellford. Rev. J. H. Sutcliffe officiated in a church decorated with ferns, and mixed bouquets of gladioli and asters Mrs. C. Renaud played the wedding music, and Miss Joy Walker sang "At Dawning," and during the singing of the register, "O Promise Me."

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was gowned in floor-length triple sheer, with inserts of lace in a full skirt. The dress had a Sweetheart neckline, a fitted bodice buttoned at the back from neck to waistline, and she wore long fitted sleeves coming to a point over the hand. Her long veil of silk net was caught to a crown of white lace, and she carried a bouquet of red roses, mixed with bouvardia. Her only accessory was the groom's gift, a string of pearls.

Mrs. Harold Hanna, Toronto, sister of the bride, was matron of honor in a floor-length gown of pale mauve lace, on Princess lines, with inserts of sheer crepe in a full skirt with Sweetheart neckline, a fitted bodice buttoned at the back from neck to waistline, and long fitted sleeves. She wore a shoulder-length veil of pale mauve silk net, caught to a heart-shaped cap with mauve asters. She carried a nosegay of yellow gladioli, and wore a gold locket. Miss Rose de Carlo was bridesmaid, in floor-length yellow tafetta, torso style with full skirt, yellow lace around a Sweetheart neckline, and short sleeves, with yellow silk gloves. She wore a shoulder-length veil of pale yellow silk net, caught to a heart-shaped cap of tafetta and yellow asters. She carried a nosegay of mauve gladioli and wore a heart-shaped locket.

Gordon Pink was best man, and William Dunbar, brother of the bride, and Albert Beasley, brother-in-law of the bride, were ushers.

After the ceremony a reception was held at Hooper's Palm Rooms, where the bride's mother received, wearing a gold crepe dress, black hat and accessories, and a corsage of Talisman roses. The groom's sister, Mrs. Perry Sanders, who also received, wore a fawn colored dress dark brown hat, and accessories, and a corsage of red roses.

Later the bride and groom left for for a trip to points west. For travelling the bride wore a dark brown crepe dress with fawn hat and coat, and accessories, and a corsage of red roses.

On their return they will live at the corner of Wolsley and Downie streets.

Mrs. Donald Oke Given Shower

Mrs. Donald Oke, nee Pearl Hoy, was the guest of honor recently at a miscellaneous shower given by Mrs. B. Rusaw and Mrs. L. McNevan at the former's home, Lansdowne street.

He learned his lesson!

During the time when he had to be satisfied with much less coffee than today, many a husband learned this lesson:

To be sure of full enjoyment in every cup it is necessary to use really good coffee.

That explains why so many wives now give their husbands Maxwell House regularly. They learned through experience that this wonderful coffee blend always has the fine fragrance and flavor, the smooth, satisfying, full-bodied goodness that a man looks for in coffee.

You'll make no mistake in choosing Maxwell House for your regular coffee because:

1. It's blended from rare, extra-flavor coffees, each chosen for its special quality of flavor, body or fragrance.
2. Roasted by a special process that brings out all the extra goodness of this delicious, satisfying blend.

Maxwell House is packed in a Wartime Bag, in an All Purpose Grind, and at less cost to you.

Lieut. E. Saunders Describes Life of a Nurse in Front Lines

Serving in a German hospital a short distance from the front lines, Lieut. Elfie M. Saunders, with the Medical Corps, is a member of the group of nurses and physiotherapists who have penetrated the closest to actual battle. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Saunders, 9 Dennistoun avenue, and has been overseas since November 1943.

Wherever the troops go, the hospitals follow them and six days after the Germans fled from a hospital, it was taken over by the Canadians, she said. The enemy left so hurriedly, that when the nurses arrived they found food sitting on the plates on the table. The hospital was dirty when the staff arrived, but in a short time their combined efforts had it spotless.

Although a physiotherapist, Lieut. Saunders is working in the operating room, doing a variety of jobs. She is on the night shift from 7 to 7 and helps with the anaesthetics, instruments and case histories.

I worked till noon yesterday (September 21), then came off duty and slept four hours before reporting on again. I am called an O.R. "scribe". We take dictation from the surgeons after each operation on the procedure of the operation. They like us to do it because we know so many of the medical terms. Then beside that, we do whatever is requested of us. We run to wards for this and that, help with dressings, and with some of the minor operations. It keeps you busy.

Never Stops

"We did 14 operations last night and this morning — two tables going all the time. Some are very slight — and some very long. We had one bad case — a boy with his face practically cut in two by mortar. But they sewed him up, temporarily of course, to go to the United Kingdom for plastic surgery. The joy of these cases is that we get them so soon after they are wounded (10 to 12 hours) and no infection has set in.

"We are in a building with lots of hot water and steam heat. Our own quarters are comfortable, much more than we expected. All over the building when we arrived were pictures of Hitler and Goering, but we soon fixed them. There were empty champagne bottles all over the place and all the signs in the hospital are in German and I can't read them—nor can anyone else. We have patients of every nationality and there are too many German prisoners of war for my liking. They are sullen too."

Lieut. Saunders says she and the others find the work extremely interesting, even though it is heartbreaking at times. One thing they get used to, she writes, is that in their type of work, they are going to have deaths. The night before, they had had two in her ward alone, one of whom had been operated on the night before. She explained that the range of her duties was increasing all the time. She was even giving anaesthetics and acting more or less as the anaesthetist's assistant. She looks after his equipment and keeps his syringes sterile.

"The anaesthetist joined us before we came to France. He had been in Italy, and as he is the youngest officer member of the staff, we call him 'Junior'. He is the best type to work with. He never loses his temper, runs on an even keel all the time and never gets flustered in an emergency.

Staff Gets Fright

"This morning we had a nerve wracking case — a chap who stopped breathing on the table. But 'Junior' in his usual manner, pulled him through. While I was giving a man anaesthetic, he started to cyanose. After a few seconds I said to the M.O. who was operating," Don't you think the patient looks a little blue? Then I screamed for my boss. It was nothing — oxygen just gone off. Such little things make life in the operating room never dull and just a little upsetting at times. Our night team is a grand bunch and we manage to have our fun even during operations.

The trip to the hospital wasn't the most pleasant for the nurses. They rode a long, long distance in open trucks and were positively black when they arrived, the nursing sister declared. But in spite of all that, there was never a dull moment. They were the first women to reach that far up and the civilians stood around yelling in surprised voices, "The women, the women."

In a letter written a month ago, Lieut. Saunders said that the water situation was pretty grim. Each tent, in which were several nurses, was allowed 1 basin of water a day. First of all, the women all had their daily "bath" from the one basin, then this was followed with clothes washing. They kept using the same water for everything, until it was so thick with mud that they had to throw it out.

"I went on a tour of Caen and we tore around all afternoon in a jeep with the top down. By the time we got back we were grey with dust. When we aren't working too hard we spend the time whipping around the country. We think nothing of starting off for a place 60 to 100 miles away— hitch-hiking. There is lots of traffic and they always pick you up.

Terrible Destruction.

"All the way along the road before Caen, you could see the destruction, Jerry tanks burned and a complete mess. There are many British and Canadian cemeteries all along either side of the road, and in some places are wires with signs on them: 'Mines cleared only to this line.' So of course no one goes trucking past the line.

"Entering the town, well, I just can't describe it. It's absolutely amazing. There doesn't seem to be anything left standing, although there will be one house standing on a street which has been completely destroyed. The main shopping district is flat—really flat. We as military personnel cannot do any shopping for food or clothes because they are very short of everything.

"The civilians around seem to be mostly older people. When driving down one alley-way, which was a complete ruin, the peasants were around digging, trying to find anything that was useful. The smell is very bad because there are still many humans buried under the ruins. They are beginning to clear away the debris, but as yet just off the streets. It is too bad that some Canadians could not see these places; then they'd know there is a war on.

Lieut. Saunders wrote that some of the peasants are still living in their ruined houses and have signs on the doors "Maison habite." They are absolutely pathetic, she con-

This Week's Best Wartime Recipe

Contributed By Mary Moore Readers

DEAR MARY MOORE: My husband had to have his teeth removed, and he was without his teeth for 3 weeks while his plates were being made. I asked the dentist what he could eat and he said mashed potatoes, and soups and soft puddings and ice cream and lots of Swiss steak. This is a way of cooking meat I had forgotten about and fortunately my husband liked it so well he wants it often now he ha his plates. This is how I made it—and for anyone with poor teeth it is excellent.

Swiss Steak (Mrs. Peag's).

One and one-half lbs. beef (from round, or skirt or flank steak), 1-3 cup flour, ½ teaspoon salt, ⅛ teaspoon pepper, 1 small onion chopped, 2 tablespoons fat, ¼ cup chopped green pepper (optional), 1 cup tomatoes canned or fresh, 1 cup boiling water. Wipe meat with cold, damp cloth. Mix thoroughly flour, salt and pepper; pound into steak with meat pounder or potato masher. Cut meat into 2 or 4-inch squares. Brown steak and onions in fat in heavy pan. Add green pepper, tomatoes and water. Cover and simmer until meat is tender—about 1½ to 2 hours. Add more liquid if needed during cooking period. If you would like to cook carrots or onions with it for your second vegetable add a little more liquid, and add vegetables about 20 minutes before meat is done.—M.A.P.

This is an old favorite with me, but I have neglected to serve it for some time — thanks for the reminder.

For Thursday, October 5

BRILLIANT prospects are indicated by the lunar and mutual aspects of this day. It is probable that a sudden journey, incident to either business, professional interests or pleasure, may have inspired objectives, intuitive leads with intriguing and glamorous circumstances. There may be rich, and rare experiences, in which ideals and imagination may have a leading place in making decisions. Planning and change may be built upon premises outside the realm of reality, therefore should be profoundly reflected upon.

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for a year of exceptional experience, in which large and far reaching issues are at stake. This may concern a dramatic, artistic, literary or professional career, in which creative talents demand expression, beyond the realm of the practical or realistic. Glamor, bewilderment, highly stimulated emotional urges may give inspiration to unique talents. This may involve radical change, travel, adventure, demanding wise decisions as affecting the future career with major importance.

A child born on this day may be endowed with unusual creative talents, fitting it for a unique career, in which change, rare experiences or strange adventures combine a romantic life.

THE TEA HOUR GOSSIP . . . .

We will to-day have a little chat about cookies and small cakes. Cookie doughs range from very soft to very stif[illegible]atever degree of stiffness, a cookie dough is always easier to handle if it is allowed to stand for a time (10 to 30 minutes) in a cold place before it is rolled out. This allows the moisture to be thoroughly absorbed and hardens the fat and both of these conditions tend to prevent the dough from being sticky even though it is soft.

Rich Cookies.

Half cup shortening, 1-3 cup of sugar, 1 egg well beaten, ¾ cup of flour, ½ teaspoon vanilla, raisins, nuts, or citron. Cream the shortening, add sugar gradually, egg, flour, and vanilla. Drop from the tip of a spoon in small portions on buttered sheet two inches apart. Spread thinly with a knife, first dipped in cold water, bake quickly at 375 degrees Fahr. Put four sultana raisins on each cookie, almond blanched and cut in strips or citron cut in small pieces.

Chocolate Drop Cookies.

Two squares chocolate, ½ cup of shortening, 1 cup brown sugar, ½ teaspoon soda, 1 egg, 2 cups flour, ½ cup sweet milk. Melt the chocolate and add to the melted shortening. Add sugar, egg and milk, then the soda and flour, sifted together. Drop by spoonsful on greased pans, and bake in a moderate oven 12 to 15 minutes. These may be frosted if desired.

Nut Cookies.

Quarter cup shortening, ⅓ cup of sugar, 2 eggs, 1 cup flour, 1 teaspoon vanilla or almond, as desired, 2 teaspoons baking powder, ½ teaspoon salt, 1 tablespoon milk, 1 cup chopped nuts. Cream shortening and sugar, add eggs well beaten. Sift dry ingredients together and add alternately with milk. Stir in nuts and flavoring and mix well. Drop from teaspoon on a greased baking sheet and place a nut on the top of each. Bake in a moderate oven for 12 to 15 minutes. This recipe will yield about three dozen cookies.

Soft Molasses Cookies.

One cup shortening, 2-3 cup of sugar, 1 cup molasses, ¼ cup sour milk, 2 teaspoons soda, 1 teaspoon ginger, ½ teaspoon salt, 2½ cups flour. Cream the shortening and the sugar and add the molasses and milk. Mix well and add dry ingredients, mixed and sifted together. Mix thoroughly. Roll the dough thin and cut in rounds. Chilling the dough before rolling makes it easier to handle. Bake in hot oven (375 degrees Fahr.).

NEED COURAGE TO TRAIN CHILD

Mother Should Bring Up Young One Right From Crib, Not Let Him Go As He Wants

DEAR MISS DIX—I am an expectant mother and have been pondering over the way the children of today are being reared. I see very few who are well-trained, and I hate to think of my child being the hoodlum that so many youngsters are.

I shall not want to bring into the world a child who is regarded by everyone who knows him as a pest. Is it possible to train a child to be obedient, well-mannered, and to respect the property of others? If I try to rear my child properly, will I be loved and respected by him, or will he regard me as a crank and a grouch? I have been told that after my child arrives I will not notice his misdeeds. Is that true?

PUZZLED.

Start Training Child in Infancy

ANSWER—Generally speaking, it is true that motherhood does work a change in women that makes them blind to their children's faults, deaf to their noise, indifferent to their depredations on other people's property, and utterly incapable of using any common sense in dealing with them.

There are notable exceptions to this rule, of course, but it is a strange fact that many women, who are the soul of consideration for others, think that you should enjoy hearing little Bobby howl when he gets into a tantrum; that you shouldn't object to Susie smearing the upholstery in your car with an all-day sucker or a banana; that you should let Tommy play horse with you antique chairs, and let Sally draw pictures over your precious first editions.

Maybe you will be that kind of a mother, but you needn't be if you will take a good, strong grip on your courage and bring up your child in the way he should go, instead of letting him go the way he wants to go. But you have to start at the beginning of the infant's life.

Every mother writes her own price ticket. If you put yourself on a pedestal, your children will worship at your feet. If you make yourself a doormat for them, they will trample over you and kick you around. Take your choice.

DEAR MISS DIX—Several weeks ago I was ordered away to a distant post to an army camp and, because I was feeling a little homesick and blue, I visited a girl quite frequently for the last few days. I had never gone with her much before. We talked vaguely of marriage, but to my knowledge I did not commit myself. However, it appears that she considers herself engaged to me and everything but the date is set.

I had no thought of becoming engaged to any girl at this time, and certainly if I had considered marriage I would not have picked out this girl. Please tell me what to do. Must I go through with it?

Boy Should Write Girl the Facts

ANSWER—My earnest advice to you is to refuse to be a sucker. Don't let this girl hold you up and make you marry her just because she has maneuvered you on to a hot spot, and is gambling on your not having the courage to face the little storm of gossip that she will stir up when you decline to be led to the altar like a sheep to the slaughter.

She knows well enough that you never popped the question. Don't tell the girl by word of mouth, for that will give her a chance to weep all over you and turn you into a mush of compliance, but write to her definitely and tell her plainly that you never proposed to her and that you are not going into the war hampered by an engagement to any girl. Let that be final and don't worry any more about it.

DEAR MISS DIX—I have reason to believe that my daughter is married secretly to a sailor whose whereabouts she does not even know and whose return is indefinite. What move would you advise a mother to make under these circumstances?

A DISTRESSED PARENT.

ANSWER—Induce her to publicly announce her marriage. If she loved the man well enough to marry him, she should not be ashamed of publicly bearing his name. Nor should he be ashamed of acknowledging her as his wife. And, no matter what happens, it will save her face.

Simple Additions Multiply the Servings

TRUE-FLAVORED, tempting, easy-to-prepare, Jell-O and Jell-O Puddings are not always readily available at your grocer's these days. So you'll appreciate such recipes as these, that add simple ingredients to produce more servings per package . . . and deliciously!

APPLE-WHIP FLOATING ISLAND

1 package JELL-O Vanilla Pudding
2½ cups milk
Apple Whip (See below)

Prepare Jell-O Pudding with milk, as directed on package. Cool. Turn into dessert bowl; chill. At serving time, top with spoonfuls of Apple Whip. Six servings.

Apple Whip: Beat 1 egg white with pinch of salt, until stiff. Gradually beat in 2 tablespoons sugar. Grate 1 medium apple; mix with 3 tablespoons sugar, add to egg-white mixture and whip stiff.

ORIENTAL COMPOTE

1 package Orange JELL-O
2 cups hot liquid (peach juice with water)
¼ teaspoon salt
1 cup cold cooked rice
1 cup peach slices (canned or preserved)

Dissolve Jell-O in hot liquid. Add salt. Chill. When slightly thickened, fold in rice. Pour half of mixture into dessert glasses, to one-third fill. Add a layer of peaches. Cover with remaining Jell-O. Chill. Six or eight servings.

If your grocer is temporarily out of Jell-O or Jell-O Puddings, please don't blame him. He's doing the best he can, to make his limited supplies go 'round.

LAWN BOWLING
By HERB MARTIN

The curtain is just about ready to drop on the local lawn bowling for the 1944 season. The finals of the club singles will be played this evening.

The ladies want to play a little jitney on Thursday afternoon at 2 p.m.—Draw from the board with a small fee. There will not be many greens available but the ladies will have to take a chance on that.

And now for a couple of announcements:—

The ladies are holding this annual banquet at 6.30 o'clock, Tueday, Oct. 10th. This is an invitation to all lady members.

And then the Lawn Bowling Co. is holding its annual meeting on Monday, Oct. 16th at 8 p.m. All shareholders are reminded of this meeting.

Thanksgiving Service

KEENE, Oct. 4 (ENS) — The Harvest Home and Thanksgiving Services of Keene United church will be held October 8. At 11 a.m. Rev. George Murray will preach and at 7.30 p.m. Rev. J. H. Sutcliffe of Murray Street Baptist church, Peterborough, will be the guest preacher.

Stan. Payne Re-Elected Golf Club President

Getting an early start for the 1945 season, the Peterborough Golf and Country Club this fall has adopted the plan of electing officers for next year at this time, and the organization has been completed by the appointment of committees and the naming of committee chairmen so that planning of next summer's activities can be taken in hand early.

At a meeting of the shareholders at the club house the events of this season were discussed. It was generally agreed that the club had had a good season, and that for the most part the course had been in excellent shape in spite of the difficulty experienced by the executive in getting suitable help.

Stanley G. Payne was re-elected president and Hugh F. Waddell, vice-president. The other directors are Robert Abbott, Orley DeGraw, J. H. Eastwood and C. V. Elliott. T. A. Mackey was re-elected secretary.

At a subsequent meeting of players of the club committees were appointed and chairmen chosen in order that next year's activities may be planned early.

The following were named:
Greens committee—C. V. Elliott.
House committee—Reg. G. Faryon.
Membership committee — H. F. Waddell.
Property committee—J. H. Eastwood.
Match and handicap committee—Russell Kitchen.

Brintons Take Three Games

Brintons were the only team in the Ladies' City Five-Pin League to win three games this week. They swept the card with the Beavers.

A feature was the fact that the champion Wesclockers could only take one game from the Five V's despite a high total pinnage.

Marion Timm was the individual star, having high three with 687 and high single with 302.

Other good performances were: M. Sanderson, 682; A. Anderson, 675; J. Hair, 674; F. MacMillan, 672; T. Hewitt, 655; G. Worton, 655; G. Patterson, 653, and R. Pearse, 647.

Other high single scores in addition to Marion Timm's 302 were: G. Worton, 294; G. Patterson, 285 and 249, and J. Hair, 284. There will be no bowling in the league next Monday, Thanksgiving Day. The scores:

Brintons vs. Beavers

Brintons (3)—M. Batley, 570; P. Hawtin, 549; M. Miller, 529; E. Bascia, 492; M. Sanderson, 682—2822. Beavers (0)—H. Plews, 444; E. Rae, [illegible]; F. Kerr, 360; A. Johnson, 516; dummy, 375—2130.

Merry Macs vs. Arcos

Merry Macs (3)—L. Vincent, 528; A. Sisson, 435; M. Hill, 363; R. Cowan, 462; B. Smylie, 490—2278. Arcos—M. Harvey, 493; J. Payne, 321; E. Borland, [illegible]41; M. Thompson, 341; T. Quigley, [illegible]6; R. Giles, 358—1960.

Corvettes vs. Outboards

Corvettes (1)—M. Johnston, 509; A. Armstrong, 479; V. Watson, 597; J. Hair, 674; M. Goldie, 614—2873. Outboard Marines (1)—M. Timm, 687; K. Calladine, 558; F. MacMillan, 672; B. Castle, 498; B. Goldie, 463—2878.

Five V's vs. Westclox

Five V's (2)—M. Moore, 225; M. Wood, 488; L. Hewitt, 655; E. Patte, 263; B. Hobbins, 484; M. Payne, 386—2501. Westclox (1)—A. Anderson, 675; I. Bullock, 523; N. Whetung, 436; M. Hawthorne, 608; M. Selkirk, 463—2825.

Empressettes vs. Commandos

Empressettes (2) — M. Graham, 501; J. Elliott, 565; A. Holt, 487; G. Patterson, 653; G. Worton, 655—2861. Commandos (1)—H. Hunt, 287; H. Menzies, 504; M. Bailey, 280; D. Pearson, 627; R. Pearse, 647; D. McArthur, 348—2693.

Irish Wrestler

The crowd cheered frantically as the Irish battler man-handled the big Davis and Kennedy got as much applause as the Whipper as the two left the ring together. Meanwhile, Referee Maxwell had disqualifed Davis for his illegal attack on the champion and the Texan, alone in the ring and surrounded by an angry mob, declared that he had been robbed. Police and some of the other wrestlers had to open a passage through the crowd for Davis and he finally reached the haven of the dressing-room in safety.

It was a wild bout all the way, with an electrifying ending.

Another Mad Brawl.

Incidently it was not the only riot of the night for Don. Evans, the fair-haired Californian grappler, had a hectic semi-final browl with Ivan Rasputin, the hirsute exponent of the bear hug that finally ended with both battlers out in the ring seat, exchanging lefts and rights among the customers. They were so busy trying to knock each other's head off that Referee Maxwell counted them out before they realized what was going on in official circles.

After the two had been counted out, they made their way back to the ring but Evans did not stay very long. Rasputin knocked him through the ropes and when the Californian appeared on the ring apron again he was armed with a chair and a very obvious yen to hammer the Beard over the head with that unusual weapon. He was eventually disarmed before anybody was hurt but it was a wild flurry while it lasted. The whole bout was strenuous. Rasputin got a chance several times to apply his celebrated bear hug but discovered that Evans had a perfect defence. Every time the Mad Russian tried to apply the squeeze, the Californian simply punched himself loose and eventually Rasputin decided that whiskers were poor protection for a rap to the jaw.

Kennedy Wins.

Irish Jack Kennedy, the eventual hero of the night, won a popular victory in the preliminary bout when he tossed Vernon Baxter, the Oregon battler after 12 minutes of lively action. Baxter who is big and tough and a bit careless as to his methods did his best to give the Georgian the works and far a while it looked as if his tactics might succeed. He had Kennedy in trouble several times with a stepover toehold, mixing in a few kicks and other stray bits of skulduggery. Kennedy got tired of that kind of stuff and retaliated with a storm of rights and lefts to the head that had Baxter running for cover. Eventually one of those-up-from-the-floor swings found its target and when Baxter went down in a heap the Irish battler flopped on him, rolled him over and that was all there was to it. Baxter complained about the punching but the verdict stood.

The attendance was the largest of the current revival. All three bouts were refereed by Bert Maxwell while as usual Fred Scates made the introductions and handled the timers' watch.

New Casualty

ST. THOMAS, Oct. 4 — (CP). — Add casualties of war: chewing tobacco. A tobacconist here said it was the first time in more than 40 years he had experienced a shortage of chewing tobacco. Restricted supplies of molasses were held partly responsible.

tinues, and the Allies can't be surprised that they don't like them much. When their vehicles passed through, the people would stop and call "good day."

The military traffic is always heavy, the physiotherapist found, and machines were always getting tied up in convoys and had to wait for it to move on. One night there was a dog fight above the nurses' quarters and after that they had orders to wear their tin helmets and dive under the bed, because the flak in some places came through the tents.

See Monastery.

"Three of us started to hitchhike to Cherbourg to-day (September 7) but apparently fate didn't intend us to go. We started out in a jeep with a couple of British Tommies who took us a good distance. When we stepped out of their jeep we were picked up by an American major and his driver in another jeep. After we had travelled a while, the major suggested if we would wait till he finished his job, he would take us to see Le Mont de St. Michel, which was THE place to see in France.

We had dinner at an American supply depot and proceeded from there. St. Michel is unique. The monastery is built right on top of the rocks and the villagers live around the base. The street, the only street, is very narrow. No cars are allowed and the taverns and curio shops are right at the edge. The street is all cobblestone and quite steep. You go up this road and finally come to the steps which go on, and on, and on. There are numerous parapets all the way up, then finally, the monastery—its beauty defies description.

"Just out of St. Michel we stopped at a farm house to buy some eggs. My French is not too bad and don't have much trouble getting along. There was no difficulty about getting the eggs. We gave them chocolates and oranges. When the children saw the oranges, they went just about crazy. The girl told us they hadn't seen oranges since before the war, 'when the Boches arrived.'

Hated Captors.

"How they hated the Germans in that part of France. They moved in on them, paying little or nothing. The girl was intrigued when she learned we were Canadian. Her first question, 'Did you volunteer or were you mobilized?' She shot questions at us right and left, and when we finally pulled away from there, we left some happy people."

Discusing prices, Lieut. Saunders reported that the nurses had found them almost unbelievable. They priced slips at £50 and other items rated accordingly. Perfumes, lipstick and powder were plentiful. To prevent inflation, they are only allowed £15 a month for spending.

"I spent an afternoon with Lt. N.S. Sally Trotter recently. She hails from Peterborough, and we were both at Petawawa together. We talked over news from home at a great rate and ate cucumber and tomato sandwiches."

When she enlisted in July, 1943, Lieut. Saunders had finished her course and internship in physiotherapy and was working in the Workmen's Compensation Clinic in Toronto. She went overseas four months later. A sister, S.O. Babs Saunders, R.C.A.F. (W.D.) is stationed at Mount Hope and a brother Sgt. Pilot Stuart Saunders, is at Mountain View.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

DUPLICATE DIFFERENT

ONE GREAT difference between bidding in match point duplicate and in rubber bridge comes when your opponents have a part score. Then the mathematics in favor of light fourth-hand openings must undergo alteration. It pays, in match point games, to open fourth-hand if you have about an average hand, with the majority of your strength in the major suits. But in rubber bridge, if the opponents have a partial, it is too likely to give them a cheap game.

South: ♠ Q 10 7 / ♥ K 6 / ♦ 9 5 4 / ♣ A J 8 3 2

(Dealer: South. Neither side vulnerable.)

South	West	North	East
Pass	Pass	Pass	1 ♠
Pass	1 NT	Pass	Pass
2 ♣	2 ♥	3 ♣

By the time the 3-Clubs bid reached him, East saw he had already done some damage, as his opponents had a part score of 40 from the previous deal. He was afraid that if he bid again, the punishment might be too great. Actually, he would have been set if he opened his mouth, but at least he would have headed off the game which he had presented to his opponents by opening. He decided to hope for the best, thinking maybe he and his partner could set it.

The spade 9 was opened, East putting in his J in the hope of later using his A to kill off the K. The Q won that, the diamond Q finesse worked, the club 10 was sent through to the Q, and West led the spade 4, East deciding to play his A and return the 3 in the hope that West could ruff. The dummy's K got this, the club 9, K and A followed, then the club J, and the diamond 4 was led. When the J went on, South played low from dummy, letting West win.

With only three tricks in, West saw that a diamond return would enable South to discard a heart on the diamond thirteener, so cashed his heart A. But that was all, and South got the necessary 3-Clubs which gave his side a game, with his part score.

Job Reduction Coming Soon

By JACK WILLIAMS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA, Oct. 4 — (CP) — Final decision on Canada's 1945 war production program has not yet been reached, but informed sources consider reductions in some lines inevitable.

Presuming that the war in Europe continues until the end of this year, however, the overall production for the last quarter of 1944 will be only the barest shade below the third quarter, which means drastic cuts are not forthcoming immediately.

With more than 75 per cent. of Canada's war output being made on order from other United Nation countries—and particularly the United Kingdom, the extent to which plants are to be kept busy on war materials next year is naturally dependent on the requirements of other nations.

Recent unofficial estimates have placed the extent of the approaching cut-back as high as 50 per cent., but at the moment it appears at least possible that continuation of the war in Europe until sometime next year may reduce that figure.

It is expected to be at least another two weeks before requirements on which 1945 schedules can be drafted will be known to Canadian authorities.

Allied Fliers Try New Technique

LONDON, Oct. 4 — (CP) — R.A.F. abandoned saturation night bombing during September in favor of smaller and more concentrated attacks, the air ministry said last night in a statistical review of air operations in September.

"The range of destruction of targets in Germany was increased by the use of comparatively small forces bombing with such accuracy that as much damage was done as in much heavier attacks of the past," the air ministry said.

An outstanding example of this is the case of the City of Darmstadt, centre of Germany's chemical industry and base for German armies defending the Upper Rhineland, bombed the night of Sept. 12.

"Almost the whole of Darmstadt was destroyed by a force of a little more than 200 Lancasters," the report said.

INCREASED COAL OUTPUT

PRETORIA, South Africa — (CP). — For the 17 weeks ending July 24, 1944, the total output of Transvaal collieries was 672 tons more than the corresponding period in 1943.

One Skunk Less

WINDSOR, Oct. 4—(CP).— One industrial plant here believes in the open door policy. It was adopted whole-heartedly after D. J. Baillargeon, inspector for the Essex Humane Society, opened up with a .22 rifle on a skunk found snoozing in a corner. The staff viewed the engagement from far.

17 Suggestions Given To Safety Committee

MARMORA, Oct. 4— (ENS) — The regular meeting of the Deloro Safety Committee was held Monday afternoon in the electric shop, with the chairman, C. H. Buskard presiding.

The chairman introduced Mr. McGill, a representative of the National Institute for the Blind, who gave an informative talk on the work of the Institute and furnished statistics of the work in Hasting's County.

The suggestions committee reported seventeen suggestions received in September. Three of these received awards and others are to receive further attention. The Star was awarded the Stellite Division.

W. M. Regan reported for the Inspection Committee which had been able to make twenty-one suggestions.

C. T. Nicholson was appointed floating member for the current month and H. C. Barlow gave the Health and Investigation Committee's report.

Fifteen employees attended prone methods practices. C. H. Buskard reported on the Benevolent Relief Funds and J. H. Hemphill gave the other report of the session, that of the publicity committee.

W.A. Plans Service For Day Of Peace

WARSAW, Oct. 4 — (ENS)—The Women's Association met in the church basement recently and Mrs. Harold Payne read the Scripture and gave the Bible study talk. An invitation was given to all members to attend the W.M.S. meeting October 5 at Mrs. David Miller's home in Lakefield. Plans were made for the Association to co-operate with other church and community organizations for a general service of prayer and thanksgiving on the ending of hostilities in Europe. A reading, "Unafraid," was given by Mrs. George Weller and a duet, "Harvest Time," by Mrs. Arthur Payne and Mrs. Weller.

Lunch hostesses were Mrs. John Morgan, Mrs. Fred Sharpe and Mrs. Arthur Payne.

NEITHER TOO YOUNG NOR TOO OLD—Ante, the youngest of them all, does his daily dozen on his hospital cot on the island of Vis, Yugoslavia. "Attending" a mine and sabotage school run by the British on the island young Yugoslav patriot Ante got hold of a hand grenade. He hurled the grenade at some chickens—almost blowing his own foot off. This photograph was made as the young chicken grenadier, veteran of the battle of the barnyard, was well on the way to recovery.

FO. Grant Willis Back In Canada

HOME SECOND TIME—FO. Grant Willis, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alex. Willis, 239 Stewart street, has returned home for the second time from overseas. He expects to be stationed in Canada.

A veteran of 28 operational flights over Germany and German-occupied countries, Flying Officer Grant Willis, 305 Reid street, arrived home from overseas Monday evening for the second time, to take up instructional duties in Canada.

The young rear-gunner in bombers that have plastered Germany so much during the past, was mentioned in despatches from London some time ago. when he poured 1,000 rounds of ammunition into a Nazi Messeerschmitt, to see it crash in flames.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. Alex Willis and one of two brothers serving in the R.C.A.F., F.O. Willis was home a few months ago on leave, and since returning to England at that time has seen no action other than dodging robot bombs. Most of the time, he said, was engaged in getting documents and papers together, in preparation for his return to Canada.

The young flier said that in the 28 attacks he has shared on Germany the most exciting was the one some time ago on Duisburg, near Essen. After that flight, the plane was battered up badly, with 150 holes at least in it, and one motor completely gone.

"Almost every time we made a raid," he said, "our plane got hit several times."

He enlisted in the summer off 1941 and went overseas in 1942. A brother, P. O. Charles Willis, is also serving with the R. C. A. F.

Roseneath Church Marks Anniversary

ROSENEATH Oct. 4 — (ENS) — Challenge to Advance was the theme of a sermon delivered by the Rev. R. C. White in Roseneath United Church on Sunday morning on the occasion of the 63rd anniversary of the building of the church. To youth he threw out the challenge to rise up and stamp out the alliance of greed and aggression whose offspring is war with all the horrors which follow in its train. To finish the tasks begun by past generations that the finer things requiring generations to complete and perfect may endure, and to present a united Christian front to combat present day evils.

The home choir under the direction of the leader Miss Margaret Atkinson sang two anthems "Come Ye Blessed" and "The Lord's My Shepherd," a female quartette Misses Margaret, Clarice and Betty Atkinson and Mrs. Sam Black sang "Gently He's Pleading Now," unacompanied.

Rev. W. P. Woodger, pastor of Cobourg United Church, was guest speaker at the evening service. Harwood United Church choir led the service of song. Two anthems were sung, "I will extol Thee" and "Sunshine and Shadow," and a quartette Mrs. Garnet Isaac, Mrs. M. Marten, Kenneth Symons, and Glen Hogg sang "It is Not Sundown." The church was filled for both services. The thankoffering amounted to $586. The visiting choir was entertained after service at the home of Mr. and Mrs. M. Millan, assited by the home choir.

Marmora News

Mrs. Horace Neath is spending a few days with relatives in Toronto.

Mrs. Ethel Park and grandson Tommy Culbert have returned to Niagara Falls, N.Y., after spending summer months with relatives in this district.

Rev. Father Wilfred Tervin of Gananoque visited relatives here last week.

The annual tag day for the National Institute of the Blind was held Saturday evening. Seven girls did the tagging under supervision of Mrs. F. R. Wells. The amount raised was a little over $44. which is slightly less than last year.

RENAULT ARRESTED—Louis Renault's (above) expression of concern is quite a legitimate one, for this leading French automobile manufacturer has been arrested and charged with dealing with the Nazis during their occupation of France. He was taken into custody in a clinic where he claimed he was under treatment for ill-health. The magistrate signed an order for Renault to be physically examined, but in the meantime, he was sent to Fresnes prison, together with the general manager of his plant, the Renault Works.

OTTAWA, Oct. 5 (CP) — The end of recruiting, immediate demobilization of 4,200 potential aircrew, a first-in-first-out general demobilization plan and formation of a Pacific Air Unit made up of volunteers were announced at a press conference here today by Air Minister Power.

In announcing there would be no more recruiting for his force, which now has a strength of 204,000 men, he answered the question which had been widely asked since Oct. 1 date of the scheduled resumption of recruiting after a summer moratorium.

When Maj. Power recently disclosed curtailment in the Commonwealth Air Training Plan by amalgamating training grounds, closing out stations and cutting the size of the air council, it was widely speculated that if recruiting was restarted it would be on a restricted scale.

In Navy or Army

He said that an aircrew reserve of 4,200 waiting to start training in various schools throughout the country would be given a chance of volunteering for either the army or navy and pointed out that the "mechanics" were already set up for arranging such a transfer.

He added that if the men did not volunteer they would be subject to military call under the National Resources Mobilization Act.

This surplus of trainees was accumulated with the rolling up of the Air Training Plan and the lowering of the incidence of overseas casualties.

He gave no indication as to when the general demobilization plan would start but it was suggested this would be a gradual process spread over many months.

He did say that these demobilized men would not be subject to military recall, and referred to military regulations that said men with two years of useful service did not have to respond to new mobilization.

Will Fight Japs.

He did not indicate whether the first-in-first-out demobilization plan was to apply only to the air force or to all services.

As for forming a force to fight in the war against Japan, he said this would be done on a voluntary basis and he expected "little trouble" in raising the size of force he wanted. He gave no indication as to the size of the force.

Carrier Nabob In Battle Near Norway

OTTAWA, Oct. 5 (CP)—The first action involving a Canadian-manned aircraft carrier was reported here today when a navy release told of "successful operations" against the Norwegian coast in August in which the carrier Nabob and the Canadian destroyers Sioux and Algonquin participated with units of the British Home Fleet.

The Nabob and her sister-ship, Puncher, are manned with Canadian sea-crews, but are Royal Navy ships, and have Fleet Air Arm aircrews on board. The Nabob, commanded by Prime Minister Mackenzie King's nephew—Capt. Horatio Nelson Lay—was first in the news in the spring when she ran ashore leaving Vancouver.

Six Peterborough sailors are serving on the Nabob and these are Leon Short, Cyril O'Toole, C. Courneya, Roland Rusaw, and two others named Scott and Eano, whose first names are not available at present. C. Courneya, Olive avenue, arrived home on leave this morning.

The aircraft which operated from the carriers attacked enemy shipping and shore installations in the Norwegian waters between Alesund and Christiansund North. Aircraft hangars and a number of large storehouses at an enemy airfield at Gossen were heavily attacked and set on fire.

Allies Edge Deeper Into Germany

Canadians Score Decisive Gains Beyond Antwerp

LONDON, Oct. 5 —(CP)—British 2nd Army troops in heavy fighting along the Nijmegen-Arnhem corridor today gained a mile in an eastward advance, the 1st Canadian Army has cleared the Germans from positions along an eight-mile arc north of Antwerp and United States infantry and armor plunged into a widening hole in the Siegfried Line near Ubach.

Troops of the 1st Canadian Army have cleared the Germans from the east bank of the Schelde as far as Lillo, about five miles northwest of Antwerp, and have nearly reached the Belgian-Netherlands frontier at Puttex, 10 miles north of Antwerp. Northwest of Antwerp they have reached for De Brasschaet while at Baarle Nassau, six miles north of Turnhout, 1st Army troops regained ground lost yesterday and advanced farther.

On the United States 1st Army front in the Ubach area, masses of artillery, including 10-inch guns, tore many Germans from their defences. The Americans captured Beggendorf, two miles east of Ubach.

One Wall Pierced

The Germans battled fiercely rushing up reinforcements and bringing to bear every possible gun in an effort to prevent the crumbling of the entire Siegfried Line north of Aachen. Already the original west wall had been pierced and the Americans were attacking with fresh energy the tank corps, earthworks and pillboxes hastily erected behind it.

The centre of enemy resistance was a hill just east of Herbach and south of captured Ubach. The Americans stormed the height knocking out three mutually supporting pillboxes and forcing a fourth to raise the white flag.

The Germans, whose broadcasts admitted that the wedge had been widened, turned a record number of guns onto the corridor and rushed up men from pillboxes to the north and south in an effort to bolster sagging defences.

To the south, the United States 3rd Army engaged in a grim fight atop Fort Driant, a key stronghold southwest of Metz. Germans had holed up in the concrete fastness of an underground labyrinth.

On 6-Mile Front

Lt.-Gen. Dempsey's main attack eastward was launched on a six-mile front from south of Arnhem and only about two miles from the famous bridge for which the British 1st Airborne Division had battled in vain. It was aimed in the direction of Pannerdensch, eight miles southeast of Arnhem and the same distance northeast of Nijmegen. Panner-

Paratroops Take Airfield Infantry Hits Coast For First Time Since 1941

Patras, 112 Miles West Of Athens Entered On Tuesday Night Battles Rage In Greece And Albania

By NOLAND NORGAARD—Associated Press Correspondent

ROME, Oct. 5—(AP).—Striking from the sea and air, British troops have landed in western Greece, entered the port of Patras, and seized airfields from which R.A.F. Spitfires already are operating in support of the effort to drive out or destroy German submarines. The Allied command, announcing the invasion today, said landing forces had made contact with the enemy both in Greece and neighboring southern Albania, where other units went ashore 10 days ago.

There appeared a strong possibility the operations might swiftly end German rule throughout the Balkans.

There was no immediate report on the extent of German resistance at Patras, Greece's third largest port, or elsewhere, but the Germans recently were said to have three divisions on the Greek mainland as well as other elements evacuated from Crete and the Aegean Islands.

Ready To Flee.

All these have been reported ready to flee northward on a moment's notice to escape the jaws of a great trap closing in on the whole Balkans with Russians advancing from the east and Allied forces with patriot support striking from the west.

The landing forces were believed to be of small size compared with those which carried out the major invasions of Africa, Sicily, Italy and France.

In Albania the Allied forces were attempting to cut enemy communications around the port of Sarande, supply base for the German garrison of the strongly-defended island of Corfu (Kerkra).

British parachute troops struck the first blow in Greece. They quickly seized an airfield on the Peloponnesus from which Spitfires were operating before the landings from the sea began. Air transport planes carried in other troops. By Tuesday night the invaders were entering Patrai, a city of 61,000 on

Russian Troops Storm Belgrade City

By DANIEL DE LUCE
Associated Press War Correspondent

MOSCOW, Oct. 5 — (AP). — Russian armored spearheads advanced to-day upon the rail junction of Pancevo, a city of 22,000 less than nine miles north-east of Belgrade, and front dispatches indicated that the Yugoslav capital may fall in a matter of hours.

LONDON, Oct. 5—The Rome radio said today that Russian troops were fighting in the suburbs of Belgrade, capital of Yugoslavia.

The German position in all of the Belgrade area was declared untenable. The Russians have a big encircling manoeuvre ready to put into effect if the enemy tries to dig in.

Closing in from the captured towns of Banatska Kraljevicevo, 18 miles north-east of Belgrade, and Debilyacha, 18 miles to the north, Marshal Rodion Y. Malinovsky's forces cleared two rail lines leading to Pancevo and aimed toward cutting the main railway running north-west from the capital—major remaining rail escape route for the bulk of the German forces on the Balkan Peninsula.

British Troops 14 Miles From Bologna

By RICHARD G. MASSOCK
Associated Press War Correspondent

ROME, Oct. 5 — (AP). — As poor weather and rain-swollen rivers held British 8th Army positions along the Adriatic sector virtually unchanged, American troops of the Allied 5th Army drove a mile forward against violent fire from reinforced and hastily-entrenched Germans yesterday, on the bitterly-contested road to Bologna.

They now were only 14 miles from that great communications centre, having seized a ridge due north of La Selva, five miles east of Highway 65 at Loiano.

To the east, the 8th Army advanced to a point up to two miles northeast of Castagno, and South African units entered Lagaro, on the Prato-Bologna road. Other South Africans drove to positions on the east slopes of Monte Vigese, 3,500-foot peak which offers a clear field of fire against Highway 64 leading from Pistoia to Bologna.

Although positions along the swollen Fiumicino River remained substantially unchanged, Indian units took San Donato, about four miles west of Scorticata, across the Rubicon.

By FRANK LOWE

A SOUTH COAST PORT, England, Oct. 5.—(CP).—CPO. Douglas Abbott in a space of three days won the Distinguished Service Medal and Bar to set a record in the Royal Canadian Navy, but he still insists that his worst moment came when he met in a dark companionway a stoker carrying a double-bladed axe.

Doug works in the gun control office of H.M.C.S. Haid and his job is to plot the course of the ship's gunfire on a complicated dial he can watch the course taken by their shells and also the course of enemy fire.

On the night of April 26 Haida jumped some Elbing class destroyers in the channel and Doug immediately began to watch on his dial the crossfire of shells.

Describing the fight, he said: "We let him get up to 10,000 yards and then let go. It was sure a thrill to hear all our guns go.

"The Jerry hid himself in a smokescreen for a while, but he came racing out of it and then he was duck soup."

7 Reich Cities Blasted By 1,000 Bombers

LONDON, Oct. 5 — (CP). — British and United States heavy bombers attacked Germany today, the R.A.F. striking industrial targets at Wilhelmshaven through clouds while more than 1,000 American heavyweights hit six other cities. The R.A.F. lost one bomber.

The American planes struck Cologne, Rheine, Handorf, Lippstadt, Paderborn and Munster in clearing weather.

Two main forces, with strong fighter escort, attacked the choked rail terminals at Cologne and Rheine, while smaller formations raided airfields at the other places.

Rheine is an important western front rail junction just across the Dutch border northwest of Munster.

This big daylight operation, the eighth in 10 days, followed another busy night of train-busting by R.A.F. Mosquitos in Germany and Holland.

Pilots reported all 18 trains were stopped dead, bringing the Mosquitos' total of trains attacked to 134 on four consecutive nights. Most of them have been caught shuttling between industrial cities in the Ruhr valley.

Russians Mount All-Out Push

LONDON, Oct. 5—(CP).—Russian troops in Lithuania have mounted an all-out offensive west of Siaulai, Col. Ernst von Hammer, the German news agency's military commentator, said today in a broadcast.

The German report said 12 to 14 Russian divisions attacked in the Siaulai area, 80 miles northeast of the east Prussian city of Tilsit, with the help of four tank corps. A drumfire artillery barrage of guns "of the heaviest calibre" preceded the drive.

The enemy said the offensive was on a broad front. One of its purposes might be to cut off the Riga garrison to the north. Successful Russian operations also would prepare a northern descent into East Prussia, along whose eastern frontier other Russians have been drawn up for many weeks.

The Germans announced earlier that seven Russian divisions of perhaps 100,000 men had invaded the big Estonian island of Saare (Osel) at the mouth of the Gulf of Riga during the morning. Possession of the 1,010 square mile land mass would block any seaward escape of Germans besieged in the great Latvian seaport of Riga, and permit the Russian fleet to burst into the Baltic Sea.

Nazis Leave Antwerp Fast Canadians Speed Northward

By ROSS MUNRO
Canadian Press War Correspondent

ANTWERP, Oct. 5 — (CP. Cable). — The weird war which has been going on for two weeks in the northern suburbs of Antwerp is over and Canadian infantry and tanks are rolling north, close behind the fast-withdrawing Germans.

I saw the finish on this crazy suburban front yesterday, and it ran true to form right to the end.

Civilians stopped by the barricades, like spectators at a football game.

Antwerp evening newspapers were sold by the newsboys in streets which had been occupied by the Germans a few hours before.

As each suburb was liberated by the Canadians, Belgians scurried around to get their red, black and yellow flags out. Path of the advance was marked like a paper-chase with clusters of flags and bunting.

Merxem and several other communities on Antwerp's northern outskirts were freed and the Canadians were welomed as they had been when they raced through town after town in their drive beyond the Seine.

Garlands of flowers bedecked Bren gun carriers and every infantryman swinging north toward the Netherlands—seven miles away—sported a rose on his tunic or helmet.

The break on this sector came suddenly. At a forward Canadian headquarters, Maj. Ted Price of Quebec said:—

"The Germans are pulling out and we are jumping right ahead. It is hard to keep contact with Jerry, for he is moving back mighty fast."

We went into Merxem and beyond, through territory the Germans have held for several weeks. Belgian children were playing in the old German dug-outs and men of the Belgian White Brigade were scouting through the fields and woods in the wake of the Canadians, hopeful of locating some stray Germans.

Nazis Murder 3,000 In Estonia

TALLINN, Estonia, Oct. 5 (AP)—Eighteen miles from this capital is what the Russians point to as evidence of the Nazis' most recent mass horror—the Klooga Labor Camp. There, the Russians say, 3,000 Jews, Russians and Estonians were murdered methodically.

This camp was located in the timber and cement country, where prisoners slaved to produce vital material for the enemy war machine.

People in the vicinity told correspondents this story.

The Germans killed off the prisoners wholesale when they learned the Red Army was coming and retreat was in prospect.

It was Sept. 19—two days before the Germans pulled out of Tallinn. They announced the prisoners would be moved, always a bad sign in a Nazi camp.

The first group of 300 was marched into the woods, ordered to saw up piles of logs into pieces, and were marched into a field in groups of about 50, carrying the logs. They were forced to make a raft-like foundation, and then to lie down on it. The Germans shot them all.

A second group formed another layer on top of the first—and were shot. When there were six or seven layers of dead, gasoline was poured over all of them and a torch applied.

This is what the people told us—and then we went up to see.

Nazi 'V-2' Weapon Is Complete Failure

LONDON, Oct. 5.—(CP-Reuter).—Germany's "V-2" weapon has been in operation and has proved a complete failure, Ralph Hewins, Stockholm correspondent of the London Daily Mail, said today.

Hewins said he was told this by a neutral observer who has just arrived in Sweden.

Failure of "V-2", the observer said, has caused Hitler to issue fresh instructions to his scientists to speed up their efforts to perfect "V-3"—an "atomic bomb."

"My informant gave me an eyewitness account of what this new bomb looks like and a description of damage it caused in one experiment at which, he says, he was present," Hewins said.

Its destructive power, he says, is immense. In an experiment near Nuremberg at the end of September, the countryside for hundreds of yards around was completely flattened as if it was sheered by a knife.

Changes Likely In France Leader Shuns Communism

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press War Analyst

We shouldn't allow the thunder of the guns of war to drown the significance of Gen. de Gaulle's declaration that the French government gradually will take over complete control of the country's economy.

"It shall be an organization of industry," says the General, "in which all who participate shall be considered associates. We no longer can permit the concentration of interests which in England and America are called trusts and which to-day do not meet the needs of social betterment."

While De Gaulle allows exact interpretation of his pronouncement to fall where it will, it's clear that he's signalling a great change in France to avoid, as he says, "the pre-war political, social and moral situation which took us to the brink of the abyss." It also would seem that this represents a marked swing to what is popularly known as the "left."

Socialist Leaning.

Some observers express the view that France is headed toward communism. They believe they find additional support for this in De Gaulle's friendly relations with Moscow and the appointment of two communists to his cabinet. Then there's the statement made recently by Jean Jurgensen, one of the directors of the powerful Federation of French Resistance groups known as the "Mouvement de la Liberation Nationale" which supports De Gaulle.

Said Jurgensen:

"Our Federation is Socialist, even tending toward Communism. We want nothing of the old government. It brought about the ruin of France."

As for Gen. De Gaulle, it should be noted that he never has announced Communistic leanings, and if France is moving toward that "ism" he may be subject to the trend rather than its author. Indeed, he may have entirely different ideas for the ultimate form of government.

Still a Minority

We must await developments before jumping to the conclusion that France is headed for Communism in her leftward swing. The country is agricultural and the vast majority of its people are traditionally conservative. I should say that the outcome depends on how great an influence can be exercised by the powerful and well-organized Communist minority in the great industrial centres like Paris. We've seen numerous cases where strongly coordinated minorities have controlled big majorities—but it doesn't necessarily follow that this will happen in France.

What's going on in France is symptomatic of what's boiling up in many other parts of the continent. There's a definite swing to the left, and in all instances Communism is involved.

Even in Germany there's an underground Communist organiza-

Chinese Admit Paoching Lost

CHUNGKING, Oct. 5 — (AP). — Virtually acknowledging the loss of Paoching, the Chinese high command said tonight it had no communication with the defenders of that important position of the right flank of the Japanese advance toward Kweilin.

Meanwhile the Japanese received reinforcements for their break-in at Changning, on the left flank of the push toward Kweilin, Kwangsi Province defence centre. Street fighting of mounting intensity was reported at Changning.

Would Ease Flying Rules

Private Plane Owners To Increase

WASHINGTON, Oct. 5—(CP).—Freedom for Americans in the post-war era to own and pilot private airplanes with the same freedom from restrictions that motorists enjoy is urged upon Federal aviation authorities by the Aeronautical Chamber of Commerce.

The inherent desire of the American citizen to "go places and do things" by the swiftest and most modern method is reflected in a submission to be presented today by Joseph T. Geuting, chairman of the Personal Aircraft Council section of the Chamber, to William A. Burden, assistant secretary of commerce; L. Welch Pogue, chairman of the Civil Aeronautics Board, and others in the Government and Congress interested in aviation control.

Mr. Geuting, who also is vice-president of the General Aircraft Corporation, pictures a post-war period in which private plane owners will rapidly increase and the skies will be filled with pleasure and business craft.

The submission urges relaxation in rules for certifying airworthiness, claiming that present requirements add expenses to private ownership "far out of proportion with actual safety needs."

Spanish Hold French Land

40,000 Spanish Dominate Large Area

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Oct. 5 — (AP). — A Spanish Maquis force of 40,000 men, defiant of Gen. De Gaulle's Paris government, is reported by diplomats here to be in control of a corner of France adjoining the Spanish frontier.

American officials consider that France now is under effective control of the Paris administration and that it is a broadly representative regime rather than a one-man affair. They are reported to be urging its recognition as a government.

Reports on the force of irregular fighters say they are centred around Perpignan, France, a town on the Spanish border which had a large part in aiding the flight of Spanish Loyalist refugees from Spain after the civil war.

When the Maquis units were springing up in organized underground resistance to the Germans the one in this area numbered more Spanish than French. The 40,000 Spanish members now dominate the organization, it is said, and [illegible] members are well-equipped with small arms.

Police Identify Fingerprint In Theft Case

Corp. Frank Robertson, fingerprint expert of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, Ottawa, swore in police court this morning that a fingerprint on a sliding door sent to him by the Peterborough police department was identical with a print of the right ring finger of Carl Northey, also sent to Ottawa by the local police.

Northey, 17 years old, was charged with breaking and entering the canteen of the C.G.E. and committing theft. The robbery was discovered on the morning of September 8 and it was stated that $46.86 was missing from the canteen.

Officer John Stevenson who was called to the C.G.E. to investigate the break-in testified that he had obtained the wooden sliding door of the canteen wicket which had been broken off and had sent the door to the R.C.M.P. at Ottawa. The canteen was in the C.G.E. machine shop.

Detective Sergt. W. E. Meagher testified that he had taken the fingerprints of Carl Northey and had also submitted them to the R.C.M.P.

Corp. Frank Robertson, R.C.M.P., who said he was a fingerprint specialist and had been seven years in the fingerprint branch told of receiving the door and the prints and of finding a print on the inside of the door identical with the right ring fingerprint of Carl Northey. The R.C.M.P. officer submitted a photograph of the two prints which was put in as an exhibit.

Worked Late

Wilbert Teeple, employed in the machine shop of the C.G.E. said that Northey had worked in that department during the night of September 8. Teeple said that he thought Northey was through work at 6 o'clock when the others in the night shift finished but on that particular morning he said he saw the accused still in the department around 6.20 o'clock. H. G. McKenzie, foreman in the C.G.E. machine shop said that no one else but Teeple had any business in the machine shop between the hours of 6 and 7 o'clock in the morning. Northey's work should have been finished by 6 o'clock that morning, the witness said.

George Wensley in charge of the canteen, during the night shift said that he had closed the canteen around 4.15 o'clock that morning and had taken stock and counted the cash. There was $51.64 in the cash box he said.

Wensley said in answer to John A. Bradshaw, defending Northey, that it might be possible when the sliding door in the canteen was up to serve customers that a person could get his fingerprint on the inside of the door.

He also said that during that night Northey had been inside the canteen for some time but told the magistrate that at no time had the accused been closer than four feet to the sliding door.

Russell Bowers, in charge of the canteen during the day shift, told of finding the door of the wicket broken off when he arrived at five minutes to 7 o'clock that morning. Looking through the window he saw that the cash box had been broken. When he investigated later it was discovered that all but $4.94 of the money that had been in the cash box was gone.

The court adjourned for luncheon at this stage.

SUFFERED CONSTANTLY WITH SOUR, ACID, UPSET STOMACH

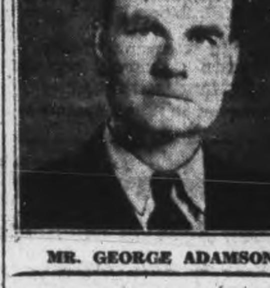
Even Lightest Foods Gave Him Trouble With Indigestion, Gas Pains, Bilious Attacks, and Headaches. Tells of Splendid Relief by Taking Syntona.

"Nobody but myself knows how much trouble I have had with stomach distress and indigestion during the past few years," says Mr. George Adamson, Mount Elgin, Ontario.

"It got so bad that even the lightest foods upset my stomach and brought on belching up of hot, sour liquids. Gas attacks followed every meal, often lasting for hours. I'd get bilious spells which would be followed by a splitting headache. I didn't care whether I ate or not, I was not sleeping at all well at night, and was always taking some sort of laxative to keep my bowels moving.

"That is the condition I was in a few weeks ago before I began taking Syntona. I got some of this medicine because so many people were recommending it and it wasn't long before I could tell it was helping my digestion. The gas, sourness and acid risings grew less and less as I continued taking it. Now I can enjoy my meals again without any distress afterward. It got my bowels moving smoothly and regularly for the first time in years. I haven't had any bilious attacks or headaches since. I am sleeping so much better at night and get up in the morning feeling fully rested.

"I know there must be a lot of people who suffer as I did and I certainly recommend that they try Syntona."



MR. GEORGE ADAMSON

Syntona is the ideal system tonic . . . especially good for anyone suffering as Mr. Anderson did and good, too, for anyone at this season of the year. It is made from the finest grade herbs and roots which aid in the elimination of excess acids and poison waste material and promote better assimilation of food for increased strength and energy.

Syntona is sold and recommended in Peterborough at Elliott's Drug Store. (Advt.)

OBITUARIES

JOHN FERGUSON.

WARKWORTH, Oct. 5—(ENS).—John Ferguson died suddenly at his residence Tuesday afternoon. He was apparently in good health until just a few minutes before his death.

Mr. Ferguson is a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Farrington Ferguson and was born at Bowmanton on May 2, 1865. On February 1, 1893, he married Henrietta Sherwin. For thirty-six years Mr. Ferguson lived on a farm at Oak Heights. Retiring from farming fifteen years ago, he came to this village. Besides his sorrowing wife he is survived by three sons: Archie, Alan and Edgar, Oak Heights; also one sister, Mrs. Richard Davey, near Cobourg.

ALBERT SUTTON

LIFFORD LINE Oct. 5 (ENS) — Albert Sutton, whose residence is west of the "Brick Corners," Fleetwood, died suddenly Tuesday evening. He was eighty-four years of age, and although he had a serious illness in the spring of this year, he had been able to go about during the summer and autumn.

The day before his death he had gone to Lindsay by train from Fleetwood and on Tuesday afternoon he and Mrs. Sutton enjoyed a horse and buggy drive along the Fleetwood line. After stabling his horse for the day he was walking towards his home when he was overcome by a weak spell and never regained consciousness.

The late Mr. Sutton was a lifelong citizen of Manvers township and farmed with his son on the Sutton farmstead for many years. A few years ago he retired from active farm labor and with his wife lived in a home near their farm residence. Mr. Sutton had recently sold his farm property to Mr. Eldridge Shea, a neighbor.

He was a faithful attendant at Fleetwood United church for many years.

He is survived by his wife and one son, Mervin.

The funeral takes place Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock at his late residence, with Rev. Mr. Henderson of the Fleetwood, Bethany and Yelverton circuit in charge.

Great Reception.

The parachute troops and seaborne units were given a joyful welcome by the Greek natives who in more than two years of stern German rule have suffered severely from food shortages.

The Allies already have promised essential foods and medical supplies to the country, which for six months in 1940-41 fought an attacking Italian army to a standstill and might have pushed it into the sea but for a German drive across the Balkans.

Lending support to the invaders, Mustangs from the U.S. 15th Air Force swarmed over the Kalamaki, Tatoi and Elevsis airdromes in the Athens area, destroying several grounded enemy planes but meeting no air opposition.

Other planes blasted the threadbare enemy lines of communications through Yugoslavia, on which the Germans must pin their last hope of getting their Balkan garrisons back to the Fatherland.

The communique said the invading forces now were in contact with the enemy both in Greece and Albania. Landing of Allied forces in Albania was announced some days ago.

Patriot groups were said to be co-operating closely with Allied forces in both countries.

Patras, the only area of invasion given in the first announcement, lies apprximately 112 miles due west of Athens near the entrance to the Gulf of Corinth. It is on the north shore of the Peloponnesus.

The invasion returned British troops to the Greek mainland for the first time since 1941, when an ill-fated expeditionary force was forced to withdraw before the then all-powerful German army.

An official source said the Allied troops in Albania were harassing enemy forces trying to maintain communications with the Island of Corfu through the small port of Sarande.

Comparatively Small

The announcement gave no indication of the size of the British landing units or the extent of the contacts with the enemy. However, it is believed the units operating both in Greece and Albania are small compared with previous Allied landings on the European continent.

Drastic Changes Likely In Mining Taxes

TORONTO, Oct. 5 — (CP). — Immediate and drastic revision of the mining tax structure and a greater share of mine tax revenue for mining municipalities are urged in the final report of the Ontario Mining Commission.

The 46,000 word report was issued last night by Premier Drew who said in a letter to Norman C. Urquhart, chairman of the eight-man fact-finding body which was appointed Oct. 27, 1943, that it "will receive the immediate consideration of the government."

Other recommendations in the report included: Appointment of a full-time provincial minister of mines, improved planning for new mining communities, adoption of health measures in mining areas, appointment of a commission to combat high-grading which the commission estimated s costing Ontario gold mines $1,000,000 annually; opposition by the province to proposed changes in the extradition treaty between Canada and the United States affecting security sales practices.

Too Many Thefts

Members of the commission, which held sittings in Toronto and in several northern Ontario centres, were: Mr. Urquhart, Kenneth Gray, J. Roy Gordon, Robert J. Jowsey, Homer W. Sutcliffe, H. C. McCloskey, C. G. Williams and J. H. Jessup. D. A. Mutch was secretary.

The report stressed revision of the mining tax structure as essential for survival of the industry. It recommended that the Federal Government be asked to allow as deduction for assessment for income and excess profit taxes the royalty paid to the provinces, a depletion allowance of 50 per cent of earnings for both company and shareholder and outside exploration costs anywhere in Canada, except cost of options or purchase of property.

Distribution of taxes under the present setup was unfairly divided between the three taxing bodies—Federal, Provincial, and Municipal Governments with the disadvantages resting with the latter two — and "ample provision must be made" for financing of mining municipalities which "are an integral part of the industry, supplying essential services......and, in the main, dependent upon the success of the industry."

Another recommendation was that unorganized districts in the province be divided into zonal areas for municipal purposes and that provision be made for establishment of improvement districts wherever there was prospecting or development. This would bring townsite areas under control of the Department of Municipal Affairs, and careful planning was urged to avoid establishment of new townsites in areas where rock or muskeg made difficult the provision of proper municipal services.

One member of the three-man high-grading commission should be a permanent appointee, one a representative of the mining industry, and the other the Commissioner of the Ontario Provincial Police, said the report, which said gold to the value of $3,500,000 was stolen from Ontario mines from 1936 to 1943 and that $1,500,000 in stolen gold left Canada for the United States from 1940 to 1943.

The High-Grading Commission should have authority to negotiate agreements with other provinces or international agreements through the Dominion Givernment to strike at the thefts at the point of disposal rather than the source.

Full-time Minister.

A full-time Mines Minister was never more essential than at present, said the report. The present Minister of Mines is Hon. Leslie Frost, who also holds the portfolio of Provincial Treasurer.

Three sections of the report — dealing with encouragement of prospecting, repeal of the Ontario Securities Act and enactment of new legislation to be administered by a three-man part-time Commission and re-opening of the School of Mines at Haileybury—were dealt with in an interim report of the Commission tabled in the Ontario Legislature last March 22.

The Provincial Government was urged to "vigorously oppose" proposed changes in the Extradition Treaty between Canada and the U.S. which would make Canadian citizens subject to arrest, deportation and trial in the U.S. for practices which might be regarded as law infractions there but which were legal in Canada and Ontario.

job as it was supposed to have been done, and was the most surprised man aboard when he was awarded the D.S.M. for "coolness, resolution and skill under fire."

Two nights later Haida was in action again, and "I don't know why, but that is the action they awarded me the second D.S.M. for."

Then Doug got down to his real experience—meeting the stoker with the axe.

"I came up once to see what was going on," he said, "and in the pitch black companionway ran right into this stoker carrying a double-bladed axe. It grazed me, but I kinda shiver whenever I think about it. Meeting a stoker in a dark alley is bad enough any time, but when he's carrying an axe. . . ."

Nazis Capture Polish Leader

LONDON, Oct. 5.—(CP).— Berlin announced to-day that Gen. Tadeusz Komorowski (Bor), newly appointed commander-in-chief of the Polish army, and his entire staff had been taken prisoner.

The German News Agency said: "It has just been learned that the Polish General Bor-Komorowski, who was recently appointed commander-in-chief of all Polish forces and up to now was commander of the Warsaw rebels, was made a prisoner of war after the capitulation of Warsaw. The whole of his staff, as well as several other Polish Generals, was taken prisoner with him."

There has been an argument in Allied Headquarters as to whether Komorowski was in Warsaw during the uprising. Polish spokesmen in Moscow declared he was not in the city, but the Polish government here insisted he was.

Allies Edge Deeper

densch is only about two miles from the German border north of Kleme and is at the fork of the Waal and Neder Ryn Rivers. The stiff opposition limited the advance to about a mile.

To the west, 1st Canadian Army troops hurled the Germans back from forts Cappellen and Starbroek, five to seven miles north of Antwerp, in a thrust within seven miles of the narrow land neck over which the only road runs from the mainland to the Dutch islands of Beveland and R.A.F.-flooded Walcheren.

From 10,000 to 15,000 German troops were in imminent danger of being cut off there as they clung to the artillery positions which have guarded the Schelde estuary and blocked Allied shipping from use of the port of Antwerp.

Fight Near Arnhem

Today's communique reported the Canadians had taken Hilvarenbeek in their northward thrust from Antwerp. They now were within five miles of Tilburg, 13 miles from strategic Breda.

Between the Waal and the Neder Rhine British 2nd Army troops gained ground in heavy fighting with reinforced German forces just south of Arnhem.

The German counter-attack, first of the enemy's defensive blows at the U.S. 1st Army thrust to be led with armor, blunted itself near Herbach, 1½ miles south of Ubach at the centre of the two-mile-deep wedge into Germany.

At the peak of their wedge the Americans were edging forward under artillery, mortar and machine-gun fire beyond the eastern outskirts of Ubach.

To the south one of the strangest battles of the war developed amid gunfire and the smoke of fire grenades and burning crude oil at Fort Driant, key bastion to Metz. American 3rd Army troops held the surface and the German garrison fought with desperation in the maze of underground defences.

A dispatch from the Metz front said the Americans had made their first penetration last night into the subterranean tunnels of Fort Driant.

Capture of the fort was announced prematurely at Allied Supreme Headquarters yesterday on the basis of information from frontline headquarters before the full tenacity of the German stand was known.

Now it was a touch-and-go fight, with the Americans holding on grimly under crossfire from flanking forts and sniping from German trapdoor gun positions.

The Americans smoked some of the enemy out with phosphorus grenades and poured flaming oil down hidden passages on others, but still had the job of quarrying out the remainder of the German garrison.

The 7th Army kept up its measured gains farther south in the face of slowly hardening resistance. Northeast of Epinal, the 7th found going hard through newly-reinforced German defensive positions, but in the Vosges foothills forests of Gehard and Longecoutte, between there and Belfort, the Americans advanced several miles.

WITH THE BRITISH 2ND ARMY — The truce at Dunkerque, granted the Germans by the 1st Canadian Army to evacuate civilians, has been extended by four hours to 10 a.m. tomorrow.

Much Of France Still Held By Germans

By The Canadian Press.

When Gen. de Gaulle said recently that "most, but not all" of France had been liberated he emphasized the fact that far from the headlines battlefronts on the borders of Germany there are areas of France which either are not in Allied hands or where the situation deliberately is allowed to remain obscure.

Most important, from the point of view of Allied strategy, is an imposing list of seaports and coastal positions still held by German garrisons which are blocking their use to the Allies as needed supply points.

Of the Channel coast ports, only Dunkerque, threatened by an all-out Canadian assault, holds out. Also in German hands are the Channel Islands, west of the Cherbourg Peninsula, but these possibly are only of nuisance value to the enemy.

The most vital centres of resistance are the Biscay Bay ports of Lorient, St. Nazaire, La Rochelle and two places the Germans call "Gironde north" and "Gironde south." The latter obviously are designed to close off Allied use of Bordeaux.

Still At Bordeaux.

(Bordeaux has been reported occupied by the F.F.I., but is useless while the Germans dominate the mouth of the Gironde River.)

In all these ports the garrisons remain pocketed and apparently are trying to live off the country. German communiques frequently refer to "successful sorties by our Atlantic coast groups for the purpose of replenishing stores of arm and supplies."

In whole area of southwestern and southeastern France the situation is unclear.

The only definitely known sizeable unliberated area of the republic is a triangle formed by the German Upper Rhine border, the northwest frontier of Switzerland, and the battleline of the United States 3rd and 7th Armies.

The situation along the Swiss and Italian western frontiers down to the Mediterranean has not been officially reported by either side in weeks. It would seem obvious that the Germans probably are not in a happy position here and the Allied command presumably has strong reasons for keeping the picture hazy.

Recruiting

Speaking of his curtailment program, Maj. Power pointed out that plans had to be made far in advance as men went into action as much as 20 months from the time they started training.

Those of the reserve of 4,200 in Canada who transfer to the army will receive all credits which they earned by reason of their R.C.A.F. service, such as the $1.50 a day rate of pay which army personnel normally receive only after six months' service."

Maj. Power said the releases followed the same pattern as had already been laid down in Britain and the United States where large numbers of personnel, designated for aircrew service in the Army Air Force, had been placed at the disposal of other services.

He said the releases and other curtailments would not have any immediate effect on reducing the output of trained men from the plan for there were still "many thousands in various stages of air training. He added: "This means that schools will continue to graduate full trained aircrew personnel until well into 1945."

114,253 Graduated.

The Air Minister also disclosed at his press conference that the plan had up to August 25 graduated 114,253 trained aircrew personnel, of which 60,503 were R.C.A.F. members.

He also said that Canada had laid out $1,631,000,000 of the $2,304,000,000 cost of the plan and there was a total of $552,500,000 recoverable from Britain as her share of the burden. He said negotiations now were under way "to provide the United Kingdom with the means of liquidating this account." He did not elaborate.

He said the peak of the plan was reached last February when 11,000 training planes were in use and 3,899 aircrew graduated for an annual rate of 50,700. The new annual rate objective of the curtailed plan is 20,965

"Because of the time-lag," Maj. Power explained, "and the fact that aircrew now are training to meet requirements 18 months hence, the actual production during August was approximately 3,216, or at an annual rate of 38,864. The lower rate will be reached next spring."

The cumulative total of trainees from all sources entered on aircrew training courses from the inauguration of the plan in April, 1940, to August 25 was 158,221, of whom 114,253 graduated and 20,109 failed and became ground crewmen or went to other services.

This is a developing situation. It will thrust itself into world affairs as we come to the end of the war in Europe.

Three armed vessels were attacked in the same area, two bursting into flames. The cost to the striking force was two aircraft missing.

The Nabob's air units were Avenger bombers and they completed two strikes on the coast without a hitch. Enemy flak was observed on the second strike but the group did not come under attack.

Lt.-Cmdr. R. E. Bradshaw, a Briton, who joined the Nabob with his squadron at San Francisco in February, had words of praise for the ship aircraft landing parties, entirely composed of Canadians

Great Keenness Shown

"They handled the machines smartly," he said, "and they showed the greatest keenness throughout the operation."

A Canadian officer described the "magnificent sight" from the bridge of the Sioux as planes slid from the broad decks of the carriers. They left seconds apart, grouped in swarms to port and starboard, then swung into attack formation and roared away to their targets.

The sky was grey and the sea was grim when the first attack was launched; the sun was shining and the whitecapped sea was a deep navy blue when the second sped off. The sailors in the Sioux were happy for they knew that the Fleet Air Arm was striking the blows and that they had assisted in bringing it many hundreds of miles.

Russian Troops

Led by Yugoslav Partisan scouts, Malinovsky's troops advanced 27 miles in 24 hours in taking Debilyacha. The official Russian communique described it as "a headlong advance."

A companion Russian offensive south-west of Turnu Severin and 100 miles south-east of Belgrade, however, ran into stiffer resistance. This resistance was reported faltering under the blows of Russians in front and Partisan detachments deep in the rear.

Yesterdays Russian communiqqe making the first official comment on the union of Russian troops with Partisan forces first reported on Monday by Marshal Tito, said that in that sector the united forces were fighting "for the annihilation" of the Germans.

Racing to smash the main rail route in that region, the Russians outflanked the three-way rail junction of Zajecar, captured Vratarnica nine miles to the south, and drove to within 40 miles of Nis, key junction on the railway from Bulgaria and Greece.

A total of 13 towns and railway stations fell to this Russian thrust, including Bor, centre of the second largest copper deposit in Europe.

The Soviet communique announced only patrol activity on other sectors of the Eastern front.

Mining News

TORONTO, Oct. 5.—(CP).—With the exception of industrials, up .26, all groups were down on the noon index after a quiet morning session on Toronto Stock Exchange today. Sales were 201,000.

In the golds, Cochenour was a little better following a morning decline, but still posted a 20-cent loss at 3.05. Losses of five to two cents were boarded for Teck Hughes, Macassa, McKenzie, Bear and Leitch. Central Pat, up five at 2.25 and McLeod at 2.80 and O'Brien at 2.15, both up three, were firm spots.

Base metals were firm, Steep Rock at 3.45 and Falconbridge at 4.95, both up 10 cents.

Industrials remained quiet but firm, posting fractional gains. Canadian Celanese at 42⅞ was up ⅜ and Tamblyns gained ¾ at 16¼. Winnipeg Electric was up one at 6⅜. Walkers was down one at 68⅛.

Oils were quiet and unchanged.

Finns Likely To Change Views

By EDWIN SHANKE
Associated Press Staff Writer

STOKHOLM, Oct. 5 (AP)—Belief that Finland must eventually form a government with more strongly leftist tendencies if she hopes to live in harmony with Russia was expressed here today as the job of ejecting the Germans from Lapland hampered the Finns' efforts to readjust themselves after a lost war.

"The present government is too rightist for successful collaboration with the Russians, on which Finland's future depends, and therefore a new government eventually must be formed," said informants who have followed Finnish affairs closely in recent months.

Men such as trades unionist leader Eero Vuori and Social Minister K. A. Fagerholm were said to feel a new cabinet must be built soon, but some other Finns inclined to the belief that this can wait until the general election, now scheduled for January or February after the army is fully demobilized and evacuees are resettled.

More urgent is the question of disarming and interning Germans in northern Finland, who are beginning to show signs of digging in.

At present, with the population befuddled by years of anti-Russian propaganda, with shortages in raw materials and with food problems expected, much is believed here to depend on the way in which the Russian armistice control commission acts.

Detroit Strike Believed Over

DETROIT, Oct. 5 (AP) — Approximately 6,000 maintenance workers whose strike action yesterday tied up or impaired war production in 33 Detroit area plants voted today to return to work on afternoon shifts, according to United Automobile Workers (C.I.O.) spokesmen.

The action was announced following a meeting of officials of the executive board of the U.A.W.-C.I.O. and representatives of Local Unions making up the maintenance, construction and powerhouse council (U.A.W.-C.I.O.)

The strike, which had begun to spread again this morning, had made more than 50,000 workers idle through plant closings and assembly line interruptions.

BABY'S UPSET STOMACH QUICKLY CORRECTED

BABY'S little "Tummy" is often easily upset. It is easily righted again, too, if you know just how to do it. Let Mrs. M. S. Alway, of London, Ont., tell you: "Baby's Own Tablets are a great help at the first sign of upset stomach, during teething time or when a cold is coming on. They work quickly yet gently to carry away poisons and promote quiet sleep. Walking floors at night is unknown in our home."

And Mrs. W. R. Sharp says: "I nursed my baby shortly after being alarmed over a motor accident and that upset her almost to the point of convulsions. I gave her Baby's Own Tablets and she soon stopped crying—went to sleep."

Equally effective for teething troubles, constipation, simple fever and diarrhoea. Sweet-tasting, easily crushed to a powder, if desired prompt in action. No "sleepy" stuff—no dulling effect. Buy a box today for sickness so often strikes in the night. 25 cents. Money back if not satisfied.

Dr. A. R. Richards Heads Coming Victory Loan

COBOURG, Oct. 5.—(ENS). — Dr. A. R. Richards, well-known surgeon of Cobourg, has been appointed chairman of the National War Finance Committee for the county of Northumberland for the forthcoming Seventh Victory Loan campaign. Dr. Richards succeeds Fred J. Slade, who has successfully directed the past four Victory Loan campaigns in the county, and who has now been appointed honorary chairman of the County Victory Loan Committee.

Dr Richards is a national past president of the Kinsmen's Clubs of Canada and has served on committees of many medical associations and local organizations in Cobourg and county.

The Seventh Victory Loan campaign opens October 23 and continues for three weeks to Armistice Day on November 11. Since his appointment a few days ago, Dr. Richards has been busy preparing the county organization for this campaign.

Pacific Tales Told To WMS

ROSENEATH, Oct. 5.—(ENS). — Mrs. J. A. Nichol was hostess Tuesday evening when the meeting of the W.M.S. was held in her home.

Thankoffering service will be Sunday morning, October 29 and Mrs. R. C. White will be the special speaker. The election of officers will be held at the November meeting in Mrs. O. J. Campbell's home. Mrs. M. Davey will have charge of the study and Mrs. A. Halstead volunteered as program convener.

The president announced that Roseneath auxiliary had been asked for a 15 per cent increase in givings, as its share of the increased allocation, allotted to the presbyterial by branch.

After a discussion led by Mrs. A. J. Campbell, temperance secretary, it was agreed to forward a protest to the local press re liquor advertising.

Pacific Stories.

The subject of the study presented by Mrs. R. C. White, was "They Braved the Pacific." Incidents and stories of the peoples of the Southwest Pacific, thir conversion to the Christian religion and subsequent civilization were woven with stories of present day war tragedies at sea told by Mrs. White. These were gleaned first hand from survivors of torpedoed ships during the time Mrs. White lived in Bermuda.

New Guinea missions were read by Miss Helen Weir and Mrs. G. Mouncey respectively.

Mrs. C. W. Varcoe read a letter from Miss Hazel I. Reesor, missionary in Nigeria, relating stories of the work in her department (education).

Mrs. A. J. Campbell, program convener, announced the numbers as follows: A poem, 'The Little Boats of Britain,' by Miss Helen Weir; a piano solo, 'Jesu Joy of Man's Desiring,' played by Miss Clarice Atkinson; a group of readings by Mrs. D. Brisbin and a reading, 'The Gift' by the convener.

Seek To Purchase Used Incinerator

CAMPBELLFORD, Oct. 5. — (ENS).—Following a largely signed petition from residents on the west side of the river, that steps be taken immediately to remedy the conditions caused by the present dumping ground, a committee of the Council has given serious consideration to the purchase of a used incinerator from the city of Peterborough. At last night's Council meeting the matter was deferred until the property committee could find out more about the cost of installation.

Arrangements Made For Phelan Visit

Arrangements were completed for the visit October 26 of V. C. Phelan, president of the Civil Service Federation of Canada and Director of Information of the Department of Labor, at a meeting of the District Council of the Civil Service Federation Wednesday night. A dinner will be held at Hooper's Palm Rooms, following which Mr. Phelan will speak to the group in the Council Chamber at 8 o'clock.

It was also announced that F. J. Gandy of the Post Office staff will attend the convention of the Canadian Postal Employees at the Royal York in Toronto, October 23. Besides representing the Peterborough staff, he will also carry credentials for Port Hope and Cobourg.

Eye Clinic Opens

COBOURG, Oct. 5.—(ENS). — Sponsored by Cobourg Kinsmen Club, the eye clinic opened Wednesday at the Public School and will later be extended to the Separate School. Gordon Garnet and J. J. Stewart will test the eyes of the children. A record of each child's eye condition will be retained by the school and a copy sent to the parents. Should the eye test show that a child's eyes need attention, then it is up to the parents to look after it as the Kinsmen Club does not go any further than the test.

Rink Regarded Unsafe Hockey Chances Fade

COBOURG, Oct. 5.—(ENS). — Prospects for skating and hockey in Cobourg are slim this winter, due to the fact that the community rink, which is owned by Richard Ley, has been declared unsafe, and since it is privately owned, the town is not disposed to spend any money to fix it up.

J. W. Burtt and a committee inspected the rink recently and reported back to the Town Council that the building is shaky and is not safe for use. It is estimated that several thousand dollars would have to be expended before it could be put into shape. It was pointed out that it might readily collapse with a crowd in it and is accordingly regarded as a menace to safety.

If it were a case of only a few hundred dollars to put it back into shape the Town Council would do it, even although it is private property, but when the cost of the job runs into several thousand dollars, Council will take no action so long as the rink is privately owned.

The town clerk was instructed by the Council to write Mr. Ley pointing out that the rink needs extensive repairs. Council will also inform Mr. Ley of the total tax arrears against it, and suggest that he turn it over to the town to save the cost of foreclosure proceedings.

The Lost Report

The situation has arisen in Peterborough where the Board of Health is not aware of the salary schedule affecting nurses of the Health Department. It is a thing that is hard to believe could happen, and the result apparently has been that this understaffed department has been endeavouring to secure help below the schedule as adopted by the City Council. The department today has insufficient help, as nurses refused to accept the salary being offered.

Municipal bodies have always been very reticent about discussing salary schedules and the making of such schedules public. Civic employees on their part have always vigorously opposed the publishing of the salaries they receive. Peterborough's council in the past two years has sought to follow a policy of the less said the better — and it has been followed to such success that the Mayor and some of the aldermen are not aware of the schedule.

A salary committee was set up by the council over a year ago to study civic salaries and draw up a schedule in order that the annual appeals of members of the civic departments for salary increases would cease. The committee did a great amount of work on the new schedule, the jobs were evaluated and then the salaries were struck for the various individuals in accordance with the manner in which they measured up to that evaluation. The meetings were held in camera, as was the perfect right of any special committee, but we fear that before the final plan was adopted sufficient information was not given to the remaining members of the council. Now the policy has backfired and the very opposite to what the committee had in mind has been the result.

We do not think the public is greatly interested in the salary of any specific employee. However, the public does want to be assured that every employee is being paid a fair salary. This can only be brought about by announcing what the minimum and maximum schedules are in the various departments.

Civic bodies in the last three years have had to face many difficulties in connection with salary schedules. Civic salaries have never been high and the result has been that many vacancies have occurred. In filling these vacancies schedules have had to be increased or suitable employees would never have been secured.

Let the City Council announce its maximum salaries and then give every employee a chance, so that by improving his work, he can reach that maximum. Minimums or starting salaries mean nothing today and every new employee should be paid for the experience he or she brings to that position.

The Fall Of Calais

The Canadian troops have captured Calais and the church bells of Dover have again rung out. The two are very closely associated for it was from Calais that the big German guns shelled Dover across the English Channel. For four years the white cliffs of Dover were threatened by the German long-range guns. The constant fear of enemy shelling led to the evacuation of large numbers from Dover, but many remained to do their duty living in caves and in deep underground shelters. Now their ordeal is over. They can come out in the light of day once more and return to fairly normal life, but we read that many still return to their caves and shelters for the night for they have no other homes. Theirs were destroyed in the heavy shelling which showed a decided increase in the past few weeks, as the Germans became aware that their days were numbered.

Calais was also the centre of the robot bomb area. From a morale point of view, the fall of Calais is important. Calais and Dover have been linked very closely all down through history. In this war Calais was the spearpoint that was aimed right at the heart of Britain, but Hitler failed to cross as other would-be conquerors failed before him. Napoleon never got to Britain and the German armies waited to cross at the time of Goering's blitz in 1940. Then it was that Hitler announced he would dictate the terms of peace in Buckingham Palace. But the 25-mile channel, the British Navy and the courage of the British people were too much for him. Now the only terms of peace are the unconditional surrender of Germany.

The Canadian army has been playing a noble part in the campaign in France. Perhaps not as spectacular as that of some other armies, its lot has been both difficult and dangerous. They fought around the "hinge" of the line after the Normandy landings, faced the toughest of German units, and engaged in the nastiest of all forms of land warfare, house-to-house fighting. They have advanced along the coast cleaning out German garrisons, left behind with orders to defend to the last man these ports and strongholds.

Now they are moving on Dunkerque, the only French channel port still in the German hands. With the fall of Dunkerque eight ports will be in the hands of the Allies through which reinforcements and supplies can be rushed to the attacking armies. Convenient ports are necessary, now that the autumn gales are sweeping the channel, and beach landings are being made more and more difficult.

The people of Dover through Admiral Sir Henry Pridham-Whippel have expressed their thankfulness to the Canadians and General Crerar. The terror of the people of "Hell Corner" is at an end and this has been signalized by the ringing of the church bells.

Who Climbed The Manure Spreader?

Early in the summer Bruce Hutchison wrote at some length in the Winnipeg Free Press about what he called the Great Canadian Joke. The Canadians, he said, had a humour all their own, which derived little from the humour either of England or of the U.S.A., and he based his article upon one joke which he said had originated in Canada, and was characteristic of our humour. It was the familiar joke about the little boy who put a chamber-pot on his head while playing soldiers, got it stuck there, and had to be taken to the doctor with a paper bag concealing the object of his shame. Of course this is not a Canadian joke at all, whatever Mr. Hutchison may say. It appeared both in England and the U.S.A. as early as seventy years ago. So much for Mr. Hutchison's Great Canadian Joke.

But we had always cherished a story about Mitch Hepburn as a genuine, home raised Canadian joke. Many readers will know it. It is said that at a fall fair Mitch was asked to make a speech, so he jumped up on a manure-spreader to do so, and began by saying, "Well, boys, this is the first time I ever stood on a Tory platform!" Whereupon a wag in the audience shouted, "Drive 'er away, Mitch, she's got the biggest load on she'll ever carry!" We like this story. It is racy, and witty, and it has a real Canadian flavour about it.

But is it Canadian? In the current issue of Vogue we find the story told of the late William Jennings Bryan, the American demagogue who killed himself in an attempt to prove that Darwin was wrong. The droll retort of the farmer is not included in the Vogue version of the story, but Bryan is said to have begun, "Ladies and gentlemen, this is the first time I have ever addressed an audience from a Republican platform".

Now has someone tried to pinch this excellent story from Canada, and transplant it in the United States, with the mangey Bryan as its hero, instead of our own turbulent Mr. Hepburn? The question is particularly important now that Mr. Hepburn has stated his intention of returning to political life. We should like an authoritative statement: Who climbed the manure-spreader? Was it William Jennings Bryan or Mitch Hepburn?

NOTE AND COMMENT

Postwar styles in women's clothes, we are assured, will be 'dramatic'. But they can't go much further in raising the curtain.

A British Columbia burglar was found trapped in a chimney, and has been given 18 months in jail. The judge simply wouldn't believe that he was Santa Claus.

Enough tobacco to make two billion cigars has just been harvested in the U.S. This means that half a billion cigars, and a billion and a half convention cigars, and a further two billion gift cigars for the Christmas trade will shortly be on the market.

Bad News From Soda Creek

By BRUCE HUTCHISON

AN Indian named Johnny Joe, of Soda Creek, British Columbia, announces that Canada is facing a hard winter. The squirrels are piling up more pine cones than usual, the berries are thicker, the beaver are building larger houses, the leaves are hanging on later.

Every year since I was a boy, and that is long ago, the Indians have been predicting a hard winter. The squirrels are always gathering more food than usual, the berries are always thicker than average, the beaver houses have constantly grown in size until they must now be as tall as the Empire State building. Every year the Indians have told us that the winter snows would be two-squaws deep, and all through my life I have picture those two unfortunate women who are forced by the tribe to stand on each other's shoulders out in the snow to measure the accuracy of the invariable forecast and who, you would think, must now be frozen solid. Obviously our climate is growing steadily colder. The whole planet is cooling off, according to the scientific observations of Soda Creek, B.C.

THE Indians used to be the only prophets. They held a monopoly of bad news and they enjoyed it. During the rest of the year no one paid any attention to them but in the autumn, for a few brief days, they suddenly became important news, and well-to-do citizens in our great cities, reading that the squirrels were hoarding food in nature's black market, would rush out and buy more coal and extra underwear.

But lately other prophets have been muscling in on the Indians like Johnny Joe. Prophesy has become a white man's racket all over the world; and just as the Indians have to predict increasingly hard winters to get a hearing at all, so the white prophets have been obliged to predict ever more dire wars, revolutions and depressions to make the public listen. A vast literature of chaos, bloodshed and ruin has appeared during the last four years and earned its producers good money. The fact that their prophecies have never come true has not damaged in the least the reputation of the prophets. They just write another book, predicting something worse, and the public rushes to buy it.

No wonder Johnny Joe resents this unfair competition. He gets nothing for his prophecies, except the satisfaction of work well done, and a brief paragraph in the papers. His imitators in the great cities, the men who had the world conquered by the Nazis and our society plunged into the Managerial Revolution or worse, have grown fat with every error. Johnny Joe just goes on predicting harder winters for the sheer joy of prediction. At Soda Creek the ancient priestcraft of prophesy remains untainted by money and, in relation to the accepted economic and political theories of our time, comparatively accurate.

YOU may disregard Johnny Joe at your peril. One of his compatriots, an Indian named Luke Bonaparte, used to bring us cordwood, and he always predicted a hard winter, with the usual exhibits of squirrels, beaver and berries. When the hard winter never occurred we conceived the unworthy thought that Luke might be trying to encourage the sale of his fuel, and we cut down our cordwood order in the autumn of 1936. Luke shook his head and said something about the squirrels. And that, as you will remember, was the winter of the Big Freeze.

From then on we always bought Luke's cordwood until he got a job in a service station and refused to swing an axe again. Now if you ask Luke about the weather he will reply, with a sly look, that it will assuredly be a cold winter because he has observed the signs of nature, noted that the white men are cutting more cordwood than usual. Also, he says it will be a hard winter if the war is over and there are cut-backs in armament contracts and unemployment; whereas, it will be an easy winter if we enjoy a postwar inventory boom.

Luke has come quite a way from the beaver swamp, the squirrel's hole and the berry bushes, and he doesn't realize yet that he has gone downhill as a prophet. He has imitated the white man whose prophecies in the whole field of war, politics, economics and revolution are one hundred per cent reliable only because they have been proved invariably wrong. Whereas the squirrels, beaver and Johnny Joe, of Soda Creek, are sometimes right.

Mephitis

The skunk isn't at all a bad chap to know. His reputation, based on smell, does not do him justice. Anyone who has seen a mother skunk lead a brood of little ones in single file across a lawn at dusk, each tiny fellow with his tail held aloft like a banner, has seen one of the most appealing sights in nature's museum. Mephitis and his relatives cover the Eastern part of the nation, from Maine to Florida, from Wisconsin to Louisiana.

As man has cleared a home in this New World, some forms of wildlife have retreated to swamps and mountain security; some have been eliminated entirely. But the skunk, like the fox and the opossum, has learned to survive in farm areas. Indeed, he can frequently be found, or smelled, in urban centers. It may be that Mephitis likes the company of man in spite of the way he has been persecuted.

He is a good friend of the farmer in spite of an occasional foray on the chicken coop. He eats tremendous quantities of May beetles and their grubs; he consumes many field mice which eat the bark of trees, the heads of timothy and the grains of oats, wheat and buckwheat. Repeated surveys by biologists have proved that "Stripe Suit" more than earns his way.

The common opinion is that Mephitis is a lethargic, stolid chap that goes bullheadedly on his way. But while he seems indolent and slothful if he comes forth in the daylight hours, he's a changed being on a cool, moonlit autumn evening. Then he's an active, nimble creature; he hustles about in the crisp air, flipping stones to one side as he hunts for a grub or digs in the soil for a beetle or worm. He responds to good weather environment—as do other animals, including homo sapiens.

When the time of cold arrives, he goes into semi-hibernation in a rabbit or woodchuck hole, beneath an old building, or occasionally digs his own burrow. The countryman has a folklore saying that if skunks come around the farm buildings in numbers during the fall, it means a long, hard winter. Mephitis has a drawback in polite society, but he sets a good example in sobriety of action, and tends strictly to his own affairs if the world leaves him alone.—New York Times.

POST-WAR WORLD —By Goldberg

Germany's Desperate Hour

LONDON OBSERVER

AMONG many uncertainties in the present situation inside Germany there is one fixed factor: the determination of Hitler and Himmler to cling to power and to admit no surrender.

This cannot be repeated often enough because the British public, dominated by the precedent of 1918, somehow refuses, in spite of all evidence, to take note of it. People cannot rid themselves of the idea that, in the moment of defeat, the Nazi regime will crack as did the Kaiser's, that its leaders will seek safety abroad as Ludendorff and the Kaiser himself did, and that some "harmless" figures will be put forward to shoulder again the blame and burden of German defeat. Hardly a British paper omits a solemn warning that we must beware not to be taken in once more. Nobody seems to notice that there is not the slightest indication of anything like it happening. The Nazi policy in 1944 is the precise revise of the policy of Ludendorff and the Kaiser in 1918.

So far from abdicating, they are in every way intensifying their terror, and taking a firmer grip on the German population. So far from a revolution against the regime taking shape, it is the Nazi revolution itself which is now pushed a final step further.

The facts about the present new "total mobilization" are known: the renewed combing-out of factory workers for the Forces; the mobilization of the 16-year-olds for the Army; the mobilization of women and old men for the arms industry; the shutting-down of all theatres and music halls and many newspapers and magazines; the compulsory rifle training for the whole civilian population; the direction, without notice, of the entire population of frontier districts to fortification work.

The military usefulness of all these rigorous measures is more than doubtful. None of them will stop General Eisenhower's armies. But, in the German twilight, they certainly do strengthen the political power of the Nazi party, which is charged with their execution, over the German population at large. And this may well be their real purpose. Goering's paper, the Essen "National Zeitung," is sensationally frank about it:

"During the last years there have been periods when not only the public but the party itself was under the impression that, compared with the State bureaucracy and the authority of military officers to issue regulations at home, the party only played a secondary role. This has now been fundamentally changed. The party is again actually, and not only officially, the executor of the will of the people and the State. The impulse given to the party organizations from above has increased the party's will to be obeyed and brought it the joyful adherence of those who are favourably inclined toward it, while at the same time it increased the respect of lax people and the fear of some ill-willed persons.... Any housewife who 'forgot' to register with the labour office may now find herself suddenly fetched to work in the open....The party will not hesitate to investigate any information given by dutiful persons, even though they may be called informers...."
